CALENDARS.

Instructions to Editors.

The Master of the Rolls desires to call the attention of the Editors of Calendars to the following considerations, with a view to secure uniformity of plan in the important works on which they are engaged :—

He is anxious to extend, as far as is consistent with proper economy and despatch, the utility of the Calendars of State Papers now publishing under his control : 1st. As the most efficient means of making the national archives accessible to all who are interested in historical inquiries ; 2nd. As the best justification of the liberality and munificence of the Government in throwing open these papers to the public, and providing proper catalogues of their contents at the national expense.

The greater number of the readers who will consult and value these works can have little or no opportunity of visiting the Public Record Office, in which these papers are deposited. The means for consulting the originals must necessarily be limited when readers live at a distance from the metropolis ; still more if they are residents of Scotland, Ireland, distant colonies, or foreign states. Even when such an opportunity does exist, the difficulty of mastering the original hands in which these papers are written will deter many readers from consulting them. Above all, their great variety and number must present formidable obstacles to literary inquirers, however able, sanguine, and energetic, when the information contained in them is not made accessible by satisfactory Calendars.

The Master of the Rolls considers that, without superseding the necessity of consulting the originals, every Editor ought to frame his Calendar in such a manner that it shall present, in as condensed a form as possible, a correct index of the contents of the papers described in it. He considers that the entries should be so minute as to enable the reader to discover not only the general contents of the originals, but also what they do not contain. If the information be not sufficiently precise, if facts and names be omitted or concealed under a vague and general description, the reader will be often misled, he will assume that where the abstracts are silent as to information to be found in the documents, such information does not exist ; or, he will have to examine every original in detail, and thus one great purpose will have been lost for which these Calendars have been compiled.

As the documents are various, the Master of the Rolls considers that they will demand a corresponding mode of treatment. The following rules are to be observed:—

1st. All formal and official documents, such as letters of credence, warrants, grants, and the like, should be described as briefly as possible.

2nd. Letters and documents referring to one subject only should be catalogued as briefly as is consistent with correctness. But when they contain miscellaneous news, such a description should be given as will enable a reader to form an adequate notion of the variety of their contents.

3rd. Wherever a letter or paper is especially difficult to decipher, or the allusions more than ordinarily obscure, it will be advisable for the Editor to adhere, as closely as is consistent with brevity, to the text of the document. He is to do the same when it contains secret or very rare information.

4th. Where the Editor has deciphered letters in cipher, the decipher may be printed at full length. But when a contemporary or authorised decipher exists it will be sufficient to treat the cipher as an ordinary document.

5th. Striking peculiarities of expression, proverbs, manners, &c. are to be noticed.

6th. Original dates are to be given at the close of each entry, that the reader may know the exact evidence by which the marginal dates are determined.

7th. Where letters are endorsed by the receivers and the date of their delivery specified, these endorsements are to be recorded.

8th. The number of written pages of each document is to be specified, as a security for its integrity, and that readers may know what proportion the abstract bears to the original.

9th. The language of every document is to be specified. If, however, the greater part of the collection be in English, it will be sufficient to denote those only which are in a different tongue.

10th. Where documents have been printed, a reference should be given to the publication.

11th. Each series is to be chronological.

12th. The Prefaces of Editors, in explanation of documents in the volume, are not to exceed fifty pages, unless the written permission of the Master of the Rolls to the contrary be obtained.

* * * Editors employed in foreign archives are to transcribe at full length important and secret papers.

P R E F A C E.

THE period included in the present volume of Calendar, only eleven months, was important politically, as it saw the dissolution of the Parliament which first met 17th September 1656.

On pp. 11-19 will be found a number of legislative Acts passed and approved at the winding up of the parliamentary session in June 1657. These represent the work of many previous months, and embrace a wide range of home legislation.

The Protector's home policy was that of expediency. Whilst he refused the crown offered to him by his "fine and tractable parliament," because the name of King was so distasteful to the army, he accepted, on their petition, a form of government as absolutely regal and hereditary, only using the name of Protector instead of King, and declared his son Richard as his successor (pp. 3, 9, 11). The ceremonial took place on 26th June 1657, when Cromwell "with a golden sceptre in one hand, and a rich Bible in the other," came in state to Westminster Hall, where the Speaker arrayed him in a purple robe lined with ermine, girded him with a sword, and then administered to him an oath to preserve the Protestant religion in its purity, to endeavour, as chief magistrate, the preservation of peace and the just rights of the people, and in all things to govern according to law (pp. 19, 20).

Though this movement did not materially alter Cromwell's position, except as to the point of succession, and a more formal recognition than before of government under one sole head, it still created jealousy in the army. Several officers' meetings were held to deliberate as to the course of action to be taken. Cromwell, knowing Lambert's strong anti-monarchical principles, suspected him of being at the head and front of the offending, and sent to him for his commission. He surrendered it very calmly, without remonstrance, protesting that he desired nothing more than to lead a retired life at his own house, and at once quitted his lodgings in Whitehall, and discontinued his attendance at the meetings of Council (pp. 40, 41, 47, 48).

In order to quell the spirit of discontent which manifested itself from time to time among the officers, Cromwell gave a week's time and energy to making such changes as he thought needful. He told them that they should either stick to him or lay down their commissions. Nine of them at once tendered their resignations, though reminding him that if he had made them, they had made him. The commissions of all who refused implicit obedience to the Protector's orders were taken away, and from his own regiment he dismissed Major Parker and 5 captains, and placed 6 other men of approved bravery in their stead (pp. 288, 289, 306).

This proceeding gave rise to remonstrances, which were construed into an offence against Cromwell's authority, and Sir Charles Howard, captain of his own guard, Vice-Admiral Lawson, and Cols. White and Okey were committed to the Tower on suspicion of treason (pp. 314, 346).

It was rumoured, moreover, that Gen. Monk, whose position at the head of the army in Scotland rendered his allegiance of vital importance, refused to obey Cromwell's orders (p. 314). It is true that this rumour was contradicted at head quarters, Sec. Thurloe declaring that "there is not a man in all the 3 nations more loyal and dutiful to his Highness," but still Monk did not comply with the mandate summoning him to London (pp. 314, 327, 328). The French said that Monk's reply to the summons was that Cromwell might come to him if he had anything to say to him (p. 341). One report was that his officers and soldiers "will not let him go till they are paid, which will not be in haste;" another that he was jealous lest Cromwell should depose him from his command (pp. 328, 333, 358).

Sec. Thurloe gave in an information that a pamphlet called "A letter of address to the Protector" had been printed, which was very derogatory to his Highness. All attempts to discover the author failing, Hen. Eversden, the printer, though denying any knowledge of the authorship, was ordered to be taken into custody (p. 83).

The Parliament which resumed its sittings on 20th Jan. 1657-8 was not in a compliant mood. Cromwell's influence in the Commons was lessened because his staunchest adherents were removed to form an Upper House, or House of Lords, which was considered an essential adjunct to the monarchical form of government lately adopted, and the Protector had been requested to select and summon such a House (p. 12).

It comprised 60 persons, including the Protector's two sons and his two sons-in-law; 11 peers, though only 7 of the old peerage, 6 baronets, 10 knights, 5 law officers, 5 military officers, and 4 civil officers (pp. 211, 220), but the plebeian character of some of the members excited scorn and ridicule; one was Col. Huson, who had been a shoemaker, and it was suggested that he should wear his "præliary weapons, Sir Hugh's bones and an awl," as the "worthy ensigns of this his new nobility" (p. 232).

Fresh oaths were to be administered to the Privy Councillors on this change of government, but here again Lambert's sturdy independence asserted itself; he refused to take the new form of oath, and though nominated to sit in the Upper House, he ignored the summons, and made his appearance with Sir Arth. Haselrigge in the House of Commons, neither of them apologizing to the Protector for their refusal, but simply ignoring altogether the existence of the Upper House, whilst several of the former peerage who had been summoned—the Earls of Manchester and Warwick, and Lord Wharton—hesitated to identify themselves with this mongrel House (p. 258).

Great preparations were made for its meeting, woolpacks, chairs and carpets, hangings of baize, striped stuff, &c., ordered, all which Kinnersley was to provide as cheaply as he could (pp. 262, 266).

When they began their sittings in January 1657-8, they assumed not the proposed title of "Upper House," but of "House of Lords," and therefore the Lower House was at first disposed not to own them, till over persuaded by a "very pious and eloquent speech from the Protector" (pp. 273, 274, 276).

Col. Fiennes, who was chosen speaker of the House of Lords,—the office of Lord Chancellor not existing,—followed up the Protector's speech by a longer one, magnifying the happiness which the nation enjoyed under him, and the necessity for a House of Lords, but his remarks rather provoked than conciliated the Commons (pp. 273, 274, 276).

Some murmured that "there was no need of a House of Lords without a King, and if they must have a King they "would have the right one" (p. 324). Petitions against the government were also preparing in almost every county, to be presented to Parliament (p. 314). All the guards were doubled, and 800 horse constantly quartered in St. Paul's, the army being in and about London (p. 327).

It is instructive to note how the struggles between arbitrary power and representative power, which had given rise to the civil war, were beginning to repeat themselves. Cromwell demanded 300,000*l.* of Parliament (p. 306), no very exorbitant sum when the debts of the navy alone were nearly 100,000*l.*, and its needs 300,000*l.* (pp. 168, 267), but Parliament refused to grant it unless the control of the militia might be restored to them, and Cromwell, utterly refusing to allow the military power out of his own hands, in a fit of temper, dissolved Parliament.

But the question of supplies was very pressing. Money was wanted, urgently wanted, how was it to be obtained? Two attempts were made which proved equally abortive. He tried to persuade the East India Company to lend 500,000*l.*, and at first they seemed disposed to comply, but ultimately excused themselves on the ground of inability (p. 315). He next applied to the City of London, but they were displeased at the dissolution of Parliament, and refused compliance (pp. 306, 297). Upon this Cromwell sent for the Lord Mayor and Common Council, and harangued them for 2 hours; he spoke of the mis-doings of the late Parliament, which he dissolved because it was led aside by some turbulent spirits; of the danger threatening the kingdom through a projected invasion from Flanders, and the attempts of the Royalists under the Duke of Ormond and James, Duke of York, both of whom were said to be incognito somewhere in the country, and he urged them to put the city militia into a posture of defence with all speed, as he intended to do the same all the nation over; he also exhorted them to a firm union against the common enemy of them all, Charles Stuart (pp. 328, 346, 377).

The difficulty of obtaining supplies reached even to the Protector's household, in spite of orders giving it the precedence over other claims. John Maidstone, his steward, complains, in August 1657, that the 12,000*l.* a quarter granted for the household does not meet the expenses, and that only 6,000*l.* has been paid for the last quarter (p. 51). Payment of the balance was at once ordered from the money designed for the forces in Ireland, or from the first that comes into the Exchequer; and again the Treasury Commissioners had a special charge from Council to see that the 6,000*l.* balance due of the former allowance be paid out of the first moneys that come in from the Prize Office, any warrant for payment of other moneys therefrom notwithstanding (pp. 51, 83). The allowance for the household was more than doubled, being raised to 100,000*l.* yearly—equal to more than 400,000*l.* of our present money—but this sum was to include the repairs of the Protector's houses, which had hitherto been kept in order at the State's expense. The money was to be paid at the rate of 1923*l.* 1*s.* 6¼*d.* weekly, from the most assured source of income, viz., the Customs; and some alterations having been made in the draft of the patent, it was approved in Council, and offered to his Highness as their advice (pp. 113, 128, 130, 132, 140).

Complaints of the poverty of the Exchequer are constantly occurring. The wagons that carried some Spanish plate prize from Portsmouth to London could not obtain payment for their services (p. 86). The Prize Office had no money to pay 2,720*l.* due for the clothes of the soldiery sent to France under Gen. Reynolds, and the contractor not only had to pay interest on the money borrowed for their purchase, but was threatened with arrest by the indigent tradesmen who remained unpaid (pp. 117-18). Needless and ruinous expense was incurred by keeping on the crews of ships called in, for want of ready money to pay off their arrears (pp. 197, 205).

The case of the ships was one of such imminence that, towards the 40,000*l.* wanted to pay them off, 6 London aldermen were found willing to lend 17,000*l.* at 6 per cent., to be repaid from money coming in on the Act for preventing multiplicity of buildings in London, or failing that, from the Customs, and the Navy Treasurer was authorized to receive the money, and manage the repayment (pp. 102-3).

The pensions of sick and wounded seamen were allowed to run into arrears, and the Governors of the Chest at Chatham write urgently for money "lest the guilt of many " of these poor creatures perishing (who have nothing else " to live upon) should too much reflect on us." In their embarrassment, they had begged for a grant of the ruinous cathedral at Rochester to help their fund, but for this the consent of Parliament was necessary; and though Parliament did not scruple at the disposal of church property, yet its dissolution prevented the passing of the bills prepared (pp. 121-2). These pensioners were in number 800 or 900, and to none was the annual allowance more than 6*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*, or 2*s.* 6*d.* a week, and 2000*l.* or 3000*l.* of the money due to them being unpaid, many perished through want. Commissioner Pett, the dispenser of the fund, was obliged to leave Chatham to get rid of the clamours of the unpaid poor, and heartily wished he had nothing to do with the business (p. 362).

An urgent request was also made by the Commissioners for maimed soldiers for recall of an order from the Admiralty Commissioners, for stay of their weekly allowance from the Excise and Customs, as it will produce much clamour, and the cries of the poor will be many (pp. 129, 130).

The hospitals of Ely House and the Savoy, for payment of pensions to maimed soldiers and their widows, shared in the general difficulty of obtaining money, and in order to a reduction of the expense, the managing Committee were ordered to send in a report of proceedings. They state that they were appointed in 1653, when their first business was to select such pensioners as were only partially disabled, and send them to serve in garrisons, bearing their expenses thither. In 1657 they were ordered to allow pensions to the disabled soldiers who returned from America and the West Indies, and to widows of those slain in the service. They state their revenues at 735*l.* weekly, and their moiety of fines and forfeitures at 1,500*l.* a year, but they are 10 weeks, or 7350*l.*, in arrears.

On this report the Committee was reconstituted, and ordered to examine into the case of each pensioner, and to discharge or abate the pensions wherever they see any ground, granting none but on urgent necessity. At the same time the Admiralty Commissioners were ordered to see that the payments were made regularly to the Ely House Committee, but no order was given for the arrears (pp. 363-4).

A system of retrenchment was set on foot to lessen the army expenses, and the commanders-in-chief in Scotland and Ireland were requested to conform thereto, or to present reasons to the contrary (p. 161). Gen. Monk sent proposals for the forces in Scotland which were accepted, whereby that branch of the army's expenses was reduced one-eighth, or 3302*l.* 14*s.* 4*d.* a month (pp. 186, 281).

The relations between Cromwell and Holland were externally friendly, but of dubious sincerity, because the rumours of Kingship offered to the Protector, and the higher assumptions made by him as sole magistrate, were distasteful to the Republicans. We hear on the one hand of the Dutch Admiral Opdam lowering his flag and saluting the English colours (p. 174), but being required to repeat the ceremony to ships of war of small size, he replied petulantly that "he was not to strike to every sail he met," and it was only on threat of force that he caused his flag to be furled in a great rage (pp. 188-9). The refusal to strike of 3 Holland men-of-war provoked the English to fire at their flags, and the firing was returned, but night prevented further mischief, the English sailors being "all free to lose their lives rather than suffer that abuse" (p. 197). On the other hand there were rumours of a scuffle with them off the coast of Portugal, in which the English, being fewer in numbers, were worsted (p. 174). "I have hope," writes Lord Colepepper, "of a good rise for the King's recovery from a rupture with these States, on the insolencies which the English (when they have set up that new sun) will put upon them; for if there be a break, it will not be in jest, as the last scuffling was" (p. 259).

Family anxieties were superadded to perplexities of State to disturb the unfortunate Protector. His eldest son, Lord Richard Cromwell, had a fall in hunting in the New Forest, "that fatal place to the sons of our princes," broke his thigh bone, and put his knee out of joint (pp. 84, 87).

His son-in-law, Rob. Rich, grandson and heir of the Earl of Warwick, who married his daughter Frances, fell into a rapid consumption and died, but left to his widow a jointure of 3000*l.* a year (pp. 168, 259, 306).

No wonder that Cromwell's health broke down under this accumulation of anxiety. We hear of his going 14 days to Hampton Court, "a little intending his health," at the time of his son's accident in August 1657, and in February 1657-8, of his being dangerously ill, swooning twice in one day, and having attacks of vertigo or giddiness in the head (pp. 84, 305, 306).

A Royalist letter writer observes on March 18, 1657-8
“ All advertisements agree that Cromwell is in a bad “ posture, as well for want of money as the general
“ discontent, not only among the people but in the army,
“ which gives hope that the time for his ruin draws near.”
(p. 333).

In proportion to the general depression of the Cromwellian party arose the hopes of the exiled Royalists. Designs on behalf of Charles II. were discovered among the English troops sent to Mardike under Gen. Reynolds; they served very unwillingly, and became mutinous; some of the managers of the plot were apprehended and put to death, and the same severe sentence was passed on the soldiers whom they had influenced (pp. 3, 31, 58). Some of these latter escaped from prison, and with passes from James, Duke of York, as Lord Admiral, got to Amsterdam, and thence to England, where they pretended to be prisoners taken at sea by the enemy, but were at length detected as part of Reynolds' forces, and sent back to Mardike, to be dealt with according to their deserts (pp. 171, 172).

Two men, Wm. Astley and Chas. Giffard, were seized in England because they had received commissions from the King to raise forces on his behalf; they were first imprisoned in Shrewsbury Castle, and then sent under guard of a party of horse to London, where they were personally examined before Council, and on evidence of their design to levy war against his Highness, the case was referred to legal counsel, to bring the offenders to trial (pp. 51, 155).

Not only had the King given land commissions, but he also issued a commission to Capt. Rob. Homes to set out a fleet of ships at sea on a particular design, not specified, but for which 6 good frigates would suffice. He pledged himself moreover not to accept any duties from prizes to be taken by this fleet, which would only be liable to payment of tenths to Lord Admiral the Duke of York (p. 273).

Rumours were rife of frequent meetings of Royalists in London and Westminster, of designs on foot, and of constant correspondence with Charles Stuart. Under these circumstances, a proclamation was issued commanding all Papists, and all who had borne arms against the State, or had assisted the enemy in the late wars, to depart at once from London and Westminster, or the suburbs within 20 miles, unless it be their place of habitation. The Lord Mayor and aldermen, and the justices of peace, were to keep strict watch and ward, to search for and apprehend offenders, commit them to prison, and report proceedings to Council. All officers, civil and military, were required to assist in the execution of these orders. Also, all Papists and Royalists not resident in London or Westminster were ordered to return to their own homes, and not to remove from them beyond the distance of 5 miles (p. 303). These restrictions were enforced rigorously, almost every house was ransacked, and 200 persons were seized as suspected. The vigilance exercised is also proved by the frequent requests for licenses made by those whose health or business required them to remain within the prohibited distances (pp. 315, 317, 319, 549, 551-553). A general seizure of the horses of Papists and delinquents was also made (p. 373).

A stringent regulation was enforced in reference to lodgers. Every householder was required to give in the names of all his lodgers, whether Papists or not, and to give notice of any fresh lodger within 24 hours of his arrival; all who failed in doing this were to be considered enemies of the peace, and the aldermen and justices were to inquire after such lists, and transmit them to Council (p. 303).

Sir Wm. Waller and Sir Rob. Harley's son, both active Presbyterians, were committed to the Tower, as also Sheriff Browne and divers others of that faction, it being rumoured that "his Majesty now ploughs with these heifers," and that the King's intended invasion was a Presbyterian plot. Most of the governors of the port towns especially were suspected to be in correspondence with the King, a safe landing place and an open port being among the first essentials to a successful invasion (p. 357).

There can be little doubt that had the exiled King been able to prevail with any foreign power to take the initiative, and enable him to land at the head of an army, a strong responsive movement would have been made in England.

Sir Hen. Bennet, agent of Charles II. at the Court of Madrid, represented that if his master could obtain half of the grant promised him, which was 100,000*l.*, he could secure not only the foreign troops that had been raised by Lieut.-Gen. Middleton, but 5000 Germans, and ensure a large party to join him, both in England and Scotland; but he expressed his fears, which were well grounded, lest the slowness of the Spanish Court, and the incapacity of those in Flanders, should cause mischievous delays (p. 3). The "Spanish method" was not to be altered however, but the greatest confidence was expressed that if the Royalists once got a footing in England they would "begin with doing" (p. 163).

Over and over again the King pleaded to know the cause of the delay in the project of invasion, but got no satisfaction (p. 336).

One great obstacle to the transaction of all business was a difference that had sprung up between Don John of Austria, governor of the Low Countries, and his principal minister of State, the Marquis Caracena; but this was happily composed, and reports became rife of preparations for a speedy attempt on England. A placard was issued forbidding commerce between Flanders and England, and speaking kindly of Charles II. (p. 325).

A descent upon England was in serious contemplation for the spring of 1657-8 (pp. 305, 306, 310, 317), and the Marquis of Ormond seems to have been clandestinely sent over to make arrangements for it. As a blind to his absence from Court, it was pretended that he was going to the Imperial Diet in Germany. Some said he had gone over to open negotiations with General Monk (p. 357), but he did not give satisfaction in the transaction of his business (pp. 259, 265, 300, 313, 314, 317, 328, 346, 347, 357, 364).

Several of the King's friends and servants urged for permission to return at once, as they could do more good by raising their friends in the cause, than by their own personal service in the invading Army, and they were anxious to have "foot in stirrup with the first" (p. 324) hoping "that the discontents in England may give his Majesty some advantage, so that he shall less need foreign aid, and only owe the cure to those that gave him the wound" (p. 325).

This hope was prophetic, but the time was not yet. No place had been appointed as a rendezvous, and the troops already raised in Flanders and in Spanish pay had been so ill treated that they were hardly to be relied upon, and were running away daily (p. 341). Arms had been procured, and more were promised from Holland, but the strength of the so-called rebels at sea presented a serious difficulty. Lord Colepepper writes on Feb. 26, "How any forces can be transported hence after the end of this month, when the seas will swarm with men-of-war upon this coast, is a mystery to me" (p. 327). Some were sanguine enough to hope that if the King would only put to sea, unfurl once more the royal flag, and summon the rebel fleet to join him, the greatest part would come over to him. But this was an experiment too critical to attempt, seeing that failure would probably involve the capture of the King, and the ruin of his party.

The opinion of those best informed, viz., Charles himself and Lord Chancellor Hyde, was that the Spaniards were in earnest in the business, but that unless they had some definite encouragement, such as a rising in England, or a declaration of the Hollanders in favour of the King—a contingency which was deemed possible, if not probable, on account of some disturbance between the Protector and the States General — they would seem to make preparations for an invasion of England, but would really utilize the military stores in their own defence.

On the other hand, friends in England had good inclinations, but they were too much under grasp of the Protector's vigilant power to risk any attempt till sure of definite and able support, and thus the weary circle would not come to an end (pp. 326-7, 346). The last rumour, quoted on April 9, as rife in the French Court, was that the King, with General Marsine, at the head of 4000 men, had gone to Scotland to join Monk (p. 365), but a few days later we hear that the Lord Chancellor's confidence in Monk is vain, and is now laid aside (p. 372). "I fear," writes one of the Royalist party, "the fair occasion which the conjuncture affords may be lost, whilst there is expectation which of the two, ourselves here or our friends in England, should strike the first. We still talk of being able to overcome all difficulties, and he who is fearful is not thought well affected" (p. 332). Again, Lord Wentworth writes that several gentlemen just arrived from England agree that there never was an opportunity so fitting as the present for an attempt, and that several persons of quality are prepared to rise, but cannot do it till the King lands with a force capable of giving diversion to Cromwell's army, and that unless the King can make some attempt, as he has promised, it will discourage his friends in England, and "it will be the ruin of divers of them, and may be the loss of their lives" (p. 335).

The project had been to land at Plymouth, where little opposition was expected, and where one of the ports had been promised, hoping to be favoured by insurrections at Bristol and Gloucester; but Charles was reluctantly compelled to consent to a postponement till September, on condition that the military stores prepared at Nieuport and Ostend should remain untouched, and that then no pretence whatever should hinder the vigorous prosecution of the affair (p. 352).

The personal treatment of the royal exiles at the Court of Flanders was ceremonious, but lacking cordiality. "Don John," writes one of the party, "treats us in all things as though he purposed to drive us out of the country" (p. 312).

The burgomasters of Dixmeude preferred a complaint against Col. Blagge, gentleman of the bedchamber to Charles II., and commander of the King's regiment of guards, that his soldiers had pulled down several houses, that he had not punished some who had robbed a church, and that he had forced the burgomasters into an agreement with him. On this he was treated as severely as though Don John intended to subject him to the tribunals of justice, even though he made a satisfactory defence. (pp. 304, 312, 325).

He was wishful to return to his regiment at Dixmeude, but unwilling to go until he could procure for them not only the clothes that they needed, part of which at last were furnished, but such orders as he desired, and these were very difficult to obtain (pp. 341, 342, 347).

The pensions promised so long to the exiled King and his Court came in very slowly, and their fortunes were at the lowest ebb (p. 26). "King Charles here," writes a Bruges intelligencer, "is still in the old condition of want, with little hope of amendment" (p. 116).

On 26th April 1657, Don John of Austria had requested to have a list of the King's officers of state and household presented to him, and it was drawn up by Sec. Nicholas and presented on December 4th. It consisted of 58 persons, not including 8 in attendance on the Duke of Gloucester. At the head of the list was the Marquis of Ormond, as Viceroy of Ireland, the Earls of Bristol, Norwich, and Rochester, as councillors, 3 peers, Lords Wentworth, Colepepper, and Gerard, the Bishop of Derry, 8 knights, 3 chaplains, a physician and surgeon, &c., &c. (p. 201). But the hoped for result of payment for the household did not follow.

Two months later Sir James Hamilton, one of the King's household, threatened, in a drunken fit, to kill the Lord Chancellor, supposing that it was through his influence that he remained unpaid; but he would first put on a clean shirt that he might be hanged in a clean one, for he should not run away, as he had not a penny (p. 292). Paymaster Stephen Fox writes, "Unless we can have a speedy supply, we must break with all mankind; and if we can get money, it must go to paying bills charged from Bruges, to enable us to remove thence" (p. 298); and a few days later, "Nothing can be done for the poor reformed gentlemen till the King is at Brussels. We could not have got from hence if Mr. Shaw had not lent us 1500 florins, which is all the money I have had since we left Bruges" (p. 304).

Again he writes, that "the King has been very industrious in his business, but has got no money, only fair promises;" adding, "If our time come not shortly as promised, it will make the King very uneasy, as he is called upon from all hands for debts now fallen due," but his pressing remonstrances brought only promises, "which they break with customary ease" (pp. 326, 327).

Among pitiful appeals to the King for money, is that of a fencing master, name not given, who came to Bruges to teach the royal household, equerries, &c., the mysteries of his art, but after many months' service, was left unpaid, and must end his days in prison, and his family perish of hunger, without timely payment (p. 277).

"We have fair promises," writes Paymaster Fox, "when we get to Brussels, meanwhile it will go hard with our menage, which we have again begun since the Princess's departure" (p. 304).

The Princess alluded to is Mary, Princess of Orange, sister of Charles II. In January 1657-8 she met the King and Duke of Gloucester near Breda, on Spanish ground, and thence they went on to Antwerp; whilst they remained together, she entertained her brothers at her own table (pp. 259, 265).

This visit was made the opportunity of a display of Court festivity. The Earl of Newcastle gave a ball at which the King was present, ushered in by a band of music. A speech in verse was given, penned by the Earl, though spoken by Major Mohun, the player, in a black satin robe and garland of bays, complimenting the King in the highest style of hyperbole; then French dances, then a banquet served in 8 great chargers, and brought in by 16 gentlemen of honour in the King's service. Then Lady Marchioness Moore, dressed in feathers, came in and sang a song of the Earl's, set to music by Nich. Lanier. Then followed an epilogue, also spoken by Mohun, prophesying his Majesty's speedy re-establishment (pp. 297, 311).

There was also a dispensing of the courtly honours which were the only favours within the power of the exiled sovereign. General Marsine, a warm partisan of the King, was made Knight of the Garter, all due ceremonies being observed, and Sir Edw. Walker, Garter King, who records the event, adds, with a chuckle of pleasure "He " has paid all his fees to the King's servants, and re" membered me to my satisfaction" (p. 296).

Several of the Court were knighted, among whom were the Duke, "now Sir Henry, of Gloucester," and Sir Art. Slingsby. Also several new peerages were bestowed, the recipients being William Lord Crofts, George Lord Berkeley, and Marmaduke Lord Langdale. Other names were rumoured, viz., Sec. Nicholas, Sir Edw. Hyde, Lieut.-Gen. Middleton, M. Schomberg, and Mr. Windham, but it was thought, especially by the Queen mother, that such a number would make the honour too general, and they were omitted (pp. 265, 314, 325).

Suitors for and grants of places, present or perspective, were numerous. Sir George Lane requested and obtained a grant of the offices of clerk of the Crown of the King's Bench in Ireland, and also clerk of Parliament, to be drawn up with a non-obstante that it is to be effectual in spite of defects, owing to his Majesty's present absence from his kingdoms, and it was sealed with the Great Seal of England, there being none for Ireland (pp. 22, 25, 35, 47).

Charles granted to Sir Wm. Throgmorton the office of Knight Marshal to the household, in recognition of faithful services to the late King and himself (p. 140).

George Barker requests restoration to the place of Avenor, from which he has been ejected by Nic. Armorer, equerry, who was in temporary charge of the King's stables (p. 165).

The King's coachman, Mat. Clark, begs a grant, contingent on the restoration, of the keeping of Creslow pastures, co. Bucks, near to which he was born, provided no previous grants were made by the late King (p. 273).

Wm. Barton, pleading that he "embarked in the same bottom with the King 5 years ago, and could perform all he offered, had he money and clothes, begs either occupation, or leave to exercise his invention elsewhere, and thus liberate his Majesty from the charge of himself and his children (p. 266).

The King was unable on his removal to Brussels to have his goods conveyed thither, because they remained as pledge for payment of debts incurred at Bruges, and the care of them caused both expense and inconvenience (pp. 310, 317, 327). In sooth the "Merry Monarch" needed all the buoyancy of his light-hearted temperament to bear up against the constant pressure of the res angusta domi. "Our master was very cheerful all yesterday," writes a courtier, "though he had complaints that the bread was denied to his regiments, nor can he get from the Spaniards a penny of his pension, which is 6 months in arrear, besides the 3 months advanced, which they said should not be deducted, and all the expense he has been at for the regiments. At least Mr. Fox pretends this, yet some men abound, whilst others want (p. 314).

At last an order was obtained for payment of a month's pension, with assurances of more when the money came to Antwerp, but as this was found to overcharge the Treasury, it was changed to one for 5000 florins, and even this could not be obtained because of some informality in the order. Moreover the Dukes of York and Gloucester were expected at Brussels from Breda, where they had been on a visit to their sister, the Princess of Orange, but liberal as she usually was to her brothers, she had not paid Gloucester what he expected towards his subsistence, so that he became an added burden on the King (pp. 336, 340, 349).

This was increased by the arrival of the officers of the Duke of Ormond and Earl of Bristol's regiments, with a petition for relief, without which they must disband, having had no ammunition bread for a month (pp. 340-1).

One reason, or rather pretext, of the backwardness of the Spanish governor was the idea that Charles received supplies from other sources, from his sister, or from friends in England. This idea gained strength from the conduct of some of the King's injudicious followers. They obtained commissions from him to raise money by the forcible seizure of some of the Parliament's friends, and their detention till a heavy ransom was paid. The carrying out of this project reads like a page from an old romance.

On 17th July 1657, one Capt. Lendall, with a party of armed men, came to a retired mansion at Quekes, Isle of Thanet, inhabited by Sir Nich. Crisp, his wife, Lady Thomasine, and his father, Henry Crisp, an old man of 80 years of age; they broke open the doors, secured and bound the servants, took away plate, money, and portable goods, value 400*l.*, and hurried father and son to the sea side, to carry them on board their vessel to Flanders. At length, on the earnest intreaty of the old man, he alone was taken away as security for 1000*l.* promised to be paid by Sir Nicholas in Flanders within a month, but when they had secured him, they demanded 2000*l.* more for his ransom (p. 80).

On the arrival of Crisp in Flanders, the Governor, Don John of Austria, recognised the transaction, and stated that Crisp would be considered the prisoner of the King of England, and would be dealt with at his pleasure, either by exchange with Spanish prisoners taken by the English rebels, or otherwise (p. 97).

Sir Nich. Crisp indicated 4 prisoners in Chelsea, two merchants, a gunner, and a soldier—there being no two of sufficient quality—who would be willing to go to Flanders, on security to return if they did not procure Crisp's freedom by exchange, and requested their liberation on giving the required security. Failing this, he begs that his father may negotiate abroad for his exchange with other Spanish prisoners. He states that he cannot pay the ransom moneys without mortgaging or selling his lands, to his irreparable prejudice. Order was thereupon given for the liberation of the 4 prisoners, for 2 months, on security in 3000*l.* to return if they do not procure the exchange (pp. 80, 81). This order proved useless, as the prisoners were unable to procure the required security. The father then applied to the Spanish authorities in Flanders, but they refused to interfere, saying they had nothing to do with Crisp, as he was not their prisoner, but in custody of one of the officers of the late King's son (p. 105).

Sir Nicholas Crisp sent a special messenger, Capt. Thos. Sonds, to Bruges, with letters to his father, but he was so strictly guarded that the letters could not be delivered to him alone, but were read by his gaolers, who refused to deliver him some "surfeit water" sent by his son, lest it should contain poison, and "will suffer him to take none " of his surfeit water, for fear you will rejoice more in the " loss of his person than we shall lament in the want of " his ransom" (p. 105).

The mere proposal of an exchange of prisoners had exasperated the captors to madness; they took the old man's servant from him, made him close prisoner, allowing no one to come near him, and swore that unless the 1000*l.* were speedily paid, they would cut him to pieces; they ventured their lives for money, and will have money or life, and they care not for Cromwell nor for all the Dons in Spain. "I cannot write so bad as they do say," adds

Capt. Sonds. He urges a speedy ransom, on the ground of expediency, as the old man's charges were set at 50*s.* a day (p. 106).

Meanwhile a quarrel which arose between the captor, Lendall, and one Thos. Wadeson, well nigh thwarted the success of the scheme. He and Lieut. Rich Rose concerted to liberate Crisp, by helping him to escape from his window, on condition that their complicity should never be discovered, and that he should pay them 1500*l.* before he left Flanders or Zealand, and 1500 guilders before he left Helvoetsluys; but this proposal the honourable old man refused to entertain, and immediately informed against the author of it (pp. 97-8).

Capt. Lendall wrote direct to Sir Nich. Crisp, upbraiding him in the severest terms for his breach of promise, and want of filial obedience, whereby he has proved himself unworthy the title of knight or gentleman, and barbarously sacrificed an indulgent father—who, for his safety and that of his wife, had precipitated himself into misery—to a covetous desire to enjoy his possessions. “Your threats of Cromwell and proposals of exchange,” he adds, “will not fright me to compliance, nor abate a penny of my agreement, and without a speedy performance, he must expect the same mercy from me as I should have received from your Protector, had I miscarried in my design. There will be no exchange of persons, but of places; he will go from my house to the place of execution” (p. 105). “Be not too confident, I may meet you again when you imagine yourself most secure. My pity for your father's age and infirmities will mitigate part of that rigour he is soon to expect. You would limit him to an allowance, but he has hitherto fed at his pleasure. If you let him starve, the sin of ingratitude will light on you. If you have any glimpse of respect for him who gave you being, let it appear by performing what he lies engaged for, and assisting for his speedy enlargement.” Bruges, 8 September 1657 (p. 105).

Sir Nich. Crisp thereupon petitioned the Protector for leave to send over Lieut. Thos. Crisp, an officer in the United Provinces, to prevent the danger his father "is subject to by a company of desperate lawless persons," lest his frights and hardships cause his sudden death. Sir Nicholas adds "Lieut. Crisp will treat for ransoming my father with his own money, till you find some way to reimburse me" (p. 105).

The stern government of the Protector was not however likely to sacrifice public good to individual compassion, and to encourage brigandage by payment of ransom; their reply was that "his Highness and Council do not think fit to permit the ransoming of Crisp, they intending no encouragement to attempts of like nature, by permitting money to be transported or employed to any such use," but they would authorize Sir John Reynolds to send a trumpeter to Don John of Austria, and threaten ill usage to the Spanish prisoners in England, unless Mr. Crisp's treatment were amended (p. 106).

Within a few weeks of this failure of effort, Sir Nich. Crisp died, but his widow, Lady Thomasine, took up the cause with equal earnestness. On October 27th, a Committee of Council was appointed to consider her request that John Crisp may go over to Flanders, to treat for the release or better usage of Hen. Crisp (p. 139). This request was made, however, without her privity. She had clearness of mind to discern that no attempt would avail without ransom, and she therefore earnestly entreats leave to send it, all other attempts having failed. She urges that if it be objected that the ransom will strengthen the enemy, it will not be considerable, being divided into so many small shares. To the argument that giving ransoms encourages further attempts, she replies that Crisp is no prisoner of war, but seized by a company of desperate villains in hope of money; that Parliament ransoms men from the hands of the Turks, and that the nearness of the enemy should not make any difference. Also that his charges in prison will soon amount to a ransom, for they exact 20s. a day to allow his servants to attend on him, and that the meanest Englishman should have liberty to release himself from captivity by his own estate. Lady Crisp had also a personal ground for her urgency; she was left with only an infant daughter, and she feared that the nearest male heir might obtain from the grandfather, whilst in bondage, some settlement of the estate to the prejudice of her child. She therefore urged leave to redeem him by ransom, being hopeless of an exchange after so long waiting, and promising to do it if possible by bills of exchange, and not to export the coin of the nation. Her earnest plea was at length successful, and she was authorized to send over a person to Flanders to free her father-in-law "by such means as she shall think fit" (pp. 177, 178, 256, 550).

How much of the ransom money fell into the hands of the unscrupulous captors, and how much went to the relief of the Royal Exile in whose name this deed of brigandage was perpetrated, is not recorded.

The poverty of the Royal Exchequer was felt not only in reference to the living, but to the dead. The King lost within a few months two of his most trusted friends, Sir Edward Herbert and the Earl of Rochester.

Herbert's death was unexpected, the physicians not considering him in danger till within 2 hours of his end. He made signs for pen and ink, and wrote to request Dr. Frazer to give him some cordial whereby he might regain his speech for an hour or two, but in vain, for he expired before Dean Cosin, or any other of his friends could reach him. He died in Paris, and was laid in the Huguenots' burial ground, Faubourg St. Germain, Lord Jermyn and other honourable persons, with 5 coaches, attending the funeral (pp. 232, 253), but as there was neither money for his support nor burial, his friend Rich. Mason supplied what was requisite, and begged leave to take charge of a cabinet of papers which he left for his lady, lest it should fall into the hands of his creditors (p. 288).

A few weeks later Col. Herbert Price writes to Sec. Nicholas that he is ill in bed, "having been these 3 nights “ with much grief attending my Lord of Rochester’s, I hope, “ happy departure out of this unhappy world.” He had the body embalmed, and he sent to the King for orders about its interment (p. 297). It was taken to Helvoetsluys, wrapped in a good cloth, and well soldered in lead “so “ that there is no danger that it will offend the vault,” and laid “with what decency we could, and as little noise, “ by Lord Hopton’s” (p. 300).

James, Duke of York, fared better at the hands of Spain than his royal brother, because he was not precluded by his rank from service in the Flanders campaign. He had a company of 50 horse raised for his guard, in good equipage, and an allowance for his table (pp. 5, 6). He took an active part in the war, and if current rumours are to be believed, his royal birth told in the service, for when an abbey near La Fère was summoned, in which there were 150 Englishmen among the garrison, they not only surrendered, but knelt and asked his pardon, and engaged in Charles II.’s service (p. 47). It was expected that his troop would be stationed at Dunkirk, where he might again have exercised the spell of a royal name upon the English soldiers (p. 116), but winter put an end to the campaign, and moreover he had suffered from an ague. In December he was with the King at Ghent (p. 254), thence he went to Breda, and joined the festivities given in honour of the Princess Royal’s visit at Antwerp, in February, though still out of sorts, suffering severely from tooth ache (p. 305).

With the advance of spring, he began to prepare for another campaign in Flanders, and had a payment of 9000 florins (pp. 325–328). He spent his time at Brussels, except when visiting his sister at Breda (pp. 333, 336, 349).

Some jealousy had existed between him and Charles II. on the ground that the Duke had communicated State matters, which should have been kept secret, to the Queen Mother and Lord Jermyn. On his promise not to do this in future, a reconciliation took place, and the King conferred on the Duke the nominal title of Captain-General of all his dominions (pp. 5, 6).

The taking of Mardike by the French, assisted by the English troops, and its transfer into the hands of Cromwell's officers, was a blow to the Royalist party in Flanders (pp. 114, 116).

General Montague and Sir John Reynolds were at the head of the invading force; seamen were borrowed from the English fleet at anchor near, to aid in the final attack (p. 113), and great activity was shewn in making the necessary provisions of coal, palisadoes, deals, wood, candles, &c., as well as in sending over masons and carpenters to erect quarters for the troops (pp. 107, 110, 138, 152, 164, 165). The Protector took a personal interest in the preparations which infused vigour into them, but these efforts notwithstanding, great mortality prevailed among the English troops employed. Their duties were heavy, as they were in daily expectation of attacks, not only on the forts, but on the English ships in harbour (pp. 167, 169, 184), and they were much inconvenienced from the want of small boats, so that they could not land their provisions without wading (p. 183). General Reynolds, writing from Mardike Fort on 26th November 1657, speaks of perils to the ships in the winter, and urges the necessity of a ketch for the fort, to carry packets to and fro, "this place being no other than a great ship at anchor, only there is less advantage of fresh fish here than in a ship" (p. 187).

A like plea was urged by the squadron in attendance at Mardike, as without a ketch, they were unable to procure necessaries or even fresh water, and often had to boil their vegetables in salt water. In due time the ketches were dispatched (pp. 195, 224, 231).

Early in December the enemy made preparations for storming Mardike, but Capt. Sparling, who commanded the English squadron, writes "If they do, they will be very honourably received, for there is a very considerable strength in the fort, and many of them men of much “ gallantry. It is my opinion that 20,000 will but fool “ themselves to make an attempt, judging it a matter of “ extraordinary difficulty to gain that place, except they “ be so much master of the field as to make their “ approaches by degrees, so as to force the shipping out “ of the Splinter, and hinder their constant supply of “ victuals ” (pp. 200, 201). Boisterous weather intervening wrecked the ships that were bringing victuals, &c., to the enemy, and for the present, put a stop to their operations

(p. 203).

The same month the Mardike expedition sustained a very serious loss in the death by drowning of the General, Sir John Reynolds, and of Lieut.-Col. White. Reynolds wished to go over to England for further communication with the authorities at home, and proposed to sail in one of the English vessels, the Half Moon. Strutt, the captain, sent him out “ a boat with 8 lusty hands,” to convey him on board a billander, and thus to his ship; but on going out, the weather was against their getting on board the Half Moon. Capt. Sparling urged their staying for the Cheriton and going in her, and to this Reynolds inclined, but Col. White was altogether adverse. Unfortunately they met a slight Rochester pink returning home, and resolved to cross in her, taking with them the Half Moon’s boat. That same night the pink was wrecked on Goodwin Sands, and the 40 persons on board, as well as the 8 men belonging to the Half Moon’s boat, were all drowned. A trunk—identified as Col. White’s, because it had letters from his wife,—a rapier hacheled with gold, entangled in the pink’s rigging, and the stem of the Half Moon’s boat, were all that remained to bear witness of the disaster. Reynolds was lamented alike by the State, the troops, and the crews of the squadron of ships in attendance (pp. 202, 213, 214, 219, 220).

Maj.-Gen. Thomas Morgan, governor of Mardike, assumed the temporary command, and it was doubtful whether Reynolds’ place would be supplied by Viscount Falconbridge, Cromwell’s son-in-law, or by Sir Wm.

Lockhart, then English ambassador in France (pp. 232, 255, 268).

Meantime men, provisions, and medicines for the sick, &c., continued to be dispatched to Mardike under the surveillance of a Committee of Council appointed for the purpose, and confidence was strengthened by the arrival of a French Marshal, and a kinsman of Cardinal Mazarin, who with others announced their intention of taking up their abode there for the winter. They were received with salutes and rejoicings all along the coast (pp. 211, 215, 229, 238, 267, 281, 352, 368).

Capt. Sparling had been ordered, for the sake of safety, to Dunkirk Road, a league distant from Mardike, for the winter, but against this arrangement he strongly remonstrates, as not only inconvenient to the men, but to himself, and declares that unless he were brass or iron, he could not bear the labour and fatigue of constant exposure at night, and in sea fogs and cold, in going about from one place to the other, which has already seriously impaired his health (p. 234). This complaint was, however, disregarded. His later letters contain frequent complaints of want of provisions, the inconveniences resulting from the transfer of victuals from ship to ship, and the lack of men, owing to the sickly condition of the squadron (pp. 254, 260, 261, 265, 271, 274, 275).

In addition to these grievances, the winter set in with unusual severity. At Mardike the ice was so thick, and the ground so hard as to enable heavy ordnance to be drawn over the bridge to and from the fort, because it rested on the ice, and it was said that so much ice had never before been seen in those parts. The squadron sailing in Dunkirk Roads was in serious peril, owing to an inflow of drift ice which forced the ships from their anchors, drove them away with it, and grounded the Assistance, Capt. Sparling's ship, on a sand to the west of the Splinter; when, to avoid her being cleft asunder with the massive weight of the ice blocks, the crew were forced to lighten her by throwing overboard such things as could most speedily be come at, by which means they got free from the sand-bank. The Bramble and Cheriton, two other vessels also forced from their anchorage, got clear on account of their smaller draught of water. "There was " never any ship," writes Capt. Sparling, "escaped a more " imminent danger, in the view of many hundreds of our " enemies, who rejoiced at that which they had little " cause to question would be our utter ruin, while many " of our friends, both at Mardike and within the Splinter, " stood and pitied us, but were not able to afford any " help." The ships within the Splinter were fast frozen up, and all communication with Mardike was stopped for many days (pp. 277, 279, 283). Numerous perils to ships from the severity of the winter are recorded (pp. 511-13, 517, 519, 522, &c.).

The continued hostility between Spain and England had led to the location in each country of prisoners belonging to the other, whose treatment was, in the eyes of the captives at least, characterized by great severity.

Those in England were kept chiefly in Chelsea College, Clifford's Tower York, and Plymouth, and lists of the prisoners in each were, by order of the Admiralty Commissioners of 26th December 1647, frequently transmitted to them, recording deaths, escapes, exchanges, and additions (p. 542).

The captives at Chelsea complain bitterly against the master, Wm. Moore, for the immoderate prices he put upon the food and drink supplied to them, and for his refusal to supply them at all, unless they would buy sheeps' inwards at his own price (p. 10).

The number of prisoners in Plymouth was about 130, and they were paid the usual allowance of 4*d.* a day (p. 114), but there was difficulty in keeping them safely, the guard being but weak. One dark and stormy night Capt. Jordan and 6 or 7 others attempted to escape, but were prevented. Jordan was put into irons, and more irons were ordered to be made, to hamper the unruly (p. 140).

The number of prisoners rose later to 160, and as only 15 men from each of the two companies could be spared to guard them, an order was issued for adding 20 privates to each company (p. 293).

A case of gross cruelty was reported from Plymouth. Three young Portuguese students from the Canary Islands intending to come to England on a visit, were seized, made prisoners of war at Plymouth, and tortured by burning of match between their fingers; a proceeding the more reprehensible because the English had always free and courteous entertainment in the Canaries. A London merchant appealed on their behalf for their liberty and leave to come to London, and engaged to find security for their good conduct (p. 247).

In York, the company of a Dunkirk man-of-war captured were ill used, and one Antoine Garcia placed in irons, because of their resistance, by which two Englishmen had been shot, one of whom afterwards died (p. 23), whereupon Garcia was sentenced to be hanged. He wrote imploringly to his wife to help him, or this would be his last letter; on her appeal to the Admiralty Judges at Dunkirk, they wrote strong remonstrances, proving that the shot fired had been purely accidental (pp. 23, 41).

Garcia's life was spared, but he was still kept in irons, and Capt. Jaques du Jardin,—another prisoner brought in at the same time, and treated with the same rigour,—sends 4 months later an urgent plea to the Admiralty Commissioners for redress. He complains, moreover, that the prisoners are now only allowed 2*d.* a day for bread, instead of 4*d.*, and that thereby several of his company have fallen sick, and will not long survive with a 2*d.* loaf. A remonstrance was also sent from Ostend to the keepers of the castle, that this treatment is contrary to the laws of war and of the English Admiralty (pp. 117, 118).

This remonstrance was forwarded to Ensign Wm. Stainforth, who replied that seamen are prisoners in the Castle, whilst he is only in command of Clifford's Tower, and therefore they are not under his jurisdiction, but that the allowance had been temporarily reduced to 2d. a day by the high sheriff, for want of money in hand, but will now be increased to 4d. (pp. 126, 127). An order was at once issued that the sums expended by the High Sheriff of York in maintaining Spanish prisoners should be allowed him on his account in the Exchequer (p. 129). Lieut. John Fugill reports that he has 53 Dunkirk prisoners in the castle, and is now paying them not only the 4d. a day, but their arrears (p. 135).

The English prisoners taken by the Dunkirkers were kept chiefly in Ostend or Dunkirk. A poor boy, son of a widow, writes to his mother that he was taken by a Dunkirk man-of-war on his way to Holland, and put in prison at Ostend, and has neither money nor clothes (p. 137).

Another young fellow, taken to Gravelines, writes that he has been very ill, having no food but bread and water, and begs that a Spaniard, whose release his mother has obtained in his place, may be sent over, or his friends will never see him again (p. 182).

George Bland, a merchant, who had been captured with his crew, and goods value 15,000*l.*, complains bitterly of his treatment in Spain, where, after being kept in chains 4 months in a castle, they are confined in a common gaol among rogues and murderers; and have not a maravedi, nor a bed to lie on save the hard soil. "Our hearts are broken," he writes, "to see our usage, for although I have no antipathy to the freedom and good usage the Spaniards have in England, yet till, by a little harsh usage, they be made to know themselves, this nation will never learn to well use their prisoners" (pp. 352, 353).

The volume abounds with negotiations for the exchange of prisoners, sometimes on a large scale; proposals for the release of all the captives on one side, if the kindly deed were reciprocated (p. 63), but more frequently for the release of individuals implored for by wives or mothers, of which a few examples must suffice. Capt. Sidrack

Blake, prisoner in Fontarabia, pleads the difficulty he finds in obtaining his liberation in exchange, because the English and Irish fugitives in Spain have informed the King that he is a near relation to Gen. Blake, and an eminent commander, and no one prisoner in England is considered his equivalent. A Spaniard had been liberated in vain by Gen. Blake, on parole to free him in 3 months, but had to return to prison, as Capt. Blake's gaoler refused to give him up, so that, he adds, "I am like to be here " my lifetime." To add to his misfortune, an order to his guardian to allow him a piece of 8 a day for maintenance was disregarded, because there was none of the King's money in hand, and he received not a maravedi. He begs the detention of 3 Spanish captains lately taken, whose wives will, he thinks, procure his liberation if their husbands may be set free in exchange (pp. 1, 2). A few weeks later he writes his thanks to the Admiralty Commissioners for his freedom, in exchange for Don Diego de Villa Alva (p. 163).

Lieut. Col. Elton entreats an order for release of 3 Dunkirk prisoners now at York, in exchange for 3 Hull seamen, prisoners at Ostend, whose wives continually importune him. "They are so eager and importunate " with me," he adds, "with their abundant tears, that " they weary me out" (p. 53). Two aldermen of Hull, Rob. Ripley and Chris. Richardson, beg the release of the son of one and nephew of the other, the two boys being kept in very hard imprisonment at Dunkirk, on pretence that they are merchants, though there has been a general exchange of the seamen taken with them (p. 249).

Frequently releases of groups of prisoners were negotiated, on condition of the release of an equal number on the other side, and one party was first released on parole or obligation to obtain the liberation of the other (pp. 163, 166, 245, 248). Numerous other instances will be found in the Index, under the head of "Prisoners of War, exchange of."

A few items of domestic legislation deserve notice.

An important Act was passed for the settlement of postage, bringing the nominal rates nearer to the reductions remembered in our own days, though the sums were really much larger, because of the great depreciation since in the value of money. A single letter within 80 miles of London was to cost 2d., beyond that range 3d., and parcels 1s.; letters to or from Scotland 4d., and packets 1s. 6d.; Ireland, letters 6d., packets 2s. Letters to France 6d. or 9d., Germany 8d., Spain 9d., Denmark, Sweden, Italy and beyond, 1s.

The heavy fine of 1000*l.* a month was inflicted on all who, without authority, meddled with the office of carrying letters or supplying post-horses, half to go to the Protector, and half to the discoverer (pp. 6, 7).

The office of postmaster-general was granted, on a lease not to exceed 11 years or one life, to Sec. Thurloe, at a rent of 10,000*l.*, he bearing all the expenses, and giving security for quarterly payments (pp. 79, 81). It was this office which gave Thurloe such an immense advantage in intercepting letters, and collecting intelligence, abroad as well as at home.

The Government had long been hampered with applications for sums lent on Public Faith, according to an Ordinance of November 1642, or on the assessment for the $\frac{1}{5}$ and $\frac{1}{20}$ part, for which the lenders had Public Faith bills assigned to them. The only mode in which these had hitherto been dealt with for repayment was that called technically "doubling on Public Faith bills," by which, on payment of as much more as the sum already lent, confiscated lands to the full value of the double loan were assigned to the lender. But this scheme was futile for those whose means were exhausted, and who had no money to lend; therefore, by way of taking some step towards tardy justice, and at the same preventing the frauds arising from the numerous counterfeit Public Faith bills that had been issued, instructions were sent to commissioners in the several counties to examine all the bills, and to apprehend all who presented counterfeit bills, and bring them before a justice of peace. The true bills were to be carefully registered, their nature, date, and amount specified, and enquiry made whether they have been doubled upon, or assigned to any other than the original lender, and alphabetical lists to be returned to a committee appointed in London. This committee was to act in unison with all those appointed for sale of lands or fee farm rents claimed by the State, and comparisons of the lists made, to ascertain what bills had already been doubled upon, and thus prevent further fraud (pp. 74-76, 107, 208).

The chief notices that occur in reference to religious observances show a liberal spirit, except where political jealousies intervene, and then the narrowest exclusiveness prevails. In one parish it was ordered, on petition of the inhabitants, that any godly person whom they procure may have liberty of preaching in the public meeting house, the people to be summoned by a bell, and the incumbent and others not to interfere (p. 189). A confession of Protestant faith was advised, but those who differ in doctrine were to be convinced if possible; if not, they were to be allowed the exercise of their religion, provided they did not disturb the public peace (p. 13). On the other hand, this leniency was not to extend to popery or prelacy, and a severe Act against Popish recusants was passed (p. 14).

Strenuous Ordinances were made and enforced against the observation of Easter, Christmas, or other holy days, and also against the use of the Book of Common Prayer (pp. 159, 226, 232).

At the same time an Act was passed for the observance of the Lord's Day or Sabbath, and was rigidly enforced (pp. 11, 55), and fines varying from 5*s.* to 5*l.* were inflicted on transgressors, sometimes with more zeal than discretion. George Lilburne was deprived of his commission as justice of peace for co. Durham, because he seized the horse of Hester Hobson, who was riding to a place of worship in Sunderland, obliged her to walk, and refused to restore the horse save on payment of 20*s.* (pp. 78, 79, 101).

The number of orders granted by the Trustees for Maintenance of Ministers, for augmentations of livings, and also for the union or the severing of parishes, is very considerable, and all these orders were either suggested by or approved in Council. Therefore when their proceedings are taken into consideration, and when it is remembered that there were other committees for religious objects, viz., Committee for Approbation of Public Ministers, Committee for Plundered Ministers, Commissioners for ejecting ignorant and scandalous Ministers and Schoolmasters, &c., the Commonwealth government cannot be accused of indifference to religious legislation (see Index, sub voce Ministers).

In August 1659, a severe malignant or putrid fever became so prevalent in many parts of England, especially the southern counties, that Friday, 21st August, was appointed as a day of solemn fasting and prayer, to be observed in London and Westminster, and the neighbourhood (pp. 61, 80, 87). Still the mortality did not abate, and on September 10th, an order was issued by the Protector and Council that "being sensible of the Lord's hand, which " for some months past has lain upon this land in the " present visitation by sickness, which calls upon all men
" to repent and turn from their evil ways, and solemnly
" to humble themselves before the Lord, and seek his " face," they request all who fear the Lord in England, Wales, and Berwick, to observe 30th September as a day of fasting and humiliation, "not doubting that all who " have a due sense of this token of God's displeasure will
" dutifully observe the same" (p. 94). This order was sent with letters to the sheriffs of the respective counties to have it dispersed, and 3 ministers, Messrs. Lockyer, Hooke, and Howe, were appointed to preach the sermons at Whitehall on that day (pp. 94, 103, 110).

The disease however lingered on, though with less virulence, through the winter, and grew worse with the warmer weather, and therefore May 4th 1658 was again appointed as a day of fasting and humiliation (p. 380).

In Scotland a difference had arisen among the ministers of religion, and the case had been referred by Council to a committee of ministers, who had reported upon it (pp. 28, 30, 79). The Protector, by advice of Council, sent an earnest letter to the two parties, to lay aside all differences, and by timely closure of the breaches, to see that the interest of godliness, and the work of the reformation be not hindered, so that all who fear the Lord may join heart and hand in reforming what is amiss, and promoting not only the form, but the power of godliness and purity. To accomplish this, he advises a friendly meeting as brethren to reconcile matters, with an equal number of each judgment "in relation to the differences" (pp. 88, 89, 90, 92).

He also addressed the Council in Scotland in behalf of a ministry for the Highlanders, "most of whom have scarce "heard whether there be a Holy Ghost or not," although for 100 years the Gospel has been plentifully preached in the Lowlands. He states that some ministers acquainted with Gaelic have lately visited those parts, and been well received, finding some who "hunger and thirst after the "means of salvation." He exhorts the Barons of Exchequer in Scotland to find out 600*l.* a year from concealed revenues unrighteously detained by private persons, and to pay them to nominees for this service (p. 367).

The present volume contains numerous instances of a fashion of obtaining pecuniary help in cases of difficulty, which was characteristic of the period. Instances of severe loss through fire by individuals or in towns were frequent, where the appliances for its extinction were rarely at hand; a locality was often plunged into severe distress, and neighbours unable to assist each other, being fellow sufferers. The custom therefore was to send a petition to Council, with proof of the circumstances, and statement of the amount of the loss incurred, and to request a brief or patent empowering the sufferers to make a collection in their own and several adjoining counties. The money was deposited in the hands of a local treasurer, and a committee appointed to distribute it among the sufferers. During the 11 months included in this volume, applications were received from and patents granted to the following persons and places, viz.—

(pp. 174, 218, 285, 329).

The same custom prevailed when money was required for important local objects, which were beyond the means of the residents. The inhabitants of Oswestry, co. Salop, obtained a patent for a collection in no less than 16 counties in England, and also in North and South Wales, towards the rebuilding of their large and spacious church, which had been pulled down in the late war, because the place was used as a Parliament garrison, and the church stood outside the walls (pp. 32, 161, 173). A like grant was made to the parishioners of High Ercall, co. Salop, who were unable to raise the 800*l.* required for rebuilding their church, also pulled down during the wars; but only three counties, Salop, Stafford, and Worcester, were inserted in the patent (pp. 160, 173).

The minister and inhabitants of South Ockenden, Essex, obtained a patent to collect in London and Westminster, Essex and Suffolk, towards 2200*l.* needed for repair of their church, the steeple of which was fired by lightning in 1652, the bells and leads melted, and the church consumed, except the chancel (p. 319).

The justices of peace of Wapping, Middlesex, obtained a patent for collecting in 6 counties towards a loss of 9,123*l.* 3*s.* 6*d.* incurred by 800 inhabitants of Wapping, the Hermitage, and East Smithfield, many of them poor seamen, through an explosion in the powder houses at Wapping, in which many of them had been lamed and maimed, and most had lost almost all they had (p. 350).

The inhabitants of Wells and Cuthbert's parish petitioned the Protector in reference to the repairs of the cathedral. They obtained an order for its use in July 1656, when it was in a ruinous condition, and money had been collected, and the repairs were proceeding, when, according to their account, Dr. Corn. Burgess took violent possession of the church, threatened the custodians, and took the keys, so that the work could not be proceeded with. They also requested that the cathedral might be conferred on the city for public worship, there being but one parish church, and a small churchyard, for 10,000 inhabitants. An order was thereon issued for its use as requested, and for the delivery of the keys (p. 336).

Dr. Burgess objected to this order that it was obtained by a few persons of little influence, who have neither resorted to the cathedral nor helped to repair, though he was driven from the pulpit to the reading desk last winter, because he could not get the windows glazed; that though the petitioners had full leave to do the repairs, and received money for them, they did nothing, and that their object was really to bring in an old Malignant, who is an extortioner, and has appropriated church goods. But though the doctor pledged himself to have the church door kept open from 6 to 6, and to open any other door required, and though he produced a certificate in his favour signed by 10 inhabitants, the order for his delivering up the keys of the cathedral was confirmed (pp. 379, 380).

Of Oxford University there are many notices. The ordinary gossip of the place is well detailed in letters to Williamson, who took his M.A. degree in July, and whose election as a Fellow of Queen's College took place in November 1659 (p. 216). He was not elected without opposition, and seems to have owed something to the influence of Provost Langbaine; but before Williamson was able to return from the Continent, and take up his position in college, Langbaine died on 10th February 1657-8, after only 10 days' illness, to the great regret of his friends and the college generally, as he was considered a loss to literature. He was buried on the 13th, and on the 15th Thos. Barlow was chosen his successor (pp. 288, 303, 315, 317, 336). There was also a change in the vice-chancellorship; Dr. John Owen, who had filled the office during seven years, was turned out, so much to his own disgust that he showed his displeasure publicly; and as his Sunday afternoon lectures at St. Mary's University Church were discontinued, he set up opposition lectures at the same hour in the parish church (p. 216).

His successor, Dr. John Conant, had to cope with difficulties in the management of University affairs. There had long been corruption and infraction of rule in the elections to fellowships at All Souls' College. It had become customary for candidates to buy the resignation of some one of the fellows privately, and then, in order to prevent competition for the succession, an intended resignation was not announced till the day before the election, so that no competitor was likely to appear except the purchaser, who was accordingly elected, the fellows conniving at this breach of orders in hopes of benefiting by it themselves in future.

Under these circumstances the University Visitors were summoned in November 1657, to examine into the case; they declared their intention of annulling the late elections as contrary to rule, since only one resignation had been made in proper form, viz., that of Mr. Horton, who was troubled in conscience because, in 1656, he had given 15*l.* for his fellowship, and therefore sent in his resignation in the usual form. Their proceedings were approved by the Protector and Council (pp. 181, 188).

But there was another side to the question. The parents and friends of the dispossessed fellows sent a petition to the Protector, remonstrating against the conduct of the Visitors, and enforcing the claims of the ejected fellows. Cromwell referred the case, on 7th January 1657-8, to his son Richard, who had been lately elected Chancellor of the University, and to Fiennes, Commissioner of the Great Seal. Richard Cromwell paid careful personal attention to the subject, as is proved by notes in his handwriting endorsed on several of the documents (pp. 236-7).

The referees at once summoned some of the heads of colleges to appear before them at Whitehall on 23rd January 1657-8, and meet the master and fellows of All Souls', and the representatives of the ejected fellows. The heads of houses remonstrated that "the season of the year rendering the journey hazardous, and the age and infirmity of some of them" made it difficult for them to obey the summons, and they obtained a respite till more seasonable weather, the referees meanwhile suspending their report (pp. 238, 277, 278).

The Visitors then sent in a statement of the orders already in existence about the elections, which amply provided for due notice to be given previous to an election, requiring the electors not to vote for any who have offered money for their fellowships; the candidates to swear that they have neither directly nor indirectly promised money for their election, and the fellows themselves to be deprived of their places, on proof that they were chosen by money. The Visitors state that the late election was so illegal as to be utterly null, no resignations having been made according to order (p. 260). The report of the referees turns upon the power of the Visitors; they state that the Archbishop of Canterbury, as local visitor, has the same power as the founder, and that Archbishop Whitgift made a similar order against corruption 60 years ago, and that the Visitors have acted with good intention in following in his track; but they leave it to the Protector to decide whether the Visitors in so doing have exceeded their powers (pp. 278, 279).

The University of Oxford presented a petition to the Protector, on behalf of its law students under the Professor of Civil Law, requesting the erection of separate courts of judicature for legal questions arising in reference to commerce and navigation, intercourse with foreign nations, marriage cases, tithes, dilapidations, proving of wills, &c.

They also applied to Lord Richard Cromwell, as Chancellor of Oxford, and he proposed to Speaker Lenthall to present a bill to that effect to the House of Lords or Upper House, lately constituted by Cromwell.

Lord Richard comes to the fore in the present volume. The accident of his breaking his thigh in hunting has already been referred to. Soon after his appointment as his father's successor, he was made Privy Councillor, and took the oath accordingly (pp. 208, 210, 239); but for awhile the sense that his new honours endangered his safety led him to show himself but seldom abroad, and to keep close to his apartments in Whitehall. This was more especially the case on the arrival of a false rumour that his brother Henry, lately appointed Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, had there been stabbed to death with a knife (p. 261). But he took an intelligent interest in public affairs, both relating to the army and to Council, on several of the sub-committees of which he was placed, and he began to receive from courtiers and diplomatists the homage due to an hereditary Prince, and heir to the Crown (pp. 266, 267).

An incidental notice occurs in this volume of the illegitimate child of Charles II. by Lucy Walters, who became afterwards the unfortunate Duke of Monmouth. Thos. Ross, a Scot, one of the King's most confidential adherents, and afterwards his librarian, writes to Sec. Nicholas that the King has sent him to take his little son from his present guardianship, and bestow him for awhile in a place out of the knowledge of his mother, or anyone else but Nicholas' younger brother. Ross wonders at his own selection for such a task, but believes he is designed to be the child's tutor, and states the reason for the removal to be that where he is, he cannot be free from his mother's intrigues. He describes him as a pretty child, with much wit and a great desire to learn, but so neglected that he has neither been taught to read nor to count 20* (p. 342).

* See Roberts' Life of the Duke of Monmouth, vol. i. p. 7.

Among other characters of note is George Villiers, second Duke of Buckingham. He had escaped from England, being excepted from pardon as guilty of high treason, and had been some time at the Court of Charles II. in Flanders; but he was suddenly missed, went over to England, by consent of government, as it was said, and seems to have attempted a reconciliation with the Protector, and “ railed heartily at his late friends ” as a means to this end (pp. 4, 9). At first he appeared likely to succeed in his efforts, but he failed, for it was found out that he was intending a marriage with the daughter of Lord Fairfax. The Royalist proclivities of her mother are matter of history, from her passionate exclamation at the trial of Charles I. Therefore it was matter of grave displeasure that the daughter should ally herself with a nobleman who had one of the largest rent-rolls in the kingdom, although for the present his estates were under confiscation (pp. 4, 40). Part of them being in the hands of Lord Fairfax, the Duke hoped, by marrying the daughter, to rescue 5,000*l.* a year of his estate, and though the bans between the young lady and Lord Chesterfield had been twice asked in church, yet the ambition of seeing his daughter a duchess so moved the heart of this Parliament General that he broke off the match with Chesterfield, listened to Buckingham’s overtures, and married him to his daughter.

This proved fatal to the Duke’s attempts to propitiate the Protector; it was rumoured that he designed either a rising in the City, or an attempt on the Protector’s person, and would venture hard to destroy him; and that when reminded of the failure of all who had previously attempted this, he replied that it was because they had undertaken it foolishly (pp. 4, 6). Cromwell, in wrath, immediately issued warrants to Serjeant Dendy to search for and apprehend the Duke, for returning to England without license, when excepted by the late Parliament from pardon for treason, and for remaining there divers months, and also to convey him safely to Jersey, where Col. Rob.

Guibon, the governor, was charged to keep him in safe custody, in the securest place in the island, till further orders (pp. 122, 124). Lord Fairfax, who had hoped that his own long services in the cause of Parliament would have weighed on behalf of his son-in-law, appealed to the Protector against this rigorous proceeding, but meantime Parliament had taken cognizance of the Duke's conduct.

The reply to the appeal was therefore an expression of respect for Lord Fairfax's own person, but for the subject of the petition, he was referred to the Acts and resolves of Parliament (pp. 168, 169). A few weeks later a second appeal was made, and a long string of reasons drawn up in favour of the Duke's restoration to liberty; this was referred by the Protector to Council, but the reply was that they find it inconsistent with their duty to advise his Highness to grant the Duke the desired liberty, and this order Mr. Rushworth was requested to deliver to Lord Fairfax (pp. 196-198).

The Duke meanwhile had successfully eluded the search made for him, in spite of the large sums offered for his discovery, and was said to have escaped to France or Holland (pp. 232, 306, 315), but at length Fairfax so far prevailed with Cromwell as to have the business referred to two arbitrators, Secretary Thurloe and Sir Thos. Witherington, who were to grant him his liberty on bail for his good behaviour, and there the present volume leaves the case (p. 357).

Sir Rich. Grenville, one of the Royalist family of the Grenvilles who became Earls of Bath, writes to the King on the occasion of a quarrel with Hen. Howard. He pleads that he and his predecessors have served the Crown of England faithfully for 600 years, and that he desires so to end his days. But he adds that on the King's order, he sold a house which he had bought in Friesland at great loss, waited on His Majesty in France, spending large sums in his service, because he who had left a fortune, and lost fortune, blood, and time for the royal cause could not "stand refractory" to his Majesty's pleasure, but he now lies in custody, although on his late petition he expected to be admitted to the Royal presence, to have leave to plead his own cause, and give a full account of the business, and to have reparation for dishonour and damage (p. 266).

In August 1657, England lost one of her worthiest sons in the death of Admiral Rob. Blake. In July the Revenue Committee was ordered to consider how payment could be made of 565*l.* expended in purchase of a costly jewel, the Protector's portrait set with diamonds, given him by the State for his services, and 381*l.* 16*s.* was ordered him by Parliament for his arrears (pp. 33, 34). He was recalled for the winter from the coast of Spain, and in obedience to the summons, he set sail, but was taken ill during the voyage. His great desire was to live to get ashore, and have a few days for the settling of his estate, but as soon as they entered Plymouth Sound, at 10 a.m. on the 7th August, he expired "As he lived, so he continued to the death, faithful. The Lord grant that a supply of his great loss may be made up, for the good of his poor people" (pp. 56, 57). His body was embalmed and sent to London in the George. "I suppose," writes Capt. Hatsell, "he will have a very honourable interment, befitting a person of his worth, who indeed, setting aside some human frailties (from which the best of men are not free), may be ranked with most that have gone before him in our age" (p. 58, 59).

Orders were given at Greenwich House for reception of the body, and the same preparations were made in Westminster Abbey for his interment as had been made for that of General Deane (pp. 60, 68). The charge of the funeral, including black cloth and baize, boat hire, 24 trumpeters, &c., amounted to 550*l.* (p. 179).

One of the time-serving characters—the outcome of an unsettled state of government—was Col. John Bamfield. A Royalist with the Royalists, he was trusted by them, and thus enabled to give detailed and confidential accounts of their movements to the Protector's government. His correspondence began in April 1657, and several of his letters were given in the calendar for that time (pp. 346, 347, 359, 362, 363, 375, 376, 378, 390). These, as well as those printed in the present volume, prove that he had not the full confidence of Sec. Thurloe, who took him for what he really seems to have been, a time-server, alive mainly to his own interest. Still, being trusted by the Royalists, he was useful for a time, and he obtained with difficulty from Sec. Thurloe some money to enable him to join the Duke of Gramont, and pass into Germany to the Imperial Diet at Frankfort, whence he promised to write every post, gleaning up such information as he could from the Prince Elector and Prince Rupert, M. de Gramont and Count Maurice of Nassau, with all of whom he had some acquaintance (p. 71).

Lord Jermyn, who was with the Queen Mother in Paris, was evidently unconscious of Bamfield's double dealing, for he wrote to Prince Rupert in his behalf, stating that his sufferings and persecutions entitle him to relief (p. 37). Three months later Rupert wrote to the King about Bamfield, but in ambiguous terms, stating that he has obeyed his Majesty's commands to his utmost, but could do no more, no impartial merchants being present, he adds "We could not have done so much had not Bamfield consented to a submission in this imperial town" (p. 173).

The literary entries in this volume are not of much importance; they will be found in the Index, under Books. For these and other notabilia of persons and places, the reader is referred to the volume itself.

DOMESTIC PAPERS.

VOL. CLV. MAY—JULY, 1657.

June 1.
Hope.

63. Capt. Ben. Blake to Ferdinando Body, West Tower Hill. I received the enclosed just now, and as the boat stays for this dispatch, have no time to answer. Pray copy them out, and let the copies be presented to the Admiralty Commissioners with all speed. Answer Mr. Hart and my father, and let them know the reason of my not writing. [$\frac{1}{2}$ page.] Enclosing,

63. I. Petition of Capt. Sidrach Blake, prisoner in Fontarabia, Spain, to the Admiralty Commissioners. Although no prisoner of war, I was seized in the first embargo which the Spaniards made, and have been ever since unjustly detained, notwithstanding the many exchanges allotted by your Honors for my release, even though the governor of the Havanna engaged his parole to free me on the liberty the Lord Protector was pleased to grant him; yet all has proved ineffectual, and after 20 months' imprisonment, I lie here still, under heavy pressures, and without hope of redemption, and likely to perish in prison if not relieved by the immediate power of this State. All other means are to no purpose, in that the Irish and fugitive English in Spain have informed that King that I am a near relation to General Blake, and an eminent commander, which occasions me to be most strictly looked after by the Spaniards.

I beseech you to take my sad condition into serious consideration, and to apply such remedy as may conduce to a speedy enlargement, by keeping such Spaniards and other prisoners now in England until I am set at liberty, or as to your Honors shall seem most expedient.

63. II. Thos. Hart to Capt. Benj. Blake, Limehouse. Four days past I received the enclosed from your father-in-law, which is to request you, instead of freeing the captains of Fontarabia, to keep them there prisoners, in order to procure a letter from the Commissioners, something angrily to me, that they will relieve no more captains on my request until I release the prisoners in Fontarabia, as they do not find honorable compliance in delivering those for whom they have given great pledges, more than in reason. Haply if his letters come to my hand, it may work somewhat, as I find in some particular men whom your father-in-law hath desired me to make use of, some treachery; for I cannot believe but that his dispatch is out, and detained until they receive the captains of Fontarabia. I leave it to your discretion to work the best for your father's liberty; I have daily letters from him requesting my assistance in these particulars, in which I shall use my best endeavours to manifest the ardent desires I have to see his freedom, and desire your speedy answer to this and my former. St. John de Luz, 28 May 1657.

P.S. The captain of Erchando you may per advice free, but Augustine keep close; my opinion is, write favourably, but keep both. [1 page.]

63. III. Capt. Sidrach Blake to Capt. Ben. Blake, Irvine House. I wrote you the 13th current, and sent two letters for captains of this place, who were taken by Capt. Robt. Vessey, of the Constant Warwick, and for 2 months have been expecting dispatches by every post, but none appeared. You sent me letters to Thos. Hart from D. Diego Velaluo, late governor of Havanna, but the Baron told me I could not be exchanged for him, as the King had ordered I should be exchanged for two sons of the Marquis Beddaso, who was slain in the late Dutch war. Since I received yours, I have a letter from Gen. Blake at Lisbon, with another inclosed for the Baron and one for Beach, by a Spanish captain, who was put on shore with two servants, on his parole to free me in 3 months, or return his prisoner back to Lisbon. He has used his diligence, but the Baron will not set me free, and I am like to lie here my lifetime, they being in Madrid, and were put on shore in Galicia by one of our frigates.

My desire is you will use means to detain the 3 captains lately taken, two of this place and one of St. Sebastian's, and by that means I shall get my liberty; for they have friends of quality in this place, and are married, and their wives will use means to put me in France, if they write they cannot be freed till I am. Pray write your brother George, for it much imports me, and cause a letter to be sent from them to the same purpose. There was an order came to the Baron to allow me a piece of 8 a day for my maintenance, but he said he had none of the King's money, and would not allow me a maravedi; so you may see what I undergo by his cruelty. Fontarabia, 20 May, 1657. [1 page.]

66. Certificate by Wm. Dawgs and four other commissioners appointed for surveying Ashdown Forest and Lancaster Great Park, Sussex, by patent 24 April and instructions 12 December 1656, that the lands were in Queen Mary's time Sir Thos. Gage's, and therefore cannot be termed a forest, but a park or chace. They contain 12,596 acres. Details of courts held; claims thereon. There has been much waste of wood and total destruction of deer, it being almost dispaled. Those who have right of common should be punished for their offences therein by being deprived of it, and those who have no right should be summoned before his Highness and Council. St. Germain's en Laye.

[Col. John Bamfield to Sec. Thurloe.] I gave your ambassador some information that I lately received about 903 [the Duke of Buckingham] and other particulars taken from an intercepted letter from Sec. Nicholas to Bennet at Madrid. He says that Middleton is like to have very good success in his mission, and he hopes that they shall rather move towards him than he have cause to return to them. That the design is hopeful, and this an excellent conjuncture, but he fears the delays of the Spanish court, and the incapacity of those in Flanders. He says that the English soldiers sent into France come very unwillingly, are very mutinous, and that most of them will soon be theirs; that if his master had half the sum named by Bennet, they could also have 5,000 Germans, which would do their business; but if they have to wait till the money comes from the Canaries, they will have more difficulty, and be liable to disappointments.

He begs Bennet to urge a speedy supply, and to represent the King's certainty of a large party to join with him in England and Scotland, and the great advantage to the Spaniard of such a diversion, which might, in the present temper of the nation, occasion such a turn as would enable his master to assist the King of Spain against both their enemies. Therefore he is to press for half the sum promised (the whole being, as I hear, 100,000*l.*), and any other assistance the King of Spain sees reasonable, when he finds the King fixed in some part of his dominions.

Written in another hand is intelligence from England; the Protector's having refused the crown; the appearance of a breach between him and the army, because he aimed at it; the opinion of many that the government would revert to a republic; that Parliament's declaring it to be for the public good that government should return to its ancient channel would advance the King's affairs.

VOL. CLV.

He speaks of intelligence from England from Gondemore, and of following his advice, particularly in the business of the Duke of York, but there is no light who this Gondemore is. Much could be found out if you could draw over to England one Baron, a merchant at Calais, who receives weekly packets from England for those at Bruges, and takes them over himself when they are of importance. He has seamen in each packet boat, that bring his letters from Dover and carry back answers, so that they are never put into the mail. You might get some one to pretend to be a Royalist, and ask to have letters safely sent to Dover (to be conveyed to London by the Dover post, which is never searched) by some Royalist men in the packet, and thus discover much; and by taking and examining Baron as to what the packet was that he carried 6 weeks since into Flanders, you may discover who Gondemore is, &c. It will not be hard to get him to Dover, as he frequently goes there to Lord Strangford's house, where Col. Algernon Sydney usually resides. Any merchant who deals with him could draw him over on pretence of business. He may not know who Gondemore is; it may be a name between Nicholas and Bennet; therefore it might be well not to ask him, lest it should prevent the intercepting of more letters, by letting those at Bruges know that this has been opened. It has been done with such circumspection that Bennet will never know it.

Some here think that Middleton has gone privately to Scotland. It is thought that the Duke of Buckingham is in England privately with your consent, and is to marry Lord Fairfax's daughter. This seems romantic, but if he be there with your allowance, my information will tend to my very great damage; but if he is practising designs without your privity, I should have been to blame if I had not advertised you. I speak not from spleen, but from duty, though opposed to prejudice on all sides. I have been here 5 weeks, except going 2 or 3 times to Paris for a day or two on your service, and shall stay 12 days longer, when, if I hear nothing from you, I shall remove hence, and dispose of myself as God directs me. I have seen the ambassador, who protests that he has neither received nor given informations against me. [$2\frac{1}{3}$ pages, copy, French correspondence.]

—— to Wm. Rowe, Westminster. Sir John Reynolds will not stay long in France, because he is contracted with Sir Fras. Russell's daughter, Lord Henry's lady's sister, and must come over to his nuptials. Dick, brother of Wm. Rowe, is captain of a foot company in the regiment that was hoped should have been Ambassador Lockhart's, but it is now conferred on Sir Brian Cockerham [Cockraine] by Sir John Reynolds. —— to [Sec. Nicholas.] We are still here, and so wanting money that we cannot move hence. The King resolves to go to the field; the Spaniard and all oppose it, and lest he should go, they will not pay his pension. They are either angry with his ministers or disesteem our interests. We are still incognito. They take [Col. J. Bamfield to Sec. Thurloe.] Not knowing whether you have received my many letters, I have lately forborne to tell you things of absolute importance. I have intercepted letters going to Bennet at Madrid of great concern to you. I am unwilling to lose the opportunity of serving you by going with the ambassador [Gramont] into Germany, but I know your ambassador here suggests things to my prejudice. If I go to Sir John Reynolds' army as a private soldier, I have no hope of preferment while James Stuart commands in the Spanish army, and if disorders arise among the soldiers, notwithstanding the uttermost integrity and circumspection, I shall be suspected of causing them; else I am confident I could serve Reynolds.

Gramont starts the end of this month; if you favour me, I will serve you faithfully; if not I will send you intelligence when I know that my letters reach you. [$1\frac{1}{2}$ pages, the italics are cyphers, undecyphered, copy, French correspondence.]

[June $\frac{7}{17}$.]

[Col. John Bamfield to Sec. Thurloe.] The Duke of York commands his brother's forces of 6,000 men, in 6 regiments; viz., his own commanded by Col. Muskerry; the Duke of Gloucester's by Lord Taaffe; Marquis of Ormond's, Earl of Bristol's, Lord Wilmot's, and Lieut.-Gen. Middleton's, who is absent, and his regiment commanded by Lord Neuburgh. The Duke of York has a company of 50 horse raised by the Spaniard for his guard, in very good equipage, and they allow him 200 a month during the campaign for his table. His brother, on their final reconciliation, has made him captain-general of all his pretended dominions. The Lieut.-generals are, for England, the Earl of Bristol; for Scotland, Lieut.-Gen. Middleton; and for Ireland, the Marquis of Ormond. It is thought that Gen. Marsine will retire to the Spanish army, and Bristol, Middleton, and Wilmot will command by turns, as the manner is in the French army.

Sir John Berkley, on a submissive letter to the King,—acknowledging his error, and promising in future to serve in the King's sense, though contrary to his own, and having recanted a narration he wrote about the transactions between the late King and the army, in which were some undeserved reflections—is restored to his attendance on the Duke of York, and has undertaken to find instruments to disperse among the English troops in the French service propositions from the King to bring them over to his service. He has also undertaken to draw up a declaration to the army in England, to show that the King's restoration is more the interest of the 3 nations and the army than the continuance of the present government, and he undertakes to get this printed and dispersed.

There is enough discovered of the letter intercepted from Sec. Nicholas to Bennet of $\frac{1}{2}\frac{8}{8}$ May to show that the King and Duke of York were perfectly reconciled, partly by mediation of the Spanish Council at Brussels, but chiefly by letters from England from Gondemore and his friend (who that is I cannot imagine) written to both, and sent expressly by Baron, which intimate that all their friends of all parties passionately desire a good agreement between the two brothers, and that the Duke of York might command his brother's forces, his reputation being very high amongst his subjects.

The letter also intimates that the Duke has engaged himself to his brother not to communicate with his mother or Lord Jermyn about public business; also that the King has found a very good expedient to treat with the Presbyterian party, having promised to restore to the bedchamber Titus, who has met several times with Sir Edw. Hyde, and undertaken that correspondence; for its better management, he comes not publicly to the Court. It says much of the Protector's parliament and army, &c., but the sense of that is yet undiscovered.

I hear that the Duke of Buckingham is in England, and believe it is on some design, either for a rising in the City, or some attempt on the Protector's person. I believe he is there because he has been 5 months from hence, and none of his servants are seen. His design is known to Mr. Denham, who is here, and Sheldon, his servant, left last Sunday, with 2 or 3 French and Dutch men, designing to land at Rye.

Buckingham once swore to me that, as he could not oblige the Protector, he would venture hard to destroy him. I replied that it would be a great adventure, and all who had hitherto attempted it had miscarried. He replied it was because they had undertaken it foolishly. Sheldon should be sought for and examined; also Sir Fred. Cornwallis and his lady, the Countess of Newport, Major Arnot, and Col. Rogers, who lay heretofore about the plough stalls in Lincoln's Inn Fields.

Also enquiry should be made whether one Palden at Calais had not 3 or 4 English gentlemen who used to reside there, and pass to and fro into England, and whether they are lately gone thither. I do not think I am mistaken in this information about the Duke. [4 pp. copy, French correspondence. Printed in Clarendon's Papers, Vol. III. p. 344.]

E. [Elizabeth, lady Conway] to M. Mayet, Fauxbourg St. Germain. I am a stranger here in Court, where my Lord Protector has induced the Spanish habit and port. I am sorry for my late absence at a time when all our government was upon Kings, and an exact relation might have diverted you; but now that is ended, and Parliament—having settled the government which they proffered under the style of kingship to one as absolutely regal and hereditary, only altering the name to Protector—are prorogued till 23 October; for this is too fine and tractable a Parliament to be dissolved. Next Saturday is the last sitting.

The Duke of Buckingham is here soliciting hard, and rails heartily at his late friends, hoping to make up his reconciliation. Meantime he courts my cousin Fairfax devoutly, expecting to get 5,000*l.* a year of his own estate out of her father's hands. I think this sole design to be a duchess made them forbid the banns with lord Chesterfield, after they had been twice asked in church.

June 26. Petition of the knights, citizens, and burgesses assembled in Parliament to the Protector.

We thank God for delivering us from tyranny and bondage, and making you and your worthy officers and soldiers instruments of peace; but we consider your life in continual danger from the Malignants, because the succession of the government not being settled, your death would bring blood and confusion. We therefore beg—

1. That you would exercise your office as Protector, and during your life appoint a successor.
2. That you would call Parliament of 2 houses once in every 3 years, or oftener if needful.
3. That you will preserve the privileges of Parliament, and not allow any to be excluded but by consent of the House of which they are members.
4. None to vote or be elected in Ireland who have borne arms against the Parliament of England, unless since 1 March 1651–2 they have proved their good affection.

This is not to extend to English or Scotch Protestants in Ireland who bore arms for Parliament before 1 March 1649–50, and have been faithful since.

All elections unduly made to be void, and all incapable persons who vote to forfeit a year's value of their real and $\frac{1}{3}$ of their personal estates, $\frac{1}{2}$ to go to his Highness, the other $\frac{1}{2}$ to the discoverer.

5. None to sit and vote in the other House but those nominated by his Highness and approved by this House, to be between 40 and 70 in number, quorum 21; not to vote by proxy, and none to take their places but by consent of this House; not to act in civil cases, except writs of error, cases referred to

Col. Jo. Bam[field to Sec. Thurloe.]. Mr. Cockin wrote me a month since that you had promised an answer to a letter he gave you from me, but as it did not come, I abandoned myself to ruin, and determined to throw myself into the army as a common soldier, wishing but death. But a few days before executing this melancholy resolution, Sir John Hobart wrote me that your thoughts of me were something changed, and that you would favour me with a speedy employment into Germany, and would send me letters and instructions by the next post; but 5 posts having since come in, I fear I have lost my little share in your good opinion. I am thus in worse condition than before, for I have almost spent my last stock, which was to carry me to the army, so that if my fears prove true, I must beg thither. If you will not trouble to write, send me your final resolution by one of your servants.

P.S. If I had the instructions speedily, I might overtake the Duke de Gramont before he passes the frontiers of Germany, and to go with him to the Electors of Mentz, Treves, and Saxony. [1¼ pages, copy, French correspondence.]

Hen. Tobancke to Lord ———, at M. Garaut, Rue des Bons enfans. I gave the King your news, which was the first he had heard. I hope you will pass as safely the latter part of the journey. We heard that our army had marched to relieve Montmedy, but it is probably at La Bassee, which is invested. The Duke of York marched yesterday from Tournay, with the whole infantry and cannon, to the siege ; the Duke of Gloucester has been ill 3 or 4 days, but is better, and marches next Friday infallibly. The King is still firm to his resolution, but I see no more appearance of its expedition. Blake is said to be dead or soundly knocked. I enclose 2 letters left in my care.

July 2. 81. Examinations before the Admiralty Commissioners of Rich. Wood, gunner, Thomas Attawell, boatswain, and John Falkner, master's mate of the Parrot. After leaving the Adventure with letters for the Commander-in-chief in the Downs, espying 4 sail, which they believed to be English, made up to them, but found they were Spanish men of war, two of which,—one having 18 guns and 130 men, and the other 16 guns and 120 men,—came alongside the Parrot, and threatened, if they fired a gun, they should have no quarter, but be destroyed; although there was a willingness in all the company to fight, or blow the ship up rather than yield, yet as the captain gave no order to fight, they surrendered on quarter, whereupon examnants with 18 others were put on board a Dane from Norway, which the Spaniards had taken, and sent to London, and the captain with 14 others were carried away by the Spaniards in the Parrot. [2½ pages.]

July 3. 82. Captain Phil. Holland to the Admiralty Commissioners. On Assurance, Tuesday last, I sent some of the commanders in my pinnace to view Dunkirk. the ships in the harbour of Dunkirk; they reported there were 10 or more sail, but as they lay thick, their size could not be clearly discovered; the next day I ordered Capt. Smith of the Truelove to go in before the harbour's mouth, and come to an anchor as near as he could, which did not please the Dunkirkers; so next morning they presented Capt. Smith with 16 or 17 guns from the town and pier head, but they took no effect, so he continued there. On Thursday I ordered him to go as before, and sent the pinnace with him. I cannot but commend his extraordinary care and forwardness in giving notice of the enemies' coming out that night, so that the Merlin with the rest met with them; his relation is enclosed.

As another frigate of 10 or 12 guns is expected to come out with the rest to-night, I have drawn all the small vessels together before the harbour's mouth, the Redhorse pink to lie between the Hook and the Splinter, and the Raven open with the Swatch. I hear by John Poteete of Calais from Flushing, that 2 great English ships have been brought in there by the enemy, and that 3 Dunkirkers have been tallowed and victualled there, ready for sea. 83. Capt. Jno. Grove to the Admiralty Commissioners. On the 3rd inst., between one and two a.m., we received an alarm from the small frigates before Ostend, so we made sail to them, and when it was day, discovered that a new frigate of 12 guns had come forth, and being newly cleaned, escaped. In chasing him, Capt. Jno. Peirce, of the Lily, fell in with one of their party, at anchor in the Wellings, and forced him on shore, and the Acadia and Cignet having given him divers shots under water, sunk him, when they fetched off his guns, and disabled him. I understand it was the frigate that took the ship laden with masts and deals for the State; I will be careful to lay wait for his prize, if they bring her for Flushing. I hear from Flushing that Vice-Admiral Eversen is discontented at their bringing the Parrot there, and says he would have given 1,000*l.* rather than she should have been brought into their port. supernumeraries on board without special order. I have sent the Drake to Capt. Grove off Ostend, to take care that none of the enemies' men-of-war come out or get in there for the future. The Nightingale should come over to clean. If Capt. Rooth comes here, I will send him to Ostend, so that Capt. Lightfoot may be the better spared. I have also directed Capts. Tatnell and Blyth, if the Parrot, which is carried into Flushing, may be regained without breach of the peace with the Hollanders, to use their endeavours therein. I have appointed the Adventure and Dover to water with the squadron off Ostend, and ply there, so as to keep them all together, and from any annoyance from the enemy.

I will be very cautious in ordering any small vessels out from the Downs, unless in company with frigates of force, and have dismissed Capt. Crapnell as ordered. Mr. Tymon was master's mate in the Ruth when Capt. Edw. Thompson was Commander-in-chief, and was at the reducing of Salley and the Barbadoes, as also in the Plymouth engagement with Sir Geo. Ayscue, and the June fight with the Hollanders, and has likewise been master of 2 merchant ships. None of the officers of the Parrot have yet come down.

I hear from Capt. Holland that the enemy have 10 men-of-war of 14 or 16 guns each, fitting out at Dunkirk, and that notwithstanding all possible care was used to prevent their coming out, yet 2 of them got out on Thursday night; they were chased, but being newly cleaned, they escaped. Two great English ships have lately been carried into Flushing. List of 15 ships in the Downs, as also particulars of others.

I have preferred to deliver up the charge of the Downs squadron to Vice-Adm. Goodson, but he is unwilling to take it until directed. I hear from Capt. Grove at Ostend that they forced one of the enemies' frigates of 6 guns ashore, and after taking out her guns, they destroyed her; she is supposed to be the same that took the ship with the masts. 85. Admiralty Judges of Dunkirk to the [Admiralty Commissioners.] We are informed that 2 English men-of-war have lately taken the St. Nicolas, a Dunkirk man-of-war, and carried her into the port of York, and that her company are very badly used, especially Antoine Garcia, by placing him in irons, because a day or two before they were taken, his captain, in endeavouring to capture an English ketch, accidentally shot 2 of her men, one of whom has since died. We desire that no unnecessary rigour may be used against him for that cause, but that he may be treated in the same manner as the rest of his company, and as prisoners of war, otherwise we shall have to follow your example by using the like rigour. Levant Company to Sir Thos. Bendish. You will have heard of the renewal of our trouble concerning Sir Sackville Crow, on a suit begun against us in the Upper Bench by an action of battery and assault and false imprisonment, from the time he was shipped at Smyrna, to his damage of 40,000*l.*, which is a matter concerning your lordship; and we hear your friends have told you what he has objected before a Committee of Parliament, of which you may furnish us with such witnesses and other evidence as you judge fit; as you better understand the matter than we. If it come to a trial, we think it would be next term, as Parliament is prorogued for half-a-year. The chief objection we have hitherto observed as to his removal thence is his dissatisfaction concerning the authority you brought to succeed him, wherewith he says he was never made acquainted.

Your letter of 23 Dec. is to hand, but not that of 21 Oct., whereof, and of others, you will do well to send duplicates. We observe what you write of Rich. Lawrence, with whom we shall adjust accounts on his arrival; also of the sentence procured against the customer's demands of double custom, though not without trouble and expense. We thank you for your pains, and will endeavour to procure his Highness's letter to the Grand Seignior noticing that piece of justice. We are glad of your fair correspondence with the ministers of State, as a means to promote our interest and trade, which we hope you will be able to preserve in its present undisturbed condition.

We notice in yours of 18 Feb. your despatch of Mr. Lister to his employment at Cyprus, and of Sir Roger Middleton to the Morea; your intentions concerning Aleppo, and the prevention of injuries there; and your advice for his Highness's letter to the Grand Seignior concerning the piracy of those of Tripoli, which comes too late for our interposition, since a fleet is already sent that way, but we presume not without instructions first to treat before they fall upon any hostile action.

We are glad you have procured the release of Geo. Davies, which is a great comfort to his father and friends, and a special act of charity in your lordship. [Levant Papers, Vol. IV., pp. 288-9.]

Levant Company to Spencer Bretton, Consul at Smyrna. Though we have no letter from you to answer, yet we have special occasion to recommend the enclosed order for remedying the foulness of raw silk, which we desire you to communicate to the factors, and put in execution, to prevent so great a grievance. We also recommend to you the other particulars specified in the letter to yourself and the factory, especially the due collection of consulage of strangers and others.

Yours of 3 March is now to hand, which we shall answer in our next, when we have considered your fair and rational proposition as a help to clear our debts. Meanwhile we order, for punishment of such as try to defraud us of our dues, that a course be taken to seize part of their goods, and detain them till the owner pay double consulage. Levant Company to the Consul, Treasurer, and Factory at Smyrna. We have been so inconvenienced by the foulness of raw silk imported from time to time into England, not only by our own particular prejudice, but by the clamours of others with whom we deal, that we have taken effectual means to remedy it, according to the enclosed order, which we pray you to see carried out, either as we prescribe, or as your better judgment on the spot may suggest.

A complaint has reached us that the consulage of strangers is so remissly collected at that place as to cause us great loss, and give occasion for raising leviations; we pray you collect it more carefully in future, that our debts be not increased.

We repeat our complaint that you still charge to us the expenses of 5 Nov., which we have so often disallowed. We think a great occasion of our loss of strangers' consulage is the omission of their former custom of lading and unlading of goods at the Treasurer's scale, of which we have complained before, and we desire a renewal of that course, for better securing our dues.

Although we have done and still continue to prohibit the lading of fruit and cute, yet that is no reason for losing the consulage on what has been already laden. Mr. Barnardiston has promised to satisfy there what is due on the Prosperous, which we desire you to receive, with the consulage of what has been laden on other ships. 88. Captain Christ. Myngs to the Admiralty Commissioners. I have safely arrived from Jamaica, which I left on 12 April, with the Success and the Bear, after much difficulty and endurance. Provisions were much wanted throughout the fleet, there being only from 3 to 5 weeks' victuals on the ships, and the major part of the fleet were divided about the island, to get relief until supplies arrived. We, with the Success and Bear, were ordered home, and to make use of the Bahamas, where we got a supply of turtle and water. They will not be long after us, unless want of provisions forces them for Virginia or New England. Our ship is so deficient of sails and boats that we cannot venture further than the Downs without a supply. I enclose a packet from Lieutenant-General Brayne for the Council of State. [I page.] army to offer you part of the advance which is ordered to be paid on my pension; for I intend, when I have despatched his Majesty's business, to complain to his Highness [Don John of Austria], who will, I hope, give me a positive order to the Pagador.

Lord [Ormond] tells me the King wishes those grants passed under the Great Seal of England, there being none for Ireland, or they had been passed when his Excellency signed that instrument I sent you along with his late Majesty's letter. The office of clerk of the crown of chief place is that of the King's Bench in Ireland, and has no relation to that of the Hanaper. It is impossible to procure copies of the former grants, but the learned counsel can draw them up effectual in law, according to the warrants, which I suppose to be drawn to the effect of the letter and grant already made by the lord Lieutenant. It is needless to keep them secret from the counsel, therefore get them despatched. The fees and perquisites can be named in general terms, but take Mr. Heath's opinion.

Your godson thrives apace, and is a finer boy than Ormond. Noted as received 21st. [3 pages. Flanders correspondence.]

89. Deposition of Chris. Sidney. I heard Israel Allen, merchant, protest at Rotterdam that he believed the late King had too much justice done him in being allowed a fair trial by the only just representatives of the Commonwealth, and being desired to drink the King's health, saying he knew no such man, he, on his knees, drank the Protector's health, and said he would spend his whole estate in maintaining the just titles God had given him, for propagation of the Gospel and maintenance of the people's liberties, which he courageously fought for and maintained. Others now absent can give a fuller account of his disaffection and malignancy. [Endorsed by Nicholas. 1 page.]

Ordnance Office.

102. Ordnance officers to the Admiralty Commissioners. The powder makers have contracted to deliver powder into the stores at the Tower, but they demur to carrying any of it to Windsor Castle until proved, and the proof barrels laid up in the Tower, when they offer to remove it to Windsor at 7*d.* a barrel. We have considered the most effectual means to prevent hazard to the stores, which we apprehend was your object in sending the order, and are convinced that if the coopers' opening, heading up, and proving of powder is the only thing suspected of hazard, if that were removed to another place, even though all the stores of powder in England were housed in the Tower, it could not be exposed to hazard. Orders should be given to the powder makers to do as directed by the Ordnance officers, and at their charge, to send to the powder house in the Old Artillery Ground 40 barrels a day for proving, which being done and headed up, may at a small charge to the State be drawn into the Tower, and lodged there for service. Sir Geo. Lane to [Sec. Nicholas]. A violent indisposition and dispatch in getting in his Majesty's money prevented my early thanking you for yours of the 23rd. I am very sensible of your kindness. I send you the warrants presented by my Lord Lieutenant for his Majesty's signature. When you have attested them, commend them to Heath, who will, I think, oblige me in expediting his part. There is a clause in the late King's letter omitted in all the warrants, viz., that the offices are to be for life. Also in that of clerk of Parliament you call it "clerk of our Upper House of Parliament," instead of "clerk of our Parliaments in the Upper House." If this be important, Mr. Heath, by virtue of the latitude given him, might alter it without troubling you further, but these scruples may be of no importance.

Thanks for your caution about Sir Wm. Usher and Sir Paul Davys; both were alive lately, I cannot tell whether they are now, but must depend on the King's graciousness to effectuate his good intentions, in case the grants happen to be invalidated. Yesterday was the first of my stirring abroad, so that I could not speak to my Lord-Lieutenant about the order for Mr. Fox, which I received from his Excellency, and delivered Fox last night. His Excellency has written you himself about the arrears of his Majesty's allowance. He is much concerned for you, and will do you all the service in his power.

P.S. The order for your 50*l.* was dated July 29. When you have perused the enclosed print, whereof Count Salazar has sent many copies into the French army, you will believe I had no hand in it, though he had my name set to it, wherewith his Majesty is much displeas'd, as he has reason. Endors'd by Nicholas "R. 3rd, Sir Geo. Lane, concerning his patents for some alterations; touching the King's order for my payment." [4 pages. Flanders correspondence.]

- [July 23.] 103. Customs' Commissioners to the Protector. Several merchants have lately requested leave to export saltpetre, pretending that by the late Act of Parliament free leave is granted for export of merchandize, and that no prohibition is now in force; but we have refused to allow this, because by a Council order of July 11 1656, we are not to admit entries of saltpetre, or to suffer any part of what was lately brought from the East Indies to be exported, on any pretence. Therefore we wish to know whether this prohibition is to be continued. 17 July. [$\frac{3}{4}$ pages.]

Have a factory at Patana, 500 miles up the Ganges, and have imported quantities of saltpetre for the State, and exported it to France, Sweden, Hamburg, Holland, Italy, and Venice, increasing trade thereby, and aiming to make London the chief magazine in Europe for it, but though the State is well furnished, the Customs' Commissioners will not let it go without an order. Beg leave to ship it as formerly, having paid custom inwards. [1 page.]

- July 23. 107. Petition of Rob. Tutchin, minister at Newport, Isle of Wight, to the Protector. Wm. Hayles, our parish clerk and registrar, being notoriously scandalous, I endeavoured to remove him, and in 1656 procured the then mayor and divers of the corporation to eject him, and they elected John Ledger, a pious and godly man; but through the malignancy of some in power, Hayles is kept in as clerk, which much obstructs reformation. I beg his removal, and Ledger's establishment. [$\frac{2}{3}$ page.]

July 23. COUNCIL. Day's Proceedings.

His Highness present.

[The orders marked thus * were approved in person.]

1. Strickland, Skippon, Rous, Mulgrave, and Desborow to receive from the Ministers to whom the dispute in the French Church was referred their report, and then to give their opinion to Council.

2, 3. 108. The petition of Oliver Fitzwilliam, Viscount Fitzwilliam of Merion to the Protector, read, and referred to Desborow, Sydenham, Skippon, Strickland, and Pickering, to report.

4. If necessary, the said Committee is to write and ask the Council in Ireland what charge they have against Fitzwilliam.

5.* On petition of Sir Archibald Johnston, who was entrusted with the Records of Scotland, of the prejudice to that nation through long want of the registers, and on an order of Parliament of 9 September 1653, for the registers concerning private persons' rights, securities, and conveyances of land, &c., to be sent back to Scotland, and other orders of Council to like effect :—Order that all such now remaining in the Tower be accordingly sent to Edinburgh Castle, and kept in their proper room, and the Master of the Rolls, Sir Archibald Johnston Lord Wariston, and Gabriel Beck and Wm. Ryley are to distinguish between the public and private registers in the Tower, that the latter may be sent to Scotland.

6. A complaint that P. Blondeau is interrupted in the service entrusted to him of coining, by the pulling down of some of the rooms in Drury House in which he was to work, referred to the Lord-Deputy, Mulgrave, Skippon, Rous, Pickering, Mr. Secretary, Desborow, and Strickland, to enquire from Mr. Graves, the Drury House Trustees, and others, and report.

His Highness withdrew.

7. The certificates of Drs. Wright and Bates, made on order of July 16, read.

8. The Earl of Abercorn's petition read.

9. The America of London, with the Look Out pinnace, being bound on a voyage to the West Indies—order that the captain and officers have free liberty to trade in any places belonging to the enemy or otherwise, and return with their lading to England, without molestation, and that a warrant therefor be given them, on their giving security before the clerks of Council that the produce of their voyage shall be brought to England. Approved 4 August.

10. On report from the Committee on the report of Mr. Attorney and Solicitor General concerning the ballast business, that they find the office of ballasting ships has formerly been granted by patents, and in Statute 27 Hen. VIII. is noticed as an office, and has been granted by Kings and Queens of England to the Lord-Admiral, with power to name officers, and that a lease of the office was granted by the late King, in the 12th of his reign, at a rent of 466*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* for the first five years, and 1,000 marks afterwards, which rent was not paid, and the office neglected, wherefore the Earl of Warwick, who was made Lord-Admiral by both Houses in December 1648, granted the said office to Wm. Jessop for life in all due form; therefore the said Committee are of opinion that, on Jessop's surrender of his patent for the said office, the former claimants having also agreed to surrender, a lease of it should be granted to Geo. Boreman, at rent of 1,000*l.*, with proviso that he impeach not the Conservancy of the Thames, or the rights of the City of London; and that the persons concerned may take ballast elsewhere if the office does not furnish them in time:—Order to advise a lease of the said office at rent of 1,000*l.* to Rich. Bury, Geo. Boreman, Thos. Lodington, and Oliver Williams.

11. To advise a grant to Jessop of an annuity of 200*l.* out of the profits of the above office, as a recompense when he yields up his title to it.

12. 109. Order on report on Thos. Scott's demand [see 20 January 1657—that he has a clear title to the ground on which the barge-houses, Lambeth, are built, and that the inheritance had better be purchased—that 80*l.* be paid Scott for the fee simple of the ground, that the Attorney-General prepare a conveyance of it to his Highness, and that the Admiralty Commissioners give a warrant for payment of the money. Approved 4 August. Annexing,

109. I. *Report of the Admiralty Commissioners alluded to, adding that Scott has been at great charge in building the houses, but that they judge 80*l.* more than the value of the ground before the building of the houses. 16 March 1656-7. [1 page.]*

109. II. [Thos. Scott] *to Sec. Thurloe. I think the ground whereon the barge houses are built worth 100*l.*, but offered it for 80*l.* to the Navy Commissioners, which is less than the Goldsmiths' Company and a private person give me for adjacent ground. No change of power could lessen its value for barge houses, coal and timber yards, &c., and for other land bordering the Thames, 4 or 5 ft. broad and 30 ft. long, I get 4*s.* or 5*s.* a year. I hope after 2 years' attendance the State will not give me less than the 100*l.* which I could have of a private person. [$\frac{2}{3}$ page.]*

109. III. *Report by Att.-Gen. Prideaux that he has directed an assurance from Scott of the ground on which the barge houses are built at Lambeth, and caused a fine to be levied on him and his wife, so that for 80*l.* the ground is assured to his Highness. 21 October 1657. [$\frac{1}{2}$ page.]*

President Lawrence to the President and Council in Scotland. A report from the Committee on the Earl of Tweeddale's petition shows that he, having in possession some part of Charles, Earl of Dunfermline's estate on a mortgage, was sued by the Exchequer Commissioners in Scotland for various feu and blanch duties payable from the estate some years before he meddled with it; and he desires that a precept granted by the late King to the Earl of Dunfermline of 18 Dec. 1646, for payment of 600*l.* to him out of the revenue of Scotland may be allowed on account for the arrears of the said duties.

Story with matters relating to the public peace; that Story, wishing a full vindication, communicated with a justice of peace, and yet (pretensively only, as he affirms) offered money to Edw. Knevelt and Randall to suppress the information, and then endeavoured to involve them in the crime of combining to defraud him, though Randall knew nothing of the treaty till it was agreed on between Story and Knevett, and then did nothing but by instruction from the Maj.-General of Middlesex who employed him, and therefore should not have been molested by Story, and that Knevett had only the public good in view:—Order that the fines imposed on Randall and Knevett by the Court of Sessions be remitted, so far as the Commonwealth is concerned. 121. E. Low. [Elizabeth, Lady Lowther] to [Jos. Williamson]. I received your's of the 3rd inst., implying that mine in answer to yours never came to hand, in which I fully satisfied your desires in declaring my wish and my brother's, that my son must be limited to within the compass of 200*l.* a year, and your 60*l.*, in all 260*l.*, the full that can be allowed him, and more than his estate now amounts to, as my brother professes to me, and it were high indiscretion in us to increase his debts in his minority, which it will behove him all his life to study to lessen and not enlarge, and this would be an ill foundation for it, and utterly inexcusable in us.

I aim not at high breeding, but knowledge for him, and first to begin to know himself; it is but folly to dispute impossibilities, or to think of them. I wonder at your misconstruction formerly, for I fully mistook you and you me; if all he has will not allow him to travel, I am satisfied, though I have known others do it with much less, and make better use of their travels than I yet think him capable of, especially to Italy, which I am very much against in regard of their late pestilence, his feverish disposition of body, and otherwise too much propensity to that nation's distemper. I did not send him abroad so much to learn vanity as to be out of danger of vice, which is supported by gentlemen's fortunes, though but in expectation, where they are known; they are not so abroad, and this shall make us punctual in returning money before it be due, to be governed by your discretion, according to the limitation, which being of necessity cannot be disputed. I shall order his coming home as you shall desire, if these bounds cannot be kept, and he reasonably advantaged by his travels. I mean not to teach him to live high, but to know much, and himself, and his shattered fortunes most. I aim not at his being a statesman; his years, I know, cannot comprehend those mysteries, but to know prudently how to demean himself in any state, and to find content in himself and studies, though his fortune be low and troubled. Sec. Geo. Lane to [Sec. Nicholas]. Thanks for your pains in discoursing with Mr. Heath about my warrants. His objections are so material that I cannot answer them, but some of them being reversions, and the parties yet living, they should be passed as best may be during the lives of the present patentees, and then on the King's restoration (till which I shall enjoy no benefit of them) if they are invalid for want of materials not to be had on this side the water, I am confident his Majesty will accept their surrender, and have effectual ones passed. Therefore intreat Heath to draw them in Latin, as usual, with a non obstante that they are to be effectual in spite of defects owing to his absence from his kingdoms, making this addition when you present them for signature. There is a fee to each office, and you remember that the clerk of Parliament in England had 40*l.* a year. I suppose the same was allowed in Ireland; but if Heath does not think fit to put in a general claim for the annuity, as well as the fees, there should be a blank for the sum, to be inserted by his Majesty, in whose presence only the patents can be sealed. Meanwhile I will procure the best possible information on those particulars.

The report about the Duke of York is affirmed here to be true, that the abbey near la Fère was summoned, and rendered to him by 150 English, who kneeled and asked his pardon, and have engaged in his Majesty's service.

I shall tell the Lord Lieutenant what you wrote about the cypher. Mr. Motett went yesterday to the army near Mobeuse, and hopes soon to get his business concluded; the King is much concerned in it, both in point of honour and money.

I wish Mrs. Cross would leave her house, that it might be taken for the Lord Lieutenant and myself, as he desired. It were happy for the King's servants if he would foresee where to fix himself next winter, that everyone might provide for his settlement.

P.S.—Let me have your opinion concerning the print. Noted as received the 11th. [4 pages, Flanders correspondence.]

Sec. Thurloe to Ambassador Lockhart. The army officers about town have had 2 or 3 meetings, 70 of them, to discourse amongst themselves, and to seek God about the present affairs. A better spirit appeared amongst them, and not a discontented expression fell from them, but the contrary, so that there is little doubt but the army will stick to his Highness in all events. The army is in a quiet condition and temper. Yesterday the officers about town, 70 in number, had a meeting to discourse on present affairs, and to seek God, and there appeared amongst them a most excellent spirit, all who spoke expressing great satisfaction, and much affection to his Highness and his family, so that men think they are fixed to his Highness at all events.

122. Zach. Crofton to John Simpson, White Alley, Coleman Street. If the order by which you invaded my church gave you any power, the late revolution has made it void. The Protector having taken to his sword a sceptre, and sworn to govern according to law, it is my duty to know and re-enjoy my own interest as legal incumbent of the place. I am resolved to return on Lord's Day afternoon, 2nd August, and preach between 1 and 2 p.m. at my own church, and therefore desire you to cease your future pains there, and to signify this to your friends, that we may have no disturbance. If you consider you have any right to the place, commence an action in any court of jurisdiction. [$\frac{3}{4}$ page.]

1. Capt. Hen. Hatsell to the Admiralty Commissioners. Details of the repairs and refitting of the Mayflower and other ships.

The Gainsborough has brought in a small vessel of Minehead, of 3 guns, which had been taken by Brett, an Irishman, off Milford, who was sending her for Passage. She was retaken between Scilly and Ushant, and her former master, 2 of his company, and 5 of the pirates were in her. Brett has taken 7 vessels, 6 of which he sold to the masters again, and one, laden with corn, he sent for Spain.

P.S. I am informed by Barth. Taylor, late master of a ship of London, who was taken 5 weeks since by a Dunkirk man-of-war when coming from Lisbon with sugar, and carried into Passage, which man-of-war was formally commanded by one Snip and now by Copeman—the former having gone to the Groyne to fit out a man-of-war from thence—that when he came from Passage on his parole, 3 weeks since, there were the following frigates fitting out there, viz: Copeman in one of 36 guns, Swart in one of 22, Beach in one of 13, and Spragg in one of 12, besides two smaller; and at St. Sebastian's a new frigate of 20, another of 10, another of 8, and 2 of 12 guns each, and that all, or the most part of these, are now at sea.

I suppose the greater part of these may ply off the Northern Cape, and the rest in the Soundings, mouth of the Channel, and coasts of Ireland and France, and therefore I could wish there were some more frigates to the westward, to secure trade and look after these men-of-war. [3 pages.]

Aug. 4. 2. Petition of Sutton Oglethorpe, of Eskrigg, co. York, and of Frances, his wife, to the Protector. Our son Sutton, then 16 years old, went in March 1654 without leave with a servant, Geo. Blith, to a meeting at Hessam Moor, co. York, for which he was many weeks in York Castle, many weeks in Hull Castle, and in May 1656, they were both banished the 3 nations.

We are in great sorrow for want of our son, our only comfort, and are likely to be damaged on account of a sale of entailed lands, conveyed to Hen. Fairfax, of Bolton Percy in 1651, under heavy bonds that our eldest son, when he came of age, should seal the deed. We beg that he and his servant may be pardoned, and allowed to return and live peaceably at home. [1 sheet.]

Aug. 4. Order thereon that the son be permitted to return, if Thurloe see no reason to the contrary, on bond to attempt nothing against the present government. Approved 4 August. [I. 78, p. 47.]

Aug. 4. 3. Petition of Fras. Lewis to the Protector. After being many years minister of Brigstock, co. Northampton, I was sequestered 16 Aug. last by the Commissioners for ejecting scandalous and insufficient Ministers. I beg either that you would allow me to preach the Gospel, whereto I am called, or refer my case to the Major-General of the county, I promising obedience to the present government. With reference 20 May 1656 to the Major-General and Commissioners for securing the peace of the county, to inquire into his condition and conversation, and if there be no cause to the contrary, to stay proceedings against him till further order. [1 page.]

[Aug. 4.] 4. Petition renewed, on their report that he should have liberty to preach. With reference to Privy Council, 17 June 1657. [1 page.]

[Aug. 4.] 5. Petition of Fras. Lewis to the Protector and Privy Council, for a further order to preach, being presented to a benefice, and approved by the Committee for Preachers, but his admission suspended for an order. [1 page.]

Aug. 4. Order on this petition, and on a certificate from Maj.-Gen. Boteler, John Browne, and Rob. Gay,—that he was ejected in 1655 on articles of scandal, but has since given good testimony of godliness and reformation,—that he be allowed to minister in any other place, being approved by the Committee for Approbation of Preachers. 10. Maj.-Gen. Rob. Lilburne to the Admiralty Commissioners. I send Cornet Merry's account for the keep of the Dunkirk prisoners, which I believe to be correct. He was glad to borrow 40*l.*, which will all be disbursed on Thursday, so I hope you will not only pay the 50*l.* formerly mentioned, but be mindful of a further supply. If not, I do not perceive that anyone is free to engage further to supply them unless the money is deposited in safe hands for them.

As my regiment has orders to march for Scotland, I hope you will also take care that some soldiers are appointed for a guard over them, as they are ever and anon getting away, and the gaoler has been at a charge of 7*l.* in hiring men to watch them; there is so much trouble about them, and so little help and conveniency to secure them, that unless we have some foot to assist, I intend to meddle no more with them, nor will the gaoler receive any hereafter, without some special order from above. 11. Lieut.-Col. Elton to the Admiralty Commissioners. There are yet at Ostend 3 prisoners—Wm. Crane, Jno. Day, and Jas. Elliker—who belonged to Jno. Hide, master of a ship of Hull, for whose release, as also for that of 7 of his men, you formerly wrote the Admiralty Judges of Ostend and Dunkirk, and obtained it. I am continually importuned by the wives of these 3 to write you to release Nicholas and Jno. Clayson and Wm. Bouger, Dunkirkers and common seamen, from York prison, and send them over, when the judges there have promised to release their husbands in exchange. They are so eager and so importunate with me, through their abundant tears, that they weary me out, so I entreat an order for the release of these 3 Dunkirkers from the prison at York.

The Princess Mary and the Half Moon called for the Eastland ships, but they had gone some days, and the 2 frigates sailed to-day. I accommodated them with two pilots for the north. [1 page.]

12. Petition of Major John Grove, on behalf of Col. Fras. Hacker's horse regiment in Scotland, to the Protector. On 18 August 1656, the Treasurers-at-war gave me an acquittance for 825*l.* 12*s.* 9*d.* to deliver to Wm. Jukes, receiver-general of monthly assessments, co. Salop, on his paying that sum to Col. Hacker, being part of the month's pay due to his regiment on 26 May 1656, but Jukes failed to pay this sum and other sums to Majors-General Whalley and Bury. For so doing, the county commissioners of assessments committed him and two of his securities to prison, and have sold most of his estate, and paid the Majors-General, but not me, pretending they have not money enough, and questioning their power to re-assess by virtue of the old Act. This much prejudices the regiment, and me who am engaged in several sums on their behalf.

I beg an order for their payment from co. Notts or Leicester, or from Guildhall; also an order to the Salop Commissioners to exercise the powers given them in the Act of 24 November 1653, and in the Ordinance of 27 November 1655, for bringing in the arrears from the county for the time before the commencement of this Parliament's Acts; the Treasurers-at-war to assign the same to such troops as can best attend the business. Also that for the better observation of decorum in the Court of Justice in Guernsey, the Clerk of the Court read the actions depending there; and that none who are not magistrates presume to be covered within the bar, or sit on the seat of justice, so that the magistrates may better be distinguished from private persons.

17. When any causes shall be referred from Monday to Saturday, in order to a decision thereof by a greater number of justices, the bailiff and jurates are to meet on such Saturdays by 11 a.m., that the time of the early comers be not wasted, nor the opportunity of dispatching causes lost.

18. The request for 12 barrels of powder to be sent over, and some muskets for the poorer sort, who can handle arms, though they cannot buy them, left to the Governor, Colonel Bingham, to do as he finds best for his Highness's service and the island's safety.

20. On petition from the Governor and Company of Levant Merchants, that their ship, the Resolution, laden with 30,000*l.* worth of merchandise, has been taken by Tripoli men-of-war, and carried to Rhodes, contrary to the articles of treaty between the two States;—Order to advise his Highness to write to the Grand Seignior and Vizier Bassa, for release of the said ship.

21. His Highness imparted another petition from the said merchants, that several Spanish ships have gone towards the Straits to intercept our merchant ships, and that 2 English ships have been set upon, and one sunk, and begging protection for the trade, but was reminded that directions had already been given in that behalf.

His Highness withdrew.

22. On Mr. Secretary's report from the Committee on an order of August 4, to take General John Desborow's account for money received by him, and consider how he may be discharged therefrom; that as it appears that he received, as Major General of Fairfax's regiment of horse and for disbanding supernumeraries, from 26 January 1647-8 to 7 May 1648, 13,991*l.* 8s. 0*d.* in 9 sums specified, and that he paid the troops 13,849*l.* 0s. 0*d.* in 6 sums, leaving 142*l.* 8s. 0*d.* due to the State on his account, which, with 254*l.* 11s. 0*d.* owed by him on another account, makes 396*l.* 19s. 0*d.*, and that his accounts were Approved.

23. Order that Desborow pay the 396*l.* 19*s.* to Mr. Jessop, who is to give it to Maj.-Gen. Jephson towards the 400*l.* ordered for his service as envoy to the King of Sweden. Approved 6 August.

15. Major Jo. Wade to the Admiralty Commissioners. Conceiving that you intend sending for more timber, I would acquaint you that those you have contracted with do not come with their ships into our river, where the timber lies on the shore, but stay in Hunger Road, and send trows up the Severn to Lydney Pill, where the timber is put at the water side, and costs them 5*s.* or 6*s.* a ton for fetching it down to their ships, and besides that, they stay 3 spring tides for its coming down, which is not less than 6 weeks, so that stands them in little less than 5*s.* a ton more.

If when you make any further contracts with the owners of the ships for fetching the timber, you would deliver it at Sherehampton, adjoining Hunger Road, they cannot refuse abating a considerable sum. The carrying of it down to Hunger Road will cost the State but little, as considering the trouble and charge formerly experienced in hiring boats to carry pig and bar iron up and down the Severn, I had the boldness to cause Mr. Furzer to build a trow of 20 tons for that purpose out of scrap timber, which stands the State in good stead in carrying it up and down the Severn at very easy rates, and will carry down the timber for a very small matter, where it shall be in readiness, let the ships come when they will for it, provided notice is given that it is to be delivered at Sherehampton, a place that will contain thousands of tons by the water side. 16. Major Wm. Burton to the Admiralty Commissioners. The Fame and Vulture have arrived, and gone to Harwich to victual. The Vulture reports that there are 35 sail in Goree, ready to come out, whereof 2 are fire-ships, and formerly carried 22 guns each. The hoy with the cordage and the things saved from the Laurel has been waiting a week for a convoy. I have drawn bills on the Treasurer for the remainder of my money, and hope they will be paid. The town have ordered two townsmen to come up to the Council, and you, to see if there may be an agreement made between England and Flanders, to fish freely on both sides without molestation. 17. Capt. Robt. Clarke to the Admiralty Commissioners. We sailed from Cascales Bay the 17th ult., with the Newbury and Colchester, and came into Plymouth Sound by order of the General, who much desired to get on shore before he died, but as soon as they entered the Sound, at 10 a.m., he departed this life, to the great loss of the State and nation.

Last night we parted with the Swiftsure and the rest of the fleet off the Lizard, they being bound for the Downs; I will sail there myself with the first wind. The General yesterday charged Rear-Admiral Bourne, Mr. Creed, and myself to represent the sad condition of the fleet left behind under the command of Capt. Jno. Stoakes. [1 page.]

18. Capt. Hen. Hatsell to the Admiralty Commissioners. This day, about 12 o'clock, the George, Newbury, and Colechester came into the Road, and 2 hours before, it pleased the Lord to put a period to the days of Gen. Blake. Capt. Clarke says he was very desirous to be ashore, and if God saw it good, to add some days to his life for settling of his estate, but his course was finished, and his memorial shall be blessed. As he lived, so he continued to the death, faithful. The Lord grant that a supply of his great loss may be made up, for the good of his poor people!

The Swiftsure and 7 others of the fleet with Mr. Creed went eastward; it is reported that many of the ships left on the coast of Spain are in a very sad condition, not only in respect of their bodies and tackle, but also in the sickness and weakness of their men, and that if some of the ships do not come home before winter, they will probably be lost. Would not it be advisable to send for all the defective and second-rate ships, and send others in their stead as soon as they can be got ready? I have directed Capt. Clarke to take the first opportunity to sail to the Downs, and to take the East India ship and such others as are bound eastward under his convoy. [1 page.]

Tenants and inhabitants of the manor of Old Paris Garden, for stay of Wm. Angel, who has purchased the demesnes, and erected several cottages, from erecting more on a waste ground which has been enjoyed by the tenants 220 years, as thereby the common sewers will be dammed up, the high road stopped, many poor brought in, endangering infection, and they deprived of having water in case of fire. Geo. Thomson. In 1643, discovered a design to his Highness, whereon he was committed to the Tower, his Highness promising he should not suffer, but be provided for; lost for 4 years his employment as surveyor at Southampton, worth 100*l.* a year, his goods were seized, and he put to great charge. The Rainbow, Of Cadiz.

19. Capt. Jno. Stoakes to the Admiralty Commissioners. I send some Spanish letters taken out of 2 Hollanders which I searched which came out of Cadiz, bound for the Canaries, and also their translations, whereby it will be seen that there is a proclamation from the King of Spain for the speedy setting forth of a considerable fleet of 40 sail, and denoting their intentions for the secure bringing home of their estates from the Canaries. I am informed by other letters intercepted of some Flemings daily expected from the Canaries with Spanish goods, the only course they intend to take to bring home their goods, if not prevented.

We came to anchor before Cadiz the 25th ult., and I have my scouts daily abroad, and will be very vigilant and careful. The Hampshire has arrived with a Hamburger and another with masts, and the Falcon has gone to Madeira for the wine, with the Providence for a convoy. [1 page.]

20. Capt. Hen. Hatsell to Robt. Blackborne. I suppose Mr. Creed has been with you, and given an account of the state of the fleet on the coast of Spain. I am glad to hear that the report which was drawn up for Jamaica has passed the Council, so that those frigates which are incapable of service, and the great ships, which are not for winter work, will be called home, and others sent in their stead, and that $\frac{1}{3}$ of the fleet on that coast will be relieved every 4 months for the time to come. I beg payment of an enclosed account to Mr. Powell as heretofore, and I have left the other accounts with your servant Jas. Southern. The George, Newbury, and Colchester sailed on Saturday night, the George carrying away the body of General Blake; I suppose he will have a very honourable interment, befitting a person of his worth, who indeed, setting some human frailties aside (from which the best of men are not free), may be ranked with most that have gone before him in our age. President Lawrence to the Lord Mayor of London and Commissioners for ejecting scandalous Ministers. Parliament being sensible of the prejudice to the work of the Gospel and the interest of godliness, by the creeping in and continuance of ignorant, scandalous, and insufficient ministers and schoolmasters, and of the good to be done by their ejection to the work of reformation, after which the people have so thirsted; and also considering the good work already done by the Ordinance for ejecting scandalous Ministers, have judged it necessary to continue the same longer, in order to perfect the work in many neglected places. His Highness and Council therefore desire you to meet and pursue the work of ejecting scandalous ministers and schoolmasters with renewed diligence. 24. Capt. Sidrack Blake to the Admiralty Commissioners. I thank you and Don Diego de Villa Alva for procuring me my freedom. I hear there are 7 Biscay men-of-war—2 of 24 guns each—5 sail of Irish frigates from 4 to 8 guns, and 6 Dunkirkers of small force, save one of 36 guns, all of which are going to look for the Newfoundland men, so that it would be as well if 3 or 4 frigates were sent to hinder those rogues from going out, or to take them and their prizes coming in, as also to watch the fishermen of the place who father many Spanish vessels. It is thought that the India ships will henceforth come for this coast, as some of late have arrived in safety, viz., 2 from the Indies and 3 from the Canaries, richly laden with a quantity of plate. 25. Thos. Hart to the Admiralty Commissioners. I find there is now some compliance of the Spaniards with your desire for the enlargement of English prisoners in Biscay, and in particular for Capt. Sidrack Blake, who has since been set at liberty. I am sensible of your favour and care of him, in giving so good an exchange as Don Diego de Villa Alva, who has most honourably complied with his obligation. As for the rest of the English prisoners in the province of Biscay, I have promised that all shall be freed provided all those of the province in England are freed; also that they will take care that from henceforth no prisoners are kept there, looking nevertheless for a reciprocal dealing with those in England.

There is one however who cannot be freed without an order from the King, the Irish having accused him of being a spy, although they cannot prove anything against him. He has endured 18 months' misery through Martin Brise, now a prisoner in England and of the Irish rebel crew; so that it will be a charity to take care for his liberty, which may be worked out by that of Brise, who accused him. I beg you will order the freedom of all those of the said province, and in the meantime of 2 named, for whose liberty I partly engaged, to facilitate Capt. Sidrack Blake's liberty, and I am assured of having freed for them more than equivalent, as they will deliver up some masters they procured of the Dunkirkers, who commanded some rich prizes lately taken.

P.S.—Since writing this, I have received 3 prisoners from the Governor of Fuentarabia, and a promise to deliver all up for the future, and therefore hope you will do the same, so as to beget a good correspondence. [2 pages.]

33. Capt. J. Grymesditch to the Admiralty Commissioners. I convoyed several ships from the Hope to Dramme, Longsound, and Gottenburg, and then came to Elsinore, expecting to find some homeward bound, but none will be ready for 6 weeks. I found, however, several letters desiring convoy from masters of ships staying at Gottenburg and Longsound, the rendezvous of the fleet, and will proceed thither.

My entertainment here has not been so placable that I am much taken with it; upon landing, the Governor was very inquisitive as to the cause of my coming, and nothing would serve but the production of my orders, and I was kept under restraint until they were fetched from the ship, when they gave satisfaction. I find the people are much terrified with the thoughts of the English assistance to the Swede, and I heard a Major declare to the Governor that he heard from the King's own mouth that his Highness had sent 24 frigates to aid the Swede. The 2 armies are within four Dutch miles, and but one mile distant from each other, so that a daily engagement is expected, and the people are here very greedy to receive the event. I will leave the Half Moon, in case any ships should come, so as to bring them to me. [1 page.] Enclosing,

34. Major Wm. Burton to the Admiralty Commissioners. I hear you have ordered the re-victualling of the Fame and Vulture, which are both wanted to convoy vessels. I wonder the bailiffs should write about the poor fishermen who picked up some things belonging to the Laurel, and never mention it to me. When they find anything, I always cause them to prize it, and if they do so too highly, I leave it in their hands, and they pay the State $\frac{3}{4}$ ths of the value; but if reasonably, I give them $\frac{1}{4}$ th, by which means there is no discontent, and there is not a man that could justly demand a penny but he has been paid.

The bailiffs, especially Bendish, would not write you about the poor men who were saved, being all wet and many maimed, that when my son went to him for orders to the constable to get them lodgings, he refused, and bade him get them himself, which he was forced to do; but the truth is, the man is drunk with pride, and has so carried himself this year as bailiff, that he is an affliction to the church, and all the men of quality have informed me of the unworthiness of his carriage. He rails against me because I was chosen burgess, for he used all means to obtain it and I to refuse Levant Company to Spencer Bretton. On your notice of 5 June of the surprisal by the Turks of the Resolution, we procured his Highness's letters to the Grand Seignior and Vizier for restitution thereof, and release of the captives, which we do not see how they can refuse to do, as it is so contrary to the law of nations and rules of commerce for a ship trading peaceably to be seized as a prize.

We therefore hope for reparation according to the means in use there, and desire your assistance to his Lordship, for satisfaction to those concerned in the ship and goods, and for discharge of the prisoners. [Levant Papers, Vol. IV., p. 292.]

There are also 3 richly laden bound for Dort that can go with him as far as Yarmouth, for whom he can call on his return, and convoy them to their destination. I missed them in Holland, the letter coming too late, but laid hold of them on arriving at Harwich, and delivered them to the lieutenant of Landguard Fort, with orders to send them up to his Highness, as directed by Mr. Grymes [or Gree]. I took them first before Justice Smith and Justice Hunter of Harwich, but could get no justice from them, as they would not commit the men. I was therefore forced to put them on board Capt. I have letters to several there, beside knowing the Prince Elector and Prince Rupert, and having interest with M. de Gramont and Count Maurice, of Nassau, and I hope my service will contradict those informations you have received against me; though when I consider the deep impressions which (as I found from your discourse with me in your chamber the first night I waited on you) had been made on you by the malice of my enemies, I almost despair of recovering your good opinion. I am innocent of any breach of promise to you, though you say I did not deal honourably with you in my last correspondence. I have received the money. When I have made such a bare provision as is needful to appear among the persons who can enlighten me, and paid for my journey, which will cost 40 pistoles, I shall enter Frankfort with 10, which will not maintain me many days, and to fall into want would frustrate any possibility of service. 46. Gen. E. Montague to Wm. Jessop. The Speaker's Company importuned me to write to you about their plunder due from the galleon that was taken, but from which they were debarred by not being permitted to leave their own ship, and they have addressed Council thereon. I know not whether to give them money, as it would dissatisfy more than it would content, and bring like applications from the Bridgewater, Taunton, &c., but a reasonable gratification to the whole fleet would be very acceptable, just, and fit. Meanwhile, no one knows of my writing this but Sir R. Stayner. [1 page.] Enclosing,

46. I. Sir Rich. Stayner to [Montague.] On 9 September 1656, the Jesu Mary and Joseph, being surprised by the Speaker, under my command, there was in the gunroom a large quantity of plate, some in pigs and some wrought, which formerly belonged to the seamen who took her prize. But on account of the great quantity, the evil example, and the number of prisoners on board, to prevent embezzlement, I restrained our men from going on board, so that many of them got little or no plunder. Much of the plate was taken out in presence of Rear-Adm. Bourne and 7 captains. 17 August 1657. [1 page.]

Lord Jermyn to Prince Rupert. I commend to you the bearer, Col. Bamfield, who is going to Germany to find a livelihood in the motions of that country. If it be easy for you to do for him what he proposes, you will very much oblige me. His sufferings and persecutions entitle him to relief.

47. Petition of Rob. Leighton, for Edinburgh College, to the Protector. On 8 August 1654, you passed an Ordinance for better support of universities in Scotland, and conferred on Glasgow and Aberdeen colleges a liberal annuity for the help of poor hopeful students, and expressed your intention to extend the like bounty, on application, to Edinburgh. I was thereon encouraged to come to London, had access to you, and represented the situation of the college, its number of students, larger than in any other college in the nation, and its poverty, being a late foundation, and with little provision for poor scholars. Some of the University Commissioners then in London spoke to you thereon, and you ordered the Clerk of Council to draw up another clause for Edinburgh; but afterwards you did not think the time fitting for its insertion, as Parliament was sitting.

I now renew my request, and can offer a way by which it may be done without prejudice to the State. The most renowned persons in the world delight in pious and generous actions. [1 page.]

I sent horses and arms to your army, on their march to Worcester, and have always been faithful, yet I have suffered near 3 years' imprisonment, on a false suspicion that I was privy to the late insurrection in Yorkshire. My health is thereby impaired, and my estate so wasted that my wife and 4 children are brought to great want. Lendall came to my house in Quekes, Isle of Thanet, with armed men, broke open the doors, secured my servants, took 400*l.* in plate, money, and goods, and took my father, Hen. Crisp, and me to the sea side, to carry us both away. They then forced me to promise to pay them 1,000*l.* in Flanders within a month, carried my father to Bruges for security, and demand 2,000*l.* for his ransom, threatening to use him strangely unless paid, and they do not allow him to converse with any, nor to write without their knowledge.

I find that of the Spanish prisoners in Chelsea College, no one or two are of quality to ransom me and my father, except the 4 named in a paper annexed, 2 being merchants, 1 a gunner, and 1 a soldier; they are willing to endeavour the exchange, if they may go to Flanders, on security to return if they cannot procure Mr. Crisp's freedom by exchange. I beg your direction, as I cannot pay the ransom moneys without mortgaging or selling my lands, to my irreparable prejudice.

I beg leave for these prisoners to go to Flanders, or for my father to treat there for his exchange with other Spanish prisoners, or for such other relief as you think fit. [1 page.]

Sept. 7. I will soon. [$\frac{1}{2}$ page, French.] Blois.
- Aug. 29. 59. Capt. Robt. Clarke to the Admiralty Commissioners. Our
The George, North having received intelligence from a vessel plying off the Downs. Downs, he called most of the commanders together, when it was agreed to set sail at 2 the next morning. As the day lightened, we saw the fleet at the back of the Goodwin, but 2 of the scouts' frigates having spoken with some of them, and found they were merchant ships with their convoys, the General sent me and 3 others to return to the Downs, while he stood south-west with the rest of the fleet.
I have delivered the tobacco left on board by Gen. Blake to the Sub-commissioners at Dover. A messenger has come here from Sec. Thurloe to enquire after Maj.-Gen. Jephson, who was expected in the Downs to take ship, but as yet I cannot give any account of him. The man is perplexed because he cannot hear of the gentleman. [1 page.]
- Aug. 31. 60. Wm. Rowe to Col. Edw. Salmon, Admiralty Commissioner.
St. Cleer's Farm, A friend of mine in Scotland prays me to move you that if Troutbeck, Droxford who it is heard is nigh death, should die, you would admit one Parish, Fish to succeed him as surgeon in your regiment. Fish has now some Hampshire. small business to do in Heriot's Hospital, Edinburgh, and my friend has experienced his ability in surgery. Capt. Drake, of his Highness's foot regiment in London, who receives and opens my letters during my absence here, has sent away a letter he found enclosed to your lady, I suppose to move her to mediate with you for Fish, who is well known to him to be a deserving man. My uncle, Alderman Allen (with whom I am staying), will add a word when he has done hearing a business referred to him from the country, which he thinks of representing to the Admiralty Commissioners or to Commissioner Willoughby, as a very great injury to some of the people in this country, and a most dishonourable thing to the State, viz. :—

That some of the waggons or carts which carried the Spanish plate from Portsmouth to London have not been paid, and thereupon suits are commenced by the people whose teams went, against their neighbours of the same tithings and hundreds, who were chargeable as well as they, but got one entire team to go for the rest, and engaged if the State did not pay them, they would each pay their proportion. Some having been paid and not others, those who are unpaid sue their neighbours on this promise, and they, to stave it off, defend the suits, so there is money spent on both sides, more than the pay of the carts would come to, which seems a shameful thing. The countrymen say it comes by Commander Willoughby wanting money to clear them all; his instrument, or some paymaster at Portsmouth tells them they should have come in time, whereas they had no time set, and applied as soon as they understood how the course of it was, and now they are answered that the account is closed, or there is not money. I suppose a small enablement, or a word of direction to Mr. Willoughby to send to his instrument to clear those who are paid but in part, and pay off wholly those who are yet unpaid, would take away this clamour and scandal upon the public, as well as the discord among neighbours. As a well wisher to the reputation of the State, and to peace amongst men, I am bold to give you this hint. With a note by Alderman Fras. Allen that, being deeply affected with the above, out of public respect as well as of common equity, he cannot but earnestly request favour and care for the clearing of these poor men, which he has persuaded them will speedily be done. [1 page.]

Aug. 31. 61. Edw. Norris to Williamson. Judge of my desire to see Sept. 10. you when I ask you not to send my letter of change here, which Blois. would cause a delay of 3 weeks, but to endorse it in my name, and get it cashed. We hope to be with you on Friday week.
[1 page, French.]

Aug. ? 62. Petition of Wm. Towerson to Richard, Lord Cromwell, Chancellor of Oxford University, for a letter to the warden and fellows of All Souls', to admit his son Gabriel (who has studied 8 years, taken his M.A. degree, and devoted himself to the ministry) as a competitor for one of the vacant fellowships, and recommending him for the preference if of equal capacity. With certificate by Sir Chris. Pack on behalf of both father and son. [1 sheet.]

Sept. 1. 63. Elizabeth, Lady Lowther, to Williamson. I am sorry my letters to you miscarry. Though I am afraid of the travelling into Italy, because of the late contagion, I am not against other travels, if the expense is not beyond the 260*l.* a year, otherwise my son must be settled at home. We must not plunge into new debt him who is too deeply engaged already. [1 page.]

64. C. George to Williamson. I hope the enclosed will find you still at Saumur. [$\frac{1}{2}$ page, French.]

[London.]

65. Hum. Robinson to Williamson, Saumur. I transmit letters, but Sir Ralph Hare sends no money, though I wrote to him of your need. I suppose you have credit for your present supply. We are in sickly times; in most of the adjacent counties, a putrid fever broke out in harvest time, but the city is in the best condition. Provost Langbaine rejoices in the birth of another boy.

Now that Gen. Blake is interred among our princes in Westminster, Gen. Desborow will succeed him; till the next meeting of Parliament, no great alteration is expected. Prince Richard broke his thigh-bone in hunting in New Forest, that fatal place to the sons of our princes, but he is recovering. [1 page.]

Sept. 8.

66. Petition of Rich. Bartlet and John Watson, watermen, to the Protector. Have served 6 years as watermen extraordinary, and had badges given by the Council of State, and have always been faithful and ready to serve. Having been employed by the Commissioners of Customs, did not presume to ask allowance as watermen, though several places have been void, but now finding that the badges are to be altered, as their Custom House employment is uncertain, they beg coats, badges, and allowances as others of his Highness's watermen. With certificate to their good conduct by Geo. Foxcroft, R. Saltonstall, and John Upton, 15 Aug. 1657, and order, signed by the Protector, to Council, to admit them as watermen. Hampton Court, 3 Sept. 1657. [1 sheet.] Annexing,

Sept. 8.

67. Order in Council that they be admitted, and that the Admiralty Commissioners provide them coats and badges. [1 page; also I. 78, p. 128.]

Sept. 8.

68. Petition of Step. Seares, porter of Whitehall, to the Protector, for payment. On my late petition [22 March 1654] you granted me a reference to the Revenue Committee, who report that they are satisfied of its truth, but cannot repay any disbursements without order, nor does the reference on the report empower the Treasury Commissioners to pay without special order. With reference thereon, 19 July 1654, to Council. [$\frac{3}{4}$ page.]

Reference thereon in Council to Strickland, Jones, Sydenham, Pickering, and Wolsley, to report. [I. 78, p. 132; see 6 April 1658.]

Sept. 8.

69. Petition of Hen. Saunders and Thos. Bull, bailiff of Farnham, to the Protector and Council. Being at Farnham on 27 Aug., on a hue and cry after some highwaymen, by desire of Sir Rich. Onslow, we pursued them to the New Inn, Guildford, and trying to apprehend them, Bull was shot in the belly, and Saunders narrowly escaping, still pursued them, took John Craig, one of them, and seized their horses in Westminster, but the bailiff of Westminster took them to his own use. They beg an order for the horses, or some consideration for their services and sufferings. [1 page.]

Sept. 8. Order thereon that 30*l.* a year be allowed to Hen. Saunders as gamekeeper in the Middle and West division and Bamstead Downs, Surrey, and that the Treasury Commissioners give order for payment. [I. 78, p. 134.]

Sept. 8. COUNCIL. Day's Proceedings.

[The orders marked thus * were approved in person.]

2. On petition of Hen. Peck for a privy seal for payment of the rest of a debt of 4,281*l.* 10*s.* 4½*d.*, mentioned in Ordinances of Parliament of 16 and 21 Oct. 1648, due from ironworks in Dean Forest, 3,960*l.* 11*s.* 3½*d.* of which he states to be unpaid, the Ordinance having been stopped by a former Parliament, but the stop taken off by the present—order that the petitioner be left to make his application to Parliament, as no revenue remains at his Highness's disposal to satisfy the said debt.

3. Like answer to be given to Sam. Vassal concerning the money he claims.

4. The Committee of Council on Money Affairs to consider the state of the Exchequer revenue, and the sums charged on it, and what may be offered on to-day's debate for making the charges proportionable to the income.

5. A report from Lord Wariston, Sir John Berkstead, and others, appointed to sort the Scotch registers in the Tower, and a petition from Wm. Ryley, Clerk of the Records there, read, and referred to Strickland, Mulgrave, Wolsley, Lisle, Jones, and Mr. Secretary, to report.

6. Sydenham and Lord Deputy present from the Committee on papers delivered by Lord Wariston, Mr. Gillespy, and Mr. Simpson, the draft of a letter to the Ministers of both judgments in Scotland, which was read, amended, approved, and to be offered to his Highness as the advice of Council.

His Highness present.

8.* On petition of the Governor, Deputy, Assistants, and Fellowship of Merchant Adventurers of England, for a convoy for the Hamburg Merchant, from London to the River Elbe, and as near as possible to Hamburg, to stay 14 days and bring her back to the Thames; also on a petition of the Fellowship of Merchant Adventurers of England, trading from York, Hull, and Leeds, for a convoy for 2 ships, richly laden with English goods, to Hamburg—order that Gen. Montague appoint fit convoy for the said ships, and give orders for their safe guarding, if the Admiralty Commissioners have not done it already. With letter to Gen. Montague accordingly. [I. 77, p. 985.]

9.* To advise his Highness to appoint Capt. Potter as gamekeeper for Southwark and 10 miles round on the Surrey side, with a salary of 20*l.* a year.

10.* In Phil. Meadows's absence, Mr. Sterry to execute his office under Mr. Secretary, with a salary of 200 marks a year.

11. Council to meet at 9 a.m. to-morrow.

12. A paper containing a desire for a Commission for plantation of churches in Scotland read, and referred to the Committee on Lord Wariston's papers, to consider the state of the maintenance of ministers in Scotland, how it is managed, and how it may be legally put, and to report.

15. Order on the petition of Winchcombe church, co. Gloucester, to advise the Trustees for Maintenance of Ministers to settle on Carnsew Helme, minister there, such an augmentation as shall bring his income up to 100*l.* Approved 10 September.

16. Order on petition of Anthony Hutton, gardener at Whitehall, that his salary be raised from 40*l.* to 60*l.*, as the garden there requires more labour than formerly.

17. On reading a letter from the Council in Scotland, of 18 Aug. 1657, in answer to one from Council of 27 July 1657—stating that the Earl of Dunfermline was employed by the late King as Commissioner in the General Assembly held at St. Andrew's in 1642, and for this and other services, he was in 1646 ordered 600*l.*; that the Earl of Tweeddale, being engaged in great sums of money for the Earl of Dunfermline, obtained from him a mortgage of 2 parts of his estate, whereof Tweeddale does not now possess 350*l.* yearly rent, the sums owing to him being nearly 30,000*l.*; also that Tweeddale is sued by the Exchequer Commissioners in Scotland for arrears from Dunfermline's estate of feu, tack, and blanch duties, it being now in his right and title, and Tweeddale having given satisfaction to them of his title to the precept of 600*l.*, and of the just grounds on which it was granted;—As others in like cases have full allowance granted them of sums due from the late King, by compensing the same, with the arrears of feu, tack, and blanch duties,—order that the said duties due for the said Earl's estate be discharged by such composition, Dunfermline receiving the overplus; and that the precept of 600*l.* compensate to Tweeddale so much of the arrears of the duties charged on his share of the estate, which the Council of Scotland is to see to. Approved 10 September. [I. 78, pp. 24–134.]

Sept. 8. The Protector to Ministers of both judgments in Scotland, [viz., Messrs. Dickson, Douglas, Frayle, and Sterlin.] We note the addresses lately made to us of the unhappy differences which have fallen out amongst you, and being sensible of the effects of these divisions if there be not a timely closure of the breaches, and of the hindrance to the interest of godliness and work of reformation, we hold it our duty to use our utmost endeavours that those over whom the Lord has set us should lead a quiet and peaceable life. Therefore by advice of our Council we wish to heal those divisions, so that all that fear the Lord may join heart and hand in reforming what is amiss, and promoting not only the form, but the power of godliness and purity, in the churches and church administration.

VOL. CLVI.

We do not think fit to notice the first rise of these differences, nor the means of heightening them, but exhort you, as one step to the cure, to lay these wholly aside, and bury them and all prosecutions thereon in oblivion, and regard one another with affection as before, that the work of reformation may be carried on, and all ignorant, scandalous, profane, and malignant persons ejected from the ministry, and the godly and well-affected encouraged. To accomplish this closure, we advise you to meet together as brethren to consult what means may best accomplish the reform of what is amiss, and to reconcile all differences among you, as may best consist with the propagation of the Gospel, and encouraging the power of godliness.

We hope the Lord may so direct you that we may not be obliged to proceed in any other course, to prevent the consequences, which are like to be worse if not timely obviated. [I. 78, pp. 130, 131.]

- Sept. 9. 70. Petition of Susan, widow of John Tubbing, to the Protector and Council, for relief, being in debt. Her husband was in service from the beginning of the wars, under Lord-Deputy Fleetwood, and when sent by the Council of Scotland 5 years ago with Col. Sexby into France, was arrested on suspicion of holding correspondence with the enemy, thrown into prison, and tortured, dying rather than reveal anything committed to him. The French took 100*l.* which they found quilted about him. By his death she lost a yearly rent of 30*l.*, and has received but 10*l.* for his faithful service, although he was promised 300*l.* a year. With holograph reference to Council, 14 August 1657. [1 page.]
- Sept. 9. 71. Reference thereon by Council to Rous, Skippon, Deputy, Strickland, Pickering, Lisle, and Sydenham, to report speedily. [$\frac{1}{2}$ page; also I. 78, p. 135.]
- Sept. 9. 72. Petition of Lawrence Chislett, of Taunton, co. Somerset, to the Protector. From the beginning of the late wars, I and my 2 sons served as volunteers at our own cost. After 5 years' service, they lost their lives. I served as scout 7 years, lost 500*l.* by plunder and fire, to my utter ruin, and was imprisoned 20 weeks by Sir John Stowell in Taunton Castle, and threatened to be hanged, but stole away; I went to the Earl of Essex, Maj.-Gen. Skippon, Lord Roberts, and Sir Phil. Stapleton, and promised, on pain of being hanged, to bring them into the town, or fire the castle magazine in 10 days. Thereupon 500 horse were sent under Col. Scrope, Sir Rob. Pye, and Doll Beare, and I so conducted them that they entered the town before a shot was fired, the Castle was surrendered in 6 days, and Adm. Blake made governor.

I have always been faithful, and discovered several plots against you, especially when the second Parliament broke up, when I disclosed to you in Henry VIII.'s chamber the plot intended of seizing the horses and arms and securing the riders. You then gave me your hand, bade me welcome to London, and promised to do me good if it ever lay in your power.

VOL. CLVI.

I am grown old, have lost all my estate, and received only 5*l.* out of the 1,800*l.* ordered me by the Long Parliament from the lands of Sir John Stowell and others, for relief of the soldiers and inhabitants of Taunton, though the Trustees, Bovett, Searle, Adams, and Whetcombe, have received 10,000*l.*, given part of it to strangers who had no right to it, and divided the rest amongst themselves; and as I have opposed them in pleading my right, as a chief inhabitant and one of the greatest sufferers, they say they will spend the rest of the 18,000*l.* in law. I beg to have a portion allotted to me for subsistence of my wife and children, or some other relief. With reference thereon to Council, to give the petitioner relief by sending for the parties complained of, or otherwise. 4 Sept. 1657. [1 page.] Annexing,

72. I. Lawrence Chislett to Council. My business being referred to you, in case you grant me an order for relief, I beg also an order to call the Trustees, gentlemen of the town and country, to account for the moneys they have received many years ago for the town, of which they have given no account. The gentlemen are Col. Thos. Gaudge, John Mallett, Wm. Gill, Roger Hill, Rob. Hacker, John Gardner, and John Porter; the Trustees are Rich. Buffett [or Bovett], John Adams, Sam. Whetcombe, and George Searle. London, 7 Sept. 1657. [$\frac{3}{4}$ page.]

72. II. "Helps or notes for my own memory," being notes by Chislett on the act of injustice by the Trustees in the distribution of the money for Taunton, and of his own services, especially in bringing a Parliament brigade, in danger at Petherton Bridge, by Elford Bridge to Taunton. [2 pages.]

Sept. 9. Order thereon for the following letter. [I. 78, p. 138.]

Sept. 9. Pres. Lawrence to Rich. Bovett, Geo. Searle, and Sam. Whetcombe, Taunton. Council being sensible of Chislett's services and sufferings, as detailed in his petition, we require you, to whom the distribution of the 18,000*l.* granted by Parliament was confided, to say how much you have paid him, and whether it be in proportion to his merits, what his proportion amounts to, and why it has not been paid. [I. 77, p. 983.] Annexing,

73. *Geo. Searle, Rich. Bovett, and Sam. Whetcombe to Hen. Lawrence, Lord President of Council. In answer to yours of 9 Sept., we acknowledge Parliament's goodness in bestowing 12,000*l.* in money and lands on the sufferers of our town. It has been divided not only by us but by Cols. Popham and Pyne and others, and 700 persons have joyfully accepted their proportions. Chislett was not in the book of sufferers, because his house which was burnt was mortgaged to Culmes, a delinquent, for 500*l.* and forfeited before the wars, so the loss was Culmes's; but on Chislett's importunity, he was discharged from the debt of 500*l.*, and it was abated in Culmes's composition, and Chislett extorted from him 100*l.* more, and by like practices, though worth nothing in the beginning* *of the wars, he has now an estate worth 1,000*l.* We never heard of his being instrumental in giving the town to Parliament, though we were officers and soldiers at the time. His sons lived some years after the wars, and got good estates and offices. He has been such an "implacable and incorrigible person" that 500 of the sufferers have given authority to sue him for impeaching their title to and interest in the lands granted by Parliament. Taunton, 20 Oct. 1657. [1 sheet.]*

COUNCIL. Day's Proceedings.

Whereas by Order of 28 April 1657, the foot regiments in England were not to recruit to above 800 soldiers, beside officers, in each regiment, and whereas 55 soldiers of the regiment, late Maj.-Gen. Instruction to the Council in Scotland. You were formerly authorized to allow ministers in Scotland with whom you are satisfied, as qualified by the Ordinance of 6 Aug. 1654, the stipends, arrears, houses, and other profits of their respective places, and to order the collectors and receivers to pay the same, but as differences sometimes arise as to the choice of persons, you are not hereafter to issue any orders for payments in case of difference, except to those who bring you testimonials from persons to be nominated therefor. His Highness and Council referred it to you to examine articles exhibited against Leonard Carr, Alderman of Newcastle; you returned us a certificate dated 27 March 1657, wherein it did not appear that Mr. Carr had himself been heard. 10. His Highness and Council—being sensible of the Lord's hand, which for some months past has lain upon this land in the present visitation by sickness, which calls upon all men to repent and turn from their evil ways, and solemnly to humble themselves before the Lord, and seek his face—think fit to stir up all who fear the Lord to observe Wednesday, 30 September, as a day of fasting and humiliation, in all places in England and Wales, and in Berwick, not doubting that all who have a due sense of this token of God's displeasure will dutifully observe the same.

11.* The above Order to be printed, and sent with a letter to the sheriffs of the respective counties, to be by them dispersed.

12. On the contract, presented by Sir Chris. Pack, Mr. Att.-General, and the rest of the Committee of Parliament for farming the customs, made with Fras. - Sept. 10. Levant Company to Geo. Northleigh, Rich. Middleton, Jo. Ashby, and Jo. Frederick, merchants in Leghorn. By a letter of yours to our Governor and husband, we observe that you opposed the design of Capt. Ell's, who so perfidiously ran away with the Grand Seignior's goods, whereof his Highness took notice, and wrote to the Grand Duke and Mr. Longland to secure the master, ship, and goods, and restore them according to contract. We desire you to assist in this matter, and for any expense incurred, to draw a bill on our treasurers here. [Levant Papers, Vol. IV., p. 293.]

- Sept. 10. Levant Company to Sir Thos. Bendish, ambassador at Constantinople. Since ours of July 6, we wrote on Aug. 15, to accompany his Highness's letters to the Grand Seignior and Vizier, for restitution of the Resolution and her lading, taken by some of the Grand Seignior's own fleet at Tripoli, the success whereof we did not suspect, till we heard of the unhappy and rash action of Capt. Wm. Ell, who, having at Alexandria contracted for carrying the Grand Seignior's goods to Constantinople, ran away with them to Leghorn, to the great shame and scandal of the English, and disparagement of our ships, beside the evil consequences it may have on our trade.
His Highness has written to the Grand Duke of Tuscany to secure the ship and goods, and restore them, and to the Grand Seignior of the care we are taking to do him justice, and punish the offender.
You may intimate so much there, with any other arguments calculated to salve over this bad business. If complete satisfaction be given therein, we see no obstacle to the restitution of the Resolution, or reason for the detriment of our trade, which was never before in so languishing a condition as it now is, by reason of the swarms of Turkish and Spanish pirates pestering those seas, and the several ships we have lately lost by their means, viz., the Ann Percy and Eastland Merchant, and our fears of the Defence and Adventure; for remedy whereof, his Highness promised long since, and now renews his promise, to send some ships to guard the trade in the Straits.
This comes by the Negotiant, laden with goods for Smyrna and the Porte, on which there being much that has escaped payment of duties here, whereof we send particulars, we request you to order the levying of 2¼ dollars per cloth.

We thank you for your care of our affairs at Aleppo, signified in yours of 16 April, and for preventing the mischievous designs of the new Basha concerning custom on money and silk, and maintaining our right therein, according to former agreement.

Although you are so positive and short with us concerning the business of fruit and cute, yet we, who also have experience with Turkey, think we have reason to fear by lading thereof. But if we are mistaken, why may not the licence be for the body of the Company, whose advantage ought to be preferred before that of any particular man? we pray your opinion and answer.

His Highness wants some good Arabian horses, to furnish England with a breed of that kind, and we have written to Aleppo to supply us with 2 of that sort. We desire you to procure two at Constantinople, and send them to England, but let them be of the best kind. If a licence is necessary at Aleppo, pray furnish the consul therewith.

You may at your discretion either give or keep back this letter about Capt. Ell. [Levant Papers, Vol. IV., p. 294, 295.]

Levant Company to Spencer Bretton, consul at Smyrna. Since yours of 28 April and 5 June, we observe that our affairs have fallen into still worse plight by the injuries from the corsairs within the Straits, of whom Papuchin, with his squadron, has sunk the Ann Percy, taken the Eastland Merchant, and assaulted and pursued the Defence and Adventure, with what success we have not heard, but fear their loss; and now, somewhat too late, some ships of war are promised by his Highness to be sent to protect the trade.

We desire your continual care in collecting our dues, especially on strangers' goods, and that payable on fruit and cute, whether on the Mary Rose or former ships, without allowing its future exportation.

As the Negotiant, by which this comes, is laden with much cloth and other goods that have not paid dues here, we pray you see that $2\frac{1}{4}$ dollars per cloth be levied there. Also see that we suffer not either in loss of our duties, or in extravagant expense, which we presume you have kept in mind, in dealing with the four Bashes pretending to a charge on the Hunter. Levant Company to Hen. Riley, consul at Aleppo. We had no occasion to write to you till the receipt of yours of 3 March and 28 April, intimating the danger to our ships and trade by the corsairs of Spain and Tripoli, which we have since experienced by the loss of the Resolution to those of Tripoli, and of the Ann Percy and Eastland Merchant to those of Spain, who have also assaulted the Defence and Adventure. Although we have long solicited for a squadron of ships to remain thereabouts, we have hitherto been disappointed, but now expect some to be speedily sent to guard our trade.

We are sorry that you are encumbered with such an ill successor to the old Basha, and that he so soon begins to countenance pretences against our nation, as in the case of Ben. Alexander, which we hope you will find reason enough to prove a fallacious practice, especially as being a renewal of a former contrivement of the same person, the countenancing whereof must prove a dishonour to the State, and a discouragement to merchants and trade.

His Highness, on our late address to him, expressed a desire to be furnished with certain Arabian horses, which we have promised to try to procure. We pray you enquire after two of the best breed, and, if possible, send them to us in England; the ambassador will give you a licence. We have written to Constantinople for 2 more. Declaration by Don John of Austria, Lieut.-Governor of the Low Countries. It having been represented to us, on the part of the King of Great Britain, that last July he gave a commission to Capt. Lendall, an Englishman, with others of his good subjects, to go to England, to the dwellings of some of the most active rebels, to surprise them and bring them here; on which Lendall has succeeded in bringing over one of the principal, whom he keeps prisoner at Bruges; and this being done for the service of the King, in which the King "Monseigneur" takes particular interest;—we declare that we have the said prisoner at the King's disposition, to exchange him for other subjects kept prisoners by the rebels or otherwise, provided it be without prejudice to the King "Monseigneur." Endorsed by Nicholas. Copy of Don John's order concerning Mr. Crisp, taken by Capt. Lendall, and now His Majesty's prisoner, in his custody. 77. Statement that yesterday Thos. Wadeson, after many professions of kindness to Hen. Crisp, prisoner in Capt. Lendall's house, offered to help him to escape through the window, which Crisp refused. To-day at 7 a.m., Crisp being in bed, Cooksey gave him a paper from Wadeson, which he returned unread, supposing it to be about the same proposition. Then Crisp called for Capt. Lendall, and informed him of the proposal. Subscribed by Crisp as true. [$1\frac{1}{4}$ pages.]

78. Examination of Edw. Cooksey before Sec. Nicholas. Knows not the effect of the paper he delivered to Crisp, being unable to read. Knelt down to him to get the paper back, saying he was undone when Crisp spoke of acquainting Lendall with it, because Wadeson told him it concerned the prisoner's escape. Confesses that Wadeson told him that Crisp's servant was to get his master out of the window, and that Wadeson and Lieut. Rose were to convey him away. [$\frac{3}{4}$ page.]

79. "The original paper delivered this morning by Edw. Cooksey to Mr. Crisp, prisoner in Capt. Lendall's house" [written by Thos. Wadeson].

As we adventure losing the King's favour and our own ruin, we desire the 3 ensuing articles:—

1. That neither you nor your servant, Thos. Smith, discover us directly or indirectly, by word, sign, or writing, to any person.

2. That 1,500*l.* be paid to our use, in such manner as we shall assign, before you leave the coast of Flanders or Zealand.
3. That in 3 days after your arrival at Sluys, you procure 1,500 guilders, in part thereof, to be paid to Edw. Cooksey. [$\frac{1}{2}$ page, endorsed by Nicholas.]
- Sept. $\frac{1}{20}$. 80. Copy of the above. [$\frac{3}{4}$ page.]
- Sept. $\frac{1}{21}$. 81. Examination of Lieut. Rich. Rose before Nicholas. Acknowledges that Wadeson moved him to join in a plot to free Crisp, and to let his daughter hire a waggon, but denies that he consented to it. Knows not the contents of a paper which Wadeson wrote and sent to Crisp.
- A month ago, on some difference with Capt. Lendall, the captain forbade him to watch the prisoner. Conferred with Richards about his colonel, who lived in Kent, but not about Crisp. [1 page, endorsed by Nicholas.]
- Sept. $\frac{1}{21}$. 82. Thos. Wadeson to Sec. Nicholas. I know the advantage malice takes of an absent enemy, for so I shall be accounted. I am threatened with ruin, if not qualified by the fair constructions of a merciful Prince. Many persons had to be interested in a business of that nature. I wish those who were partakers on the former occasion could have shared this, which has more right in it than the former, in acquiring the imprisoned person, whose greatest crime was wealth.
- My motive was private revenge for the incivilities of a man who knows not how to bear that sail his Majesty has given him. His insolent behaviour and threatenings incited me to seek by subtlety what he told me I was not to expect
- My sorrow for fear of the King's indignation is my Cain-like plague. I fear I may be suspected of defrauding his Majesty of his just rights, which Lendall affirmed to me were his by the King's gift. Yet I had provided secretly to satisfy his Majesty's $\frac{1}{10}$ and $\frac{1}{15}$. I hope in my voluntary exile to serve him better than by remaining at Bruges. I appeal to your charity. [1 page.]
- Sept. $\frac{1}{21}$. 83. Thos. Wadeson to Phil. Curtis, Bruges. You will judge by the enclosed what to answer in my behalf to those who were in the former action, some of whom, by their clandestine practices, were the cause of this design. I am injured when less considerable men were to have double what I receive. Had this taken effect, all their wits would have gone mad to find out the author. Find out whether Cooksey were faulty in the discovery; I cannot believe it. I shall stay 2 days, and then go for Dort, Denmark, or Germany. [$\frac{1}{2}$ page.]
- Sept. 84. Note by Capt. R. Lendall. Richards told me that Sir Wm. Mann would give the Protector 1,000*l.* to make my composition, and 100*l.* a year to my children. [$\frac{1}{4}$ page, endorsed by Nicholas.]
- Sept. $\frac{1}{21}$. 85. Marie Boucherau [or Mdlle. de Poictevin] to Williamson, Angers. I send you the book which M. Amiraut brought after your departure. He came twice to the house, and was sorry not to bid you good bye. He and all here wish you a pleasant journey. [1 page, French.]

You presented me, and the Commissioners for Approbation have admitted me, to this rectory, where I have served a year without means, the vicarage being only 20 nobles. Till lately there was always a settled minister, to whom the Propagation Society allowed 80*l.*; but he left the place through its many disadvantages, and it must remain in gross ignorance unless you provide a remedy. There are 1,000 people, and no house fit for a minister, or to be hired. I beg a subsistence from 140*l.* or 160*l.* a year tithes of sequestered delinquents in the parish. Sept. 22. Hen. Crisp, for some Spanish prisoners, but these not being able to give the required security, my father applied to the King of Spain's governors there, who refused to intermeddle, though it were for all your Spanish prisoners, alleging that they had nothing to do in it, he being a prisoner to the late King's son's officers. Since the endeavouring the exchange, they use him worse than before, and fright him with speeches and letters, one of which is annexed. These frights, as he is 80 years old, may cause his sudden death. I beg leave to send over Lieut. Thos. Crisp, an officer in the United Provinces, to procure his sudden liberty, and to prevent the danger he is subject to by a company of desperate lawless persons. Lieut. Crisp will treat for ransoming my father with his own money till you find some way to reimburse me. [1 page.] Annexing,

96. I. Capt. Lendall to [Sir Nich. Crisp]. Your threats of Cromwell and proposals of exchange will not fright me to compliance, nor abate a penny of my agreement, and without a speedy performance, he must expect the same mercy from me as I should have received from your Protector, had I miscarried in my design. There will be no exchange of persons, but only of places; he will go from my house to the place of execution.

I am ashamed of such a knight and lady, who sacrifice their father, in his age and want, to a covetous desire to enjoy his possessions.

You show great care of his present being, for you forget not even peas and brown paper, but I have regard to his health, "and in respect of Nick's blindness, will suffer him to take none of his surfeit water, for fear you will rejoice more in the loss of his person than we shall lament in the want of his ransom."

Be not too confident. I may meet you again when you imagine yourself most secure. My pity for your father's infirmities and age will mitigate part of that rigour he is soon to expect. You would limit him to an allowance, but he has hitherto fed at his pleasure. If you let him starve, the sin of ingratitude will light on you. If you have any glimpse of respect for him who gave you being, let it appear by performing what he lies engaged for, and assisting for his speedy enlargement. Bruges, 8 Sept. 1657. [1 page.]

96. II. Capt. Thos. Sond's to Sir Nich. [Crisp]. I have been 2 days at Bruges with your father, but could not deliver those letters to him alone, they guarded him so strictly; when I delivered them and the surfeit water, they read the letters, and took the water away, lest it should be sent to poison him. When they saw there was no money, they were like madmen, and would not hear me speak. When I left, they took his man from him, made him close prisoner, and suffer no man to come near him. They swear that if you send not soon the 1,000l. you must pay yourself, they will cut him to pieces, for they care not for Cromwell, nor all the Dons in Spain. Pray send it, and then I hope to procure him greater liberty. They say they have ventured their lives for money, and they will have money or his life. The sooner you can persuade the Protector to allow the sending the money the better, for he is at 50s. a day charge. "I cannot write so bad as they do say." Bruges, 10 Sept. 1657. [1 page.]

Sept. 22. Order thereon that his Highness and Council do not think fit to permit the ransoming of Crisp, they intending no encouragement in attempts of like nature, by permitting money to be transported or employed to any such use : but that Sir John Reynolds, commander-in-chief of the English forces in France, send a trumpeter to Don John of Austria, to represent Mr. Crisp's ill-usage, and to say that if it be continued, the like may be expected towards Spanish subjects here, and the rather because an exchange has been offered but not accepted. 110. Commissioner Peter Pett to the Navy Commissioners. I have seen your letter to Capt. If you think such courses have a tendency to the good of the service, then go on and prosper, only let me intreat that some kind of warrant may be directed to the clerk of the check and storekeeper, for entering and keeping a check of workmen, and issuing provisions, lest the service, being of so great a consequence (as is pretended) should receive interruption. to be omitted for the present, and, as was directed touching pepper, to be granted by special Privy Seal.

(5.) To advise his Highness to pass the charter as thus amended.

6. Whereas by Privy Seal of 26 June 1656, it was recommended to his Highness and Council to hear the parties concerned in 2 of their orders,—one touching his Highness's regiment of foot at James's, and the officers and soldiers formerly under Col. Gervase Benson; the other on behalf of Major Wm. Hill, of Guildford,—and to settle the differences between them, the petitions of the 2 parties are referred to Strickland, Jones, and Skippon, to report.

7. Order on report of the Treasury Commissioners on the petition of the inhabitants of Hampsted Norris, co. Berks [see 3 March 1657], for a warrant to pay Anne, widow of John Lewin, their late minister, 75*l.* arrears of an augmentation of 50*l.* for 1½ years ending Michaelmas 1656, heretofore granted by the Commissioners for Sequestration, co. ——— to [Sec. Thurloe]. This is my 4th asking to come over, but I fear my letters do not reach you, as I have not heard from you for 6 months, whereas you promised I should hear every two months. It would be better if I wrote you direct. This is my fourth through Mr. Rowe.

King Charles here is still in the old condition of want, with little hope of amendment. The gaining of Mardike makes us hang down our heads. If the French had done what they might, they had gained more garrisons. Don John is at Nieuport, which cannot hold out long, and then Dunkirk is beleagued. Ormond lies at Ferne, the Duke of York near Dunkirk. The French have such a faction here that this place would not hold out 3 days, and then no forces could be shipped hence this winter, as we intended. It is thought the Duke of York will go into Dunkirk. King Charles is expected here daily, and it is thought Don John will winter here. [*1*½ pages, Flanders correspondence.]

2. John Arden to Wm. Smythson, mariner, Unicorn Alley, St. George's-in-the-Fields, Southwark. I was glad to hear of your safe arrival, as also of the great care you took for clearing Cornelius Vermote. I gave great confidence to your letter, as the Commissioners had sent an order to Capt. Hatsell at Plymouth to clear him; yet 8 prisoners came over by the last packet from Plymouth, but Vermote was not one of them, and has written his wife that he has never heard from you, nor anything about his freedom, at which I much wonder, seeing what you have written me. His wife made complaint to the Admiralty Judges here, who sent for me. I showed them your letter, and they have given me 14 days to receive an answer from you to this letter; if Vermote does not come home, they say I shall pay the money or go to prison. I therefore hope you will not let me suffer, considering what I have done for you. All your fellow prisoners are here still, and return you many thanks for your love remembered to them. I send this by George Bayley, as also a copy of my last letter sent to you to London. [1 page.]

COUNCIL. Day's Proceedings in his Highness's lodgings.

[The orders marked thus * were approved in person.]

1. Order on the President's report that several of the Committee of Parliament for improving the revenue of Customs and Excise have presented a contract they made with Esau Risby and Rob. Williams, of St. Andrew's, Holborn, for a lease of the excise and new impost on all ales, &c., brewed in cos. Gloucester and Somerset and their cities, for 3 years from 29 Sept., at 18,000*l.* a year,—to advise his Highness to confirm it.

2. Same order concerning a similar contract with John Chabenor, of Richmond, Surrey, and 5 others named, [see p. 113 supra] for Leeds, Halifax, and the West and North Riding of co. York, for 3 years from 25 March next, at 11,500*l.* a year.

3.* 3. The Admiralty Commissioners to advise with Capt. Pett and others about building 2 galleys for towing ships in and out of the Thames, and have them built at once.

4. Sir Arthur Heselrigge and ——— Heselrigge added to the Commissioners for ejecting scandalous Ministers.

5.* 4. The Admiralty Commissioners to order that Geo. Payler have a gratuity of 150*l.* for his services mentioned in an order of June 6, like the other Navy Commissioners, and that he have a like allowance to theirs.

6. The 600*l.* allowed by Privy Seal to Thos. Dunn for salary and other allowance to pass without fee.

7. Approval by the Protector of 3 orders 24 to 29 Sept. [I. 78, pp. 191–3.]

5. "Mr. Roper's description of the Antiquities of the Hall of Kedleston," [co. Derby] viz., the coats of arms in the several windows, brasses, arms, and inscriptions in the church, chiefly of the Curzon family. With particulars relating to the family. [6½ pages.]

Oct. 3.

6. Geo. Bland to Major Beake. The names of the 5 persons whose freedom I have beseeched are Julian Ruis and Francisco Oleda, of St. Lucar; Juan Lopes Villa Vicencio, of Maryport; Manuel Peralta, of Illescas; and Pedro Ramires, of Cadiz. The other is called Joseph Antonio Clue, son to a Fleming that lives in Seville. I hear he is freed already. I request none else, unless you think fit to put Mr. Estwick's friend, Manuel de Soca, into this number. For the 5 aforesaid, I will oblige myself that if there be any prisoners of yours in those parts of Spain, they shall procure their freedom so soon as they get home. I request that these prisoners with whose freedom I am favoured may be ordered by themselves in a particular warrant, and not in Col. Waters', so that they may know who has done them the good office, and their friends may know I have complied with my word. [1 page.]

7. Capt. Jacques Du Jardin to the Admiralty Commissioners. The enclosed addressed to me, for the keepers of the gaol in York

Castle, can have no favour or effect without your order, which is humbly entreated for us, enthralled in irons like felons, not suiting with soldiers, much less a captain, who no ways can impede mischances, and therefore supplicateth your Honours that he may have his irons taken off, and those of Antoine Garcia, and we shall pray for your beatitude

The keepers of the gaol in York Castle are Audry Bajock and John Thomlinson, placed here by the High Sheriff of Yorkshire, Thos. Harrison, who allows us but 2*d.* a day for bread since the abridging us of 4*d.* a day, 21 Sept. Since then many of my company have fallen sick, and will not be able long to survive with a twopenny loaf. I am confident your Honours will at least commiserate poor Christians, and shall have their prayers and mercy, showing mercy to miserable perishing men. [1 page.] Annering,

7. I. M. Gady, of Flanders, to [the keepers of York Castle]. Inasmuch as one of our captains of this town, Jaques du Jardin, was brought in prisoner 4 months since, and straightly put in irons with one of his men, which is a thing contrary to the law of war and the Admiralty of London,—[who] did promise to put them free from irons, yet notwithstanding I hear they are kept as formerly,—I earnestly desire your Honours to give order to do so, otherwise we cannot but use the English prisoners here after the same manner. To avoid such extremities on both sides, I again make my request for the said captain and man, that during their imprisonment, they may be well used, and if any men of your Honour's parts come to our hands here, upon your order you shall find me always to your service. Ostend, 28th Sept. 1657. [$\frac{3}{4}$ page.]

Hull.

8. Lieut. John Fugill to the Admiralty Commissioners. I received yours of the 26th ult. I will be very faithful in performing your desire, but through the sickness and absence of some officers in my captain's company, by order from the Governor of Hull, I am required to reside some 10 days longer there, and then to return to my charge at Clifford's Tower. I have meantime appointed my ensign, Wm. Stainforth, whom I left in charge, to observe your commands touching the payment of the Dunkirkers, with as much care as if I were there myself, and therefore whatever orders you may send to him in my absence will be punctually obeyed. [1 page.]

9. Hum. Robinson to Williamson. Your friends are anxious, not hearing of your welfare or receipt of the moneys. Dr. Conant is vice-chancellor, and formalities on foot again; Dr. Ward, master of Jesus. Drs. Owen and Goodwin laid aside their afternoon lectures. [$\frac{2}{3}$ page.]

Oct. 6.

10. Petition of Major Rob. Cobbet to the Protector and Privy Council. The Prize Office has no money to pay the 2,720*l.* due to me for clothing the soldiery sent to France under Sir John Reynolds. I furnished the clothes at a lower rate than any other, have to pay interest for the money, and am threatened with arrest by indigent tradesmen who, having trusted me with most of their estate, cannot continue their trade, and my creditors are the more clamorous because the entire clothing is taken out of my hands, so that I am obliged to abscond till I can pay them. I beg you to preserve me from ruin by speedy payment of the 2,720*l.* [$\frac{2}{3}$ page.]

Oct. 6. Reference thereon to Desborow and Mr. Secretary, to report. [I. 78, p. 196.]

Inhabitants of Jersey and Guernsey. Report 7 Aug. 1657, that the former reports from the referees on appeals be considered, and determination given thereon in the following cases:—

Symons against Fautart. No order [No. 8].

Joshua de Carteret, in right of his wife, eldest daughter of John and Jane Lefevre, appellant against John Dumaresq and Joshua Bennet, in right of their wives, touching 2 judgments of 25 Sept. 1655. Order on report that Phil. le Geyt and 5 others, of Jersey, named by the parties, examine and determine all differences between them concerning succession, moveables, inheritance, &c., according to the laws and customs of the island, obtaining particulars from Carteret, and sending for evidences, and then divide the said property according to the right of succession between Carteret in right of his wife Jane, Dumaresq of Rachel his wife, and Bennet of Judith his wife, all daughters of Lefevre. The referees are also to see them put in possession, awarding costs and damages to those who have suffered by unjust proceedings. In case they do not agree and are equally divided, they are to choose a native to be umpire, and their decision is to be considered final. [No. 11, pp. 198–201.]

Valentine Hill, slain at Wexford, Ireland, for continuance of the pension of 20*s.* a week, granted her by Parliament 20 June 1650, or a sum in lieu of it; was deceived for 1½ years by Hannah Hill, but after his Highness came from Worcester fight, obtained another order from the late Council of State in July 1653 for her pension and arrears, and had an order of 20 July 1655 for 53*l.* arrears, since which payment has been stopped;—order for a warrant for payment thereof weekly, without fees. Williams of St. Andrew's parish, Holborn, for a lease of the excise and new impost on ale, beer, perry, cider, mead, or metheglin, in the town and county of Poole, co. 11. Commissioner Peter Pett and Capt. Jno. Taylor to the Admiralty Commissioners. In July last you were pleased to imprest 1,000*l.* to the Governors of the Chest at Chatham, towards payment of wounded seamen, &c., whose pensions at the latter end of June last came to 2,500*l.* As we were sensible of the many urgent occasions you had at that time for money for carrying on those great and weighty services then in hand, yet were willing to comply with the necessities of those poor people as far as we could, we forbore troubling you at that time, and made payment of that money as far as it would go, seeing it paid away ourselves, both at London and here.

Now that sum did not discharge half the arrears of that time, and there is now another quarter due, besides many other things intervening, which necessitates us, though very unwillingly, to give you this trouble of importunity for money, lest the guilt of many of these poor creatures perishing (who have nothing else to live upon) should too much reflect upon us. We humbly beg that you will not take it ill our reminding you that nothing at any time has been given to help to defray this vast charge but money imprested, which is taken off as often as the Treasurer makes up his account with the Navy Committee, and we with him.

We have begged for the ruinous cathedral of Rochester to help us, and had bills drawn up to have been presented to Parliament, but Providence (it seems) afforded not that opportunity of offering them, by which means hitherto the thing has not been effected.

The land belonging to the Brethren of St. Bartholomew's, in and near Chatham, was originally for the maintenance of the poor, being of considerable value, and conveniently situated, partly on the Chest land, and partly on Sir Jno. Hawkins' Hospital, belonging to the Brethren, but having been given away (and as we fear upon a wrong information) it now lies, when the leases expire, which is near at hand, at the mercy of those Brethren, and meantime the poor pensioners are daily perishing for want of bread. Dr. Conant is chosen vice-chancellor at Oxford. Business transactions in books with M. Lerpinière. In France we had rather deal for money, looking at the benefit of exchange, but in Holland and Germany we had rather deal for books. 17. Petition of Jno. Read, late steward of the Worcester, to the Protector. Divers high crimes and misdemeanours have been committed by Robt. Nixon, late captain of that ship, and a time was appointed by the Navy Commissioners for hearing thereof, but it has now elapsed, they not being empowered to examine upon oath without order. Capt. Nixon is a powerful man, and has threatened both prosecutors and witnesses, but petitioner engages to prove upon oath that he and his accomplices have defrauded his Highness and the State of above 100,000*l.*, and that they ought to make restitution, and be criminally punished. Beseeches his Highness to refer the matter to the Admiralty Commissioners, to send for and examine Capt. Nixon and his accomplices, and order them to make satisfaction, or if they stand upon a legal trial, to refer the case (being for crimes and plunder done at sea) to the Admiralty Commissioners, who can arrest and cause them to put in bail to abide the judgment ; or else that they may be otherwise proceeded against as to justice shall appertain, so that vice may be suppressed, the scandal done by them removed, and by their punishment, an example set to deter others from doing the like. With reference thereon to the Admiralty Commissioners. [³/₄ page.] Annexing,

17. i. Petition of the same to the Admiralty and Navy Commissioners. Long details of charges against Capt. Nixon, for cruelty in beating him and putting him into irons, and for ordering the bread to be given to the swine. Also against John Ogle, the master, for misconduct in reference to the stowage of provisions on board, by which quantities of bread and cheese were spoiled.

On 18 Sept. 1656, the captain would have him tried for contempt of authority, and told all his officers, then sitting with him, that if they would not join with him in it, he would complain of them, and have them all turned out of their places ; but upon the trial, they found petitioner never said as alleged, this notwithstanding; as the captain could not get him whipped, he made him stand 2 hours at the capstan, stripped naked to the waist, with a whip hanging at his back, and both his arms tied to the bars; and the officers not assenting, he again ordered him to be put in irons for 2 hours, and by his written paper, read before the mainmast, proclaimed him a contemner of the authority of the Commonwealth, a sentence more grievous to him than death.

Capt. Nixon greatly added to his ill-conduct in the engagement at Santa Cruz on April 20, 1657, not only in leaving his lieutenant-boatswain and others on board a Spanish ship, which he sent them to fire, but in taking their boat away, and going with it, in person, to plunder other prize ships; he brought from thence a great store of copper, with thousands of ells of linen cloth and other rich commodities, and left his own ship unmanned by drawing the greater part of the men after him, who, seeing the captain gone, made haste to get out at ports after him, throwing their lighted matches so carefully about the gun deck, that 2 fell down the scuttle where the powder was handed out, greatly endangering the blowing up of the ship. The Spaniards seeing the men run away in such great numbers, and the frigate make such small resistance, prepared to sink her, and placed a shot underneath her bow port, another in her mainmast, shot her cable asunder, and drove her on the Spanish shore, amongst their flaming ships, pouring their shot amongst those left on board, who stood over the ship's side with stretched out arms, crying and calling for help for 2 or 3 hours together, and neither men nor boat on board to help themselves, so that had not the Bristol's boat brought them off, with the loss of 2 of their men, they had perished.

Yet the captain, supposing petitioner had been one of them, and seeing the Lieutenant and the rest in such distress, kneeled on the gun deck, and desired that God's curse and theirs might light on the head of him by whom the lieutenant and the rest perished; he also sorely beat petitioner, and falsely charged him with running from his quarter, and would have whipped him, had he not been told that he had been instrumental in saving the ship and men, as the 2 matches that fell down where the powder was were so dangerous that none below dared to venture to take them up, and that petitioner ran with some water in a lanthorn, and quenched them, and wetted his bed, and laid it under the scuttle, to prevent like dangers.

Prays an enquiry into the truth of the matters, and an order to the captain to make him satisfaction, agreeable to his many and great sufferings; also detention of the captain and master's pay until satisfaction has been made for the provisions. Also that the captain may be questioned for leaving his ship at the time of the engagement, and that the widows and orphans of those slain, may be provided for, out of the plunder or estate of the captain. [Large sheet, closely written.]

17. II. Reply by Capt. Robt. Nixon and Jno. Ogle to the above, in 9 allegations, entitled, "The accuser accused, or an answer to that false and scandalous information laid by Jno. Read, late steward of the Worcester frigate, against the captain and master of the said frigate." [1 sheet damaged.]
17. III. Note that Friday week is appointed to hear all the witnesses, and that the messenger is to summon them to attend, and that Read is to prove his statements respecting the beer, and the allowance of bread to the hogs. [1 page.]
17. IV. Deposition of Theophilus Sacheverell, purser of the Worcester, before Wm. Harrington, doctor of laws, and master in Chancery, that Capt. Robt. Nixon several times declared to him that he expected to have the 2 ounces of bread (usually allowed by the State for the pursers of their ships for draftage and waste) for the use of his hogs, and other creatures, and did, in downright terms, tell deponent that it was allowed for the accommodation of the captain, and that if he had any creatures on board the ship to expend it on, neither purser or steward should have the benefit of it, and that he and his servants during the voyage took up the said 2 ounces of bread for the use of his hogs, sheep, and other creatures, as his own right. 16 Oct. 1657. [1 page.]
17. V. Like deposition of Jno. Read before the same, to similar effect, and further that in the last voyage, he delivered to Capt. Nixon or his servants 15,000 lbs. of bread for his hogs, sheep, and other creatures. 10 Oct. 1657. [$\frac{2}{3}$ page.]
17. VI. Like deposition of Thos. Cornish, Jno. Mallard, Jno. Ogle, master, and Jno. Gardener, his mate, before the Navy Commissioners, denying that there was ever any waste or concealment of beer, wine, or bread, or that any other than mouldy bread and the dust thereof were ever given to the hogs and sheep, save at the commencement of the voyage, when the damaged could not be got at, and then at only 14 ounces to the pound, when but for that they must have starved. 2 Oct. 1657. Oct. 12. Clifford's Tower, York. 18. Ensign Wm. Stainforth to the Admiralty Commissioners. I never had the charge of the seamen prisoners, as you suppose, but the gaoler; they have all the Castle to themselves, while we have only the Tower, which is a distance off, and I never meddled with them except there was any opposition or attempt to escape. As to their complaint of being shortened of their allowance of 4d. a day, I find that since Cornet Merry left off paying them, he having no more money in hand, the High Sheriff directed the gaoler to pay them 2*d.*, till further order, which has since gone on, but having now received order from Lieut. Fugill, he will pay them 4*d.*; they expect that what is behind should also be paid. [1 page.]

Oct. 13. 19. Petition of Capt. Wm. Peverell to the Protector and Privy Council. Major-Gen. Lilburne's regiment of horse being ordered to march for Scotland, I am left behind to receive their pay, as they much want money to pay their quarters in their way thither. Oct. 14. 23. Petition of Lord Montgomery to the Protector. In obedience to your Act of favour to excepted persons in Scotland, I paid $\frac{1}{2}$ the fine laid on me, after exact survey of my estates, but I was on misinformation ordered to pay 1,400*l.* more for the estate of my father, who suffered 2 years' sequestration. I can have no benefit of his estate during his life or afterwards, except at his pleasure, yet the Council in Scotland cannot relieve me; I therefore beg your abatement of the 1,400*l.* [1 page.] Enclosing,

23. I. General Monk to the Protector. Lord Montgomery begs me to write on his behalf, 1,400*l.* being laid upon him more than was first intended, which he thinks very hard, and truly I think so, though it was carried by a majority of the Council. His father's family, both the Earl of Eglinton, and all his sons, have heretofore been very serviceable to the Parliament of England. His estate has been long sequestered, and they are in a hard condition. If you will abate the fine, you will oblige a family who have carried themselves well, and are much beloved amongst the most religious people in Scotland, and it will be looked on as a charitable act. Pray pardon my boldness herein. 28 Sept. 1657. Dalkeith. [1 page.]

Oct. 14. President Lawrence to the Lord President and Council in Scotland. Recapitulation of the above petition and letter. Council will not do anything till they know the grounds of imposing the additional fine, and whether you know of anything rendering Lord Montgomery incapable of favour. You are therefore to write us thereon, and especially about his having no interest in his father's estate. [I. 77, p. 989; I. 78, p. 214.]

3. The Treasury Commissioners to take effectual order that the 6,000*l.* ordered 4 August last, to the steward of the household, in full of the last moiety of 12,000*l.* by which it had exceeded the ordinary allowance, be paid out of the first moneys that come in from the Prize Office, any former order or warrant for paying other moneys before it notwithstanding.

COUNCIL. Day's Proceedings.

2. On petition of the bailiffs, aldermen, &c., of Great Yarmouth, for the merchants and fishermen,—that they have sustained great loss by the Act passed for their benefit, permitting transport of fish to other countries in foreign ships, on account the omission of a word in the Act, which says, “manned with any persons whatsoever,” instead of “manned with foreign persons,” as the former would bring a great burden on the merchants and fishermen, and destroy the fishery, instead of being to their benefit as intended:—Order that the Customs' Commissioners take entries of the fish laden by natives in native ships, and respite the duties on bond for their payment 10 February next.

3. Like order on a similar petition from the merchants, seamen, and fishermen of co. Cornwall, showing that the said Act enforces, by an accident in wording, that native fishermen pay the same duty on fish as foreigners.

5. The charges expended by the high sheriff of co. York in maintaining Spanish prisoners to be allowed him on his account in the Exchequer.

9. Order—on second reading of the Portuguese ambassador's paper of 23 September,—that consideration thereof be resumed next Tuesday, his Highness and Council to receive notice.

27. Rich. Browne to the Admiralty Commissioners. I hear from Capt. Hodges that 2 seamen were lately in this harbour, who ran away from the Providence on the coast of Spain, and came home as passengers in a small Bristol vessel; one of them had a rich cup supposed to be worth 2,000*l.*, and the other a number of diamonds and precious stones. They were made drunk, and the cup was bought by Mr. Bayley, master of the Lizard, and the business is huddled up, but Mr. White has a part in the cup; some of the stones were taken out and sent to Bristol, to ascertain their value. The other man had his diamonds and stones stolen out of his pocket, as is said, but I fear they are in some underhand custody. Having only been home two days, I have not been able to enquire further into the business, but will do so, and send an account, as also observe any commands you may send in the matter. [1 page.]

36. Sir Rich. Stayner to the Admiralty Commissioners. I have ordered the 35 French prisoners to be taken up to Deptford by Capt. Greenley, as also the prize, and have put the boys that were prisoners on shore, to get passage home. I have also appointed the Great President to convoy the Bordeaux ships, to call at Weymouth and Plymouth for others bound there, and to bring back any bound for England. The Assistance has gone by his Highness's order with Lady Vavasour for Dieppe, and is to bring back the Countess of Holland; the messenger just come from his Highness has been sent over to Mardike, as also a letter to the Vice-Admiral to send for the 2 vessels at Calais. The Convert has gone as convoy to the vessel with horses and carts from Dover to Mardike, and on her return, I will send to Portsmouth for that convoy, there being no other ship at present fit for that service.

The Vice-Admiral sent the Dartmouth to the Brill for a horse for his Highness, but she was put back by the easterly winds; she has again sailed. A vessel has been lost on the Goodwin. Hearing that there are 6 sail of Dunkirkers lying off Seine Head, I have sent out the Adventure and Expedition to look after them. No provisions have yet arrived. I beg your order as to 2 ketches attending upon the London and Dunbar, their contracts having expired. [2 pages.]

37. Saml. Windis to the Admiralty Commissioners. It is now 3 years since I expected satisfaction for my loss by the provisions, &c., that I was bound in a bond of 600*l.* to provide between 1 March 1652 and 1 Sept. 1653. The ships that should have taken them were upon the coast, but being unexpectedly sent away to other ports by Lord Fleetwood, I was constrained to pay the country for what I had contracted for, and was 220*l.* 15*s.* out of pocket upon that account. The gentlemen contractors are both engaged and willing to procure me an allowance from you, seeing I have had no employment for 3 years, and I have a wife and 6 children, whom I have removed 3 times between London and Liverpool, being desirous of planting myself in Ireland.

When I have applied to your honours, you have always said that you had not to do with me, but that the victuallers should make me an allowance; they would allow me if you would enable them. Capt. Alderne being sick and having since died, and other things intervening, have caused my continual attendance, to my ruin and impoverishment. I have had to borrow, and if I receive every penny, I shall be no gainer by it. I hope you will be moved by my sad condition, and make me expeditious despatch. [$\frac{3}{4}$ page.]

5.* Order on petition of the inhabitants of Lowestoft for their minister, who, on account of the losses of that place by fire, and loss of trade at sea consequent on the war, receives but 30*l.* a year, the inhabitants amounting to 300 families—that the Trustees for Maintenance of Ministers settle an augmentation of 50*l.* on him.

6. To advise his Highness to confirm the contract made by the Committee of Parliament for excise, &c., with Rob. Doughty of Aylsham, co. Norfolk, Thos. Garrett of Norwich, and Wm. Life of Downham, co. Norfolk, for two leases, one of the new impost on beer, &c., in Norwich and co. Norfolk, hundred of Lothingland and borough of Thetford, co. [I. 78, pp. 234-241.]

Oct. 25. 46. Capt. Robt. Clarke to the Admiralty Commissioners. George, Downs. General Blake did not deliver into my custody a parcel of gold, but the morning his corpse went out of the Downs, which was several days after his death, Capt. Robt. Blake said, “Father Clarke, here is Capt. Jefferies’ gold, being in all 18 pieces, great and little, which I must leave with you.” I refused to take it; but as he said it was by advice of Lord Montague, I received it in a money-bag, and put it in my chest. I was afterwards advised by my Lord to keep it safe, which I have endeavoured to do, but might have lost it, as a piece of stuff worth 14*l.* was stolen out of my chest in my cabin, which I have not yet heard of.

At my coming up with the Naseby, as my Lord did not desire to be troubled with the gold, and I was afraid to leave it on board the George in my absence, I took it with me to Chatham, and between me and another, we carried it about our middles to my own house, where I hope it is secure; if you send Mr. Powell, who is acquainted with my wife, he may receive it, and prevent the clamour of Capt. Jefferies and others. I send a poor man’s petition in behalf of one small piece of this gold, which I leave to you. I desire you will send Mr. Powell with an order to my wife to deliver the gold to him, and see it weighed, Capt. Jefferies having said there were about 30 pounds, and take his receipt. [$1\frac{1}{2}$ pages.]

Oct. 25. 47. John Harris to his mother, Elizabeth Harris, widow, Ostend Prison. St. Gregory’s, Norwich. I was bound for Holland, but on the way, was taken on 6 Sept., by a Dunkirk man-of-war, brought to Ostend, and put into prison, where I now am, in a sad condition, having neither money nor clothes. The surest way to clear me will be to obtain and send a seal from the Admiralty Court at London, and if cleared, I will return home and remain with you, having had sufficient warning, I hope you will send some money by some merchants you are acquainted with. [$\frac{3}{4}$ page.]

Oct. 26. 48. Wm. Cullen to Major-Gen. Kelsey, Somerset House, Strand. Dover. You may remember that when I was mayor of Dover in 1652, the Council of State and the Navy Commissioners, by several orders and warrants, commended to me the charge of sick and wounded seamen landed at Dover. I provided them all necessaries, and 5 separate accounts were paid to Wm. Player, and remitted to me. You presented my 6th account in 1653 to the Admiralty Commissioners, and the Navy Commissioners ordered me to draw bills for the sum being 997*l.* 4*s.* 6*d.*, which was paid at last to Mr. Player by the Commissioners for Prize Goods, by way of imprest. I beg this imprest may be discharged, or I may hereafter be called upon to account for and repay it. Noted that he is to state who has his last account. [$\frac{2}{3}$ page.] Annexing,

49. Vice-Admiral Wm. Goodson to the Admiralty Commissioners. I will endeavour to answer your desires in every respect at Mardike fort, when Capt. Sparling arrives. I hope, now the horses and carts are come, business will be performed with more speed. After long demur, the General has taken the 2 demy cannon and 2 brass culverins on shore, and resolves to take the mortar piece to-morrow; 5 vessels with palisadoes have arrived, but none are yet on shore. I hope to dispatch the vessels which came from the Tower to-morrow; another has just arrived with hay. The enemy, since their storm, are very calm, and we hear little of them. [The orders marked thus * were approved in person.]

2. The letters from Mr. Meadows, Envoy to the King of Denmark, and the papers containing his answers on his first audience, read.

3. Maj.-Gen. Jephson's letter concerning his audience by the King of Sweden read.

4. Order on Gen. Reynolds' letter from Mardike, that the Mardike Committee consider the necessaries he asks, and report.

5. Lord Deputy, Pickering, Desborow, and Mr. Secretary, to attend his Highness, and ascertain what reply to send to Maj.-Gen. Jephson by the next post.

6. The Trustees for Maintenance of Ministers to settle an augmentation of 40*l.* on the minister of Guilsborough, co. Northampton.

His Highness present.

7.* Order on the petition of Rich. Hutchinson, Navy Treasurer, and the state of the case certified by a Committee of Council, that on account of the increase of charge and trouble of the Treasurer, he be allowed 1,500*l.* a year for himself and his instruments, and 200*l.* on every 100,000*l.* above 700,000*l.* issued by him in a year.

50. *Statement alluded to. In 1650, when Sir Hen. Vane laid down the treasurership, Parliament assigned the management of the office to the then Commissioners of the Navy. The average issues being then 200,000*l.*, for which Vane had received 3*d.* in the pound, or 2,500*l.* a year, they offered Hutchinson 1,000*l.*, which he accepted provided the action did not exceed 200,000*l., and was appointed 30 December 1650.

In 1652, when Maj.-Gen. Harrison laid down his office in the Tower, his duties were transferred to Hutchinson, who thus had to issue 460,000l., and expected an increase of salary.

In 1652, the Navy Committee was vacated, and the Admiralty Commissioners appointed to manage all affairs. The issues then being 600,000l., he petitioned them, and Parliament through them, for increase of salary, but that very week Parliament was dissolved.

In 1653 he addressed the Council of State, who added 1,000l. a year to his salary, the charge of action that year being 1,400,000l. as they alleged, and allowed him 2,500l. for past losses and expenses.

In 1654 they made his salary 1,500l., and 100l. for every 100,000l. issued above 700,000l. in the year; and a like order was passed for 1655. Signed by Col. E. Montague and Phil. Jones. [1 $\frac{3}{4}$ pages.]

16.* Order on report from the Committee on the petition of Rich. Bifeild, minister of Long Ditton, co. Surrey, and other inhabitants,—stating that in 1641 and 1642, money was collected to rebuild the church, which has remained in Sir Thos. Evelyn's hands ever since, and that the church has fallen down meanwhile,—that Fras. Drake, Shadrack Brice, Maj. Dawbyn, and Obadiah Weeks enquire what has become of the money and the old building materials, and report what had best be done.

Oct. 27.
Plymouth.

53. Capt. Hen. Hatsell to the Admiralty Commissioners. I will observe your order as to the exchange of prisoners. The 21 Biscaneers were set at liberty yesterday. I send a list of the remainder. We have great difficulty in keeping them, having such a weak guard. Last night being stormy and dark, Capt. Jordan with 6 or 7 more attempted to escape, but were prevented. I have put Jordan in irons, and caused more irons to be made, whereby the most unruly may be hampered, as the guard being small, they are encouraged to be disorderly. This is the second time Jordan has attempted escape. Shall I send him and Martin Brice to the common gaol, and charge the keeper to keep irons upon them, as they may then be more secure?

It is very stormy weather, but I hope the frigates abroad are well; there are several in the harbour ready to take the first opportunity to go out. [1 page.] Annexing, the import of fins and oil from Holland, contrary to the Act for increase of shipping, &c., and by the intrusion of others into Bell Sound and Horn Sound, contrary to the Navy Commissioners' order of 1645. [Oct. 29.] 59. Petition of Phil. Tandy, Commissioner in the Act for Public Debts, to the Protector. I have long been a subject of sad affliction, having lost all except my salary, which is not appointed by the Act. I beg payment for the past year, and leave to discontinue this service, and enter on another more serviceable to you, as the case now stands both with the Act, and the state of things. With special reference to Council, 21 March 1655-6. [1 page.] Annexing,

59. I. Phil. Tandy to Jessop. I have worn out my afflictions patiently, but last night I was uncivilly arrested to the terror of my family. I am liberated, but dare not leave my house. I beg you to favour my 2 petitions. I know the public wants money, but their furnishing me will not lessen their plenty. I am 120l. damaged for want of payment since Oct. 1654. I stay in town only to pay my debts, and not have the reproach of a knave following my ministry, and then shall take my family into Ireland, and trouble the public no more, only seeing that the service is not obstructed by my absence. Strickland and Jones are privy to my aims, and promise help, and will, I hope, call for my petitions. 25 Sept. 1657. [1 page.]

59. II. Petition of Tandy to his Highness and Council, for payment from the fee-farm rents, if there be not enough at Drury House to pay him. [$\frac{2}{3}$ page.]

59. III. Like petition to Council for a reward for a year's service as Commissioner in the Act for Accounts, in which he has had much toil and no salary. Has been 2 years in great affliction, hoped to satisfy himself in some peculiar way, and so has forborne prosecution, but could not hold out as long as he expected. Will begin his future world with a little land in Ireland. [1 page.]

Oct. 29. 60. Petition of Phil. Tandy, registrar accountant, to Council. In spite of my last order, I have only received 20l., and have been damaged 80l. these 2 years for want of payment, being brought into such disrepute that I could not borrow 10l. were I to starve. I am now obliged to leave my family and go to Ireland to sell and pledge the few goods I have there to pay my insupportable debts. I beg

1657. settlement of my salary out of the Exchequer till next Parliament, when I hope to be in a capacity no more to be troublesome. [1 page.]
- Oct. 29. Reference thereon to Pickering, Lord Deputy, and Wolsley, to report. [I. 77, p. 247.]
- Oct. 29. 61. Petition of Capt. Garret Tison to the Protector. Thanks for your order of 29 Sept. last, freeing my tobacco of seizure and duties, according to a privilege granted by Council 29 May 1656, and General Wm. Brayne's permit thereon [see Colonial Cal. 3 Sept. 1657] yet these notwithstanding, Cowell and company, on 21 Oct. have by force, with swords and guns, seized the keys of my warehouse where the tobacco lay, and detain it to my utter ruin. I beg relief. [$\frac{1}{2}$ page.]

 6. To advise his Highness to order a present of 1,000*l.* to Lord Nieupoort, ambassador from the United Provinces, in some fitting form.
 9. Approval of the augmentation advised by the Trustees for Maintenance of Ministers of 20*l.* a year to the minister of Guilsborow, co. Northampton; also a further augmentation of 20*l.* to Wm. Holmes, the present minister, advised. Approved by the Protector 30 October.

Dover Frigate.

62. Vice-Adm. Goodson to the Admiralty Commissioners. I will make further enquiry as to the extraordinary want of cables when weather permits, but our stations are remote, and the wind here has blown so hard westerly that I cannot give you such an account as I would. On the arrival of the Elizabeth, 3 days since, I was forced to take a week's provisions out of her, we having then but one day's left. I have formerly advised Gen. Montague of the want of snaphance muskets and blunderbusses in the small vessels here proportioned for this service, being too small, and, through extraordinary duty, half have been unfixed; also they want 40 or 50 men of their number, for the supply whereof I desire you will order Sir Rich. Stayner, or some other, to impress and send them over; there is also a very great want of candles and wood by the pursers.

Sir John Reynolds, a little before the storming of the fort, made a demand of me for seamen to man the wooden fort, pretending that it was that which was resolved on by Gen. Montague, and that Ambassador Lockhart had informed his Highness thereof, with which he was well satisfied. I disputed not the case, but accordingly sent out of this ship 22 men, and the rest out of other ships, which made up the number of 30. The men begin to murmur at being kept constantly upon shore duty. I desire your pleasure therein.

The 6 vessels with pallisadoes arrived, but the works are at a stand for want of deals. Notwithstanding the good provisions here, men fall sick, there being now 200 of them going for Calais. I understand from Sir Rich. Stayner that Capt. Sparling has not yet returned from Dieppe, and that there is great fear of his safety. [1 $\frac{1}{4}$ pages.]

Oct. 30.
Essex, Downs.

63. Sir Rich. Stayner to the Admiralty Commissioners. Several ships have been forced into the Downs by the bad weather, and the Adventure had like to have been cast away, having lost two of her cables and an anchor.

I hear the Countess of Holland is sick at Dieppe.

There is great want of men in the fleet, and the ships from Chatham want 100; if you would appoint a man to keep an exact muster, it would turn to good account. There is also great want of victuals, the ships with them not having arrived from Harwich. I called the several commanders together to ascertain their wants, and how long they have been off the ground, and will send an account, but I have been forced to supply some that stood in most need. I have sent the 4 Spaniards who were in the George up to London, in the Hind ketch, and directed her commander to apply to you for order as to their disposal, and I have also appointed the Eaglet ketch to carry up Lord Montague's goods and his servants. I enclose intelligence gained by the Convert in examinations of the men on the ship taken by her. [1½ pages.] Annexing,

63. I. Examination of Hendrick Hendrickson, master of the St. Peter of Venice, by Judge-Advocate Fowler, on board the Essex. Went in the Whale Fish as a passenger to Cadiz, and there took charge of the Pomerlander, with which he went to Venice, and took charge of the St. Peter, of 200 tons, 16 guns, and 26 men. Sailed to various places with different loadings, under an agreement to receive 3,700 pieces of 8 for freight.

Received a lading of wine on the account of Wm. and Jno. Vanderfort, of Castello Trano, for Amsterdam, as also 168 frails of raisins at Malaga, and has 10,000 ox horns on his own account, but is not aware of any other cargo in her belonging to any of his men. Has a power to sell the vessel wherever he could find a purchaser from Conde Pietro [de Dring] at Buchari, near the Venetian territory of Sclavonia, such power being given him to show she was a free vessel. Has disbursed 2,500 guilders on her upon his own account.

Also examinations of Menego Bowler, a Venetian, and Nicholas de Zant, a Greek, seamen on board, to similar effect, and that all the men who sailed in her were Flemings, save one Englishman, three Frenchmen, one Italian, and one Greek. [2 pages.]

63. II. Examination of Jno. Martin, of Blackwall, mariner on board, to similar effect, and that Conde Pietro de Dring, Governor and Prince of Buchari, built her, and gave power to the master to sell her. [2 pages.]
63. III. Note of intelligence, 26 October, 1657, on board the Convert frigate. About 3 months since, the Venetian fleet of 14 sail met 20 Turkish men-of-war, with a Dutch merchant ship the Turks had forced into their service, near the mouth of the river at Constantinople, when the Venetian General Moncenigo burnt 5 of their galleys, and took all the rest, but returned the Flemish vessel to the skipper. The 2 forts called Great and Little Sida, which the Venetians took on shore before, hinder both the Turks' ships and galleys from going up the river. The Grand Turk has sent to the Duke of Venice desiring peace, but he refuses it. [½ page.]

- Oct. 31. 64. Capt. Jno. Stoakes to [the Admiralty Commissioners]. My Rainbow, last to you was on 8 August, from before Cadiz, enclosing several Bay of Wyers. intercepted letters, and intimating the Spaniard's preparation of a fleet in a few days, which was confirmed from divers good hands and papers of credit, as also from our own daily discoveries made at the Cararoes, where we painly discover several of their ships at a time on the carcen. Their whole fleet designed to be set forth will be 42 sail, whereof 18 galleons of the King's, 6 belonging to the merchants, and the others Dunkirk frigates; these they call their Naples fleet, all under the conduct of Don Juan Chevare.

We continued with the fleet at anchor before Cadiz until 17 September, when by reason of the various and uncertain weather, and the want which we were like to have of liquor, it was judged by a council of war most convenient to go for Lisbon, leaving 7 sail to ply before Cadiz, commanded by the captain of the Hampshire,—being a party able to encounter any number that may go in or out from that port, and to answer other services—which accordingly I did, and, with the rest of the fleet, gained this place the 29th of the same.

On the 8th inst. the Providence and Falcon flyboat arrived from Madeira, with 400 pipes of beverage wine, and the Diamond from Capt. Storey, with intelligence that the Spaniard continues refitting his fleet, and gives out that he will be suddenly at sea; I have therefore taken the best course I can for enabling our speedy departure hence. The fitting of the Lamport and Plymouth has put me to some charge, and more trouble. They were in no little hazard of sinking in our way from Cadiz hither, but are now in a good condition, and I hope may be able to continue at sea 3 or 4 months, and others have been repaired and cleaned. The arrival of the Phoenix and Guinea, with the 5 victuallers, on the 23rd instant, gave no small encouragement to our seamen, whose condition was very bad, being at short allowance, and what food we had being very bad, especially that which came last from Portsmouth, and which was judged to be the refuse of the ships at home. I hope within 14 days to be at sea with the whole fleet, but the weather has been lately very tempestuous, with much rain.

Our chiefest want is cables, sails, or canvas, of which I presume we shall have a seasonable supply. I will observe your orders as to such prize goods as shall be sent home in any of his Highness's ships, having already given the like in charge to the Purser-General, from whom you will receive a further account. At my coming into Cascaes Road, I met Gen. Updam, with 16 sail of ships of war, who stood off to sea, seeming not willing to speak with me. At the same time the Dutch ambassador was at Lisbon, demanding, upon some pretence of wrong, the Brazil, and the surrender of divers places in the East Indies, and very great sums of money, to which the King's answer was, that for delivering up Brazil, or any part of his Indies, he would not do it; besides, he knew his subjects would not become obedient to them; but if money would satisfy, he would capitulate, or refer himself to the Protector of England or the King of France, to allow whatever either of them should judge meet. This reply being dissatisfactory, the Dutch ambassador immediately departed to Gen. Updam, who by this time had joined to him De Ruyter, with 16 more sail, plying before this port to intercept the Brazil fleet, which design of theirs the Lord was pleased to make of little effect, and which I cannot let pass without great observation, and esteem in some measure as a mercy to our nation.

The weather has been very bad, with southerly winds, which have driven the fleet northward, and brought some of the Portugal fleet strangely near to this place, with hopes that the remainder, dispersed by foul weather, will also safely arrive. The Dutch have met divers of our merchant ships, which they visit with much respect and civility; however, I shall be careful to watch them, being apt to believe that their main intentions are to strengthen the Spaniard and his interest.

This comes by the Centurion, which I have sent home, as altogether incapable of keeping the sea or doing service until she is repaired. [3 pages, damaged.]

65. Samuel Windis to the Navy Commissioners. Necessity enforces my departure from London, after long detention in expectation of a resolve as to what should be allotted to me for the loss of 220*l.* 15*s.* through a contract made between me and the late company of victuallers to supply 400 men's victuals for 6 months, which were not taken, Lord Fleetwood sending the ships so ordered to other ports for a supply. Yet I was obliged to make good my contract. On a second contract with them, I made an abatement, but 3 years have since expired, and I have expended more than the whole amount by delay, loss of time, and separation from my wife and 6 children at Liverpool, and have also borrowed 20*l.* of Mr. Bancks. I beg that my case may be considered and determined, so that Mr. Bancks and I may have our due. [1 page.]

66. Sir Rich. Stayner to the Admiralty Commissioners. The victuals have arrived from Harwich, which I have distributed, as also the stores from the Tower. Particulars of the distribution. The Assistance has gone to Dieppe for the Countess of Holland. Two hoys have arrived from Mardike with a mortar piece and other stores, which I have ordered Capt. Nixon to convoy up the river to the Tower.

I made strict enquiry about the ship brought in by the Convert, and called all the commanders together to confer thereon; and as they judged the ship and her goods were clear, I have given order to her master to fit himself as he pleases; but until I hear from you, I will not let him go out of command, unless to Dover to get masts.

As there are several ships richly laden bound to Seine Head, and many also lie there for a convoy, and there are 4 at Cowes bound home, I will order the Colchester for that service. The commanders being all on board yesterday, I spoke to them of their demands for stores, when they affirmed they were all required for present service, and they will give in their demands again under their own hands.

I have cleared the White Roach of all her provisions, and when the purser of the London has indented, will send an account of each ship's provisions, and the time they have been off the ground.

I will call a council of war to try the master of the Half Moon, as soon as the Judge-Advocate has taken the examinations. The Adventure continuing at sea, I have not been able to try her corporal for killing a man, but when she comes in, she shall leave him behind for that purpose. Vice-Admiral Goodson desires that if the Assistance does not speedily come in, some other ship may be appointed. [2 $\frac{2}{3}$ pages.]

71. Petition of John Warr, on behalf of the late regiment of Col. Philip Jones, to the Protector. Being in prosecution of the business of the arrears of the regiment at Worcester House, in July and August 1650, I purchased for them of the Trustees tenements and lands in Pembroke, co. Pembroke, value 40*l.* a year, and a house in Carmarthen value 4*l.* a year, the said lands, &c., being returned by surveyors as part of the late King's lands, and so enjoyed several years by the said regiment, and some of them resold by the officers. Of late, John Richards, of Carmarthen, has made forth his title to the said house, paying for it but 20*s.* a year, and is put in possession by order of the Committee for removing Obstructions; and the City of London has evidenced their title to the said tenements in Pembroke under a fee-farm rent, which is likewise bought by the University of Oxford, so that the regiment not only loses the benefit of the purchase, but is compelled to answer all the profits it has received from the date of purchase, and to take but their debentures again, which are of little use unless your Highness gives relief.

The sum which the regiment is reprized for the tenement in Carmarthen being valued at 3*l.* a year, besides the yearly rent of 20*s.*, amounts to 54*l.*, and that for the tenement and lands in Pembroke is 640*l.*, besides 280*l.* profits for 7 years, for which we are to account to the City of London and University of Oxford.

I beg that the said sums of 54*l.*, 640*l.*, and 280*l.*—974*l.* in the whole—may be accepted as so much ready money by the Trustees, for sale of fee-farm rents, on certificate by the Contractors for sale of the lands of the late King, that these sums are reprized, so that I, bringing in to them Debentures or Public Faith Bills, amounting to 974*l.*, may receive one or more doubled bills amounting to 1,948*l.*, of the same date as those formerly paid in and now reprized, viz., 1650, and interest for one moiety of the time since, as if the same had been doubled with ready money; and I beg that the said doubled bills may be allowed by the Treasurers and Trustees, on the purchase of such fee-farm rents as I shall discover to be yet unsold, for the benefit of the regiment. My husband died 29 August last, being with me at Eltham, Kent, where he had hired a house, that I might be near my friends at my lying-in, he being liberated by the deputy-governor, on parole to return if you disapproved. On 19 August you ordered him back in 10 days, but being sick and weak, he died, leaving me with 3 children, and his estate under a fine of 7,000*l.*, so that I dare not administer to the little that is left, and therefore I cannot have the 15*l.* arrears due of his allowance. I beg you to obtain the repeal of the Act which destroys the fatherless and the widow, and to continue the allowance. [⅔ page.]

He was kept drunk for 48 hours, and when he came to himself, alleged they had been stolen from his pocket, but it was soon hushed up. I believe that those who played rob stopped his mouth with money. 82. Vice-Admiral Goodson to the Admiralty Commissioners. I sent your letter touching the brass guns, mortar piece, and shells, to General Reynolds on shore, and desired an answer, but he merely sent the enclosed [missing] directed to Mr. Secretary. I will tell the pursers how to make provision for wood and candles, but their complaint is the want of money, which they have not yet received, neither are there any peas sent, which has caused many complaints; the men in the small vessels dwelling near the water have great need of something to warm them within and without, and the want of it causes many to fall sick. When I am relieved, I will supply the small vessels with arms as you order.

The ships on these stations have not met with any disaster in the late foul weather, but it will be very dangerous for the smallest of the 6th rate, and especially those without forecastles, to be out this winter, as well as to others who are not under the Splinter.

By virtue of intelligence that the enemy would make a second attempt upon the forts, and come forth with their fire-ships, we have been put to double duty for some time. The palisadoes are almost all on shore, and there is little else to land except some hay and oats, but we have not room to put them in; there are divers vessels with coals which they will now fall to work upon.

There is an exceeding want of deals for the enlargement of quarters, for want of which men and horse suffer much. A recruit of 500 men have come from Calais, but there are 200 of the old men sick in the fort. A wherry about the bigness of a Gravesend boat, and fitted to row with 4 or 6 oars, would be very useful to lie as a sentinel boat within the Splinter near Dunkirk, for discovering any of their fire-ships coming out, or any other attempt, and by its small draught of water and nimbleness, be able to relieve itself from the enemies' boats at all times; and if fitted with a good tilt, and 4 large fowling pieces, such as were formerly used in the Fens or New England, that will carry a bullet of a $\frac{1}{4}$ of a lb., and the barrel of 8 feet, they would be of great service upon the enemy.

Since my former letter, we have been brought to bread and water, but weather favouring, I yesterday took 7 days' provisions out of the Cherriton. [2 pages.] Annexing, the channel with the Holland fleet, under Admiral Lord Updam, for Lisbon, where they demanded certain of the chief places in Brazil, and satisfaction for injuries and damages received from the Portuguese, which the State of Portugal, not according unto the treaty, broke off.

The French Ambassador was likewise there, and in the King's name demanded 4 millions as a portion for the Princess of Portugal, in point of the said King's marriage with the said Princess. The Holland Ambassador, after the rupture of the treaty, returned home $\frac{3}{13}$ of last month, and examinant received a letter from Lord Don Hove de Witt, one of the Commanders employed thither by the States of Holland, to take all Portuguese where he could meet with them. The Holland fleet rode under Cascaes during the treaty, and afterwards lay off the rock. De Ruyter joined with Lord Updam, and together they made 31 or 32 sail of men-of-war.

Four or five days after the treaty was broken off, a violent storm came on, which separated him from the fleet, so that he cannot state whether the fleet was dispersed. The English fleet of 16 or 17 sail came into Cascaes Road 3 or 4 days before the treaty broke off, 3 or 4 at a time, as also the Admiral and Vice-Admiral, but not together; his own vessel being leaky and out of provisions, he is returning to Holland to refit and recruit. 84. Capt. Hen. Hatsell to the Admiralty Commissioners. This morning I received an express from Capt. Allgate at Torbay, who, coming for Plymouth, met a Portuguese ship with sugar, &c., the chief officer of which informed him she was a prize of a man-of-war belonging to Rotterdam; but as he had no copy of his commander's commission, or order for conducting the ship, according to the custom of the sea, Capt. Allgate seized her, and as the wind was contrary for his coming with her to Plymouth, he went with her to Torbay. I send you Capt. Allgate's letter to me, as to the examinations which he took. I have advised him not to clear the ship until order comes, either from his Highness, Council, or yourselves, and if he has an opportunity of wind, to bring her here or send her to Dartmouth; it may be done without just exception, for as she has neither a commission nor order of him that took her, it may more rationally be alleged by Capt. Allgate that she was taken by an Ostender, Dunkirker, or other of the King of Spain's subjects, rather than by a Dutch man-of-war, for the one is publicly known to be enemy to the Portuguese, and the others not. I desire your pleasure concerning her. The Dutch have probably met with and taken many of the Portuguese Brazil fleet, and will repair home with them the first opportunity of wind; it may be that some of them may be separated by storms, as this ship was, and may be forced into some of the western ports by weather. As his Highness should have knowledge of these proceedings, I will give Sec. Thurloe some account thereof by this post. [1 page.] Enclosing,

84. I. Capt. Abr. Allgate to Capt. Hen. Hatsell. I have been plying on my station with Capt. Taylor, but meeting with foul weather, and Capt. Taylor's ship not being fit to keep at sea, they bore for Falmouth, and I was forced into Torbay, where I found Capt. Heaton, but heard nothing of Capt. Taylor, nor have seen him since. Afterwards I set sail with Capt. Heaton, but meeting with turbulent weather, and having several men very sick and nigh unto death, I advised with Capt. Heaton, who directed me for Plymouth. I left him off the Lizard, but again meeting with extreme winds and thick weather, we were forced to make for Torbay, and have been detained there ever since. I shall hasten for Plymouth and put those sick men on shore for their relief and refreshment, and then proceed to my former station. The Oxford, Torbay, 6 November 1657. [$\frac{2}{3}$ page.]

84. II. Capt. Abr. Allgate to Capt. Hen. Hatsell. Making for Plymouth, I met a vessel off the Stert belonging to Port-a-Port, in Portugal, called the St. Jago, from Fernambuco, in Brazil, which was taken off the Rock of Lisbon by John Everson, commander of the Delft of Rotterdam, in the service of the States of Holland, and he put his lieutenant on board to take charge of her and her goods. She is of 140 tons, and has 220 chests of sugar, with some tobacco and hides.

The lieutenant asserts that soon after they had taken possession, the man-of-war chased another vessel, but foul weather coming on, they were separated, by reason whereof they were forced away without either commission, order, or any writing from his commander. This occasioning some suspicion, and the wind being contrary for Plymouth, and the vessel having a jury mainmast, and their provisions nearly spent, I thought good to secure them here. I desire speedy order for her disposal, as she has only one cable to ride by. I send some examinations herein. The examinants also allege that the day they were taken, there were 27 Holland men-of-war about the Rock, their commander-in-chief being Yonker Jacob, of Westmartin, in a ship of 74 guns, and Admiral Ruyter being also there with several ships of good force. 85. Capt. Robt. Vessey to the Admiralty Commissioners. Being ordered by Capt. Hatsell to convoy six merchant ships for France, when in sight of Belle Isle with my convoy, I gave chase to a sail, and on surprising her, found it was the St. Peter, a Spanish man-of-war, with 87 men and 11 guns, newly built and in good condition, belonging to Passage; she carried 17 guns and 93 men. Having taken her without the loss of a man and only 3 wounded, though with some damage to my sails, I returned to my convoy with my prize.

The next morning I met a small vessel, formerly belonging to Rosco in France, partly laden with wine and nuts, from Bordeaux, but she having formerly been taken by the Biscaneers, they had spoiled most of her lading. After rescuing her and putting men on board, a violent storm arose, so that no sails could hold; but after several days, I got into St. Martin's Road with my man-of-war prize and convoys, save a small pink and the other prize, which were separated from us in the storm, and I fear have been wrecked, as many others have suffered in these parts.

I have landed all my prisoners here, save the captain and 4 others, and am going to sea again with my prize, and hope before long to have another. There are 40 or 50 English sail in the ports hereabouts, that will be laden and meet together in this road within 12 days. [$\frac{3}{4}$ page.]

1. Embree to survey the wall of Chelsea College where it is broken down, and order its repair.

2. Mr. Secretary's information of several examinations taken, which show that Chas. Guifford and Wm. Astley have received commissions from Charles Stuart for command of troops of horse, on a design to levy war here against his Highness, referred to the Counsel learned, to bring the said men to trial, and Mr. Secretary, Jones, Desborow, Pickering, Wolsley, and Mulgrave to consult with them about the same.

3. The augmentation of 30*l.* recommended to the Trustees for Maintenance of Ministers for John Allin, minister of Rye, co. Sussex, confirmed, and to be in addition to the augmentation of 40*l.* formerly settled on the place by Parliament, because it is a large market town and corporation, and is charged with 42*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* for first fruits, and 4*l.* 5*s.* 4*d.* for tenths. Approved 16 December. [I. 78, pp. 256, 257.]

as they may meet persons who will refuse payment of excise, uncivilly treat them, and question their authority, in contempt of the Acts and Ordinances of Parliament. [$\frac{1}{2}$ page.]

Nov. 10. Order thereon for the letter requested, as was lately ordered for others in like case. With the form of letter. [I. 78, pp. 264, 842.]

[Nov. 10.] 87. Remonstrance of the Quakers to Council. We are a suffering people under the cruelty of men in authority, who, disregarding the laws of God and of the land, imprison and release us at pleasure, and inflict cruel things on our brethren, the people of God. We beg to present the state of several to you, as the chief Council of the nation, that you may be stirred up to relieve the oppressed, many being imprisoned who can have no freedom save by loss of life:—

Capt. Thos. Curtis, woollen draper of Reading, returning from the West with John Martindale of Plymouth, they were taken in bed by a constable and 10 men, who, with reviling language, carried them to 2 commissioners of peace, who consigned them to prison as vagrants, though accused of no evil, and sent them to Exeter Gaol, 2 June 1657. They were kept in bonds during the sessions, but brought up at the assize before Chief Justice Nicholas, and no charge was brought against them; yet because they would not take off their hats, he fined them 40*l.* each, and sent them back to prison, where they remain.

Ellen Roberts, a sickly maid, coming to a Friends' meeting, cruelly used, left some nights without straw to lie on, her friends not allowed to visit her, and she cruelly whipped in Exeter bridewell, where she remains.

Another woman has suffered there 7 months' hard labour and many stripes.

Others have been committed to prison but liberated, some stocked and whipped for going 2 or 3 miles to meeting, heavy yokes and unjust burdens being laid on the innocent. The chief agents have been John Beare, Wm. Bastard, John Hale, the Mayor of Exeter, and others.

Two have lately been committed at Bury, Suffolk, for not attending their parish church. Signed by Ger. Roberts and 4 others. [2 pages.]

Nov. 10. Order thereon in Council that the clerk of assize for co. Devon certify what fines were imposed on Curtis and Martindale, and for what cause, and if for none other than alleged, his Highness to be advised to pardon the fines. Also that letters be written to the respective justices of peace, to know the grounds of commitment of Ellen Roberts and the other persons named. [I. 78, pp. 259, 260.]

Nov. 10. 88. [President Lawrence] to the Justices of Peace. His Highness and Council have received several addresses on behalf of Quakers imprisoned for not pulling off their hats, and for not finding sureties for good behaviour. Some have long lain in prison, and are not likely to get out by conformity. Though his Highness and Council are far from countenancing their mistaken principles or practices, especially in disturbing godly ministers, and affronting magistrates, yet as they mostly proceed rather from a spirit of error than a malicious opposition to authority, they are to be pitied, and dealt with as persons under a strong delusion, who will rather suffer and perish than do anything contrary to their ungrounded and corrupt principles. Therefore his Highness and Council recommend them to your prudence, to discharge such as are in prison in your county (though discountenancing their miscarriages), so that their lives may be preserved, divers having died in prison. From tenderness to them, you are, by causing their hats to be pulled off, to prevent their running into contempt by not giving respect to magistrates, as those whose miscarriages arise from defect of understanding should not be treated too severely. [Draft. 1½ pages.]

Nov. 10. President Lawrence to Arthur Upton, Wm. Fry, John Wollacombe, and other justices of peace for co. Devon. Council supposing that in some of the cases named in a paper presented to them, there may be some pressure, wish to know whether there was any other ground for the proceedings than their going to a meeting on the Lord's Day, or not yielding due respect to persons in authority. Council therefore sends you the persons, and requests you to inquire into the cases from those concerned in the commitment mentioned, and to certify. [I. 78, pp. 840, 841.]

Nov. 10. COUNCIL. Day's Proceedings.

1. Order referring to the Attorney-General the draft of a deed from Lord Maynard, for sale of lands in co. Northampton, worth 1,500*l.*, to his Highness and Gen. John Desborow, for the use of Banaster and William Maynard, his infant sons, in lieu of woods in the Forest of Dean, which they claimed by patents, &c., lately made void by the Act for mitigation of the rigour of the Forest Laws in the said forest, and for preservation of its timber; Lord Maynard to receive 1,500*l.* on passing the deed, and the Attorney-General so to prepare the deed that it may secure the title of the infants.

3. Order that Lieut.-Col. Edm. Ashton—detained prisoner in Newgate, as a person dangerous to the State, by an order of 4 November 1656,—be liberated, unless the Court of Sessions, sitting at the Old Bailey, see cause for his further detention. Approved 10 December.

4. Order on petition of John Morris, for his daughter Mary, widow of Isaac Dury, late soldier of the State in Col. Sanders' regiment of horse, who died in the service of Scotland, leaving his wife—who on his death became distracted—and one child, that the Savoy and Ely House Committee allow her a pension of 20*s.* a month, if it be according to their rules, and the petition be found true.

7. Desborow, Montague, Jones, Mr. Secretary, Wolsley, Strickland, and Lisle to ascertain what should be done for repair of Deal Castle, and report.

8. Whereas on 4 November it was ordered that beside the 15,600*l.* a month—the residue of 35,000*l.* a month for assessments—there be paid for the forces in England 167,734*l.* 10*s.* 2*d.* yearly out of the [farms of] excise of beer, &c., it is now ordered that ½ the said excise be paid to the navy, and the other $\frac{1}{2}$ towards satisfying the money for the said forces. Approved 16 December.

9. Order on petition of Sir Miles Hobart, K.B., with a certificate from Rich. Hill, his attorney in Chancery, that Hen. Horedsnell have leave to remain in England three months longer, on security to the clerks of Council, but that he depart then, and do not return without license from his Highness and Council.

11. Sir Wm. Balfour's petition referred to Fiennes, Lord Deputy, Lisle, Mulgrave, Jones, Wolsley, and Mr. Secretary, to report.

12. Order that, as of the 600 belts contracted for for the forces in Flanders, 300 are ready, Maj.-Gen. Bourne take them on board a fitting vessel, and transport them to the forces at Mardike, with such beds and rugs as are ready.

13. The judges of the Admiralty Court to issue a commission to Edw. Sedgwick to be judge, John Lisle registrar, and Wm. Havercombe, marshal of the Vice-Admiralty of Hampshire and the Isle of Wight. Approved 14 November.

14. On report from the Committee on the petition of Wm. Stuart, late quartermaster-general in Scotland—that by an order of 6 August 1646, certain lands of Sir Geo. Ratcliffe were given to Henry Stuart and James Gray, till from the rents they should have received 1,900*l.* recompense for an unjust sentence passed against them in the Star Chamber Court in Ireland (sic), viz., 1,500*l.* to Henry Stuart and 400*l.* to James Gray; and that by an order of 21 July 1648, on the death of Henry Stuart, his son was empowered to receive the rest of the 1,500*l.*, and the rents were received accordingly till 1651, whereby, with 40*l.* which his Highness ordered to be paid to his sister, they have received 874*l.* 7*s.* 0*d.*, but 1,025*l.* 16*s.* 0*d.* remains unpaid, because the lands were sequestered in 1651, on information that the petitioner and James Gray took arms against the State, under the Duke of Hamilton, and were afterwards put up and sold, whereas the petitioners did their utmost to oppose the said rebellion, for which they were punished and imprisoned by the late King of Scots, so that they could not claim the said lands within the times limited;—order that his Highness be advised to recommend Stuart's case to Parliament for redress, and meanwhile to order him a pension of 20*s.* a week till other provision be made.

18. Order, on information of Muons, lieutenant to Maj. Cambridge's troop in Col. Twistleton's regiment, concerning ill usage received from Phillips, a constable about Smithfield, and his watch, by John Linford and John Allen, two of the same troop, whilst walking the streets according to orders—that Desborow, Lord Deputy, Skippon, Strickland, and Jones send for the constable and others concerned, examine them, and report.

19. The same Committee to consider the petition of John Eston, jun., of Bedford, learn the truth therein, and report.

20. The Treasury Commissioners to consider the defects of Westminster Hall and the Court of Requests, and what the repairs may amount to, how the charge may be borne, and how far the Warden of the Fleet is obliged in that behalf, to send for the late Warden, and learn why he does not do what belongs to him therein, and to report.

21. On petition of Martin Noel, that in 1655, the Excise Commissioners contracted with him for a farm of the excise of linen, drapery, and silk for a year from 24 June 1655, and he began to collect the same, having given security for due performance, but in December it was decided that the Excise Commissioners should reassume direction thereof, and he was ordered to render an account of the profits he received for the term of his management, which he did, and paid over all profits except a balance of 5*l.* 13*s.* 11 $\frac{3}{4}$ d. on the old account, which he is ready to pay; but he has nevertheless not received his discharge at law, to the damage of himself and sureties;—order that the Commissioners for Appeals and Regulation of Excise examine if he has discharged all obligations, and if this be so, on his paying the above balance, discharge him from all obligations therein, and deliver his bonds to be cancelled. Approved 23 November.

22. The Commissioners of peace for co. York not having, according to an order of 28 August 1656, paid in 108*l.* 15*s.* 4*d.* received by their order out of the Earl of Devon's estate, they are to take order for its immediate payment, and shall then receive an Exchequer tally for it.

23. Order that, as nothing has been done upon the letter on the petition of Rob. Tutchin [see 23 July 1657], in the time of the last Mayor of Newport, Isle of Wight, and the present Mayor has been unduly sworn, and the proceedings discourage godliness and reformation—Desborow, Sydenham, Lisle, Mulgrave, Ficnnes, Wolsley, Lord-Deputy, and Mr. Secretary inquire into the case, and report.

24. To advise confirmation under the Great Seal of the contract made by the Excise Commissioners with Rich. Best, of Westminster, for 2 leases of excise, &c., on beer, &c., one in the city and county of Exeter and co. Devon, for half a year from 29 September, at 5,500*l.*, and the other lease in the same places and co. Cornwall for 3 years from 25 March next, at 14,000*l.* a year. [I. 78, p. 256–268.]

President Lawrence to Sir Thos. Evelyn. His Highness and Council have heard that Mr. Byfield of Long Ditton, a godly and learned preacher, has daily received great interruption from Leonard Hudson, whom you have entertained as your household chaplain, who, being prelatival, gathers a concourse of people of like views, and uses the words of the Book of Common Prayer, which is forbidden by Parliament to be used either in public or private, and invades Mr. Byfield's rights by burials, &c., in Long and Thames Ditton. As Hudson is encouraged by your countenancing of him, which hinders the work of reformation, and is done in flat opposition thereto, his Highness and Council signify their resentment of these miscarriages, and signify that they expect you to remove him from being your chaplain, and thereby remove the scandal given to others. - Nov. 11. Note of a petition referred to the Committee for Petitions of Sir Fras. Wortley, for a special warrant to the Attorney-General to prepare his pardon for the death of Edw. Bayliff, executed during the late war at Wortley garrison, for which he stands indicted in Yorkshire, as the Attorney-General refuses to prepare it "without an immediate warrant, expressing the particular case." Report that the case is this—that on the rendition of Ashby de la Zouch, co. Leicester, 28 Feb. 1646, it was agreed that Col.-Gen. Hastings, his officers, soldiers, and all the garrison should have liberty to lay down their arms, and protections to live at home, submitting to Parliament, and that Sir Rich. Skeffington and Col. Needham, then governor of Leicester, might compound for those whose names were in a list given in with the articles, in which list Wortley ought to have been, but was omitted because he had then no estate under sequestration; but that at the quarter sessions 12 Oct. 1647 for York, he was indicted for abetting the execution of Bayliff, 1 May 1644. That he brought testimonies that he was in the said garrison at its surrender, whereon he had an order 2 Sept. 1654, since confirmed by Parliament, that he should have the benefit of the articles, if the Commissioners for relief on articles of war found him included therein, but his Highness suspended that Court before the case was decided. But as it appears that he was within the said articles, he should have indemnity as fully as though he were comprised in the said list and should have his pardon accordingly. Hayles, a profane person, from being parish registrar, from which office the former mayor had ejected him with the consent of divers magistrates, and to put John Lidger in his place, according to order of the said magistrates; which letter Read obstinately refuses to obey, and refuses to allow it to be read in church on March 1, as was ordered, and he and Thos. Juning, present mayor, revile the Commissioners appointed to raise maintenance for the minister at Newport—order that Read and Juning appear before Council on Tuesday week.

16. On certificate of Rich. Lee,—who was to ascertain how much money from the estate of the husband of Averen Key, widow, received whilst it was under sequestration, remains in the hands of collectors, that 40*l.* so remains—the Treasury Commissioners are to order its payment into the Treasury.

17. The petition of Elizabeth, widow and executrix of Wm. Richardson, lieutenant of Lord-Deputy Fleetwood's troop, and then of Maj.-Gen. 18. The Treasury Commissioners representing that inconvenience has arisen as to the method of the accounts in the Exchequer, through the paying of warrants under the Privy Seal and Council's orders, with non obstantes of former warrants, and also through charging payments on particular branches of the revenue, and therefore they have been obliged in some cases to vary from the said warrants and orders—resolved to advise a warrant empowering them to pay sums charged on the revenue out of such branches as they think fit, customs, excise, and monthly assessments excepted. Earl of Bristol to Sec. Nicholas. I think with you, that there are matters of great consideration in the French diurnal, and the extract of Mr. Roper's which you sent. I am as angry as you can be at the Spaniard's omitting such declarations as would much advantage them and us, but there is no altering their method. 95. Rich. Browne to the Admiralty Commissioners. Though I have obtained little information by examination about the jewels, I am persuaded the truth respecting them and the cup will come to light if any person in this country has fingered them. There is a little jealousy of the surgeon of the Lizard, that he gave Mitchell some strange potion when the Lizard came into port, and it is certain the poor man was almost out of his wits for some hours. Geo. Hall, who sold the cup, is still lurking about, and Mr. White has promised to give security for his appearance. 97. Capt. Jno. Taylor to the Navy Commissioners. I formerly attended you and the Admiralty Commissioners as to my going to Portsmouth to superintend the works of the new dock, and stated how unfit I was to give direction about it, or to foresee and prevent the several accidents incident to the carrying on such an affair until it be perfected; after moving what I might about my return to Chatham, Col. Clerke told me I might go, and if there were cause, they would send for me. Notwithstanding what I then said, you now direct me to prepare to go to Portsmouth about the dock, and I again say that I am not skilled for such an employment, as although I have seen divers repairs about docks, yet I never saw a foundation laid, and shall make myself ridiculous if I should go down and seem to be somebody, whereas if I meet with a difficulty, I can do no more than others that are there. If it were my own cost and charge, I would do as I formerly did with Mr. Tippetts, viz., look out for the most knowing man or men in England, and think it my wisdom and profit to engage them in it, and not trust to my own judgment or skill: but if I have a peremptory command to leave my engagements here and to go down and do my best, I must and will submit, so that life, credit, and estate be not too much hazarded.

Major Bourne knows what a service he has engaged me in, in causing his Highness to lay his commands upon me to send men and materials to Mardike, which were so strict and quick that, after I had received a full warrant and direction under his Highness's own hand, and after an engagement to him in writing that I would do my utmost therein, I lost no time, but have sent over 96 carpenters and others, laden 5 vessels (hoys and barges) with pallisadoes, timber, deals, &c., and out of my own money, paid the men impressed and bought their victuals, and I entered into a contract with them to victual them while they were there, and see that they were paid so much wages on their return; and now the victualling is almost out, I am to revictual them again. Yesterday 4 of our vessels returned, bringing a letter of thanks from the Governor to me, one from the engineer, and many from Mr. Ewell, the chief carpenter, desiring a further supply of 4,000 pallisadoes, 5,000 feet of oak ribbon, and 4,000 buntings, besides other things to a great value, and his Highness's order, and the pressing arguments in the said letters, have caused me to commence lading 2 vessels more with the stores mentioned. I have received 500*l.* imprest, but have sent away to the value of 982*l.*, which must be paid, and the things now demanded will arise to a large sum. I have written Sec. Thurloe to acquaint his Highness and the Council with these demands and their cost, and to request a further imprest. This is my day and night trouble, that I am involved me in the necessity of answering public expectation, and providing and sending subsistence for the mèn I sent over, so that you may easily judge how I can or may answer desires about going to Portsmouth. The Commissioner sees how impossible it is for me to leave what is upon me at this time; scarce a day but a letter comes to or from Mardike to be answered, and there are sawyers and many other men at work on pallisadoes and other things to send away.

I have laid all this before you, but if you yet require me, as your letter mentions, then please to remember that still I am under his Highness's commands to make the provisions of men, &c., as aforesaid, and am now to get masons and more carpenters to be sent next week to Mardike. Therefore please to take such order that his Highness may, under his own hand, disengage me from what he has entrusted me with about the said business, and also that the debts which I have contracted in this service may be paid, and all conditions and contracts which I have made may be performed, and my account adjusted and allowed. This being done, though I put my body to never so much hazard, if it may be thought a service to the public, I shall willingly go and do my utmost. As things stand, it is judged by some that if the whole dock were engaged in it, it is not fit or requisite that I should go at this time, in regard of the engagements about Mardike.

P.S.—I have considered who may be fit to act in such a business, but there is no principal man about Chatham now Mr. Ewell is at Mardike. He is the best headpiece in this land for such foundation work, and pitching of wharves to be immoveable, but it will be a month ere he can come away, as he gives the Governor and officers great content, and therefore I know not whom to pitch upon better than Mr. Blundell, who made the docks at Chatham, and dwells in Shoreditch or the Minorities; though he be ancient, yet he is of good judgment. Next him is Mr. Shish, every way of a good judgment as myself, and abler of body; and I think, but have not spoke with him, that Mr. Aldridge has good skill. We have an extraordinary civil man, and another good workman or two that have been long experienced in such a business, but they demand 20s. a week a-piece for day's works, besides the night. If I may further the service in procuring any of these, I shall be ready. I cannot tell how it stands with the work, and therefore cannot say anything about advising for the work to stay 2 or 3 months till days spring, for they can work but a few hours per day. [2 pages.]

When you left Cologne, I and many other of your servants remained there till the following November, and meanwhile Mr. Armorer, equerry, laid in provisions for your stable. Then coming to Bruges, Armorer persuaded me to forbear my place for a time, on pretence of arrears due from you to him for stable provisions and of stores laid in by him and not spent. I was thus kept out of my place till last April, when you, removing to Brussels, but expecting to return in a few days, desired me to remain at Bruges. Since your now return,

99. Admiralty Judges at Dunkirk to the Admiralty Commissioners. In June last, Cornelius Tetart and Bernard Charles, two of our captains, took an English frigate called the Parrot, commanded by Capt. Thos. Haeren, and carried her to St. Sebastian's, with 38 seamen, who were all set at liberty, on obligation of the captain that, at his arrival in England, he would procure the release of a like number of our prisoners there. As the owners of these captains are interested in the frigate of Capt. Jno. Morette, lately taken by some English men-of-war, and her company of 36 men are prisoners in Chelsea College, they desire their release by virtue of the said obligation; and in regard their demand is grounded upon so much reason and equity, and nothing more just than that contracts of such a nature should be accomplished, we are moved to advertise you thereof, and desire it may take effect by the release of Capt. Jno. Morette and his company, and we will promise to do the like. [1 page, French.]

101. Capt. Phil. Holland to the Admiralty Commissioners. I have arrived from Gluckstadt, with 11 laden merchant ships bound to Newcastle and London, and will sail for the Thames the first opportunity. I heard from the merchants at Hamburg that Maj.-Gen. Jephson, attended with Col. Pinchback, and some 10 or 11 servants, arrived there the 6th inst. from Wismar, where the King of Sweden resides. He entertained him with a great deal of gallantry, both on board his fleet as also at his court, and sent one of his gentlemen of the ceremonies to attend him while he resided at Hamburg, but would not be persuaded, although often interceded with by the Major-General, to give the Holland Ambassadors an audience. The Danish fleet has since gone from before Wismar.

Having been off the ground 6 months, I desire orders as to cleaning and revictualling. [1 page.]

102. Capt. Thos. Sparling to the Admiralty Commissioners. I understand you have given order for completing the late proportion of victuals appointed for my squadron, as also for their necessary money; but I remember that you once ordered a supply for General Blake, for want of which—notwithstanding he confined his squadron to short allowance for several days—he was at length forced to quit his station, by which he lost such an opportunity as the like has never yet presented. There is often a large interim between your orders and their execution, especially when business is laid on pursers' shoulders. Here are several ships whose provisions are so near expended that, except some speedy supply present, they will be forced to quit their station, and there are few that do not want something. I enclose a note of the nature and quality of each

They are daily expecting a second attempt upon the fort; I have been daily solicited by the General to come in with the Assistance, for the better encouraging and strengthening our own forces, and discouraging and daunting the enemy, but deferred doing so until to-day, in expectation of receiving your pleasure therein, as also for want of an anchor and cable to secure the ship. To-day I went in, and shall remain if you approve; if not, I will out again as soon as I have an anchor and cable sent. I have promised the General 4 guns to place upon the new works, until those ordered for the fort arrive. There is an extraordinary mortality in the fort, 16 dying weekly, and our own men fall down very fast in the ship. [1 page.]

Plymouth.

104. Capt. Hen. Hatsell to the Admiralty Commissioners. I send the examination of the lieutenant and Portuguese boatswain of the Brazil ship, laden with sugar, tobacco, and hides, taken by Capt. Abraham Allgate; most of the lading is claimed by Christ. Warren, living near Plymouth, who lately resided in Portugal, and has a servant in Brazil who laded much sugar in the Portuguese fleet there. As he has entered his claim in the Admiralty Court, London, I know not what to advise the Sub-commissioners of Prize Goods here, who demanded the ship when she was brought in, and still have her, touching her delivery up to the Dutch, so I beg you to ask Mr. Secretary, and give me your orders. If they are to deliver her back to the Dutch, I am of opinion that the Englishmen may go without their goods.

There are 4 Dutch men-of-war who took the part of the Portuguese Brazil fleet when the above ship was taken by us, that have put into Plymouth by contrary winds; I suppose their captains will be with me to-day about her. I will keep up a fair correspondence with them until further instructed. for a hoy or a ketch to bring them over, there being neither hoy nor ketch to attend on the squadron, though the Vice-Admiral has both. There is one ketch which does no other service than attend upon the General, under which pretence he frees himself from all other duties, except lying in Dover 5 or 6 days together, and will not call in the Downs, going or coming, or do any other service commanded by me, except once in 8 days take a letter in his way to Dover. I shall now have no occasion to trouble him, as every 2 or 3 days a frigate must quit the station for want of victuals, by whom I shall have opportunities enough; but at that rate, both the squadron and occasion of writing will soon dissolve together. Every commander complains of his men being sick, by reason of which every ship wants many men to complete the number allowed them; this ship by sickness and death wants nearly 20. I desire, in case the squadron be continued at Mardike after their present victuals are out, that you will order a recruit of 60 men to be sent, as also a hoy or a ketch to attend the whole squadron. The General is much dissatisfied with such long delays in sending his guns and deal boards; had he not sent to Dover for 3,000 deals upon his own credit, the carpenters might have lain still for want of work, and his men might have all died for want of shelter, as too many have done already. He was appointed Receiver of Revenues in cos. Being on a journey, and having sustained much charge for a second, he was suddenly taken from his labour, and she left with a small livelihood and seven children. No allowance was made to her husband for the time of his service.

Since his death, a charge of 118*l.* has been exhibited against her by the now auditor to the Trustees for sale of Crown Lands, which account was delivered by her husband to Mr. Leigh, then auditor, who not long after died, whereby she is disabled from defending herself against the charge. Believes there is no such arrear, because no account has been demanded for 5 or 6 years. Her husband always passed his account with the first. Begs permission to discharge it with bills of Public Faith for money lent to the State by him, and to have her account passed speedily. With reference thereon, signed by the Protector, to Council. Levant Company to Roger Middleton, consul at the Morea. We doubt not you know already that we have resolved to reduce the whole trade of the Morea,—viz., all exports from England thither, and all commodities of the Morea imported into England,—to a joint stock, after the present year, with express prohibition of all private trade, on penalty of 20 per cent.

Take notice hereof, and accept no commissions from private persons after receiving this, but conform to this settlement. [Levant Papers, Vol. IV., p. 298.]

119. Hum. Robinson to Williamson. I am glad to have yours from Lyons. Business transactions. On 3 Dec. Mr. Lamplugh will preach at Cambridge; feast stewards, Lord Howard, Sir Thos. Dacres, &c. Many of our gentry are here, as Sir Wilfrid Lawson and Mr. Dalston.

There is a report that we have been worsted in a contest with the Hollanders on the coast of Portugal, they being too numerous. If this be true, it may beget a falling out in the world. [3 page.]

The Nonsuch,
Weymouth
Road.

120. Capt. Jno. Woolters to the Admiralty Commissioners. Lord Opdam, the Holland general, came into the road last night with 8 sail, seven being men-of-war. This morning they put aboard their flags, but when our colours were flying, they struck and saluted me. I sent a boat on board for intelligence, when the General sent word that he came from the coast of Portugal 5 weeks since, with 30 sail, in company whereof were 14 Portugal ships of the Brazil fleet, taken by them, and that he missed the grand fleet, it being scattered with the rest of his own fleet by the foul weather, but that the English fleet was in Cascaes Road. We have had such bad weather since coming in that the vessels which are ready cannot get out. [$\frac{3}{4}$ page.]

Nov. 21. 121. George Pley to the Navy Commissioners. I hope that any future bills I draw on you will be punctually met, or I cannot find money to carry on the work. Lord Opdam arrived in the Road last night, with 7 sail and other frigates from Lisbon. I have had a conference with one of the commanders, and heard that they, with De Ruyter, making 30 sail, before leaving Lisbon, denounced open war against Portugal, and engaged with their Brazil fleet of 80 sail off the Rock, but it being night, they only took 16, the rest getting in; that a very rich ship from the East Indies narrowly escaped, and that they left their prizes in the Channel with De Ruyter, who is supposed to have put into Plymouth or Falmouth. They did not forget their duty when they came in, as the admiral and all the rest took down their colours, and saluted the Nonsuch in good order twice over. They also report that Capt. Stoakes arrived at Lisbon with our fleet of 16 sail, having left 6 sail off Cadiz and the Strait's mouth; and that the Spanish fleet is in such great want of men and money that it is thought it will greatly obstruct their designs. [1 page.]

Nov. 21. 122. George Pley to Col. Clarke. To the same effect. [1 page.]

Nov. 21. 123. Petition of Anne, wife of Rich. Swayne, butcher, of Shrewsbury, to the Protector. To like effect with that of September 1656. [see Calendar, p. 118] Has 10 small children, one 15 weeks old, left in the country. Has come up 140 miles on purpose to sell the land. The rent is so small that she spends as much as she receives in coming up to London for it. With order that the land is to be bought, and Council are to agree for the purchase. [1 page.]

Nov. 22. 124. Prince Rupert to the King. I have obeyed to the utmost your commands about Col. Bamfield; you will receive particulars from your factor, Sir Wm. Curtius, and from the Elector of Mayence. No impartial merchants being present, we can do no more, and could not have done so much had not Bamfield consented to a submission in this imperial town. I will obey any further commands you may send me in these parts. [1 page, holograph.]

Nov. 23. Report by R. Kingdon and Thos. Hayter, on an order of the Admiralty Commissioners of 10 August 1657. We present Major John Wade's account of the iron works under his charge in the Forest of Dean. We further offer—

1. That the vouchers for his account up to 2 August 1656, being uncertain and disordered, and the papers now brought not clearing up matters, we believe that 249*l.* 7*s.* 10*d.*, formerly allowed him as paid to workmen, is again brought to his credit, so we have made him debtor for it on this year's account; this, he says, corresponds to the money he has in hand.

2. The papers and vouchers for the year ending 15 September 1657 are also incomplete, and there should be some provision to put affairs in a more regular way.
3. The return of cast iron, as compared with the pig iron in stock, left too much supposed to be in stock, account not being taken of the waste, viz., 6 tons in every 20.
4. We find that the waste is really 7 tons in 20, owing to the badness of the coal used.
5. We did not take Dan. Furzer's accounts, as he was occupied in getting his frigate down the river. [1 page, in a parchment book.] Prefixing,

125. Capt. Hen. Hatsell to the Admiralty Commissioners. The Portugal ship brought in by the Oxford has been arrested by the Portuguese ambassador, on an Admiralty warrant, in the name of the Brazil Company of Portugal. I am told Mr. Warren intends to do the like on his own account. There is a great quantity of sugar in the Portuguese ship, which was put into Dartmouth, belonging to English merchants living in London, who will probably arrest her also. Another Dutch man-of-war came in yesterday, with a Portuguese Brazil prize, so that there are 6 Dutch men-of-war and 4 prizes at Plymouth, and two others are gone to sea. I do not think the Francis and Mary can be receiving her lading of brandy at Nantes, as she only left Plymouth last Tuesday, under convoy of Capt. Potter. I have repaired the damage done to the Fagons, and she has sailed to her station. Particulars of the collision between her and the Dutch ship. [1½ pages.]

126. Sir Rich. Stayner to the Admiralty Commissioners. Particulars of the victualling and sailing of ships, and the wants of several who have lost their cables, anchors, and boats in the storm. There is great difficulty in getting pilots for the vessels designed for Mardike. A Hollander and Hamburger, richly laden, have been forced on shore, and many in the Downs driven out. [Nov. 24.] 127, 128. Reasons offered by Lady Thomasine Crisp to Council, for release of her aged father-in-law, Hen. Crisp, from miserable captivity at Bruges in Flanders. [See 27 Aug. and 22 Sept. 1657.]

1. John Crisp's request [see 27 Oct. 1657] was without my privity, and I fear, if granted, would obstruct my father's enlargement, and prejudice his estate.
2. My affection to the State is such that I had rather his release were effected by exchange, and the ransom spent in the State's service, but all attempts having proved hopeless, I beg leave to ransom him, on account of his deplorable condition, and the ruin of his estate.

It is objected that the ransom will strengthen the enemy, but it will be divided into so many small shares that it will not be considerable, and my father might else be forced to settle his estate in the hands of secret enemies.

It is objected that giving ransoms encourages further attempts that way, but there are not many persons of quality likely to become a prey, and the country will now be in a posture of defence against such desperate attempts. He being no prisoner of war, but seized by a company of desperate villains in hope of money, if not satisfied, they may take his life. If they fail to make a good market by him, it will not take them off their trade. Parliament ransoms men from the hand of the Turks, and the nearness of the enemy should not make any difference. His charges in prison will soon amount to a ransom, for they exact 20s. a day to allow his servants to attend on him. [2 copies, 1 sheet each.]

[Nov. 24.] 129. Reasons offered by Lady Thomasine Crisp, widow, to Strickland, Mulgrave, Desborow, Pickering, and Thurloe, on a late order of Council. [See 27 Oct. 1657.]

1. I know my father's desires about his release, and this and his better usage can be as well treated by friends from Holland as if John Crisp went over.
2. I resent his bondage deeply, and my late husband and I have done what we could, but an order of Council is required.
3. I think the meanest English subject should have liberty to release himself from captivity by his own estate, and hope you will not add to our affliction therein.
4. The estate is unsettled, my late husband, Sir Nich. Crisp, having left only an infant daughter, and I fear some of the male line might continue him in bondage, to wrest from him some settlement of his estate to the prejudice of the lawful heir, though he has always declared to the contrary.

As I wish his return, I beg leave to redeem him by ransom, being hopeless of exchanging him, after so long waiting, and I will try to do it by bills of exchange, not by coin of the nation. Proverbs iii. 27, 28. [$\frac{2}{3}$ sheet.]

Nov. 24. Order on the said report, that Lady Crisp be at liberty to send over a person to Flanders, to endeavour the freeing of her father-in-law from his imprisonment, by such means as she shall think fit. Approved 26 November. [I. 78, p. 298.] Annexing,

Nov. 24. 131, 132. Petition of Wm. Sheppard, serjeant-at-law, to the Protector. I have neglected my own family to spend time in the service, and have become distasteful to many by my unexpected call to your service, and my engagement so far therein as to print. Thus I have irrecoverably lost my practice in the country. I have 5 children of my own, and the widow and 3 children of a son, a minister, to provide for. By charge of removal and loss of practice, I have lost more than the salary I have received. I beg some office, or continuance of part of my salary, as a maintenance in my old age. [2 copies.]

Maj.-Gen. Desborow to report this to Council. [$\frac{2}{3}$ page draft.]

Nov. 24. COUNCIL. Day's Proceedings.

1. Order on information that the Prize Goods' Commissioners have several sums not paid in to the State, and that many goods sold remain in a perishing condition and undelivered, whereby the buyers retain part of the payment,—that the Customs' Commissioners execute the following orders:—

(1.) To require from the Prize Goods' Commissioners an account of all contracts made for goods sold and not paid for, the nature of the contract, and the sum unpaid.

(2.) To call for all such debtors, and order them to pay the money within such time as the Prize Goods' Commissioners shall limit.

(3.) If any debtors object that the goods received were defective, or the usual allowance of tare, &c., not made, to allow what is usual, if the debtors will then pay what remains due, and if not, to report the case, with the best remedy they can devise, to Council.

(4.) To learn what goods are sold and not taken away, and use some means to make the buyers fetch and pay for them within the time limited, and to report any difficulties. All concerned therein to assist effectually. Approved 16 December.

13. Council to begin to sit at 9 a.m. on all the usual days for sitting.

14. On report from the Committee on the petition and remonstrance of the aldermen, &c., of Bristol—that they have heard the parties themselves, and divers well-affected citizens, on the articles against Wm. Hobson, and Anne his mother, and have found them proved, whereupon Wm. Hobson has obtained a certiorari out of the Upper Bench to remove the indictment from Bristol, where the parties are well known. Also that Hobson has brought actions against Capt. Blackwell, for showing zeal against their dissolute and abominable practices, and there being a trial last Taunton assizes against Blackwell, at suit of Wm. Hobson, Edw. Fox, at Hobson's request, wrote to one of the jury on their behalf, and thereupon, and on the testimony of John Fyson (who has been indicted for speaking against the Protector, and this proved by 2 witnesses), obtained a verdict against Blackwell, which much discourages honest people in the city from prosecuting offenders, and is prejudicial to its good government:—Order that the Lord Chief Justice be informed of this business, the Hobsons be bound to their good behaviour, and a course be taken against Fox for tampering with the jury.

That the Attorney-General and counsel-at-law take care that the indictment in Bristol against Fyson, for disgraceful words against his Highness, be effectually prosecuted.

That Desborow request Mr. Noel, under whom Fox is employed in Bristol as collector of excise, to discharge him.

That the 2 Hobsons, Fyson, and Fox be required to attend Council, and not to depart without leave. [See 24 December 1657.]

18. The letter from the visitors of Oxford University to his Highness, with the papers annexed concerning All Souls' College, referred to Jones, Mulgrave Wolsley, Lord Deputy, Sydenham, Fiennes, and Lisle, to report. [See also 11 January 1657-8.] Annexing,

136. The case of All Souls' College, Oxford.

1. The college has long been thought corrupt in buying and selling fellowships.

2. The resignations have been so ordered that, except in case of a death, no one stands for election without holding the benefit of a resigner, and resignations are not made till the evening before the election, so that none know what places will be void.

3. The fellows choose those who have obtained resignations, hoping the like compliance when they come to leave the college, and thus the Warden and fellows who desire reformation are out-voted.

4. Some of the leaders are fellows formerly divested of votes in any college, for non-submission to the reformation.

5. Unmeet persons are thus brought in, having only to obtain the assistance of the resigners.

6. Injunctions have been made, and oaths prescribed to prevent this, but have been evaded, and added perjury to corruption.

7. *Soon after the election in 1656, Mr. Horton was troubled in conscience because he had given 150*l.* to obtain his fellowship, and therefore he resigned, after giving open testimony against this and other abuses.*

8. This notwithstanding, the election this year has been in the same way as formerly, and though the Warden and some honest fellows wished to re-elect Horton, as likely to be eminently useful, the majority refused him, and the Sub-warden made a public speech against him, as having brought a scandal on the society.

9. They wholly laid aside the injunctions of the Visitors, drawn up with advice of the heads of houses, to prevent this scandalous corruption. 16 November 1657. [2 $\frac{1}{4}$ pages.]

136. 1. *Declaration at a meeting of the Visitors of Oxford University, that they make null and void all the late elections in All Souls' College, and will supply the vacant places according to orders from his Highness. any obedience yielded to their own like orders, made with advice and consent of sundry heads of colleges, to take away the corrupt practice of selling resignations in that and other colleges. Also corrupt dealing is suspected about the resignations making way for this election.

The letter of the statute was not observed in some of the elections, and thus a very deserving person was rejected. All this keeps up the dishonest custom of making resignations to the benefit of the resigners, which is contrary to the intentions of the founder, and discourages worthy persons from standing in the elections. 16 November 1657. Flowers was carpenter and Cole master's mate of the Batchelor, and on arriving at Puddle Wharf, London, from Plymouth, they became acquainted with Thos. Being poor men, they consented, and repaired to Gusman's lodgings, at the Golden Ball, in Maiden Lane, where the petition and papers were drawn up, in presence of Gusman, and handed to them, with instructions to apply for the prisoners' enlargement. 140. Capt. Thos. Sparling to the Admiralty Commissioners. The Half-moon has arrived, with provisions for 200 men for 6 weeks, which was a very welcome present, and not unseasonable; there is as yet no other ship dismissed for want except the Lily, but had not a supply come within 10 days, every ship must have been forced off for want of victuals, but now we can subsist till better furnished. We hear the Elias is coming with a second supply, but there is no news of completing their last proportion of victuals or necessary money, for which there is much complaint.

Sir Richard [Stayner] writes me that there is wood and candles in the Downs, and that if any of my squadron want, they may have it by sending a ketch ; but with us it is "keatch he than can keatch," for I never had yet either ketch or hoy, or any other convenience so much as to send a letter, but what was accidental, much less to fetch wood or anything else, notwithstanding I have often mentioned it.

I have had sad complaints from most of the commanders of their want of men, by reason of sickness and death, and some of them are not able to move out of harbour whatever presents, unless I spare some of my own, and I want upwards of 20 ; the men daily fall down sick, I suppose through their extraordinary duty, in being constantly employed in landing provisions, which cannot be done without wading.

We have always expected some attempt from the enemy, and have stood in a continual posture of defence. I shall charge Capt. Parker, and the rest of the commanders here and in the Flemish Roads, to continue it, and endeavour to prevent any damage to the squadron by their fire-ships. [1½ pages.]

141. Petition of Wm. Wood, merchant, to the Privy Council. I have waited 3 years for payment of 5,000*l.* due from the Exchequer in Scotland for lands sold in 1641, as appears by a report from the Judges in Scotland to whom the case was referred, on which report his Highness granted me an order for payment out of discoveries ; but I have spent a great deal on a discovery against Lady Norton, and reaped no benefit, and I have not money to follow such intricate business. I petitioned again, and his Highness requested you to dispatch me speedily, being satisfied of the justness of the debt. I have spent 1,000*l.* on it, lost my trade, and am depending on the charity of friends. I therefore beg a Privy Seal for the debt and charges, from his Highness's part of prohibited and uncustomed goods discovered by me, or any other way. [1 sheet.]

The reason why I am short of 20 men, when I had my full complement after coming out of Denmark last October, is that I have lost many by discharges through sickness or death, and had no opportunity to recruit. This is the condition of most ships at Mardike, especially the Signet, whose officers are all sick ashore, and her master dead. I will go into the Flemish Road the first opportunity.

145. Capt. Jno. Stoakes to the Admiralty Commissioners. I wrote you of having withdrawn from before Cadiz, and of leaving Capt. Storey and 6 frigates there, and of the arrival of the Phoenix and Guinea at Lisbon with the victuals. Having received his Highness's commands for sending home the whole fleet, except 10 frigates, I countermanded the order for fitting and victualling the great ships and others, and sent to call away Capt. Storey, who with the rest came to me on the 9th, and brought intelligence that the enemies' preparations are continued, but go on slowly, through the bad weather; also their Vice-Admiral was burnt down to the keel, taking fire while on the careen, and greatly endangering the whole fleet.

I have been kept at Lisbon longer than I expected, and prevented from sending home the ships found most unserviceable, having been unable to receive the victuals, or do anything considerable 2 days out of 20. I am going to Cadiz, and thence to the Straits. I keep 10 frigates with me. The ships I send home are commanded by Vice-Adm. Jonas Poole, who has, by Gen. Blake's order, ever since he left, kept a flag on the foretopmast head, and assisted as my second, in which respect I recommend him for consideration.

The Dutch have left the coast, having taken 17 of the Portuguese Brazil fleet, but where gone is not known. If for Holland, they will scarcely [counter] value the loss the Dutch have sustained in their own ships by bad weather, which has been such for 6 weeks that the like was never known before. 146. Capt. Jno. Stoakes to the Navy Commissioners. After the departure of Gen. Blake, who left the remaining squadron under my command, the Hampshire and two others arrived, with provisions and stores, which I have since distributed amongst the fleet, and enclose the account of what each officer has received. I have sent another account to the Officers of ordnance, for the guns and gunners' stores. There had been some mistake in the shipping of them, some being short, others overplus, and some not at all mentioned, which induced me to believe that the storekeepers were in error, and therefore I gave the skippers a full discharge, according to the invoice. I have sent home the greatest part of the fleet unfit for present service, under Vice-Adm. Jonas Poole, as ordered by his Highness, and to-morrow or next day, I intend to sail with the remainder under my command, in prosecution of instructions lately received from his Highness. The Dutch have taken 17 of the Portugal Brazil fleet. [$1\frac{1}{2}$ pages.]

Mardike Fort.

150. General John Reynolds to the Admiralty Commissioners. I have forborne often writing, as the commander of your squadron communicates with me the letters he sends, but I have always given notice of any intentions of the enemy to attack the ships, who conceive themselves safe. I suppose you have the security of the ships in Dunkirk Road from frigates abroad (rather than from fire ships out of the town's fort) in your consideration. The Assurance may be serviceable there, but if the Splinter had not been capable of giving shelter to the 3rd-rate ships, according to the mis-information of some who came hence, that frigate had been in great danger.

I understand you have ordered the ketch belonging to Mr. White of Dover to attend Capt. Sparling, for the use of the squadron. I desire either another ketch, or that order countermanded, there being a necessity of one to this fort, to carry packets and fetch fresh provisions from the coast of England, this place being no other than a great ship at anchor, only there is less advantage of fresh fish here than in a ship. But I hope it will prove a place of much mercy to England, and therefore beseech you to favour me either with a packet boat or ketch. [2 pages.]

The Assistance,
Mardike.

151. Capt. Thos. Sparling to the Admiralty Commissioners. The Drake was forced off the coast in the last storm, and I fear she has lost her anchors and cables. If we had been in Mardike Pitts, as we were in the Splinter, we had also been forced off, if not to a greater damage, as several frigates in Mardike have lost their boats and broken their cables, and the Nightingale has not a boat left. A small vessel of Dover with bread and beer, which they intended to sell to the soldiers, was surprised by two shallops of Gravelines, which rowed out upon them, they having no convoy. The Hare pink has been gone 15 days to St. Vallery, to convoy some victuallers to Mardike, but has not since been heard of.

I am still troubled with complaints for want of men, and Capt. Finch is not able to go to sea, 5 of his men being sick at Dover, and

Nov. 29. 160. Levant Company to Sir Thos. Bendish. commander. We hope that a more seasonable juncture of time may offer, wherein you may prevail with better effect, and that we shall not always be subject to their injuries, depredations, and piratical attempts, by compelling our ships into their service, as in the case of the Mary Rose and Flying Horse at Scala Nova, the Hunter at Scio, &c. We fear they intend no reparation, but rather an increase of hostilities, to which end doubtless they are building that fort at the entrance to Smyrna, the consequence whereof to our trade we cannot imagine. Not knowing at this distance how to resolve herein, we permit the Consul and Factory at Smyrna, in case of imminent danger, to remove themselves, with your assent, to some other convenient place, or to send orders to meet and prevent our ships before they enter that port. Thanks for your care in the timely discovery, and preventing the designs of the Customer and Basha of Aleppo. [Levant Papers, Vol. IV., pp. 298, 299.]

Levant Company to Spencer Bretton, Consul at Smyrna. Yours of $\frac{2}{2}$ July and 3 September are to hand. We are sensible of the abuses put upon us by masters of ships, and of the opportunities they gain by touching at Leghorn, as the master of the Castle frigate does. We approve your dealings with him, in forcing him to pay to the uttermost for his own goods, and shortening him in other respects, and pray you to continue your vigilance in discovery of all means to defraud us of our duties, and to reduce them and the factors to better conformity, wherein we hope soon to make better provision. We doubt not but our treasurer, Phil. Langley, will be assistant thereunto.

We are sorry for the hazard our ships have to undergo in trading, whereof the Hunter, Recovery, and Resolution are sad instances. For the proceedings concerning the last, we should have thought no people could be so barbarous as to deny reparation, though we fear it may be made more difficult by the action of Captain Ell, in running away with the Grand Seigneur's provisions to Leghorn, which has been so resented that his Highness has, by letters to the Grand Duke, procured the ship, goods, and commander to be secured, and commanded the Agent, Mr. Longland, to see the provisions returned; this you may make public, to prevent offence, as his Highness's letters, telling the Grand Vizier of what is done, are already gone.

We are sorry the Turk's design of building a fort at Jacomos Point goes on with such resolution, and though we are sensible of the danger to our shipping and trade which may ensue, yet at this distance, we cannot resolve how to act, so we commend ourselves to your care and prudence, to consult the Factory and the Ambassador at Constantinople, and with his consent, in case of imminent danger, to remove yourselves to some other convenient place, and to meet our ships, before their arrival at Smyrna, with orders of what course to pursue; we shall advise them to remain at some distance till they hear from you. The course you used for hindering our ships' engagement in their service we fully approve.

Levant Company to Hen. Riley, Consul at Aleppo. We observe, by yours of 2 July, the continued practices of the new Basha against us, not only in relation to the estate and death of Ben. Alexander, but in his endeavour to revive the whole payment of 3 per cent. on moneys, and his pretence to the arrears thereon as his due. We are glad that by a timely discovery his design was prevented; for as he is so apt to lay snares for us, we have the more reason to be on our guard.

Wm. Love, a member of our company, has complained that since 1650, he has consigned to John Morden there goods and money to a considerable value, whereof the greater part remains in his hands, and he refuses to deliver it to Rich. Young, though required by a procouro presented before you, and by a protest read here in Court by Mr. Love.

We pray you to call Young and Morden before you, and let Morden discharge himself of what justly and according to his books he can, and deliver what remains of the money and goods, and also the accounts, to Young. [Levant Papers, Vol. IV., p. 301.]

161. Capt. Hen. Hatsell to [the Admiralty Commissioners]. In pursuance of your order, grounded on a petition from Capt. Lambert concerning the derelict, and lest Capt. Lambert should suggest in the petition that I had reaped the benefit of his labours, I crave your favour to state matters of fact and proceedings thereupon.

When I had knowledge, by an express from Capt. Pley of Dartmouth, that there was a vessel stranded in Torbay, and that the country people would probably make havoc of her, I hastened back the express, and empowered Capt. Pley to require the assistance of the constables of the parish where she was ashore, and to take the assistance of some friends, whereby the mischief of the country people (too much accustomed heretofore to be done) might be prevented. The next day I rode thither, and found 3 or 4 of the men who brought her there standing near, and the rest quartered in the country. The lieutenant of the Lion, and one Fortescue, who was accounted the master of the vessel, had gone to Dartmouth to sell their and the company's right, which they pretended to be one half; and having discoursed with the lieutenant and Fortescue, I dissuaded them from any such sale, and said that I supposed Capt. Lambert, under whose command they were, expected to hear from them first; but they said he had nothing to do with it, for although it was true Capt. Lambert took her up at first, and put men into her, yet her condition was such that those men forsook her, and made a protest against the sea, under the hands of the boatswain of the Lion and others, which they showed me, and said that the men that came in her were volunteers, having only the leave of Capt. Lambert, which they (as they pretended) after many desires, obtained. Fortescue told me that he was a passenger in the ship, having commanded one of the ships from Barbadoes, which Gen. Penn took there, where he was a planter, which ship being left at Jamaica, he came home passenger in the Lion, and that Capt. Lambert had nothing to do with him, and all the assistance which they had from him was that he promised to keep them company; but when they came between the Start and the Berry, he left them in a storm, and so much favour he supposed they might have had from a stranger.

Nov. 30.

I also gave notice to those who had treated with them that it would be hazardous to part with any money, for I found that it was the great endeavour of Fortescue to possess himself of it, and the lieutenant was too much carried away with him. At last they were very earnest with me to buy it of them, saying they were empowered by the company who brought her in to sell their part, which they conceived to be the one half, and the other half mine, "and so," said they, "you may better save her, and keep the country [people] from her than we can;" for where the vessel lay, the sea flowed into her every flood, and ran out again when the tide fell; but I refused to meddle with them. I endeavoured to persuade the seamen to assist in bringing her to Dartmouth, and for the carpenters to stop her leaks, so that we might keep her free with pumps, but they refused, and the generality were more inclinable to follow their ship, where they said they had much wages due, only they desired me to pay their quarters, and give them some money to carry them to London. By this time 7 or 8 days were past after their first coming ashore, so I gave orders to the constables to warn all their landladies to bring in their notes, and in their presence, I paid for 51 of them at the rate of 7s. a week, besides extraordinaries, and then gave 10s. a man to 45, as also passes; for one sick man, I got a woman to entertain him at 7s. a week, and when he was recovered, he also had 10s. and a pass; but for 4 of the seamen whom I found more serious than the rest, I prevailed with them to stay in the vessel, and the lieutenant and master were resolved to stay to see what they could make.

It would be too tedious to tell you what devices they had to sell things out of the vessel, and how they were prevented; but when this was done, and the foul weather somewhat allayed, I desired Capt. Pley to get some carpenters at Dartmouth to go to the vessel, and endeavour to stop her leaks. When the lieutenant and Fortescue saw this, they gave their assistance, but it was under another design; and though I had treated them with all due civility, and been out of purse between 50*l.* and 60*l.*, yet they had it in their thoughts, and would have persuaded some of the men, when the vessel came into Torbay, to go with her to the eastward, and if they could get to any part of Hampshire, the lieutenant assured them that his uncle, Major Murford of Portsmouth, was

Nov. 30. Deputy Vice-Admiral, from whom he was confident they would have what they desired. This design I prevented, and yet said little or nothing to them about it; but after the vessel was made capable to swim, I got seamen, and gave orders for her being brought to Dartmouth, which was done. She had not been there 6 hours but there arose such a violent storm, and the wind easterly, that in all probability it had split the vessel all in pieces where she first lay. When she was thus quiet in the harbour, and they could safely free her with the pumps, they found there was so much leakage in the casks of whale oil that it was pumped up with the water out of the hold, whereupon address was made to the Admiralty Court for a commission to land and preserve it, which commission was granted, and the oil on board was landed, and found to be in a perishing condition; thereupon another address was made to the Court for a commission to sell, which was also granted.

During this time the lieutenant went to London, to petition his Highness for half of the vessel and oil, having first received a considerable sum of money of Capt. Pley, but I cannot say how much, as Capt. Pley has not yet passed his account of payments and disbursements, and moneys relating to sales. Before the lieutenant went, he and Fortescue, the master, agreed that Fortescue was to stay, and when the oil came to be sold, to buy it, which he did, almost all of it; but when the time for payment came, he would pay for none. Thereupon I had an attachment against his person out of the Admiralty, and he appeared, but could make no good defence. As he was poor and full of deceit, I got an attachment against the oil which he had bought, and had it condemned, and another commission for sale granted. By that time the price of the oil was much fallen, and the commodity itself grown worse, so that when myself and other Commissioners named came to put the commission in execution, we found that those who came to buy offered little more than half of what at first it would have yielded; besides, I observed a confederacy amongst the buyers, whereupon a friend bought almost all of it; but the price being much fallen at St. Malo, where 7 or 8 months before it would have yielded a very great rate, and the commodity not being fit for this country, it was sent to London, where much of it proved bad, and one who bought part proved little better, for there is yet part of his money unpaid; but it was sold for as much as it would yield. I had an account thereof, but the last time I was in London, and since I came home, I have written Capt. Pley to bring his papers, so that we may perfect accounts. I expect him within 14 days, and shall bring the account with me when I come to London next January.

The 4 seamen who stayed with the vessel, and proved careful and honest, had 6*l.* each, besides diet. Fortescue, before he proved so bad, had 15*l.* to 20*l.*, but I cannot say what the lieutenant had, as the money disbursed was paid by Capt. Pley, with whom the accounts are.

The greatest part of the money received I have, and it may be 100*l.* more than I may humbly claim as my just due, the one half of any derelict having been always accounted the Vice-Admiral's, and continually enjoyed by him, such casualties hardly happening in an age. Besides, I may say with comfort that I have so settled things within this country that I hope, in time to come, if any be in distress, they will rather have help than hurt, and some have found the benefit already. This was not done without some expense and trouble, and I have besides several cruel persons now in suit at my own charge, in the behalf of a poor Frenchman who was driven ashore last winter near the Start, whose vessel they first plundered, and afterwards broke her to pieces and carried her away. The Assistance, have disposed of the victuals brought by the Half Moon amongst Mardike, ships named, and intend the proportion in the Elias for my own ship and those in the Flemish Road, so I have ordered her to anchor there until the weather will permit its being taken in. There is a great want of wood throughout the squadron, but I know not how to supply them except by a ketch or hoy, for want of which I am not able to procure necessaries, or even fresh water, but we are often forced to boil the victuals in salt water; there is no boat to all the ships in the Flemish Road that is able to fetch it, except the fisher-boat sent, which cannot fetch enough. Nov. 163. Petition of Capt. John Jeffrey, late commander of the Nant-

Whitehall, wich, to the Protector. Has served faithfully in the fleet, and been in most of the engagements with the Dutch. In September 1656, at the surprisal of the Spanish galleons before Cadiz, commanded the Nantwich in Sir Rich. Stayner's squadron, and attacked one of the galleons, who made a signal for parley, and on sending a pinnace on board, they desired quarter, and brought out several parcels of gold, and more was seized above deck. Bought some of the pieces, and kept them till the surprisal of the Dutch ship Fame, carrying Spanish passengers, by Capts. Spatchurst and Pointz, when, on false information, Vice-Adm. Bourne sent for him, detained him, had his ship searched, and the gold, 1,400*l.* value, which he had bought, seized, except 3 pieces, value 200*l.*, given him by passengers. Begs its restoration by the Admiralty Commissioners. With referenee thereon, signed by the Protector, to the Admiralty Commissioners. [1 page.] Annexing,

163. i. *Certificate by Captains Edw. Witheridge, Nath. Browne, and Robt. Clarke, that when before Cadiz, Capt. Jeffrey was possessed of money, and offered to lend them 100*l.* or 200*l.* each, and that he asserted he had brought 500*l.* with him to buy any prize that was taken, if he could obtain so much favour.* [½ page.]

1. Petition of the inhabitants of Anglesea to the Protector. Our county, 20 miles by 14, an island, has but one market town, Beaumaris, in a remote part. Those of us who are near have therefore, at great risk and damage, to ferry to the weekly market at Carnarvon, while those on the other coast have no market. Since the late troubles, there has been a weekly meeting at a village called Llanythmeath, in the centre of the island, and also yearly fairs; but in a settled Government, we fear these are illegal without licence. We therefore beg a patent to David Lloyd of Lloyddearth, who owns most of the village, and is well affected, to erect and keep a weekly market and 5 yearly fairs there, keeping a toll-book and just weights and measures. Signed and sealed by John Sydenham, and with 39 original signatures; endorsed with 52 more names, all in one hand. [$1\frac{1}{2}$ sheets.]

3. Capt. Robt. Vessey to the Admiralty Commissioners. After my letters from St. Martin's of the 9th ult., I set sail to look after some of the enemies' men-of-war, but meeting with a storm, was forced under Belle Isle, where I rode with much difficulty, lost an anchor, and part of a cable, and received much damage to my sails and rigging. Twice I was resolved to cut my masts by the board, but I preserved them, and all things else; 6 days after, I put into St. Martin's, and was there much affronted by 3 Holland men-of-war, who wore their flags, and caused their merchantmen to do the like, to the disgrace of our nation. At their going out, I weighed after them, and when in the road, fired twice at their flags, when the Admiral replied; had not night prevented, I had resolved to sink by their sides, rather than they should have continued in their pride, my men being all free to lose their lives rather than suffer that abuse.

I hope you will not be offended with what I have done, as although my instructions do not lead me to it, yet the articles of Peace extend further; but I will not do anything for the future until I hear from you what may be done in like cases. The Commander-in-chief of the three sail was Everson.

I convoyed 18 sail of merchantmen from St. Martin's, some bound for England, and others for Ireland; there were many more, but bad weather prevented their coming together, and my small prize and one of my convoys, becoming separated, were both cast away; but the men were saved. I have delivered up my other man-of-war prize to the Prize Officers at Plymouth, and if they fit her out, I desire that some of the officers that were at the taking of her may

4. Petition of Lieut.-Gen. David Leslie, prisoner at Durham, to the Protector. Your Highness's great favours during my imprisonment leave me a door of hope in this distress. My family have had to retire to Scotland for want of subsistence, but what little there is left there is like to be extended by my creditors, to our utter undoing. I beg for leave to live in Scotland, on security for my department, that I may take course with my creditors, and prevent the begging of my wife and 6 children. [$\frac{1}{3}$ page.]

We had prosperous gales until arriving in the Soundings, when we lost the fleet 40 leagues off Scilly. We met a Holland prize taken from the Portuguese, which was disabled for want of a rudder, as also a Holland man-of-war with 4 prizes, who reported that their fleet had taken 14 sail of Portuguese. 9. Capt. Thos. Sparling to the Admiralty Commissioners. I will observe your commands, but the dismissal of the ships off the coast cannot be suddenly effected, as much business intervenes. One ship put on shore near Gravelines, and I am sending two to get her off, if possible. I judge her to have come with provisions, rather than to be a wreck put on shore accidentally, as she sits whole, with many people and wagons about her. I had notice of her by Sir Rich. Stayner's ketch, which has brought my anchor and cable. There has been another ship put on shore near Mardike, which we judged to be a wreck forced there by foul weather, but now I believe that their distress is such that they have contracted with the Hollanders and Zealanders to furnish them with provisions, with security given for their ships, so that they will run many ships ashore, with provisions to relieve their present necessities, and the ships for firing, without which they cannot possibly subsist.

There is fresh intelligence that the enemy have effected all their preparations in order to the storming of Mardike, and intend putting it into execution within two nights; if they do, they will be very honourably received, for there is a very considerable strength in the fort, and many of them men of much gallantry. It is my opinion that 20,000 will but fool themselves to make an attempt, judging it a matter of extraordinary difficulty to gain that place, except they be so much masters of the field as to make their approaches by degrees, so as to force the shipping out of the Splinter, and hinder their constant supply of victuals. My good will and my misfortunes increase, and I must solicit the clearing out of prison of my brother Thomas, who has lately been arrested in Brittany. Dec. 7. 13. Sir Rich Stayner to the Admiralty Commissioners. The commander of the Marston Moor has sailed with all his convoys. The Dragon and Colchester have been forced in from their station, and had like to have been lost; they report that 2 frigates have lately come out of Ostend. The Half Moon has also arrived from Mardike, with the news that Sir John Reynolds and Lieut.-Col. White came from thence in a pink with them, but it is much feared that the pink and they are lost, as a trunk has been taken up, which had letters from Col. White's wife, and other things which testify plainly that it is his. On the pink's coming from Mardike, all the vessels of war within the Splinter fired guns, which signified that Gen. Reynolds was in her. With names of 14 ships of war in the Downs. [$\frac{1}{2}$ page.]

Dec. 7. 14. Lewis Gillart to Robt. Blackborne. I want an order to the commander-in-chief in the Downs for the time being, to send a frigate every 10 or 12 days to Rye, to convoy such laden vessels as shall be then ready to sail for Dieppe, the Isle of Wight, the Downs, or any adjacent ports, and to bring back any that may be there ready to sail to Rye. Do me the favour to make the order as full as you can, and you will oblige many merchants that want to trade that way. I will attend you on Wednesday, to thank you for your assistance. Col. Clarke has promised the order at the first sitting of the Commissioners. [1 page.] Annexing,

14. 1. *Petition of Thos. Marshall, mayor, Lewis Gillart, and 36 others, jurats, commonalty, and inhabitants of Rye, to the Admiralty Commissioners. Our town, having a good tidal harbour, has many ships of its own, and is frequented by others from Hastings, &c., who hope there to meet with convoy, and traffic to London and other places in England, and also to Dieppe, with passengers and goods. But lately our merchants have sustained losses by the enemies taking their vessels, trade has been discouraged, and the place, depending upon it, much impoverished, so that lately neither masters nor mariners dared venture without convoy; and oftimes when after many missives they got one from the Downs, the westerly winds prevented passage to France. their trade to France and the Isle of Wight, constantly to attend the port, as it will advance trade, and be a service acceptable to the State. [1 page, 38 signatures.]

Dec. 7. 15. Capt. Thos. Sparling to the Admiralty Commissioners. The
The Assistance, continual boisterous weather has not only been prejudicial to our Mardike. fleet, but of some disadvantage to the enemy, as two pinks were cast away going into Dunkirk with provisions, supposed to be Zealanders by some colors and papers found on shore, with much wreck and goods, as cheese, bacon, butter, soap, pepper, wax, furs to line coats for Don John's officers, and other goods. One of the vessels sat whole in the morning, but much of the other was broken away with the violence of the sea, and as soon as the sand was dry, the inhabitants of Dunkirk came out, cut down her masts, and broke her up, carrying away both goods and wreck, she lying within half musket shot of the pier's head. I did not send in the Signet, as her officers and men have only just recovered from sickness, and come on board, and there are still 3 frigates in the Downs and at Dover which cannot return until fair weather. I had to send two ships to endeavour the burning of the ship put on shore near Gravelines, so that there being 5 absent from their station, it would be inconvenient, if not dangerous, for any more to be absent.

I think the ships you propose for a guard within the Splinter will be sufficient, the greatest part of my work being done, the deals, spars, and other materials nearly all landed, and the fort in a better capacity to defend itself than formerly. The enemy also is not now capable of acting anything against them but by fire ships, which if prosecuted happily, may prove as little prejudicial to them as to a greater strength. In case the enemy should, upon the French army's drawing into their winter quarters, become so much masters of the field as to raise a battery and plant a gun or two on the sand hills, if our strength were greater, we must in such a case endeavour to quit the Splinter, and they can do no more.

Touching the frigates for Dunkirk Road, I can say nothing, as I am ignorant of what opposition the enemy is able to make against us, but will endeavour to discharge my duty with such strength as you judge convenient for that station. The Drake is as fit to ride within the Splinter through the winter as any 6th rate frigate, being an excellent sailer, and all the frigates kept at anchor in the Flemish Road will signify little as to preventing relief going into Dunkirk and Gravelines, unless one or two be constantly kept under sail in fair weather, for which service she is the fittest. [1 $\frac{3}{4}$ pages.]

Dec. 8. 16. Capt. Thos. Sparling to the Admiralty Commissioners. I am
The Assistance, still in great want of a ketch; since the departure of mine, I have Mardike. been forced to send 2 frigates on necessary business, one to Dover and one to Calais for provisions, and the governor of Calais expects a frigate or two as constant convoys between St. Vallery, Calais, and this place. I want a ketch entirely under my own command; she would then do as much service in a week as now she does in a month. Two ketches well ordered would enable me to fulfil the Vice-Admiral's orders about sending packets, and answer all the occasions of the fleet ; but this, the John of Dover, the only one here during the month I have been at Mardike, has only made two voyages to Dover, and is not yet returned from the third, whereas when I attended on the squadron before Ostend, I never made less than two to Dover in a week, and sometimes three, and for several months always touched at Dunkirk ; but now he has grown to that height that he will not so much as carry a rundlet for any commander, without order from the General, notwithstanding his hold be free, and the men of the Bramble are perishing for want of water, and have been forced to boil their meat in salt water for several days. They sent their boat to Mardike for two hogsheads, but on her return she is supposed to have been cast away, as they have never heard of her or her 8 men. The master of the ketch will be very unwilling to be under my command, because he cannot so easily gull me with blind excuses and pretences of foul weather obstructing his passage, as he can the governor of the fort ; for if he should allege that he lay in Dover pier through foul weather, I would tell him he lay there 4 days with a fair wind, before a contrary presented, and only having 4 hours' business to do there. I will not say that he makes use of his hold on his own account by taking freight of sutlers, but if ordered by me, if he would, he should not. [2 pages.]

Dec. 8. 17. Petition of Hen. Waltham, Mayor, and the aldermen, bailiffs, and burgesses of Weymouth and Melcomb Regis, co. Dorset, to the Protector. The port adjoining the said towns is of great consequence, lying so near France, and great sums of money have arisen out of the Customs there, Weymouth Road being most convenient for the secure riding of great numbers of ships ; but the harbour is much injured by the flowing in of great quantities of sand and earth, for want of piers at the entrance, and of quays or wharves against the neck of land called the North Point, which if prevented, ships of great burthen might come up between the towns, but must now be unladen in the Road, and goods carried forth in boats, to the charge of merchants and discouragement of trade.

By late storms, a great breach has been made in the old pier of the harbour, which, if not speedily repaired, will wholly obstruct the passage of ships, barks, and boats. The timber-bridge over the harbour, which is a common highway between the towns, is exceedingly impaired. The cost of cleaning the harbour, making deeper water there, and building piers and quays, will amount to 3,000*l.*, and much money must be laid out yearly for repair thereof. We suffered great losses in the siege and during the late wars, and have since been much impoverished through losses at sea and decay of trade, and are altogether unable to carry on such a work, which, if effected, would encourage merchants and traders, and yield a considerable yearly revenue by customs and excise. His Highness having extended much favour and assistance to other towns not so commodiously situated, we beg relief. 21 signatures. With reference to Council 8 December 1657. [1 sheet.]

as may be, though I fear it is too much known already, as some of his Court have written it hither. I have not heard from Sir John Berkley of its being done, so I will let it rest till the Duke of York causes it to be sent. Endorsed as received 2 January. [1 page.]

Dec. 11. 31. Capt. Jas. Strutt to the Admiralty Commissioners. Riding before Mardike on the 4th inst., Gen. Reynolds called me on shore, and said he was going over with me, as also Col. White, and that he would come out to me in a billander next day. I went out the next day, and it blowing pretty fresh, I wrote the General, and sent the letter by my boat and eight lusty hands, advising him to come out to me in a billander, of which there was choice, conceiving it to be the safest way, and I looked next day for his coming.

About 3 p.m., our men-of-war fired within the Splinter, and upon that out came a pink belonging to Rochester, and upon seeing it, we brought our cable to the capstan to weigh, the wind being so high that the vessel could not fetch us, and when the vessel came without the Splinter, they made a weft with their ancient, which I understood was to weigh, which we did. I put out my colours, and loosened sails to give them notice that I was weighing, and discerned that my boat was at the pink's stern. I made towards them as fast as I could, and they tarried until we got pretty near, and then made sail over the shoulders to go for the North Foreland. With that I fired a gun for them to tarry, so that I might speak with them, but they kept on their way, I following so far that the pilot durst not go further, and although it was dark, yet I saw him. Then I fired another gun, and put two lights in my lantern and lay by the lee to hoist in our boat, and showed a third light, thinking that if he were a seaman, he would show one in answer, but he did not; so we kept out the lights and steered for the South Foreland, and anchored within the Goodwin 9.30 p.m.

The same night that pink was lost about the Goodwin Sands, and all that was in her, for the stem of my boat was taken up, and a rapier hacheled with gold all entangled with the rigging of the same pink. I acquaint you with this, because none can certify so much touching it as myself, and am heartily sorry that I must be the messenger of bad tidings. I had two horses and a mule of the General's, which I have put on shore at Deal for his lady, and am now going to Mardike again with some soldiers.

P.S.—I have since delivered the soldiers at Mardike, and was informed by Capt. Bowrey that the General came out in the pink. [1 $\frac{3}{4}$ pages.]

Dec. 11. 32. Sir Rich. Stayner to the Admiralty Commissioners. All the ships ordered in sailed yesterday and to day. The Adventure and The London, Downs. Half Moon are returned from Mardike, where they delivered the soldiers; last night they heard 50 or 60 pieces of ordnance fired there, which they judged to be some attempt against the fort. They also bring news that Sir Jno. Reynolds and Col. White came away in the pink on Saturday night, and if so, it is certain they are lost. There are several ships in the Downs bound for the Isle of Wight Apsom, and Plymouth, and others richly laden for Bordeaux; I will appoint the Adventure to secure them as far as Plymouth. Particulars of ships. with the Dartmouth. The Bramble's boat, supposed to have been cast away, was taken by 2 sloops between Mardike and Dunkirk Road, who turned her adrift, and carried her men away; but being afterwards taken by the French, they were set at liberty, and 4 have returned, the rest being at Calais, but the boat is lost. The vessel supposed to have been run on shore near Gravelines is, for their relief from Holland or Zealand, a ship of London, and was taken 20 leagues from Lisbon, coming from Port-a-Port with figs. The enemy intended her for Ostend, but through the ignorance of the pilot, they were put on shore. A great long-boat has been sunk in the Splinter. I have written Capt. Stayner for another, as without one it will be very hard to supply the fort with coals and provisions as fast as they spend them. The loss of the General is much lamented both by the soldiery and squadron. I did what I could to persuade him to stay for the Charinton, but could not prevail.

[1 page.]

Dec. 12. 35. Capt. Thos. Sparling to the Admiralty Commissioners. I
The Assistance, gave an account of 2 shallops, having only 25 men in both, and Dunkirk Road. although well fitted both for rowing and sailing, unprovided with arms or ammunition. In order to their supply, I took a strict survey of the whole squadron, and found such a general want that we are not able to supply each other with so many fixed arms as may be judged sufficient for the defence of the respective ships, much less the shallops. The Nightingale's captain daily expected a recruit, as promised by the Vice-Admiral, and has also since written thereon to Mr. Blackburne, who, he is confident, will not fail him. However, it will not be long before he must be sent in to clean and revictual, when he may repair his defects and recruit his men, many being absent through sickness and death; the victualling out of other ships begets so much confusion that I hope I may not be confined to any such inconvenience for the future, except in case of absolute necessity. All the supplies received within the last 3 months for the squadron have been short.

I want a supply of 60 fixed arms, 40 firelocks, 20 matchlocks, and 4 blunderbuses, not ammunition. The John ketch has come from Dover, and is returning, but I have not required anything of him, lest it should give offence to those by whose order he now acts; I only reproved him for his neglect, when he promised to double his diligence in that employment.

You must not expect so frequent an account as when I rode in the Splinter, as I am now not in the way of ships going to and fro, and would not have had an opportunity of sending this if the Bramble had not been going in to revictual. [1½ pages.]

38. Sir Rich. Stayner to the Admiralty Commissioners. List of ships in the Downs, and particulars of the arrival and departure of others, as also of their victualling from one to the other. The Bramble's boat that was thought to be lost was taken by a Dunkirk shallop, and since retaken by a Calais ship, so that the men have returned to Mardike. The guns fired at Mardike were only salutes on the arrival of one of the marshals of France, with the Cardinal's kinsman, and several others who intend to take up their quarters there this winter. 39. Capt. Thos. Sparling to the Navy Commissioners. The 4 fowling pieces, a wherry, and the materials thereto belonging, as also a cable and anchor by the Dartmouth, will be of no small concernment; I should have applied for them at my first coming on this coast, but Sir Rich. Stayner promised, before I sailed from the Downs, that if I were not supplied by the Vice-Admiral, he would furnish me on his arrival before Mardike. I hear from the Admiralty Commissioners that they have given order for another ketch to attend this squadron, the John being designed for the service of the fort only. I beg she may be sent with all speed, being forced to send frigates off the coast with packets, for want of a ketch. There have been great rejoicings and triumph all along the coast the last two nights, but what it signifies I cannot yet learn; the reports are various, some saying it is for the birth of a prince, and others for a great victory in Portugal, but the certainty is yet unknown. 40. Case of Walter Montague. Henry, Earl of Manchester, dying in 1642, bequeathed to his son Walter 500 marks a year, rent-charge on Keiston Manor, co. Hunts. Walter being then out of England, and afterwards prisoner in the Tower, demanded this rent of the young Earl his brother, who said the will was void in this article, as given on lands that would not bear that title, but during his 6 years' imprisonment the Earl furnished him with nearly the sum for subsistence. On his release, finding his right to be void in law, he accepted a small present from the Earl for his journey to France, and has not expected anything since. Now he hears that the Earl is questioned for the $\frac{2}{3}$ of the said rent-charge, and arrears, on the score of his brother's recusancy, which cannot be legally demanded, as the will is invalid. The Cardinal's request to the Protector is that the Earl may not be pursued on this demand, for all loss ought to come on Walter, who was relieved by his brother's kindness only, not by right, and the Cardinal much desires to oblige Montague. 41. T. L[amplugh] to Williamson. The last Thursday in November you were elected fellow, "non obstantibus Tito et Sempronio." Some intended to put a slur on you. Addison, with his one eye, put up for it, but we gave him a canvas-suit, which will serve him to wear as long as he is in college. You and Clem. Ellis were elected, he to be admitted on St. Thomas' Day, and you at your return, which I hope will be soon. The provost will write you to that purpose. We want you, and you must not deny us your company. The provost was dangerously ill last autumn, but is now quite well. He has lost his son George, but has got another, John. Dr. Owen is at last no vice-chancellor; he cannot well digest a private life, and seems angry. He has given over preaching at St. Mary's on Sunday afternoon, and has set up an opposition lecture at the same hour in our parish church. My compliments to your fellow travellers, Norris and Ball. Sec. Thurloe to [Amb. Lockhart.] I do not know the ground of the report about the malcontents in England. For the army, I believe they never were in better temper, and more unanimous in affection to his Highness; if they were otherwise, the stirrings of the Cavaliers, who begin to carry it as under some new hopes, would cure all their other troubles, for whatever they differ upon, they will agree against Charles Stuart and his party; that is certain. Dec. 17. 44. Petition of the Committee for accounts of the soldiery at Worcester House to the Protector and Council. We were constituted, by Act of 28 May 1649, to take the accounts of the officers and soldiers of the present army, before they were taken into the new model, and we served to 23 November 1653, receiving pay. We, with 2 registrars and 2 clerks, have since continued the service, and given debentures to officers and soldiers, but received no allowance. 50. Capt. Thos. Sparling to the Admiralty Commissioners. Particulars of the stations of the fleet before Dunkirk and in the Splinter. Touching the General and Col. White adventuring in so slight a vessel, the Half Moon being then there, I judge it was a thing which God had appointed for them, as I persuaded them as much as I could to stay for the Charinton, in regard the weather would not admit of their going on board the Half Moon. They only intended to use the pink to carry them on board her, but as the sea was so high that the boat could not pass from ship to ship, they resolved to go over in her. I found the General somewhat inclined to stay for the Charinton, but Col. White being altogether adverse, I could not prevail. I can say little as to the names of the officers and other persons with them, but must refer you to Lieut.-Col. Haines, who, I hope, is now in London, and will be able to give an account. There were 40 persons in the vessel, beside 8 belonging to the Half Moon's boat. [$1\frac{1}{2}$ pages.]

51. Thos. White to the Admiralty Commissioners. I am sorry a man should let his pen run into false accusations. The truth is, the John ketch waited on the Commander-in-chief, and when the fleet rode upon the coast of Flanders last summer, she came every week to Dover for water for the ships, delivered to each a full cask, took back the empties, and made 10 voyages in 8 weeks to Ostend and Dunkirk Road. Afterwards one Parker, who attended on the London, was sent to wait upon the Ostend squadron, and the John ketch upon the Dunkirk, and did the service so well that some of the commanders wrote in the master's commendation, and said they were better served by the John, when she attended to both fleets, than by Parker, who only waited upon one. There was no complaint until Mardike Fort was taken and in possession of the English, under Sir Jno. Reynolds, when hearing that he desired a ketch to attend him and carry his packets, &c., and being at London, I mentioned it to the Navy Commissioners, who ordered the John to wait upon him, which she did, and carried his packets, as also his live stock of sheep, poultry, &c., from Dover; but having casks of water also, some of which ran foul, and killed a sheep and some of the poultry, Sir John ordered her to desist from carrying water, and to take only his packets, and what his man sent, at which Capt. Sparling took offence, and told Sir John he would let him have a ship to carry his packets, but he preferred the ketch.

Having sent her with them and 16 sick men to Dover, the wind being contrary with a storm, the poor men lying upon the ballast, which shot to leeward, and they one upon the other, and not able to bear sail, they were after 5 days driven into Margate Roads, whereupon he caused them to trench their ballast, had a deal flooring made to keep it fast, and ordered it to be washed every voyage, to keep it clean and sweet for the men to lie upon, and thus she was detained 7 days, the wind being easterly when she was ready to resail.

Since Sir John's death, she has come over again on Maj.-Gen. Morgan's account, and as she has only 5 men, whereas they have 8 in the packet-boat to Flanders, and as the ketch is larger, has 2 great guns and 6 masts, and is exposed to much danger from the enemy, by the discontent of the commander of the fleet, I desire an order to Sir Rich. Stayner to allow her 5 more, or that I may be allowed to hire them and put them on board at the charge of the State, to be paid for at the usual time for payment. [2 pages.]

Dec. 17. 52. Hum. Robinson to Williamson. Transmission of letters and money. M. Lérpinière may be honest, but he is not knowing. His parcel came to 107*l.*—mine to 219*l.*; judge who is the gainer. Particulars of dealings in books.

If you meet Chas. Potter at Moulin or Nevers, his parents would be glad to know, for they do not hear from him. A Scotch tailor has come to me with bills of Mr. Whorwood, but he is in the same condition that we are—he [Mr. Whorwood, sen.] will not so much as answer letters, and his difference with his wife increases. Lampugh can do us good, or nobody. Mr. Robinson, with Gen. Reynolds and Col. White, were cast away on the Goodwin Sands, coming from Mardike; they are much lamented. The Protector has chosen 60 persons for the other House, only 7 of the old peerage. It is thought Reynolds would have been one. [2 $\frac{1}{3}$ pages.]

Falmouth, and there are two great ships of London, with wine from the Canaries, put into Dartmouth.

On Monday, the 14th inst., 50 leagues W.S.W. from Scilly, the Fagons and Sorlings fell in with a ship that endeavoured to weather them, and they, judging her an enemy, separated, the Fagons keeping the wind, and the Sorlings bearing under the enemy's lee, she going before the wind. The enemy having come within shot, bore up, firing his great guns and small shot into the Fagons, who being pressed down with sail, lay with her upper guns in the water, and was much disabled, her sails, shrouds, and rigging being shot in pieces, which the enemy perceiving, clapped upon a wind, to shun the Sorlings, that was under his lee, and night coming on and the weather bad, they quickly lost sight of each other. In this skirmish, Capt. Elliott was shot through the body with a musket, one master's mate was slain with a great shot, and the gunner's mate, a quartermaster, and four others, were wounded, some of whom it is thought will not recover. [2 pages.]

Dec. 18. 61. Capt. Thos. Sparling to the Admiralty Commissioners. I want the Signet refitted and sent out again, as she is the most fit for a scout; if she has a counterfeit forecastle, as the 2 pinks had, she would be as serviceable for the coast as any in England. [$\frac{3}{4}$ page.]

Dec. 18. 62. Sir Rich. Stayner to the Admiralty Commissioners. I have disposed of the 50 hogsheads of flour amongst the ships, and as fruit is dear, and suet not to be had, have directed the purser to buy butter, and supply half-a-pound for so much fruit. I have charged a bill on the Navy Commissioners for it at 25s. a firkin. Hopwood has arrived with the hoy and 28 tuns of beer, but lost his anchors and cables coming over, and nearly lost the hoy, having been in the Downs 2 or 3 times, and forced into Margate and Dover.

Capt. Horne came on board to vindicate himself as to losing the Parrot, whereon the several commanders in the Downs were called together, and heard his officers' testimony read, and what he had to say in reply, which was very little, but there being no witnesses to accuse him face to face, they deferred proceeding further until ordered; as the witnesses are all in London, the trial could be better had there.

The Adventure chased two small Ostenders yesterday, but I have not heard the result. It is reported there are no men-of-war at Ostend, all being gone westward, and that the Parrot is coming from Flushing a man-of-war with two shallows; that there are 6 or 7 sail belonging to Yarmouth and the North country laden and ready to go to sea, and that no service can be done on that station this winter, as they dare not lie near the shore. All things are well at Mardike, only the men are very sickly. [$1\frac{2}{3}$ pages.]

Oct. 18. 63. J. Fowler, Judge Advocate, to Robt. Blackborne. I send the examination of Capt. Horne, late commander of the Parrot, before Sir Rich. Stayner and Capts. Curtis, Kirby, and Amos. His pretended vindication is very mean, there not being 3 words pertinent thereto, and no proofs. There was a court held 3 Aug. last, but the case was waived, as Horne was then prisoner on the other side, and it would be contrary to equity to censure any man unheard ; and now the witnesses not being face to face, notwithstanding their depositions are upon oath and attested by them, yet it has been thought fit to respite the full conclusion until the appearance of all parties (semel et simul) at a more full Board, unless you think meet to send for Capt. Horne and the witnesses, and so determine it yourselves. I shall be sparing in delivering my opinion, as unwilling to anticipate upon the judgment of better discerners than myself. [1 page.] Annexing,

63. I. Deposition of Capt. Thos. Horne. I was proceeding with a packet for the Downs, and met 4 sail of the enemy, 2 of which bore down upon me, and although I ordered my company to fire upon them, they all, except Thos. Atwell, the boatswain, refused to fight ; and one, Edw. Spurgeon, more loud than the rest, said that as they had wives and families, why should they destroy themselves when there was no probability of escaping ; and that if they blew their frigate up, they would not save any lives. I attempted to bring off the guns, but failed, and the gunner was nowhere to be seen ; as there was not a man of the ship's company who would stick to me, I accepted the quarter tendered, and secured Capt. Whitehorne's packet of orders from the enemy's hands by sinking the vessel. With the names and addresses of the witnesses. [1 page.]

3. Order on report from the Attorney-General, on the order for Lord Maynard's passing lands [see 10 Nov. 1656], that the draft of the deed prepared by him be approved, and he is to see it executed. Annexing,

68. Report alluded to, by Att.-Gen. Prideaux. I conceive the draft sufficient to secure the land to the sons; the lands were lately purchased by Lord Maynard, I have exhibited a bill in the Exchequer, and Lord Maynard has sworn in his answer that the lands are fully worth the money, and are free from incumbrances. 14 Dec. 1657. [1 page.]

4. To recommend to the Trustees for Maintenance of Ministers to settle an augmentation of 50*l.* on Mr. Whitfield, Minister of Peter's Poor, London. Approved.

5. The Excise Commissioners to allow whomever Mr. Comptroller shall appoint to take 40 tuns of sack, 40 of French and Rhenish wine, and 10 of vinegar, custom free, for his Highness's use.

6. Gen. Monk's letter of Dec. 5, and papers concerning the reducement of forces in Scotland, referred to the Committee of Council on Public Service Money, to report.

9. To advise confirmation of the contract presented to Council by the Committee of Parliament for Customs and Excise, of the custom on poundage, &c., of coal exported from England, Scotland, and Wales, and Berwick, for 5 years, at 22,000*l.* a year.

10. To advise his Highness to recommend the petition referred by him to Council of John Paterson, late of Strabane and City of Chester, some time merchant, to the Lord Deputy and Council of Ireland, to relieve him if they see cause, and to order him 20*l.* from Council's contingencies, to enable him and his family to go to Ireland.

11. The petition of the Aldermen, Burgesses, and Common Council of Leeds, and the heads of a charter proposed, referred to his Highness's Counsel learned, to report. Also the petition of the inhabitants of Gateshead and the heads of the charter annexed, and the order of 17 December to be amended thereon.

15. The festivals of Easter, Christmas, and other holy days having been taken away, the Lord Mayor and justices of London and Westminster are to see that the Ordinance for taking away festivals is observed, and to prevent the solemnities heretofore used in their celebration.

16. To advise his Highness to send for Mr. Guning and Dr. Taylor, and require an account of the frequent meetings of multitudes of people held with them, and cause the Ordinance for taking away the Book of Common Prayer to be enforced.

17. The petitions and papers of John, Earl of Rutland, and Thos. Lock, agent of his Highness's patentees for Mines Royal in co. Derby, referred to the Committee on Mines in co. Derby, to report.

18. Order on the petition of the Mayor, &c., of Chester [see 5 Feb. 1657], and on a certificate on reference thereon of Maj.-Gen. Bridges, Edw. Bradshaw, Jon. Ridge, and John Griffith,—representing that the hospital [called John's of Jerusalem] was founded by Randall, Earl of Chester, and endowed with 22*l.* a year for the poor, is in his Highness's gift by the death of Geo. Hope, and has lately been much neglected, and the money misemployed;—that the government of the hospital be settled in the Mayor of Chester for the time being, with proviso that he gives in accounts thereof yearly to the Common Council of the city. President Lawrence to the Mayor, Aldermen, and Common Council of Newcastle. A matter has long depended before the Council of the North about Leonard Carr, an Alderman of Newcastle, who has favoured the late war against Parliament, and therefore is incapacitated by the Act of Parliament to that effect from holding any place of public trust, and that of alderman being one of great concern, this Board desires you to remove him from his aldermanship, and elect another in his room. [J. 78, p. 844.]

Dec. 22. 70. Capt. Thos. Sparling to the Admiralty Commissioners. I formerly presented the necessity of sending a portion of the squadron in to victual and refit, as others have returned, and I little thought that any would be sent back without victuals, as some have been; 3 or 4 will be out of victuals in a few days; I will supply them out of the Nightingale, as also with some of her men, and send her home. [1 page.] Annexing,

70. I. Account of provisions on board 10 ships named, the time they have been off the ground, and the distribution of victuals brought in the Half Moon and Elias. [2 pages.]

Dec. 22. 71. Sir Rich. Stayner to the Admiralty Commissioners. The Speaker and 5 other ships have come in from their stations to water and revictual, and as all those in the Downs are nearly out of victuals, I want a speedy supply. The enemy having appeared at Mardike, it may not be safe to disable the Downs of ships, lest there be want of them on the other side. [1 page.]

[Dec. 22.] 72. Dr. Tanaquil Faber to Williamson. You have done well to come to Paris. We were afraid for you of the dangers of travel. You will now be scrutinizing the book-shops, this being your chief object in coming to Paris. As you promise me one book, let it be Lucretius, in 8^o, the Plantinian edition; the Raphlengian I have. I will repay you before you leave the city. I have read the books brought me after your departure. Where are they to go now? Buy me the Crispin edition of Homer, if you can find a good copy and clean; also Selden de diis Syriis and Stephanus' New Testament; but above all, the Stephanian edition of L. C. Budæus' Commentaries. Particulars of books. [1½ pages, Latin.]

[Dec. 24.] 73. Petition of Anna, Duchess of Hamilton, to the Protector. The Earl of Abercorn, and Lord Paisley, his son, have petitioned on a pretended title of entail to my estate. You referred the case to the courts of justice in Scotland; and though another petition has lately been presented and rejected by Parliament, yet the Earl, by further petition, insists on his illegal desires. I beg he may be again referred to the common law of Scotland, and I and the creditors not deprived of our legal defence. With reference thereon, 30 March 1657, to the Privy Council. [1 page.]

[Dec. 24.] 74. Petition of the many English and Scottish creditors of the late Dukes of Hamilton to the Protector. We lent them large sums, believing in the sufficiency of their estates, and now the forfeiture being removed, on payment of a fine, the ablest counsel in Scotland find Anna, Duchess of Hamilton, eldest daughter of Duke James, the only person who has a right to the estate, according to the laws of Scotland, and we have accepted conveyances of lands from her. But finding that the Earl of Abercorn and his son pretend to an entail of the estate, and request a settlement therefrom, we beg their desires may not be respected; this would obstruct our payment, as the just debts allowed amount to double the value of any real estate of the Dukes of Hamilton. We beg a determination by law. With reference thereon to Privy Council, 30 March 1657. [1 page.]

Dec. 24. Reference by Council of both petitions to the Committee on Smithsby's petition, and to the Scotch Committee, to report. [I. 78, p. 367.]

Dec. 24. 75. Petition of John Fyson to Council. By order of 9 Nov. last of the Committee of Council to whom the petition and remonstrance of divers aldermen, ministers, and citizens of Bristol was referred, I was required to attend them at a full hearing of the case on the 20th; on my appearance, I found myself charged with dangerous words against the Protector, for which I am indicted in the Corporation of Bristol.

The weighty affairs of the Committee not permitting a full hearing, I was ordered not to depart from London without leave [see 24 Nov. 1657], and have attended ever since, my wife being ill, and my family distracted by my absence.

Conscious of innocence, I am willing to submit to any trial you appoint, but know not how to prepare for it, and the quarter sessions, at which I am under bail to appear, are at hand. I beg leave on security to repair to my family. [1 page.]

[Dec. 24.] 76. Petition of John Fyson to the Committee on the case. I beg to present to you the following particulars:—

- (1.) The warrant summoning me named no offence, so I came unprepared for defence, whereas the remonstrants could bring up their witnesses.
- (2.) The remonstrants are but a small part of the aldermen, and had I offended against the government of the city, the rest would have concurred.
- (3.) By the remonstrance, as I heard it read, and the indictment, the offence was committed in 1656, whereas I can prove that no complaint was made against me till I was called to be a witness in a trial 6 months later.
- (4.) My prosecutor and his witnesses are persons who have threatened to be revenged on me for giving evidence on trials against them; I therefore justly except against them.
- (5.) I am unskilful in law, and know not whether your jurisdiction can extend to such offences, or how far, if proved, they are criminals, or in what form to defend myself.

I beg, therefore, you will give me a copy of the petition and remonstrance, and allow me time to advise with my counsel, to draw up an answer, and bring witnesses. [1 page.]

Dec. 24. Order on the petition of John Fyson and Hannah and Wm. Hobson of Bristol, that their attendance be for the present dispensed with, the order of 24 Nov. notwithstanding, they giving bonds to the clerks of the Council, with sureties in 500*l.*, to attend within 14 days when required. [I. 78, p. 367.]
- Dec. 24. Note of a petition referred to the Committee for Petitions, of the burgesses of Uxbridge, Middlesex, an ancient borough, for confirmation of their former liberties and immunities, and such further franchises as may tend to the general good. Report thereon 7 Aug. 1657, that the Attorney-General should prepare a draft of a charter, preserving their rights, so that no damage accrue to the State; and order in Council accordingly. - Dec. 24. COUNCIL. Day's Proceedings.
1. 77. Order on report from the Mardike Committee about provisions, that as biscuit, beer, cheese, butter, and peas are wanted for 4 months for 3,000 men at Mardike, the Admiralty Commissioners consider what quantities will be required, and the charge of transport, and do their best to get their provisions at the lowest rates for ready money.
 2. To advise his Highness to send Capt. Johnson as storekeeper to Mardike, with orders to receive all provisions sent thither, and issue them out according to orders he shall receive, and to obey Maj.-Gen. Morgan; to have 8*s.* a day allowed him and his clerks, and 20*l.* in advance.
 3. Mr. Secretary to prepare a commission, and instructions for him accordingly.
 4. Mr. Secretary to write to Mr. Burton of Yarmouth, to contract for 60 chaldrons of coal, and send them to Mardike as Maj.-Gen. Morgan shall direct, and return a bill of exchange on Frost.
 5. The Customs' Commissioners to forbear payment of salaries to themselves or officers under them till Feb. 1, that all the money from customs may be used for navy purposes.
 7. A report from the Committee of Council on the estate of Mr. Toomes, felo de se, read, and recommended to the former Committee thereon; Lisle, Fleetwood, Wolsley, and Mr. Comptroller added to the Committee, to consider and advise.
 8. All public business to be considered in Council before private business, and the Lord President to remind Council thereof.
 9. Council to sit at 4 this afternoon.
 13. Lisle to sign the papers of Council in the absence of the Lord President.
 14. To recommend to the Trustees for Maintenance of Ministers an additional augmentation of 40*l.*, beside the 60*l.* now allowed, to Mr. Fuller, Martin's, Ironmonger Lane, London.
 - 15, 16. Also augmentations of 40*l.* each to the ministers of Sampford Peverell, co. Devon, and Flamborough Head, co. York. Approved 7 January.
 17. The report from the Committee on the Piedmontese Protestants, of a draft declaration for a collection for Protestants driven out of Poland, referred to Fiennes, Fleetwood, Sydenham, Wolsley,

Mr. Comptroller, and Strickland. Also on report that 100*l.* should be paid to Mr. Powell, who has managed the distribution of funds in Piedmont and kept the accounts;—order that the Treasurers of the money collected pay Powell 100*l.*, to be repaid out of interest on money lent out of the said fund. Approved 29 January.

18. A letter from the Admiralty Judges of 23 Dec., concerning the Jago of Portsmouth, a Portugal prize taken by the Dutch, and brought in by a State's frigate, referred to Fleetwood, Wolsley, Strickland, Fiennes, Mulgrave, Mr. Secretary, and Desborow, to consult with the Admiralty Judges, and take order for discharge of the ship according to the order of the 18th instant.

19. 78. The Admiralty Commissioners to provide a convoy for a vessel taking over 500 barrels of powder for his Highness's garrison at Mardike.

21. Order on report on the petition of Thos. Fitch, Minister [see 4 Nov. 1657], and on a certificate by the Commissioners for Preachers that they judge him a man of piety and learning, that he be restored to liberty to preach, the sentence by the Commissioners for Ejection notwithstanding. Approved 29 January. Annezing,

79. 1. Certificate of the passing of this order, the completing and issuing of which depends on his Highness's concurrence, for which he will be speedily attended. 18 Jan. 1658. [Draft, 1 page.]

22. Order on a letter from the Admiralty Judges on the French fly-boat Concord, taken off Belle Isle by a Spanish frigate, re-taken by the Constant Warwick, and claimed by M. de Quesne,—that the boat be restored to the owners, but as by the depositions it is doubtful whether the time of her retention by the Spaniards is more or less than 24 hours, those owners are to allow the mariners of the Constant Warwick a reward for salvage; in order to ascertain the amount, the Admiralty Judges are to value the fly-boat and her lading, and on payment of salvage, order her release and restitution. Approved 2 January. [I. 78, pp. 366–371.] Annezing,

President Lawrence to the President and Council in Scotland. Lady Margaret Crawford Lindsey has petitioned that, although the Act of Pardon, &c., allows her 400*l.* a year for herself, and children's maintenance from her late husband's estate, yet for 1655 the Trustees at Leith paid her but 100*l.*, though they had received the rents; his Highness and Council desire you to look into the matter, and see that what is due to her on the Ordinance be paid. [I. 78, p. 844.]

Dec. 24. 81. Capt. Thos. Sparling to the Admiralty Commissioners. I will deliver your instructions to the John ketch on her return from The Assistance, Dunkirk Road. Dover. I will not fail to answer whatever shall be desired from the fort at an hour's warning, as I have formerly done. I have entered on board the Assistance the men sent by Sir Rich. Stayner, as also some in the shallops, out of the ships sent in, making together 200 men, but there will be several inconveniences; the first and least, the great trouble they will meet with in coming into Dunkirk Road for their victuals, or in victuals being carried to them in foul weather, or lent by pursers of other ships, as they dare not trust one another. If there were a nation of them, it would be a gallant country for lawyers to live in, for they are generally guilty of very little justice amongst themselves.

The second inconvenience is that the shallops can only lodge 24 of their company on board, and the lodging of the rest perhaps a league from them may cause much mischief in case of any sudden emergency. The third is that you only allow 20 men to each shallop, which is 8 more than they can lodge, and they cannot be made serviceable with less than 30, which is not altogether a man to an oar; it will not do to seek for men in time of action, and no two ships are capable of sparing so many, or would do so without order. To prevent these and other inconveniences, the men appointed for them should be borne on board some ship riding in the same station with them, when there will be a certainty of having them when wanted, otherwise the shallops' being there, and being so remarkable for their rowing and sailing, will be of little or no avail. [$1\frac{2}{3}$ pages.]

Dec. 24. 82. Sir Rich. Stayner to the Admiralty Commissioners. I have caused the captain and master of the Portland to be examined by The London, Downs. the Judge-Advocate, as also the several witnesses; I understand the matter is very bad on both sides, but it has not yet come to a hearing, nor any report made. Capt. Horne shall be sent to you.

There is not above 400 men's victuals for a month to be had at Dover, which will be very little amongst all in the Downs. The ketch has arrived for Mardike, but having already sent one there, I will detain her until further orders. The ships are all gone to their stations, except the Portland, which is not fit to be sent, as she was like to have been cast away since she went out last; I hear there were many lost coming from Bordeaux. Twelve sail of Hollanders and English have passed through the Downs, and met 9 Englishmen-of-war off Cape St. Mares; it is said there are 30 men-of-war of great force lately come out of Biscay. [1 page.] Annexing,

82. i. Deposition of Wm. Baines, pilot of Deal. I piloted the Half Moon, laden with provisions, to Mardike, and Gen. Reynolds having intimated he intended returning in her, the provisions were hastened out, and she waited for his coming on board in the Splinter; but he went over in a small vessel, which we followed as far as we could, and lost sight of when night came on. [2 pages.]

Dec. 24. 83. Hum. Robinson to Williamson. Sir Francis [Norris] and I are troubled not to receive letters and receipts for money sent. Private affairs.

Some thousands of soldiers are drawn nearer our city, and some to quarter in Paul's. This day came an order to the Lord Mayor to suppress Christmas holidays, according to order of Parliament, and consequently all others. It is much doubted whether to-morrow we shall have an Episcopal sermon. [1 page.]

Dec. 25. Pe[rcy] Ch[urch] to Sec. Nicholas. Strict search is still continued after the Duke of Buckingham, and large sums offered for discovery of where he is. Last week St. John's son, who is in a consumption, landed at Dieppe, with his uncle, an M.D., who comes to take care of him.

[Paris.]

It is written from England that Lord Falconbridge is to succeed Reynolds as General. Writs are gone forth in Cromwell's name for 60 persons to come and consult next month on weighty affairs, and his Protectorship has reserved 10 names, the number intended being 70, including Earls Mulgrave, Warwick, and Manchester, and Barons Eure, Wharton, and Falconbridge.

The 8 suspected priests lately apprehended in London were taken prisoners to St. James's, whence 4 are sent to Windsor Castle, and the others to be disposed of elsewhere. [Extracts, Flanders correspondence.]

Dec. 25. Sir Rich. Browne [to Sec. Nicholas]. We have a list of those doughty knights whom Cromwell has designed for the composure of his other house; among whom a brother of father Goff's, and Huson, the shoemaker, who may bear his præludiary weapons, Sir Hugh's bones, and an awl, for the worthy ensigns of this his new nobility.

Jan. 4.

Reynolds is drowned, and Lord Falconbridge is to succeed him as captain-general of the English. Young Mancini is gone for England, and we expect printed relations of his magnificent reception.

I am told that Sir Edw. Herbert was a little surprised with his last summons, his physicians saying there was no danger till 2 hours before his death. He was yesterday buried in the Protestant burying-place in this suburb. Lord Jermyn and other honourable persons, with 5 coaches, attended the funeral. So I am told, for I had not the honour of being invited. [Extract, Flanders correspondence.]

Dec. 26. 84. Petition of the creditors of the late dukes of Hamilton to the Protector. To the same effect as that of 30 March 1657. Adding—We understand that the Earl of Abercorn and his son have obtained on a feigned suggestion your letter to the Council in Scotland, to put them in possession of the lands of Arran and Pomount, which will be destructive to us, and inconsistent with the laws of Scotland.

VOL. CLVIII.

We beg revocation of the said letters ; Anna, duchess of Hamilton, who has paid the whole fine, is in possession of the whole estate, and from her alone we can receive satisfaction, she being unheard when the said letter was granted. Also we beg to be left to the courts of justice in Scotland. With reference thereon to Council. [1 page.]

Dec. 28. 85. Bond of Marmaduke Robinson of Houghton, and Thos. Barnes of Witton-on-Wear, co. Durham, in 200*l.* to Sir Hen. Vane of Raby Castle, for Robinson's performance of an agreement of the same date, subject not named. [$\frac{3}{4}$ page.]

Dec. 29. 86. Petition of Wm. Wood, merchant, with Madlene his wife, and Sir Geo. Melville, his father-in-law, to the Protector. There was 5,000*l.* due to Sir Geo. Melville, as heir to his father, Sir Andrew Melville, of Garvoch, who sold therefor rents belonging to St. Andrew's University and Church and Corsagruil Abbey, which at the treaty of Berwick the late King wished to restore, and granted a precept to the Treasury of Scotland for payment ; but on account of sundry troubles and changes, the money remained unpaid, though Sir George came up to Westminster about it. On the change of government, Sir George petitioned the late Council of State for payment, and was referred to the Commissioners for Justice in Scotland. On your accession to power, Madlene Melville petitioned you, and you referred her to the same Commissioners, to see whether anything had been done. I went thereon into Scotland, and at much charge, made out Sir George's interest to the lands still unpaid for, transferred to me as a portion with his daughter, and for payment of debts.

You then ordered me payment from $\frac{1}{3}$ of my discoveries, but this proving too chargeable, you referred me to Parliament [see 25 Nov. 1657]. I have spent 1,000*l.*, 3 years' time, and lost my trade, and must perish without help. I beg payment at once, or a weekly allowance if put off. [1 sheet.] Annexing,

86. Report in detail on the whole state of the affair, with notes from depositions taken in the Exchequer in Scotland, and note of reference of his Highness to Council, 23 Feb. 1656-7. Endorsed with an abstract thereof. [3 pages.]

Dec. 29. Order thereon that the Council in Scotland inquire what lands, late Sir Andrew's or Sir George's, were made over, their value, the present holders, whether the church and university have the benefit, and whether the land is so settled as to disable the claimants from entering legally therein, and to report. 8. On report from the Admiralty Commissioners, on an order of 4 Nov. to them to speak with the patentees of the Ballast Office about surrendering their patent; also on the petition of Thos. Lodington, Sam. Clarke, Geo. Bowerman, and Oliver Williams, the patentees:—Order to advise a patent under the Great Seal of the Ballast Office to Desborow and Montague, without rent reserved, and they to order their deputies to render a rent of 400*l.* a year, 200*l.* to be paid to Mr. Jessop, and 200*l.* to the widow and children of Lieut.-Col. Dec. 29.
The Assistance,
Dunkirk Road.

87. Capt. Thos. Sparling to the Admiralty Commissioners. I gave an account of the inconveniences arising from the men belonging to the shallops lying at such a distance from them, and from the place of any sudden action, as also of those I found by lying myself away from my business, so that I cannot answer the ends you intend, except I were brass or iron, and no man is so capable of giving an account of business as he that is in the place of constant action, or personally present in time of action. How I can be either, I will leave you to judge, when I am in Dunkirk Road, and all present action lies at Mardike, a league distant. I have given such frequent attendance there, and had such intercourse between the two, that I have taken cold, and have been lately confined to my cabin for several days, which might have been expected, considering I have been sometimes forced to make use of the night, and other times in fogs at sea for 4 or 5 hours together, and not only subject to colds, but likely to find a close prison.

The inconveniences attending the passage between Dunkirk Road and Mardike have so impaired my health that I am incapable of sitting to write. You must be sensible of how ill the consequences of colds have been this winter, and of the bad effects they have produced to many hundreds upon the coast within these few months.

The sending of the Acadia upon the station by Sir Richard Stayner is a very seasonable present, as several of the squadron must soon be forced off for want of provisions. I am well satisfied with my ketch, and desire it may be the one that was intended for me. [1 page.]

88. Gerard Langbaine to Joseph Williamson. I am glad you and your company are safely returned to Paris; I take it for granted that Mr. Lamplugh, or some other of your friends here, have acquainted you with such matters as concern you, as the degree of master conferred upon you, under the seal of the University, a course somewhat beside the statute, but not without precedents sufficiently within the compass of our times, and what followed upon it; viz., your election into our Society; but your admission cannot be until you be personally present. If you can so dispose of your other occasions, it might be to your advantage to be here before Lady-day, or at furthest by Midsummer.

I purposed to send you a copy of the diploma, but my draft is yet in the registrar's hands, and I am not master of so much time at present as to transcribe a second. I have paid some of the fees, and engaged for the rest, but defer until I am satisfied what exercise in order to that degree you performed before your departure, as the beadles in their note demand fees for Austins and Quodlibets, as not done by you. Let me know this, and also what stay you intend in Paris.

Also—1. Whether you can get the Greek copy of Alexander Aphrodiseus de Fato, translated by Grotius and published in 4to. by his lady at Paris, since his decease in 1648, with others upon that argument.

2. Who is now chief keeper of the King's library?

3. Whether Sir Kenelm Digby be with you there?

Lastly. That you will deliver the enclosed to Charles, and inform yourself by all possible means and then me, in what condition he is at present, how and with whom he has lived since his coming over, what conversation he is of, what abilities he has for the French tongue, what his employment, and whatever else you think I would desire to know, for he has studiously declined ever to give any answer to questions of this kind. [1 page.]

Dec. 29. 89. W. Doull to Williamson. Thanks for the civilities shown me at Oxford for your sake. I could not deliver yours to Dr. Langbaine, he being at his country house ill. Mr. Lamplugh was very kind to me, and neglects nothing that concerns you. I cannot recount the kindnesses I received at Queen's. I dined at the hall, collationed at Lamplugh's chamber, was treated by Beeby and Halton, and Lamplugh took me over the other colleges and your grand library; so that, for the 2 days I was at Oxford, I seemed in an enchanted country.

Please thank your friends, and say how sensible I am of their favours. [1 page.]

Dec. 30. 90. Susanne Poitevin to Williamson. Thanks for your remembrance of me by your present, although they say it is one of bad omen. In fact I have remarked that the scissors have been sharp enough to cut out the name of Aunt that you gave me. I have said nothing to your poor wife; I will not trouble her joy at present—ill news are learned only too soon. Yet as aunt, I must reproach you, and say that my niece has been entirely faithful to you. [1 page, French.]

93. Petition of Wm. Trumbull and Rich. Hill [to the Protector]. By a fair and legal election, our 2 sons and others were lately elected to All Souls' College, Oxford, according to the statutes of the college. But the visitors oppose the election, and endeavour to make it void, and have applied to you to nominate others instead. We beg you not to do this, to the prejudice of our sons' election, till we are fully heard. With reference thereon to Lord Rich. Cromwell, chancellor, and Lord Fiennes, Commissioner of the Great Seal, to inquire and certify. [Copy, $\frac{1}{2}$ page.] Annexing,

93. I. Further reference by them to Dr. John Conant and the visitors of the University. 7 Jan. 1657–8. [$\frac{1}{2}$ page.]

93. II. Reply of the said visitors, with signatures of Dr. John Conant, vice-chancellor, Rob. Harris [president of Trinity], Hen. Wilkinson [principal of Magdalen hall], Jas. Barrow [professor of divinity], Thos. Goodwin [president of Magdalen], John Owen [dean of Christ Church], Thankful Owen [president of St. John's], and Fras. Howell [late professor of moral philosophy]—to Lord Rich. Cromwell, chancellor. We have your commands in reference to our late orders on a pretended election of fellows at All Souls. We thank his Highness for referring the petition sent to him to you, who have been our great friend here, and we enclose you a whole narrative, the truth of which made us willing to undergo the opposition we expected from those concerned to continue the corruption mentioned. Were it not for our wish to promote piety and learning, and prevent such evils as must provoke God's anger against the place, we would not undergo the opposition of crossing the corrupt interests of men. The corruption in that college being notorious, we were called on to take some course for its prevention, and made an order which, if it take place, the election must be null, and the corruption will be removed; if otherwise, no visitors can carry on any reformation. Oxford, 11 Jan. 1657–8. Endorsed [by R. Cromwell] "7 more, all college halls to be visited. Visitors' power, such as it was, to former university. Examine what statutes fit to be abrogated, or what to be added. Exhibit to his Highness or the Parliament. Explain a statute." [1 page.]

93. III. *Lord R. Cromwell and Fiennes to Dr. Conant and the visitors. We find it necessary to have a hearing of the business when all the parties can attend. We therefore summon some on your behalf to appear before us on [Thursday] next at the Council Chamber, Whitehall. 23 Jan. 1657-8. [Copy, $\frac{1}{2}$ page. 93. IV. Like summons to ———, to appear in the case of Trumbull and Hill. [Copy, $\frac{3}{4}$ page.]
93. V. Like summons to the master and fellows of All Souls College, to appear on behalf of the college. [Copy, $\frac{1}{2}$ page.]
93. VI. Order to [the said master and fellows], to suspend all proceedings meantime. [$\frac{3}{4}$ page.]
93. VII. Dr. John Conant, vice-chancellor, and 8 others [as in letter of 11 Jan., adding Chris. Rogers], to Lord Rich. Cromwell, chancellor. The Vice-Chancellor received your letter late last night, but we could not meet till this afternoon, to put ourselves in a way of obeying your commands. Had we found it possible, we should not have failed to attend your appointment, but the scantness of the time—the season of the year rendering the journey hazardous, the age and infirmity of some of us considered—makes us beg to be excused waiting on you at the time appointed. We beg you to consider our narrative formerly transmitted. Noted [by R. Cromwell] “Fellows fail; visitors’ power.” Oxford, 26 January 1657-8. [1 page, copy.]
93. VIII. Lord Richard Cromwell and Lord Fiennes to the visitors at Oxford. Though the other side are dissatisfied at their relations being kept from their places in All Souls, we will give you to this day fortnight to attend us on the case. Whitehall, 11 February 1657-8. [$\frac{3}{4}$ page, copy.]
93. IX. Order that Maidstone answer, on behalf of Lords Richard and Fiennes, that they had the desires of the Oxford visitors at second hand, and too late to take proper orders for their satisfaction, but they will try to persuade the other side to have patience till the weather prove seasonable for the visitors who wish it to come up and be heard, before report is made to his Highness. [$\frac{3}{4}$ page, copy.]
- Dec. 31. 94. *Petition of Thos. Salmon, for 70 creditors of Rich. Burt, merchant of London, to the Protector and Council. Rich. Burt lately took up from us 10,000*l.* worth of linen, worsted stockings, shirts, &c., and has packed them all with his own trunk and wearing apparel on board the John of Amsterdam, intending to go beyond seas, and never to pay for them. We therefore took out a statute of bankruptcy against him and seized the goods, but the Customs’ officers opened them and took out parcels of silk stockings, on* pretence that no duty had been paid on them. If we had not seized the goods, the ship would have departed with them all; we are not the offenders, but Burt, who is a bankrupt, and we were in possession before the Customs' officers came in. We therefore beg an order for all the goods, which will not nearly cover our debts. [1 sheet.]

Dec. ? 103. Petition of David Young to the Admiralty Commissioners. Some time since, I sent you a petition and reference from his Highness, showing that being employed by merchants beyond seas, and ordered to follow their instructions, I met a fleet of Spaniards at Santa Cruz. From affection to his Highness and my country, I neglected my owners' affairs, and gave intelligence to the English fleet under Gen. Blake, which proved to be of great concern.

On my return, my owners, finding I had not carried my commodities to the market directed, whereby they were much damaged, turned me out of the ship, so that I cannot maintain my family and pay my debts. Thereupon you desired me to give the names of the owners, who are :—

Col. Thos. Middleton, Stratford.

Hum. Beane, Thos. Colvert, Crutched Friars.

Thos. Gould, Redriffe Wall.

I beg compensation, and a command in the service. In the war with the Dutch, I recovered the Golden Sun of Horne, and lost my right hand, but had no recompense beyond surgeon's pay. [1 sheet.]
Annexing,

103. i. *David Young to Col. Clarke and the rest of the Commissioners on his case. His Highness referred to you my petition about the discovery of the Spanish fleet which was destroyed at Santa Cruz by Col. Blake. VOL. CLVIII.

105. Information and petition of Jonas Palmer, late carpenter of the Adventure :—

(1.) John Best, the commander, corresponds with persons disaffected to his Highness and the government, and on 20 May 1656, received a book given him by the Harrisons of Scarborough, entitled “A letter from a friend out of the country to a Christian brother,” in which are these words :—“ You know him whom some call the Protector, and what shifts he hath made ; but now he hath made so many that his cloak has grown too threadbare, that he hath nothing to cover him.”

The captain, after long concealing the pamphlet, gave it the gunner to read, that the officers might concur in it.

(2.) Best says that the war against the Spaniards is unlawful and unjust, and that new-made lords do not care for the loss of 2,000 or 3,000 men, so as they can get honour, and money into their purses ; that he laid down his command at the beginning of his Highness’s government, and would not have troubled the service had he not lost his estate.

(3.) On 30 June last, being at Scarborough, he came on board drunk, brought the gunner of the castle with him, and put him, and the lieutenant who was sent for him, into the bilboes.

(4.) He charged 6*l.* for convoying a Scotch vessel from Tynemouth bar to the Bass island.

(5.) Being in the Hope, he took on board several hogsheds of tobacco for Leith, and the vessel coming on shore on Barnett’s Sands off Cathy, to lighten her he staved the State’s beer, and preserved the tobacco.

I discover these things not through malice, though Best has procured my dismissal, but as bound thereto by the articles of war. I beg restoration to my place, in which I have served 9 years, lost a leg, and had several wounds, or a warrant for me and my steward to enter one of the State’s yards, having a wife and 4 small children. [1 page.]

106. Note by Palmer of the portion of the above relating to the Protector ; adding that Capt. Best said, in reference to the Spanish war, that we had enough of our own to look to, and should not try to get other Princes’ countries from them ; that the late King lost his head for trying to raise a little ship money, but now the country lies under 10 times harder taxation, so that they can hardly live.

That he associates most with those who are enemies to his Highness, and rails against him in all companies. [$\frac{2}{3}$ page.]

107. Charge by Capt. John Best and 3 others against Jonas Palmer of lying, stealing, and drunkenness. 9 articles. [1 page.]

108. Petition of the inhabitants of Alkar township to Rich. Sadler, the Protector’s auditor for co. Lancaster. We, and most of the town are undone by reason of the extraordinary overtopping and drowning floods, which have lately, as is well known, drowned our cattle, hay, and eorn, and the water that should have run into the sea is now washing down our houses. We are but tenants under Viscount Molineux, and none of us agreed with any one for this year. We cannot pay any rent, and can hardly keep ourselves, and we believe that the estates will shortly be part of the sea, and though our friends are helping us, we shall be impoverished for ever. We beg therefore that no composition may be demanded from us this year, and if Providence restores our tenements, we will freely pay what is legally imposed. 11 signatures. [Copy. 1 page.]

109. Petition of Rich. Baker, for himself and the merchants and traders of England, to the Admiralty Commissioners. We have lost 1,800 ships and their ladings, almost to our ruin, and the overthrow of thousands of families, chiefly caused by the subjects of this Commonwealth, who have gone to the enemy, taken up commissions, and assisted them like parrieides, and among them none more active than the Carews, who have become powerful for mischief and piracy; and now that you have Mich. Carew in your possession, you are urged to set him at liberty, that English prisoners may be freed by their friends' demands. We beg you will not set the wolf at liberty, that your poor sheep and lambs may be devoured.

I, Baker, offer to give bond that if you liberate Augustine Sans, prisoner in Chelsea College, he will obtain the release of Lancelot Stepney, and as many English as are at Ostend, we setting free as many Spanish eaptives. Also to give bond that all the English prisoners of war at St. Sebastians and Passage shall be freed, for such subjects of the King of Spain in Chelsea College as I shall name. I do it to prevent the underhand practiees used to free Carew, and the prejudice that may ensue thereby. [1 sheet.]

110. Petition of Rich. Baker to the Admiralty Commissioners, for release of And. Davalos Sambrana, a youth taken at Jamaica, and now prisoner in Chelsea College. Has never since the war with Spain desired any prisoner's release in lieu of many English taken with him, but has freed at his own charge not only them, but many more English taken prisoners by the Spaniards. [$\frac{1}{2}$ page.]

111. Petition of Antonio de Heredia, Barnardo Salcedo, Josepho Dyas, and Francisco de Salinas, prisoners in Chelsea College, to the Admiralty Commissioners. Have been in duranee $1\frac{1}{2}$ years in much misery and want, and have written to Flanders, where the Admiralty Judges have appointed release of Hen. Caudell, Rich. Wells, Wm. Barrett, and another prisoner at Gravelines, who was to come to negotiate their liberty, but he fell sick. Beg an order for their enlargement, when the others will be enlarged. [$\frac{2}{3}$ page.]

112. Petition of Thos. Lawrence, Deputy Mayor, the Aldermen, and others of Colchester, to the Admiralty Commissioners. Divers small Ostenders have for several weeks infested the entrance to our harbour, and taken several vessels passing to and from London and on fishing affairs, to the ruin of divers families, and of the trade with London. We beg you to employ 2 nimble ketches to ply betwixt Harwich and the west of Kent.

VOL. CLVIII.

As these private vessels are small and well piloted, the employing of some Wivenhoe vessels will be an effectual means to keep this coast clear, for they know the passages amongst the sands. 20 signatures. [1 page.]

113. Petition of Edm. Cole, master of the Prosperous of Colchester, and Geo. Buckeham of the Roebuck of Ipswich, and their companies, being 8 men, to the Admiralty Commissioners. Coming from Newcastle last September, we were surprised and taken by Peter Duerwella of Ostend, who carried us onto his vessel, put some of his men into ours, and ordered them to Flushing. He would have taken us all prisoners to Ostend, had we not promised on oath to procure the release of 8 Ostend prisoners at Plymouth, and 2 at Edinburgh. On this we were carried into Flushing, where one of our vessels had arrived, but the other was lost by negligence of the men. There we saw 8 English prizes, which had been brought in by Ostenders. Having been obliged to take this oath, we beg the release of the men. [1 page.] Annexing,

113. 1. List of the Ostenders in Plymouth and Edinburgh, whom they promised to try to get released. [1 page.]

114. Petition of Julius Billers, mayor, Wm. Purdy, recorder, several aldermen and ministers, and numerous inhabitants of Coventry, to the Protector. We have long been subject to great fluctuations of government, and the enemy has had many advantages. After long wandering in darkness, we have, by your Highness's ducture, found a safe path to walk in, and a way to escape from the snares laid for us. Yet we fear our unthankfulness and murmurings under your government have encouraged the enemy to endanger the blessed fruit gained by so much blood spilled in the late commotion. As the powers of hell are at work, we think it our duty to you, as our supreme magistrate, confirmed by Parliament, to protest against the barbarity of those who would again roll the kingdom in blood, and violate their duties to God and you, and we hold ourselves bound to stand by you against old or new enemies.

We beg you to perfect our settlement, curb profaneness and ungodliness, discriminating Christian liberty from damnable error, and providing for the nation's future, so that you may perfect God's work. With very numerous signatures. [11 sheets.]

115. Petition of John Miller, Thos. Hopkins, and other inhabitants of Crockerne Pill, co. Somerset, to the justices of peace for the county. It has been ordered in a late suit in the Court of Exchequer, by the city of Bristol against the petitioners, that their houses standing on the river should be pulled down, to the utter undoing of themselves and families of 50 persons, and they understand the sheriff of the county has a writ to that effect. Beg some course to prevent this, as they are chiefly poor mariners and shipwrights, with no wages to procure other habitations, but must perish under hedges, unless assisted. [1 page.]

116. Petition of Sir Hen. Croke, clerk of the Pipe, to the Treasury Commissioners. From the time of Stephen to Hen. III.,

all rents and debts due to the Crown were charged in the annual Exchequer roll. In 54 Hen. III., on proposal by the Treasurer and Barons, it was agreed that all farms, great and little, and all determined and known debts should be written on the said rolls. In 10 Edw. I., all farms for which rents are paid to the Exchequer, and all clear debts, are to be therein written.

This course has never been altered, though somewhat violated since the annexation of the augmentation revenue to the Court of Exchequer.

The revenue for recusancy, since its first rise, and all seizures for Crown debts and reserved rents have been charged in these rolls, and thence scheduled, viz., the convictions to the remembrancers, for process to be made, and the seizures to the auditors, to ensure payments, and all discharges are entered in the great roll.

Hearing that you,—in the first clause of your order of reformation, wherein all other officers of the court are restored to their just rights,—have declared that all rents reserved on leases of lands of delinquents and recusants as others (except outlawries and extents for debt) should be in charge before the auditors, I beg to represent that this would differ greatly from the ancient course, be repugnant to the Act for Recusancy, and destructive to my office. I beg that the said rents may be entered in the great roll, and scheduled forth thence, and given in charge by the auditors to the receivers general of counties. [1½ page.] Annexing,

117. Petition of Hum. Dewell, merchant of London, to the Admiralty Commissioners. Manuel de Arauxo, Melhor Deabreo, and Jos. Deviera, young students of the Canary Islands, lately coming for England, and intending to depart without doing the least prejudice, were before their arrival seized, and their goods taken from them, and are now imprisoned at Plymouth, and have been much tortured by burning of match between their fingers, though their friends and relations have always been well-affected to England, and have dealt with divers persons in London, and though the English have free access and courteous entertainment in the Canaries. Begg that they may be at liberty to come to London, and engages to find security for their appearing and faithfulness. [¾ page.]

118. Petition of Thos. Hall, Joshua Woolnough, and Sarah Ward, widow, to the Admiralty Commissioners. We have delivered into the Ordnance Office gunners' stores for furnishing the last summer's fleet and other provisions, since 30 Sept., expecting the same rates as we had in summer until we made a new contract; but the Ordnance Office can only allow us the same price for provisions received since 30 Sept., without your order, which we beg, to enable us to fulfil our contracts for supply of the ships in their present expedition. With note that only new contract prices can be allowed for what was delivered since 30 Sept. [1 page.]

119. Petition of Chas. Hatsell, gunner of the Paragon, to the Admiralty Commissioners. I am committed to custody for an information of miscarriage. I was gunner of the Advice on the coast of Scotland, when Dundee surrendered to Parliament, and took care of divers shot sent on board from the town, which did not suit the guns on the ship, and they remained there 3 years. When I was removed to the Paragon, I requested Major Bourne, Navy Commissioner, to take charge of my remains of stores, and was ordered to put them on a prize ship at Harwich, which I did, leaving a man in charge till a gunner was appointed. When the prize was hailed on shore, the shot was taken out and put into a boat, to be delivered at the Ordnance stores in the Tower, by Hen. Porrage, to whom I gave a note for the Ordnance officers, but never received a penny from him. I beg to be set at liberty, having been engaged 8 years in desperate and hazardous undertakings since the first troubles. [1 page.]

120. Petition of Edw. Hodge, who has come from Ostend as solicitor for Geo. Toughe, Dan. Polson, and Alex. Bell, shipmasters, and 21 private seamen, prisoners at Ostend, to the Admiralty Commissioners, to consider their sad condition, and that of their wives and families at home, and order their release and exchange by freeing as many Dunkirk and Ostend prisoners in England. [1 page.]

121. Petition of Edw. Hodges to the Admiralty Commissioners, for release of Evan Harvoy, seaman of Ostend, from Chelsea College, and Olaus Dunbar, pilot, prisoner in Plymouth, in exchange for Rob. Michell, master's mate, prisoner at Dunkirk, and Wm. Reynolds at Ostend, both taken 24 March last, and kept miserable prisoners to their insulting enemies ever since. [$\frac{2}{3}$ page.]

122. Petition of Capt. John Jeffries, of the Nantwich, to the Admiralty Commissioners. I have served in the wars against the Dutch and Spaniards. Mine was the first ship sent to discover the enemy in the design against Santa Cruz, and I did good service in the engagement. At the surprisal of the Spanish galleons at Cadiz in Sept. 1656, I was in Sir Rich. Stayner's squadron, and engaged a galleon; the enemy signalled for a parley, and I sent my pinnace aboard. They desired quarter for their lives, and brought several parcels of gold and silver to my men, and more was seized on deck. I bought several of these parcels given to my company, till the surprisal by me and others of the Dutch ship Fame, value 200*l.*, when, on false information to Vice-Admiral Bourne, I was sent for on board his ship, my ship searched, and gold, value 1,400*l.* taken, all which I bought, except 3 pieces given me by Spanish passengers on the Fame. I beg restoration of the gold, and removal of my suspension from my command. [1 sheet.]

123. Petition of Philemon Pownoll, late commander of the ship Wildman in the service, for his uncle, Ezekiel Pownoll, rector of Wraxall, co. Somerset, to the Protector. Ten years ago, part of my uncle's rectory was seized on pretence of delinquency but never sequestered, for want of proof. Dr. Gorge then, by sinister means, gained a presentation to the rectory, and on arbitration was awarded it, paying my uncle 60*l.* a year, which of late he refuses to pay. A sequestration agent of the County Commissioners now collects the arrears of the rectory, and my uncle was summoned to Colchester, 30 miles off, before the Commissioners, some related to Dr. Gorge; but being 100 years old he cannot travel, and now the case is to be heard at Wraxall. I beg my uncle may have justice. [$\frac{3}{4}$ page.] Annexing,

124. Petition of Abel Richardson to the Admiralty Commissioners. I made saltpetre for the State during the late wars. Some of the powder delivered into the stores by Mr. Molins and me was not so good as expected on a second proof. I was not faulty, Mr. Jarvis managing the powder work, and I not permitted to meddle with it; but I had the making of saltpetre for London and Middlesex, which I discharged so well that there was no complaint during my commission.

Wishing to serve the State, I took a lease, of which 3 years remain, of Cashalton Powder Mills, in partnership, but am unjustly kept from them, and therefore I am erecting mills within 4 miles of London. I beg to have the making of gunpowder for the State. [1 page.]

125. Petition of the same to the like effect. [1 page.]

126. Petition of Rob. Ripley, alderman, and Chris. Richardson, citizen of Hull, to the Admiralty Commissioners. Lionel, son of Rich. Ripley, aged 16, and Rob. Goodheire, nephew of Richardson, aged 15, served on the Bonadventure of Hull, which in a voyage to Holland, was taken 22 May last by the Dunkirk and Ostend fleet, and the crew have suffered very hard imprisonment at Dunkirk. Notwithstanding the general exchange, the 2 boys are kept on pretence of being merchants. Beg that some way may be ordered for their speedy release. [1 page.]

127. Petition of the inhabitants of Rochester, Chatham St. Margaret's, and Stroud to the Admiralty Commissioners. We were ordered to take into our houses a great number of seamen from the Sound, &c., ill with the spotted fever, and keep them till they recovered, and were promised recompense. We lost many friends and relations by the disease, which grew very violent, through the multitude of diseased seamen forced upon us. There has been 415*l.* due to us for 2 years past; we have not received a penny, and most of us are very poor. We beg payment. [1 page.]

128. Petition of Diego Romaso, prisoner in Chelsea College, to the Admiralty Commissioners. Going as a passenger in the Jacob of Amsterdam, from Cadiz to the Canaries, to sail thence for the Indies for a livelihood, the ship was taken by the English, and I made prisoner; I have so remained 3 months. I am more than 60, weakly and sickly, and I beg release on parole to procure the release of an Englishman of my quality, or a shipmaster at Ostend; I have procured a London merchant to be security in 40*l.* for my so doing. 129. Petition of Chas. Yew, Wm. Hebb, and Emanuel Tambay, a Christian negro, late master and merchants of the Negro Merchant, bound for Guinea and Barbadoes, to the Admiralty Commissioners. We were taken 14 months ago at the Land's End by 2 Biscay men-of-war, commissioned by the titular King of Scots and Spaniards, and were carried to St. Sebastian's, where we have lain in prison under much hardship till 30 days since, when Yew and Hebb were released on parole, to procure in exchange Capt. Michael de Londeris and another prisoner in Plymouth, but Tambay is detained "under very hard usage, endeavouring to pervert him to the Roman religion." We beg discharge of 2 prisoners in lieu of ourselves and Tambay. [$\frac{3}{4}$ page.]

130. Petition of Jane, wife of Capt. Rich. York, prisoner at the Groyne in Spain, to the Admiralty Commissioners. My husband has twice been taken prisoner by the Spaniard; first last June 12 months, as captain of the James, after a hot dispute, losing all his goods and merchandise; then 9 Sept. last, in the Thomas and Susan bound for Virginia, after a manful fight, the Spaniard having 162 men and he 15.

I have 2 children dependent, and there is a good opportunity to exchange my husband for Capt. Bernardo Gerraldowne, of the Lady Mary of St. Sebastian's, who has been 9 months prisoner in Chelsea College. I hope you will permit this, as I have no other means for my husband's release. [1 page.]

Notes of petitions referred to the Committee for Petitions, on which no Council orders are given, all in I. 93, viz. :—

Sarah Rascow, administratrix of her brother, John Norris, that the Worcester House Commissioners may state his accounts, and that she may have the benefit of the order of 3 July 1656. Her brother was captain of horse in England, and had arrears stated by the Cheshire Committee, but he went to Ireland in 1649 as chaplain to Col. Moore's regiment, and died at Dublin. [No. 22.]

John Aynsworth for some place of employment, being the only son of Mr. Aynsworth, driven from Holland in the late wars with the Dutch. [No. 24.]

- Thos. Weld and Sam. Hamond, ministers, and other inhabitants of Gateshead. The town is oppressed by 24 of the inhabitants, who assume without right a power to govern the rest, make bye-laws, oppress them with taxes, elect officers of like spirit, and hinder the work of reformation. Beg that these known opposers of godliness may no longer be suffered, but that the godly persons in a list annexed may be empowered to act. Also that the charter for trade now in agitation may be settled in hands recommended by justices of peace adjoining, and aldermen and ministers of Newcastle and Gateshead, who know the inhabitants. [No. 54.]
- Wm. Prideaux. Chris. Uccalls of Genoa, captain of a ship of 300 tons, intends to lade valuable merchandise there for the West Indies, and employ the proceeds in coin and bullion, indigo, hides, and cochineal, which he will bring to London, sell them, and relade for Genoa; this will be a great benefit to the Customs, and no small detriment to the Spaniard. Begg a pass or safe conduct for him, in case he meets with his Highness's ships, or puts into any of his Highness's ports in America, so that he may be received as a friend and ally. [No. 60.]
- Anne, widow of Capt. Hughes, for a gratuity, and the rest of the arrears due to her husband, who, by his Highness's command, was captain-comptroller to Gen. Jeffry Burwell, Esq. For payment of his salary of 20*l.* a year, with 50*l.* arrears, for his office of estreator of all the fines and americiaments out of that court (sic) into the Exchequer. The Treasury Commissioners see no cause why it should not be paid. [No. 71.]

Geo. Middleton and Somerford Oldfield. Were imprisoned with Chris. Guy and 3 servants, and their estates seized; they were released by his Highness's order, but the servants, not being mentioned, continue still in prison. Beg their release. [No. 74.]

131. [Fragment of a speech made at Queen's College, Oxford.]

Like father like son, he was like a tower of stone, and fell heavy on the upper commoners, against whom his envy was, and he intended only to break up the frost that he might find a way to abuse the gentlemen.

3. He and his conspirator deserve the Tower, that being a traitor's castle, in that they had a plot to put off an old jest on their auditors as an extempore one; if extempore, how written down? A second conspirator deserves worse than the Tower, for intending, deceptio visus, in taking away the candle. Mr. Dean, when his candle is out, though he is slandered to have been out in his own prayers, will find the way to your backside, and make you glad, if not to turn your coat, to turn your back, putting you to your prayers, and asking Mr. L. forgiveness in calling on his name in extremity. Now they talk of schools, you say he was of St. Paul's; so I thought, for all that come thence may be called φῶυλος, in English, fools. We have 3 in Queen's, but one is a rose between two nettles.

I dedicate this to the gentlemen, to make them amends for being the secondary cause of their abuse in revenging them of their enemy, as it is the greatest service I can do them. Quæ vitia sunt communiora sunt. This is manifest in that the lower are the more commoners; and now the frost will be frozen into perpetual silence. I hear you intended to hire a copy of my speech, and to print it; I would rather you would give me money not to have it printed, for what concerns particular persons may redound to my private inconvenience. If I have deserved it, let me be only the college, not an University laughing stock. [Scrap, closely written.]

An obscure letter, much blended with cypher, relating to Don Quixote, Sancho Panza and Dulcinea, Herman and Dorothea, Richard, the Knight of Malta, &c., seemingly a blind to conceal the following, written in ink slightly different, which reads downwards, but yet falls in with the sense read in the ordinary way. "Never was Don Quixote more affrighted at the noise of the" "fuller's mills than I was at the receipt of your letter. I found it in my father's hands, opened, and he reading of it; knowing it came from Oxford, and that you presently much suspected it was some discourse of 158" "impossible he should not. Well, but to return to our business: how does your own p9sk2?" "I am sure he understood somewhat of Richard the groom's be quiet, as it was so plain written." "I could never yet have the happiness either to f2262, or to 4cc5p3; such has been my misfortune hitherto, but now I know I must do one, if not both." [1 page.]

Jan. 1. 1. Sir Richard Stayner to the Admiralty Commissioners. I distributed the provisions from Dover amongst the ships, as also some out of the Speaker. According to an order from his Highness, I sent the Half Moon to Mardike, to bring back the 5 companies of Col. Gibbon's regiment. The difference being ended on board the Portland, I will send her to sea to cruise with the rest of the ships off Beachy, but must keep in the Newberry and Essex, they having little victuals.

The Foresight in Margate Road has seized 5 very suspicious persons from Holland; I have directed her to prosecute her orders on that station 5 days longer. Capt. Horne lives at the Roebuck in Limehouse. I will observe your directions as to commanders remaining too long in harbour; not only the Bramble has lain in Dover Pier 10 days, but Capt. Streat is never 8 days out of Dover; both I and Mr. White have told those Commanders of it, but to no purpose. [2 pages.]

Jan. 1. 2. Capt. Thos. Sparling to the Admiralty Commissioners. If there be not more dispatch given to answering applications for a speedy supply of provisions, too many of the squadron will be absent to fetch what they need, and thus weaken the guard on the coast. I require a supply of clothes, many men being sick for want of them. Particulars of the condition and wants of ships. I need some more ships to strengthen the guard; 20 altogether upon the coast would be too few to continue the two guards at Dunkirk Road and the Splinter, and to provide scouts while any are absent victualling. The enemy, seeing how few we are, are tallowing their ships, which I expect is in order to their getting out next spring tide. [1½ pages.]

Jan. 2. 3. Capt. Thos. Sparling to the Admiralty Commissioners. Particulars of receipt and expenditure of provisions on board the several ships, as also of their remains and wants. I will give the respective pursers notice to transmit proper accounts; the mistakes formerly made arose from their trusting to others while ill. There are 5 frigates in Dunkirk port, of from 6 to 40 guns, which have been newly tallowed, and are getting up their yards and topmasts, by which it is supposed they intend to sail in a few days, and I have not a frigate, nor any in Dunkirk Road fit to prevent them coming out, save my own, and 2 or 3 others, that are scattered in various places.

My ship and 2 others here are foul; there are 4 in Mardike at half allowance, and one before Gravelines. This is all on the coast of Flanders, and one has to be sent over to Calais almost daily. [1½ pages.]

4. Sir Rich. Stayner to the Admiralty Commissioners. The Reserve has arrived, with 26 sail under convoy from the Canaries, Malaga, Bordeaux. I have directed him to touch within the Isle of Wight for such vessels as are bound along the coast, in his way to Plymouth. I have sent up the Hawk ketch as high as the Tower, with Hen. Finch, related to Lord Finch, Jas. Shirley, Albertus Twing, Jno. Wainwright, and Geo. Kempt, who were seized as suspicious persons on coming from Flushing; I have given notice thereof to Secretary Thurloe.

Capt. Groves of the Pembroke, meeting with a small frigate of 3 guns that came out of Flushing with the Parrot and another, to lie off Guernsey and Jersey, chased her on shore near Seine Head, but only saved 2 of her guns. One of his men who killed another by accident, while engaged in the business, has been put on board this ship, with 3 witnesses; so I shall set the Judge-Advocate to work thereon, as desired by Lord Montague.

Marmaduke Needham to Wm. Swift. Lady Howard was brought to bed of a 7 months' child, on which Lord Howard, formerly Col. Howard, put her away. His younger brother, Phil. Howard, challenged for this Lord Belasyse, uncle to Lord Falconbridge, out of his bed, and ran him through the hand in a duel, but the seconds parted them before they proceeded further. Lord Howard is gone over to Scotland to find Lord Rothes, the other suspected person, but his Highness having sent a post after him, it is hoped the duel there will be prevented.

Mr. Secretary has been ill but is mending. Council has ordered a collection for the Polish exiles of the reformed religion who have taken sanctuary in Silesia, which will be managed like the other collections for Piedmont.

Geo. Downing went hence on Saturday, but is detained by winds at Gravesend. He will find enough to do as resident in Holland, for the Hollanders are brewing great designs, and equipping a fleet to assist Portugal, and will also see that the Dane does not lose the Sound; they will give him money and 4 or 5 regiments of old soldiers.

All our talk is concerning the other house, as 20 Jan. is approaching, and what name shall be given it, as also what will be the issue of this next meeting. Popular chat bespeaks a King, because they would have it so.

P.S. — Some say Lords Warwick, Manchester, Wharton, and others are not inclined to sit. [½ page, copy, French correspondence.]

Lord Culpepper to [Sec. Nicholas]. Congratulate the Lord Chancellor on his place; the King has chosen well, he is the fittest person to sit when the King is restored to his right, and for the present service in getting thither. Wise princes favour those who manage their greatest affairs.

I have hope of a good rise for the King's recovery from a rupture with these States, on the insolencies which the English (when they have set up that new sun) will put upon them; for if there be a break, it will not be in jest, as the last scuffling was, and it would be great odds on the King's side for the affections of his subjects to be powerfully seconded by sea and land from these States.

Cromwell intends nothing but the title of a King, and he will quickly have it. Sir Rob. Stewart writes him that 5,000 of the English-Scotch army,—the best men Cromwell has,—are ready to go to England to prevent opposition. I hear that the King is to meet his sister near Breda, on Spanish ground. [Extract, Flanders correspondence.]

[Percy Church to Sec. Nicholas]. The Marquess of Ormond's employment for Germany is not much approved. Mr. Allington, second brother to Lord Allington, bred in France and Italy, has gone there. Sir Wm. Layton, with Col. Fleetwood's regiment, was forced by foul weather into the north of England. Lord Falconbridge's embassy is confirmed, but he much presses to be first made Lord President of the North. His brother-in-law [Rob.] Rich. is far gone in a consumption.

Many persons are daily secured in city and country. The French and other ministers, with some of their congregations, were made prisoners on Christmas Day, but afterwards released. Some think Lord Fairfax will be questioned about the last plot, when Sir John Wagstaffe was in the West. If Cromwell begins his Parliament with a sacrifice of the blood of the apprehended priests, it will add to his former great crimes, but neither add to his ends at home nor his glory abroad. Sir John Berkley and Sir Marm. Langdale are made lords. [Extract, Flanders correspondence.]

14. [The visitors of Oxford University to Lord Rich. Cromwell, Chancellor]. The above order and injunction was sent by us, and delivered in a meeting of the warden and fellows, so that they had sufficient notice.

We have power to make such orders by the statutes of the House, and the practice of local visitors, beside the power entrusted to us by his Highness as extraordinary visitors.

The election was so illegal as to be wholly null without utter overthrow of the power of the visitors, no resignations having been made according to order. Therefore we leave it to you whether the petitioners have any just cause of complaint. [$\frac{3}{4}$ page.]

2. The Warden to publish it to the society within 3 days after.

3. Any fellow chosen by money to be deprived of his place as perjured, on sufficient proof.

4. Every probationer to take oath that he has neither directly nor indirectly promised money or money's worth for his election.

5. Every elector to take oath not to vote for any whom he believes to have offered money for the place.

6. Every man elected to take oath that at his resignation he will not sell his place.

I am troubled at having no answer to my letter of 12 Dec. The victualling of ships one from another causes great confusion. Do not require from me an account of ships beyond my reach, but I will not neglect or refuse to receive the provisions that you send. Particulars of ships. The reason why they do not carry their full proportion of victuals is that they do not give the victualler a true account of their stowage.

T. Mompesson to John Necklet, Brussels [alias Sec. Nicholas]. I am glad to find that the rebels in England fall foul among themselves, though we have no confirmation here of what you mention of the falling out at Council between Fleetwood, Desborow, Falconbridge, Montague, &c. It is reported that there have been great jeerings about the electing members for Parliament.

A gentleman who left London 3 weeks since, says the insolency of the soldiers is extremely increased, and grown to such a height that a gentleman scarce dares to take the wall of a foot soldier. Also he says the army begins to meddle with affairs of State, and is much bent on peace with Spain. There are rumours of a Spanish agent in England and a private treaty, but they arise from the jealousy of some Huguenots, who cannot endure that Spain should have any peace.

I fear the English fleet will be victorious at the Sound, the Dutch having sent no relief to the Dane; it is strange they should be so backward as, through English privateers with Swedish commissions, their trade is in very bad condition. I wish it may grow worse till they truly embrace our King's interest. Some think if war breaks out it will be hard for the English, the Dutch having more and better ships than when they fought last, and the English rebels having lost many of their best ships in the Jamaica design.

The trade of the West of England is almost ruined since the war with Spain, most of their vessels being taken and carried to St. Sebastian's by Spanish frigates, which wait daily about Land's End, so that a merchant vessel cannot stir, there being sometimes no convoy for 3 or 4 months. Bristol has lost 250 sail.

Richard Cromwell has kept very close in Whitehall since his being made Protector, and his fear will increase if the news be true that his brother Harry has been stabbed to death with a knife in Ireland. I hope Parliament will produce some happy change in England. [$2\frac{3}{4}$ pages, Flanders correspondence.]

[Jan. 14.] 16. Remonstrance of Fras. Thomson and other farmers of the excise of beer, ale, &c., in London and Westminster, to Council. Being induced as much by a wish to bring the revenue to a certainty as for any end of our own, we offered for the excise of beer, ale, cider, perry, and metheglin in London, Westminster, Middlesex, and Surrey, 1657-8.

128,400*l.* a year, being 50,000*l.* more than the average former proceeds.

We did so believing the excise improvable, when interested persons could discover the frauds of the brewers. We applied ourselves thereto, and though we have been unable to pay our full monthly rent, we have advanced the former proceeds by 47,000*l.* a year, or 33,400*l.*, beside the additional 6*d.* a barrel on strong beer. Therefore, though we are only able to pay 123,400*l.* instead of the 128,400*l.* agreed on, we hope we shall be considered as having done a good service.

If we were assisted by law against the brewers' frauds, we should not only pay our full rent, but gain much for ourselves. But the brewers, being irritated by finding their former avenues to fraud closed, combine against us to try to compel us to throw up our farm. This they do—

1. By finding out new ways of concealment.
2. By maintaining suits at law against us out of a common purse.
3. By withholding the duty in their hands till the utmost extremity be used.
4. By replacing goods taken in judgments against them.
5. By abstaining from brewing for a season by turns, to bring the receipts low, and so cause our estates and those of our sureties to be seized for non-payment of rent.

We cannot use our estates or credit to raise our rent, being clogged with recognizances in 40,000*l.*; we are above 18,000*l.* out of purse. We beg either a Privy Seal for a tally for the next rent in lieu of 10,700*l.* advanced, or dispensation from the monthly payments, and acceptance of what comes in weekly, we clearing the total of the quarter's rent at the end of the quarter. Signed Fr. Thomson, Esa. Risby, Ste. Kirk, Ri. Best, J. Baker. [1 $\frac{2}{3}$ sheets.]

The man who shot another on board the Pembroke has been acquitted, there being no proof that he did it, but he is imprisoned for neglect of duty. 20 sail of North Sea fishermen desire a convoy, or they will have to dispose of their vessels. I hear the Spaniards are preparing a fleet for sea, but that it goes on very slowly for want of money. Several ships in the Downs want ballast, but they can obtain none either at Dover or Deal, for want of money to pay the men for their work. Particulars of ships. [2 pages.]

Viscount Falconbridge to [Amb. Lockhart]. Being presented by the Commissioners of the Great Seal to the rectory of John the Baptist, London, upon the death of the last incumbent, and free choice of the people there, and being examined by the Commissioners, I had my instrument of admission obstructed, on an order from his Highness not to admit any sequestered person.

I was sequestered 9 years ago for a passage in a prayer, but both before and since, was for the Parliament, and suffered much formerly by Bishop Wren. I beg that this offence may be passed over, being destitute of a livelihood. With reference to Privy Council, 2 Jan. 1657-8. [1 page.]

32. Capt. Jno. Stoakes to the Admiralty Commissioners. I gave an account of my arrival at Leghorn with 6 frigates, of sending Capt. Whetstone in the Fairfax with 3 more to ply between Zante and Malta for security of trade, and of his want of sails and cables. I have now only 14 weeks' victuals at whole allowance throughout the fleet, but I intend lengthening it by putting the mariners to short allowance, and getting what I can in those parts. If you send more victuals, it will be best done on a clean frigate or two, which may be continued in the room of some unfit to remain abroad. If wind and weather had permitted, I intended ere this to have been at Tunis, endeavouring a peace with those people, which shall not be neglected. Capt. Whetstone has taken a Fleming, bound for Valencia; with corn on Spanish account. [1 page.]

33. Capt. Thos. Sparling to the Admiralty Commissioners. A fishing sloop employed in carrying victuals to the Dartmouth has been cast away by foul weather, but her men were saved, although several are sick and not likely to live, through the cold they took walking all night on the sand in their wet clothes; and many not put to the like extremity have fallen ill. It is the sickliest time at sea I ever knew. If I am to continue on the coast, I shall want provisions, firing, and necessary money, as it is tedious and unprofitable taking from ship to ship. The booms have been all broken to pieces by the violence of the sea. [1 page.]

34. Petition of the University of Oxford to the Protector. We bless God who has raised you up to advance the Government and learning. The profession of civil law is one of the most eminent parts of learning for which this University is famous; there has been a professor allowed to train the students, the libraries are plentifully furnished with law books, and the students are bound to take degrees therein.

This profession is in high esteem throughout Europe, and is of great use in reference to equity, commerce, navigation, and trade, the laws of honour and arms, embassies, treaties, wars, reprisals, &c., and qualified persons in London were always ready to give their advice in such affairs.

For this and their knowledge in ecclesiastical causes they only were admitted to con-usance and practice in causes of marriage, tithes, dilapidations, proving of wills, and other matters to which the common law courts make no pretence. We therefore beg that you and the two Houses of Parliament will establish courts of judicature for causes of these natures, employing therein persons qualified in judicature, as most of the cases will require skill in law, and sometimes appeals to special judges delegate.

Thus if our desire take effect, those who have studied law may subsist with comfort, and our younger students be encouraged to enable themselves the same way. [1 page.] Enclosing,

This bill is considered by persons of learning fit to be begun in our House, and you are thought a fit person to present it. I therefore beg you to present it to the House, and press that it may be accepted and committed. It will be well taken at your hands and seconded. Whitehall, 12 February 1657-8. 36. Petition of Hen. Scobell to Parliament. Being called in a time of danger and difficulty to be clerk of Parliament, obeyed readily and faithfully, and did his utmost to serve to the time that the House was interrupted. Also at the meeting again of Parliament, attended to perform the like service to those "whom the Lord, by a stupendous and wonderfully over-ruling hand of Providence, had again restored." But finding a worthier man is chosen, he submits, being very sorry if, in the intervening changes (wherein he has been merely passive, and taken no oath to any of them), he has merited their displeasure, and begs their pardon.

The King to Capt. Rob. Homes. The setting out of a fleet of ships is very important to our service, as well for interrupting the trade of our rebels, as for a particular design in prosecution whereof we are resolved to use your service. We therefore authorize you to buy or hire any ships equipped for service, and to take in partners, giving you leave to acquaint 2 or 3 such with our particular design, to compass which we suppose 6 good frigates will suffice. We will receive no duties from any prizes which you or your partners take, only you will be liable to payment of tenths to Lord Admiral the Duke of York. Visct. Falconbridge to [Ambassador Lockhart]. I have often spoken of you to Lord Richard, and before yours came, I had told him of your discourses to me at Paris about him; and when I presented yours, I told him also what you had written to me, and he said there was not a person in the 3 nations whom he more esteemed, or who better deserved it than you, so no ill offices have been done you there.

The House of Commons are still a little pettish, refusing, on a message sent them from the House of Lords, to own them as such. This afternoon, by command, both Houses met his Highness in the Banqueting Hall, where he made a very pious and eloquent speech, tending to unity amongst themselves, and provision against the common enemies of this nation. Lord Lambert and Sir Art. Heselrigg appeared to-day in the Lower House, though summoned to the other, without ever waiting on his Highness to excuse it. [Extract, French correspondence.]

38. Capt. Thos. Sparling to the Admiralty Commissioners. In the night of the 22nd inst., it being dark and thick weather, one of the enemy's frigates made her escape out, and went clear away, notwithstanding she was discovered and pursued by the Drake, which is the best sailing frigate we have upon the coast; nevertheless all the rest in this Road are now cleaned and fit for such service, the Assistance excepted. The frigates then here were the Cheriton, Drake, Bramble, and Cornelian, all clean. As some have heretofore pretended that their long absence for victualling was occasioned through being confined to go into the Downs for orders, by which means they have often been surprised by contrary winds and foul weather, before they could dispatch their business, I have since sent some direct from hence to Dover, as lately the Truelove and Hart pink; but whether the victualler would not victual them, or whether they thought, by observing my orders, they should have too little time in port, or what other reason I know not, but I am informed there was too little notice taken of my orders, copies of which I enclose. Capt. Smith wrote to Sir Rich. Stayner, and procured an order to tallow his ship, the truth whereof, by reason of his long absence, I am apt to credit. If this be so, it will not only render me ridiculous to all that know it, but retard the service, and has put the State to an unnecessary charge. If it be your pleasure to continue me longer on this account, let me use my own reason in those things wherein you are silent, or it is not possible for me to do such service as may rationally be expected.

Sickness and mortality much increase in this squadron, and especially in this ship; since my last, 2 have died and several others are desperately sick, both on board and at Dover, 21 in all. The pink has arrived, with a supply of provisions from Sir Richard Stayner, under conduct of the Lily, but I have not received either letter or bill of lading, so that both the quantity and quality are unknown. If you intend the Nightingale for this station, let her be sent away with all speed, as the Major-general will not suffer the Dartmouth to go out until another ship be sent in, notwithstanding she has been forced to be victualled out of other ships for many days. [1 page.] Enclosing,

Rich. Stayner in the Downs for further orders. There is no need to remain to tallow, a foul ship being as serviceable as a clean one within the Splinter, or between that and Calais, for which his pink is intended. If he wants stores, he is to apply to Mr. White, the agent at Dover, who is desired to furnish necessaries. 14 January 1657-8. [$\frac{3}{4}$ page.]

39. II. Same to Mr. Wivell, victualler at Dover. Warrant to furnish the Truelove frigate with as much provisions as she can possibly stow, and to use all haste for her quick return. Time would not admit of her calling in the Downs for an order from Sir Rich. Stayner. 15 January 1657-8. [$\frac{1}{2}$ page.]

39. IV. Same to Wivell. Like warrant for victualling the Hart pink, which is not to remain to tallow, as the service on the station to which she is appointed does not require it. 19 January 1657-8. [$\frac{1}{2}$ page.]

Jan. 26. 40. Capt. Thos. Sparling to the Admiralty Commissioners.
The Assistance, Dunkirk Road. It was not my neglect in demanding the brass guns that caused my long silence, but because the General positively refused to deliver them before the Vice-admiral's departure from hence, of which I thought he had given you an account; nevertheless I have, since the General's death, several times acquainted him that I had orders for their transportation, and he answered that as soon as his own were on shore and mounted, and he received orders for their delivery, he should not desire to keep them; but by reason of sickness, I have not since been there, neither do I know whether he has yet received any order from his Highness or you concerning them. I have signified to him what I am commanded, and shall use my utmost endeavour to comply with your orders, but except the Major-general freely appears in the business, in commanding the horses and soldiers to get them out of the fort and down to the waterside, it will be impossible to transport them. I do not know what convenience I shall meet with, till I know whether there be any vessels within the Splinter bound for London fit for such service; however, as it is your pleasure that the Assistance shall come to clean and refit, if they are taken in her, it will be but ordering her for Deptford instead of Chatham; I confess self-interest in this, as it would be much for my convenience, yet of no whit less advantage to the public. Let me have your directions.

Sir Richard Stayner writes me that the provisions sent by him is a proportion for 6 weeks for 200 men, but no necessary money. I have ordered one week's provisions therefrom to the Dartmouth for 110 men, and 14 days' to the Bramble for 70 men, and have taken the remainder into the Assistance; it amounts to 4 weeks for 200 men, but what is wanting of this proportion I know not, as I have never had any account of particulars, either in this or any other since I came here, and not so

I will give the provost [of Queen's College, Oxford] notice that he may expect you about Easter. Transactions with M. L'Erpinrière in purchase of books. Had he been at Frankfort, or anywhere out of his own country, he would have had more novelty.

Our Parliament has sat a week, and Lord Fiennes, Speaker of the Upper House, has in a large speech, after the Protector's shorter speech, magnified the happiness we enjoy by him, and the necessity for a House of Lords, for so they call themselves, which so provoked the Commons that they will scarce allow them any such title. Sir Art. Heselrigg, and others that were called by writ to the Upper House, decline to sit there, and sit with the Commons. They have had a day of humiliation in both Houses, and it is hoped this may work some better union amongst them.

All well at college, but the provost is troubled not to hear of Chris. Potts' brother, who is in Paris, and it is feared he has mortgaged his land to enjoy the delights of the City. They wish you could meet with him. If Mr. Norris has not returned, send me by him Balzac's new piece.

Jan. 30. 45. Capt. Thos. Sparling to the Admiralty Commissioners. I sent to the Major-general concerning the brass guns, and also went to him at the fort concerning them, when he was willing to part with them, as his own were all mounted, but questioned whether the bridge would hold to get them over, on account of the frost, and thought the spring would be the best time to take them. In my opinion, the bridge may as well bear them going out as it did carrying them in, and rather now than in open weather, as it is supported on the ice, which is very thick, and the ground so hard that the wheels cannot sink into it, and they may therefore be now drawn down with less help than at other times. I think the major's cautiousness arises from want of an order to deliver them. I have ordered the Hart pink to Dover for a new mainmast. One of the men who endured such hardships on the loss of the sloop is dead and most of the rest are very sick. [1 page.]

Jan. ? 48. Petition of a fencing master, to the King. Heaven hears the groans of the lowest creatures, and therefore I trust that you, being a terrestrial deity, will not disdain my supplication. I left my school in Cologne, and came to Bruges to serve the princes of your house, and came daily for 5 months to give them lessons. Also for 3 months I taught your equerries, and another youth one month, beside a month's service at Cologne; and in all that time I only received 10 patacoons, as I named in my petition before you went to Breda, but such was the scarcity of money that I could not obtain payment: 34 patacoons are now due to me, and I and my family are in such trouble that, without your help, I must end my days in prison, and mine must perish of hunger, as I owe 27 livres for house rent. I entreat you to consider me. [1 page Italian.] to John Maidstone, cofferer to his Highness, Whitehall. Knowing your honesty and good repute, we beg your assistance. The honourable persons to whom his Highness has referred the election of All Souls will hear it on Thursday, 11 Feb., and have required our attendance. The matter is of great importance, but the season makes travelling dangerous, and some of us are out of health. There are facts which must be proved by witnesses over whom we have no power without a summons from above, and being fellows of that college, they will not appear of their own accord. The statutes of the college, which authorize all we have done, must be brought up. Some of us much desire to wait on the referees, but we beg you to desire our noble chancellor and Lord Fiennes to postpone the hearing. If this cannot be, we beg a summons for Mr. Panton and Bond, fellows of that college, and an order to bring up the book of statutes. [2 pages.]

[Jan.]

50. Report by the Committee on the non-admission of several elected fellows in All Souls' College, Oxford, addressed to the Protector. You refer to us the petition of Wm. Trumbull and Rich. Hill, mentioning the election of their 2 sons as fellows, and praying that no others may be nominated until they are fully heard.

We have heard them and the visitors of the university, and find that the visitors have power to consider the best way for the government of the university or any college, and to propose any alterations to you and Parliament; also to explain ambiguous statutes, and to determine on appeal controversies not discernible by statute.

The warden and dean, who were scrutators at the late election, certify that John Hill and Wm. Trumbull were lawfully chosen; and the vice-warden certifies that they repaired to him for admission on 14 Jan., but that he could not admit them because of an order of the visitors of 16 Nov. 1657, that as the resignations of the fellows had not been published, according to the order of former visitors to prevent corruption in selling resignations, the election is void, and they should supply the vacant places according to your directions.

The former orders of visitors alluded to are of 23 April 1657, that no vacancy or resignation shall be filled till the next year, unless the resignations have been given in between 29 Sept. and the last day of the election. That every probationer elect shall take an oath that he gave no money for his place. That each elector shall engage to nominate none whom he suspects to have made any bargain for it. That all on their elections shall swear to take no gratuity for their places, on departure or resignation.

The petitioners objected that the visitors had no power to make such orders, as being repugnant to the statutes, which order the elections to be yearly. The visitors urge that the Archbishop of Canterbury, as local visitor, has the same power as the founder, and that Archbishop Whitgift had made a similar order 60 years ago, on noting the scandal of buying and selling places, which order the warden acknowledged to have been acted upon.

Arguments on both sides thereon.

VOL. CLXXIX.

We think on the whole matter, that the visitors, following Whitgift's example, acted from a good intention to prevent corruption, but we cannot determine whether they have in all things the power of co-founders, as the archbishop had, and whether in this case they have acted according to their powers and your Ordinance (which, being since confirmed by Parliament, is continued as a law), and therefore we must leave the matter to your judgment. Feb. 8. 51. Capt. Thos. Sparling to the Admiralty Commissioners. It is a
The Assistance, mercy never to be forgotten that either myself or any of my Downs. company are yet living, to give you an account of what a sad accident has befallen us, by reason of so much ice as I think no man ever saw before in these parts, out of which distress and danger, though with much damage, God has delivered us.

After a long continued frost, on 31 Jan., there appeared much ice on the coast, driving to the westward, with a sharp and violent N.E. wind, by which in two days the whole sea was congealed together, at least a league from the shore, and which so increased upon us, both by the sharpness of the weather, and continual flowing in of the drift ice which came from the eastward, as that on the 15th instant, we were forced from our anchors, having but one left, and being so fast blocked up in the ice as that, notwithstanding much wind, the ships could not be commanded with all the sail we could make, but were driven away with the ice; in which drift, by reason of our greater draught of water than the rest, we were grounded on a sand joining to the west end of the Splinter, where, to prevent her being torn in pieces with the massive weight of ice which continually clove in sunder thwart and stern, its passage being forced by a quick tide, we were forced to lighten her by throwing overboard such things as could with most speed be come at.

The Bramble and Cheriton both drove over the same sand, but by reason of their smaller draught of water, did not touch; nevertheless they could not clear themselves of the ice, for I saw them both driving, since I, through God's goodness, was clear; I question not but they are both well, as there were no sands in the stream of their drift, but such as they might float over, and not touch. But for our parts, there was never any ship escaped a more imminent danger, in the view of many hundreds of our enemies, who rejoiced at that which they had little cause to question would be our utter ruin; while many of our friends, both at Mardike and within the Splinter, stood and pitied us, but were not able to afford any help.

The 29th Jan., I was at Mardike, since which there has not been one hour of such weather as would admit of my going or sending to them, or they to me, and therefore I can give no account of their condition; but I fear the fort will suddenly be in distress for want of victuals, as no relief could possibly come to them by sea since 25 Jan. The ships within the Splinter are the Nightingale, Truelove, Swallow, and Rose pink, who have been so fast frozen up as that the passage between the fort and them has been upon the ice since the 3rd instant, neither did they wind up and down all the neap tides; what danger may happen to them by this spring tide I know not, but I wish they may do well, there being now no other ships left upon the coast.

P.S.—On the 7th we cleared ourselves of the ice and arrived in the Downs. [$1\frac{1}{2}$ pages.]

The Assistance,
Queenborough.

55. Capt. Thos. Sparling to the Admiralty Commissioners. As Sir Rich. Stayner could not supply me with anchors and cables in the Downs, he ordered me to go to Chatham, but there being much ice in the river, I was forced to anchor at Queenborough, but fear the ship must go into the dock, being leaky and defective. I can give no other reason for the Drake's not being able to get up to the frigate I discovered going out of Dunkirk than that the captain gave me, viz, that she had got a great advantage of him before he could get loose, and his sails set, they being so frozen that they were all in one lump, while the other had all her sails set before she was discovered, and being a dark night, she was soon out of sight. On arriving at the dock, I will apply to Commissioner Pett for orders. [1 page.]

Feb. 10.

The Nightingale, Mardike.

56. Capt. J. Lightfoot to the Admiralty Commissioners. We came in under the Splinter the 30th ultimo, and the same day the Dartmouth sailed for the Downs, with the wind at E.N.E. and N.E., and with so much frost and snow that we were all encompassed with ice, which continued driving up and down with the tides until the 8th, when it began to abate, and is now clean gone. In the morning, the Assistance, Cheriton, and Bramble, were loose, driving in the ice in Dunkirk Road, and at night drove out by the Splinter; the Assistance we conceived was on ground most part of the night, but she drove into the Road again, and having the ice clear, it is hoped she is safe, although she has not been seen since. On the 4th and 5th all the vessels within the Splinter drove almost half way to Dunkirk, but at high water had an opportunity of returning to their former berths, except the Spy shallop, which drove within shot of Dunkirk, past hopes of recovery; but Capts. Smith and Lilburne went to her on the ice, and fired her, having a party of horse from the fort for their guard; her guns, and some other materials were hove overboard, slung, and buoyed, so this morning I have sent the other shallop with Capt. Smith's boat to weigh and bring them off.

Knowing that the frigates in Dunkirk Road must have left some cables and anchors behind, I have sent Capt. Lilburne to assist and defend the Speedwell hoy of Chatham, here being no fit vessel for the purpose in service, with my own pinnace and 20 men, to weigh what anchors they can there find. The men belonging to the remaining shallows are now on board here; if they should be continued on this ship, they request that their tickets in Capt. Sparling's hands, for the time they served there and in other ships, may be sent, if he should be called in before he returns.

Since writing the above, staying for the Major-general's packet, there came a great frigate and 3 smaller out of Dunkirk, and chased in both Capt. Lilburne and the hoy, and as the wind was at N.N.W. and an easy gale, it was not possible for any annoyance to be given them from hence, though endeavoured by the Truelove; but we could not move by reason of falling water, and the wind out; so I believe they have cut away the buoys, not being able to weigh the anchors, for we saw small boats go between in the Road as they turned out. I shall use what means I possibly can to recover what may be there, but believe I shall not be able to do much until a squadron comes to reside there. [1½ pages.]

[Feb. 11.] 59, 60. Information of Lord Montgomery's case before Council. He is not only fined for his own estate, and has paid the first half, but also 1,400*l.* for the estate of his father, which was not forfeit, but was returned after 2 years' sequestration by the Act of Grace. During Lord Montgomery's forfeiture, no aliment was allowed out of either estate.

Since by the Act of 18 Nov. 1656, confirmed in Parliament, a fine of 40,000*l.* is to be raised from the excepted persons, and proportioned by the Council of Scotland to their estates; and since this additional fine on the father's estate was a mistake, as decided by the Council of Scotland from the judgment of able lawyers, he begs its abatement, and discharge of his own forfeiture, on paying the second half of his fine. [2 copies.]

[Feb. 11.] 61. Gen. Monk to Council. To your letter of 14 Oct. 1657 [see p. 128, supra] I reply that the Council here had but a very short time for proportioning the 40,000*l.* fine on the estates of the confiscated persons in Scotland, the day for payment of the first ½ being very near when they got the order; so that in publishing for the first ½, they promised to rectify any mistakes in the second ½. His interest in the reversion of his father's estate, which was settled on him on his marriage in 1631, reserving only a life rent to his father, raised his fine 1,400*l.*; but in 1635 he bound himself not to interfere in the estates during his father's life. Thus the Earl of Eglinton had the right to dispose of the estate without his son's consent, and did so in 1655, by settling lands on the master of Montgomery, Lord Montgomery's eldest son.

But as it was urged in Council that this settlement in 1655 was made to avoid any interest the State might claim, by virtue of the - marriage settlement, it was thought just that Montgomery's fine should be proportioned to his reversion, as well as possession. Now, however, able lawyers declare that from 1635, the Earl of Eglinton has the entire right to the estates, that Montgomery has lived peaceably under the present Government, and that the Earl of Eglinton has always assisted the more godly part of this nation. Sec. Thurloe to [Amb. Lockhart]. His Highness has spent this week about his army, and made some alterations. He took notice of dissatisfaction amongst the officers of his own regiment of horse, and sending for Major Packer and the 5 captains, all Anabaptists, found it as he had heard, and dismissed them all 6 from their commands. He has this day, in presence of many of the officers who expressed satisfaction in it, put 6 other very brave officers in their stead. [Extract, French correspondence.]

Rich. Mason to Sec. Nicholas, Bruges. I have lived at Ponthoise 6 months, and only been 3 or 4 times to Paris, but I went on Sir Edw. Herbert's death to be at his funeral. His poverty was such, and his friends so few, that there was neither money for his support nor his interment, but from my alliance to him, I supplied what was requisite. I am anxious to know what directions he left, but being surprised with death, he only recommended a cabinet with papers to Col. Robinson, to be delivered to his lady. I often begged for the cabinet, as it would be safer in the Palais Royal than in his hands, on account of his creditors, but he refused to give it up, or to peruse the papers with me; I sent it to Mrs. Mordaunt, Lady Herbert's daughter, by her order, and it is sent to England. His Majesty now asks me for the papers, but I have not seen or touched them. [$2\frac{1}{2}$ pages, Flanders correspondence.]

69. Hum. Robinson to Williamson. Sir Ralph Hare has been here, and is not pleased about your sudden return, and says he shall write to the boy's mother to continue him longer. I told him you had written to her.

I tell you with much grief of the death of our dear friend the provost [of Queen's College, Oxford], on the 10th instant. He was only 4 days ill. In his last to me, 10 days since, he said he intended to write once more to you. Potts may alter his mind, and come to

Since the dissolution of Parliament, the Protector is modelling his army. He has taken away the commissions of all who refuse to obey his commands in general. When finished, we may hear of some declaration to the people. It is thought he will take the legislative, and send Privy seals to our great monied men. [1 page.]

72. Capt. Wm. Whitehorn to the Admiralty Commissioners. As soon as I had taken the 27 prisoners, including the captain, besides 6 boys and a natural, I put them on board the Dragon, to be transported to Flanders and set on shore there, supposing them only a charge to the State whilst remaining here. I ordered Capt. Bevans to sail for Harwich to clean and victual, and then convoy the North Sea Fishery, and will also hasten the Elias there.

I have received commands from his Highness, during the absence of Sir Richard Stayner, to keep ships plying in the Channel to surprise the enemy that is expected to come from Biscay with soldiers to relieve Flanders, and likewise for some to lie in several places to search for suspicious persons; in the performance of this I shall be very careful, as far as I may with the number of ships that are here, or that shall be sent hither, there being at present some wanting to ply off Orfordness and Ostend as formerly, and in the Narrow. I enclose an account of those here, how the rest are disposed of, and of their provisions and the time they have been off the ground, hearing from Sir Richard Stayner that there are 4 men-of-war lately gone out of Dunkirk for Ostend, which will make 15 or 16 sail there ready to come to sea; as it is supposed they intend for Dunkirk with provisions, some course may be taken for preventing them; but unless there are more ships here, I cannot see how it can be done. I suggest that five or six 4th and 5th rate frigates be sent out to lie off Ostend, which may do very good service there. The Dragon and Cheriton are already ordered for Dunkirk; and the Drake coming hither from Rye, I have supplied her with some men, and appointed her to sail over as soon as she has taken in a month's victuals from Dover, whence I shall also hasten over the Cornelian and Rose, now cleaning and revictualling.

I have sent the Newcastle to remain in Margate Road instead of the Winsby, and the Newbury to transport a gentleman of quality from Rye to Dieppe. Capt. Blake is to take under his convoy several vessels at Rye bound thither, and bring others back from Seine Head. The Vulture is to convoy several vessels laden with iron from Rye to Lynn, and I have given Capt. Rively orders to see them, with some other vessels at Dover and in the Downs bound northwards, as far as Yarmouth Roads, and there observe Major Burton's orders.

Last Saturday Mr. Culmer, having provided boats, with some boats and men from several ships here, recovered 16 guns from the Princess Maria, whereof 3 are from the lower tier, so that there are 19 saved; if the weather proves fair, no labour shall be wanting to get the rest. The boatswain of the Speaker is intrusted with the management of the business, and has taken much pains therein. I desire your pleasure concerning the prisoners taken from the Convert, and whether I shall supply the London, Speaker, and Newcastle, which are nearly out of provisions, either from the Essex and Newbury, or from Dover.

P.S. The Elizabeth has just arrived with 20 bolts of sailcloth, taken in at Weymouth for the stores at Deptford; as she is in a bad condition, and has but 7 days' victuals, the captain desires order concerning her. Another of the weightiest guns of the Princess Maria has been taken up, but I fear the bad weather will hinder the saving any more. [3 pages.]

Feb. 16. COUNCIL. Day's Proceedings.

1. The petition of the several farmers of excise on ale, beer, &c., in England and Wales read, and referred to Mr. Comptroller, Desborow, Fleetwood, Strickland, Lisle, Skippon, Lord Chamberlain, and Wolsley, to consult with the Customs' Commissioners and Counsel learned, and report.

78. Deposition of Maj. Wm. Armorer before the King. Walking this morning in the court at the King's house, before prayers, Sir Jas. Hamilton took me aside from Marmaduke Darcy, and told me he hoped that we two, being old friends, should not cut each other's throats for other men's business. That he had told the Lord Chancellor he was starving, and would kill him rather than his lordship should see him starve. Sir James repeated oftentimes that he should not live 3 days, and meantime would kill the chancellor. That next day he would put on a clean shirt and kill the chancellor, and not run away, for he had not a penny; he should be sure to be hanged, and he would be hanged in a clean shirt. He said that as he got no money from the King, he was sure the chancellor was his enemy, and the reason was this:

That he had brought the King a message from his friends in England that they had something to say to him, but could not acquaint him with it unless he would promise not to acquaint the chancellor, because they believed he would betray their business; and this Sir James told the King and the Chancellor. No one else was present when this discourse took place, and after it he went upstairs into the presence chamber.

P.S.—Sir James deposes further that he always endeavoured to serve the King, and thinks he could not do him better service than to kill the Chancellor. [$2\frac{1}{2}$ pages, written by Nicholas, signed by Armorer.]

79. Petition of Sir James Hamilton to the King. I can find no words to excuse my horrid insolence when before your Majesty; I was in drink the day before, and so mad drunk thereby that I threatened the Lord Chancellor with death, rather than I would be reduced to starve, and then I denied all, and gave his lordship the lie, when spoken to about it by you. I will submit to any punishment for pardon and restoration to favour; I beg your Majesty to reconcile me to the Lord Chancellor. [1 page.]

Approved by the Protector, 6 March.

5. Approval of an order to divide the chapel of Shute, belonging to Culliton vicarage, co. Devon, from it, and the patron of Culliton to appoint a vicar to Shute, to be supported by the profits of his parish, and the tenths payable by the vicarages of Culliton and Shute, viz., 4*l.* 1*s.* 1*d.*, to be divided, the vicarage of Culliton paying 2*l.* 14*s.* and the vicarage of Shute 1*l.* 7*s.* 1*d.*, and the first fruits to be divided similarly, the former paying 27*l.* 0*s.* 6*d.*, and the latter 13*l.* 10*s.* 4*d.* Approved by the Protector, 6 March.

6. Whereas the Protector, on 21 Jan. 1656-7, ordered payment to David Offley, of Christchurch parish, London, for the use of the East India Company and others, of 4,382*l.* 9*s.* 11*d.*, advanced by them on a Parliament Ordinance of 8 July 1645, for redemption of captives in Algiers; and whereas by the Tonnage and Poundage Act, $\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. of the customs is to be paid, from 24 June 1647, for redemption of the captives taken at sea by Turkish, Moorish, or other pirates; and whereas by order of the Protector and Council of 6 Oct. 1657, the Committee for Preservation of Customs are to issue the said money;—order that they pay Offley the said 4,382*l.* 9*s.* 11*d.* Approved 6 March.

8. The report from the farmers of excise in and about London, that the collection of duty is much hindered by the brewers obtaining replevins from the Chancery Court on distresses made by Act of Parliament for improving the receipt of excise—referred to Desborow, Mr. Secretary, Mr. Comptroller, Strickland, and Montague, to consult with the Great Seal Commissioners thereon.

17. On report from the Committee on the tithes of Weld and Caldecot, in Eynsbury parish, co. Hunts,—that they find it probable that the tithes always belonged of right to the incumbent of the parish, as all that the trustees who claim them for the Bishop of Ely can advance is an ancient lease of November 1637, granting all his portion of such small and great tithes at 3*l.* 6*s.* 0*d.* a year for 21 years, which will expire next November, but the rectors of Eynsbury have always claimed, and have reclaimed at law the small tithes, and received them; and that 14 years ago the incumbent claimed part of the great tithes, and made a composition with the Bishop's tenant for 7 years, and it appears the Bishop only claims them because his power is so much greater as to overawe the incumbent;—order to allow the minister of Eynsbury the rent reserved on the said lease, and after its expiration in November next, to allow him the tithes of Weld and Caldecot.

Feb. 19. Sir Edw. Walker, Garter King, to [Sec. Nicholas]. I received
March 1. your's as I was crowding to get in to see Lord Newcastle's ball, Antwerp. so I could not read it to the King till yesterday. He is sensible of the ill condition of his regiment at Dixmeude, and bade me deliver Col. Carnaby's letter to Col. Blagge, who said much of his ill-treatment; as to the command of that regiment at Brussels, he will wait on you, but meantime refer any further complaints to him.

On Monday the King delivered the order of the Garter to M. Marsine; he was introduced between the Lord Newcastle and the Earl of Bristol, I preceding in my coach carrying the insignia. He was first knighted, then I read the commission for his election, and then his Majesty put the George about his neck, and the assistants the George [garter?] and his cloak, and so, after his humble acknowledgment, the ceremony ended. He has paid all his fees to the King's servants, and remembered me to my satisfaction, and on Wednesday went to Brussels.

That evening the entertainment was at Lord Newcastle's, ushered in by a speech penned by my lord, and spoken by Major Mohun; then followed French dances, a song by my Lady Marchioness Moore, and a great banquet brought in by 16 gentlemen of quality in the King's service; then country dances, and an epilogue; all ended at 12. Beside the Royal Family were the Duchess of Lorraine, her son and daughter, Hannibal Sestade, his wife and daughter, Lord Bristol and his daughter and son-in-law. So however melancholy you are at Bruges, we are merry here, but I fear faction will ensue.

On Monday the Princess [Royal] returns to Breda with the 2 dukes. The King brings her to her dining-place (where the Prince of Orange meets them), but returns that night, and goes next day for Brussels.

Lord Colepepper knows not yet whether he goes with the Princess. The Lord Chancellor is strangely recovered of his gout, and was abroad yesterday. [4 pages, Flanders correspondence.]

Sir Gilb. Talbot to his father [Sec. Nicholas]. Our Knight of the Garter, M. Marsine, was made on Tuesday, coming the day before from Brussels, and returning there the day after. He was much transported with the honour, and it sits very well on him. [The Duke of Gloucester] is now Sir Henry of Gloucester. The King says he shall pay fees, as a precedent to Sir Art. Slingsby. The interlude next day was performed with all circumstances of greatness in a little volume, and embellished with my lady's own poetry.

The Lord Chancellor came not abroad till yesterday, lest the ladies might have taken him out to dance.

The Princess has delayed her journey till Monday. The King will take her to Sunder, where the young Prince of Orange will meet her, and the King go to Brussels.

The Lord Chancellor has rebuked me for want of courtship, but he gave me an Italian's discourse to translate, which has kept me from Court. Yet I bless the day when I saw Italy, whereby I am made capable of fulfilling his commands. [2½ pages, Flanders correspondence.]

Col. Her. Price to Sec. Nicholas, Bruges. I am ill in bed, having been these 3 nights, with much grief, attending my Lord of Rochester's, I hope, happy departure out of this unhappy world; he died this night at 1 a.m. I have sent Mr. Rose to tell the King, that he may take order for the interment. Meantime I will get his body embalmed, and let you know when we shall be at Sluys with it. [1 page, Flanders correspondence.]

[Percy Church to Sec. Nicholas]. Sir John Arundel of the West, with his brother-in-law, Mr. Roper, by the name of Randale, came here lately from England, and Roper will wait on the King.

Cromwell, not finding his account, has dissolved the Parliament, and endeavoured to borrow money from the City, but without success, which, with some general notice of a new plot, has much disordered him. [Extract, Flanders correspondence.]

Thomas, Lord Wentworth, to Sec. Nicholas. The convoy has gone, and in it many of our acquaintance. I wonder that our letters from England do not say why Cromwell fell out with his Parliament, or what effect the quarrel has brought; it should produce something to the advantage of his Majesty. Let one of your servants deliver the enclosed from Lady Quirinsen. Tell me news of Lord Rochester, who is, I hear, desperately ill, which much affects me. [1 page, Flanders correspondence.]

Sir Gilb. Talbot to Sec. Nicholas. The Princess leaves us to-morrow, and the King and his 2 brothers go with her to West Wesel (you see how the resolutions of our court alter). The King returns at night, the Duke of York, who goes through to Breda, on Wednesday. It is said Sir Harry of Gloucester will remain at Breda. The Prince of Orange will be conveyed to West Wesel by all the Breda horse, 200, but our master will only have 16 or 20 to return with him, though the country be very dangerous.

Lord Bristol has had much ado to reconcile his daughter with the baron, her husband, a quarrel having arisen from his jealousy of her which came to blows; when she left for Brussels, she would not go in the same coach with him. To-night Han. Sestade gives all our court a supper and ball. [2 pages, Flanders correspondence.]

S. Fox to [Sec. Nicholas]. I am careful about my letters, and regret failure in their delivery. The Princess goes to-day. The King goes with her to West Wesel, dines there, and returns to-night, to an entertainment at Mr. Harvey's. The Duke of York goes to Brussels on Thursday unless they are again stayed, as they now are, for want of money. Lord Bristol has gone to represent this to Don John. Unless we can have a speedy supply, we must break with all mankind; and if we get money, it must go to paying bills charged from Bruges to enable us to remove thence. When I can, I will return you the 30 rix dollars and the February disbursement.

Last night Sestade gave a banquet to the King, Princess, &c., and they danced till late. Col. Blagg, my Lord of Derry, and Sir Chas. Cotterell are coming to Bruges. My Lord Chancellor did not go to Breda, fearing a relapse of the gout. He and Lord Colepepper stay here till the King goes to Brussels. [3 pages, Flanders correspondence.]

Leonard Lydcot, that 2,000*l.* is due to him for service, had ordered that 109 acres of park or common land near Linlithgow, and the keepership of Linlithgow and Blackness Palace and Castle be assigned to him, with duties arising from the lordships, which order he now wishes to renew, in as full manner as possible, give their approval thereto,—nominates Lydcot to the said land and office; and grants him a discharge for the duties belonging to the lordships, which he has uplifted for repair of the castles.

Thos. Ross to Sec. Nicholas. There is a little flaw concerning the Marquis of Ormond. I was surprised when told by a friend who was a relative of Lord Newcastle, that he (as his wife has made him) is industrious to decry the King's estate, being piqued that he did not know of its settlement, and reports that he does not think the suit will be carried, though he knew that Ormond and Neale and others were gone as a jury to England. My friend said Ormond was still in Germany, but the other affirmed that those who told him knew as much as the Lord Chancellor. My friend wonders that anyone who knows Newcastle would trust him with so important a secret, for it might as well be proclaimed at the cross. We know not how he can have it, unless it be by some of the Duke of York's people, who talk as if they were of the Cabinet, and say they shall soon be in England.

Humphrey* is not much better in body or mind, and is troubled that the 2 Hogs put into Lob's* pound are beasts, and false to him, and now he repents that he did not send honest Kemp* the King (?) back, who was laid aside because he did not apply solely to him, or that Humphrey relied on them because they could cajole him with high promises. They now suspect that Hog, who was with us, was to be the instrument to give the rest credit with Humphrey and his master, and to invite him to a place where he would have been ensnared, and that there were such stratagems prepared for this as there never were before, and that Cromwell much relied on it; so that we now wish honest Hornby* had been allowed to carry on his business his own way. Take no notice of this till I tell you the rest of the story.

Yesterday we took the Princess to West Wesel, and met the Prince of Orange, who much pleased the King with his person and company. I send from Sir Gerard Hollis an exact account of the reasons of the dissolution of Parliament. [*2 pages, Flanders correspondence. your differences, and study love and kindness towards each other, that the work of God may the better prosper in your hands. But if you still keep on foot a divided spirit, his Highness and Council will take strict account thereof. They have sent a like admonition to Mr. Hopkins. [I. 78, p. 858.]

Feb. 25. President Lawrence to Geo. Hopkins, minister at Evesham, to the like effect. [I. 78, p. 859.]

Feb. 25. Proclamation commanding all Papists and other adherents of the late King and his sons affected to depart London and Westminster.

His Highness being informed of meetings of these persons, of designs now on foot, and of their correspondence with the King of Spain and Charles Stuart, thinks it needful to use all means to prevent mischief and procure peace; and therefore, by advise of his Council, he charges all Papists, those who have borne arms against the State, or assisted the enemy in the late wars, to depart from London and Westminster, and all places within 20 miles of the late lines of communication, unless it be their place of habitation, by 2 March; or if they are now under restraint, within 3 days after their enlargement, and not to return till next Easter.

The Lord Mayor and Aldermen and justices of the peace to cause strict watch and ward to be kept, to search for and apprehend all offenders, and commit them to prison, and certify their proceedings to Council. All sheriffs, constables, and other officers, civil and military, to assist.

Every householder is, before 4 March, to give in to the alderman of his ward, or to a justice of the peace, the names of all lodgers, and whether Papists or not, and to give notice of any fresh lodger within 24 hours.

The aldermen and justices to inquire after such lists, and transmit them to Council. All householders who fail to send in their lists are to be deemed enemies of the peace. [I. 78, pp. 855-7.]

Feb. 25. Proclamation ordering all Papists and others of the late King's party, to return to their dwellings, and not remove above 5 miles. To prevent the danger occasioned by the meeting together in London and Westminster of Papists and other ill-affected persons, his Highness and Council require that all natives of the Commonwealth who are Papists or Recusants, or those who have borne arms against the State or favoured its enemies, do, before 12 March, or if under restraint, then 3 days after their enlargement, repair to their places of abode, and do not remove from them more than 5 miles till Easter; or if they have no settled abode, fix on the place their parents live in, or where they were born. All justices of peace to apprehend any persons whom they find over 5 miles from their dwellings. [I. 78, pp. 857, 858.]

Mr. Barlow was unanimously chosen. There was a great contest whether Dr. Zouch or Dr. Wallas should succeed him in keeping the records, but Wallas has it. Lamplugh is very helpful to the disconsolate widow. I send you some money, but this great frost and the dissolving of Parliament has much obstructed commerce. Times are so uncertain that none know what course to steer. Mr. Whorwood owes me money, but regards not his promise to pay. I send Sir Ralph's letter. Business affairs. When are we and Sir Geo. Fletcher, sheriff of Cumberland, to go to the North? With list of books wanted for a friend. [1 page and scrap.]

Feb. 25. Mary Knatchbull, abbess of Ghent, to Sec. Nicholas. Col. Price
March 7. has spoken too favourably of me. My intelligence is small, [Ghent.] but the world knows I am a hearty lover of his Majesty, and therefore sends me good news when any is stirring, and I shall gladly impart it to you. I hear nothing at present more than the priests from England deliver, and I shall be in retirement this Lent, and hear nothing unless you inform me. Thanks for your kindness to my cousin Roper.

P.S.—I pray that the French almanac may prove a true prophet in what concerns our King. [2 pages, Flanders correspondence.]

Feb. 25. S. Fox to Sec. Nicholas. Your letter did not reach me till the March 7. post had gone out, because of the distance between the Lord 10 p.m. Chancellor's lodging and the King's, nigh which I am lodged. The Antwerp. King leaves for Brussels to-morrow at 4 a.m. The Duke of York has not returned from Breda; being troubled with toothache, he had a tooth drawn, and was let blood, but a footman sent from him brings word that he will leave Breda to-morrow morning.

Nothing can be done for the poor reformed gentlemen till the King is at Brussels. We could not have got form hence if Mr. Shaw had not lent us 1,500 florins, which is all the money I have had since we left Bruges. We have fair promises when we get to Brussels; meantime it will go hard with our menage, which we have again begun since the Princess's departure.

The King sups to-night at Han. Sestade's. My Lord Chancellor has been 2 days ill with the gout, but will go in the coach to Brussels. Lord Colepepper goes for Holland. Account of ill health of friends. [2 $\frac{2}{3}$ pages, Flanders correspondence.]

Feb. 25. Sir Edw. Walker to Sec. Nicholas. Col. Blagge will have told March 7. you his efforts about the King's regiment of guards. I hope his Antwerp. presence among them will bring them to a better posture, which is most necessary, if we are so near action as you say.

I have shown your son Talbot the prognostic; God grant it may prove true. Sir Chas. Cotterell will have told you that if we quit 1657-8.

VOL. CLXXIX.

our station, his master, the Duke of Gloucester, is to remain. Early to-morrow we go for Brussels, where I hope the King will so apply himself to his business as speedily to quit that place, and prepare for embarking. The time of the year is so far spent that the melancholy amongst us fear it is almost past. Lord Colepepper is going for Holland. The Lord Chancellor has the gout again. I have spoken to the King about your poor reformado officers, and he may perhaps order Mr. Fox to give them credit for a longer time; they should be provided for, especially as action is supposed to be so near. [2 $\frac{3}{4}$ pages, Flanders correspondence.]

Feb. 26. Lord Colepepper to [Sec. Nicholas]. I can see nothing of any March 8. preparation here, save that 2 great and 2 lesser frigates are come Antwerp. safe from Dunkirk to Ostend. As to English news, the King and Lord Chancellor both told me last night that they have no ill news, which, in this nick of time, I take to be very good news. How any forces can be transported hence after the end of this month, when the seas will swarm with English men-of-war on this coast, is a mystery to me.

I hope your letters confirm what the Lord Chancellor told me, that Cromwell is dangerously ill, swooned twice on Tuesday week, and was still ill on Thursday, the date of the letter. Also that Thurloe is distracted, and was carried to an apothecary's in the Old Bailey to be taken care of.

I took leave of the King and Lord Chancellor last night. They were to leave at 5 a.m., but I hear they are not gone. I know no reason, save that the Chancellor had the gout badly last night. The Duke of York has had the toothache, but he sent word by M. Forest (who reports Lady Hyde's being brought to bed of a boy) that he would certainly be here to-night. [Extracts, Flanders correspondence.]

Feb. 26. S. Fox to [Sec. Nicholas]. By the neglect of the coachman, who March 8. came at 5, instead of 4 $\frac{1}{2}$, the King lost his tide, the boat being gone, Antwerp. so he stays till to-morrow morning, rather than lose the pleasure of going by water. All his servants are gone, except Mr. Carteret and myself, and those of the stables that were not to go by water; also my Lord Chancellor, who intends to go in the coach. When the King is at Brussels, I will remind him of the poor reformed gentlemen, and also of Dr. Whittaker.

P.S. The King's supper at Sestade's did not end till 2 a.m. [2 pages, Flanders correspondence.]

Feb. 26. Sir Fras. Mackworth to Sec. Nicholas. Pray give the enclosed to March 8. the Lord Chancellor, and join him in forwarding my fervent desire
Hague. for employment. I should be much vexed were the King to get in by means of a militia, and I not active with them. We have great news from England, which, if true, you must have before us. It makes many joyful hearts here. God grant it may produce effects fit for His Majesty's good proceedings. [1 page, Flanders correspondence.]

[Percy Church to Sec. Nicholas]. Cromwell has a vertigo or migraine in his head, and fell twice on Sunday week. He demanded 300,000*l.* of Parliament, which they promised if their militia might be restored. He reproached several army officers for ingratitude and deserting their principles, saying they should either stick to him or lay down their commissions, which 9 did, and Lieut.-Col. Parker told him if he had made them, they had made him. The country gentry, with their horses, are generally secured, and the Cavaliers banished 20 miles from London. The City resents the dissolution of Parliament. Rob. Rich, Cromwell's son-in-law, is dead, also Viscount Purbeck. The Duke of Buckingham is said to be privately come to France. Any design for England should be very secret, as news have come hither from the French Ambassador in Holland. A new Parliament is to be summoned for 25 March. [Extract, French correspondence.]

Sir Rich. Browne to [Sec. Nicholas]. Lord Gerard makes no haste to begin his journey. The Earl of Lichfield was recommended by the Duchess of Richmond, not of Buckingham, as I said in mistake. I don't know what will become of the Earl of Inchiquin's business concerning his younger son, but his eldest son and a daughter have arrived in Ireland. Dr. Fraser's wife is said to be rich in money, besides 400*l.* a year rent. I should be glad to hear of Mr. Erskine's safe arrival at Bruges, but he may be detained at Amiens by the bad weather, and the good cheer of an abbot, a friend of his there.

One may see by the English prints that there are many discontented spirits active to destroy the present Government. Possibly the tyrant is not so well at ease as he could wish, though not so loose seated as we pray. God restore his sacred Majesty to the throne of his ancestors!

We hear that Lord Purbeck is dead, and also Rob. Rich, [Cromwell's] worthy son-in-law, leaving his widow a jointure of 3,000*l.* a year. Sir Herb. Lunsford has come over about his regiment, and Lord Gerard has gone towards your parts. I have lost 2 of my grand-children by my daughter Evelyn. [Extract, French correspondence.]

The Speaker,
Downs.

86. Vice-Adm. Wm. Goodson to the Admiralty Commissioners. Since my last, I have been forced to stay in the Downs by the violent storms and the want of pilots; I have only 5 of them as yet, and they none of the best. The ships under sail with me, with the 4 off Dunkirk, and the 3 in the Narrow, are all of the 28 sail as yet come forth, and there are nearly 150 men wanting; many that I have are sick, and the ketch I sent up the river to get some has not yet returned, neither any of the six months' victuals for 200 men, save a hoy with some beer.

I have disposed of the 2 cables of the Princess Maria between my own ship and the Foresight, which makes my number 6, the ordinary number; every ship should have 6 for that coast at this season, and a spare anchor and cable besides. I want another anchor for my ship, as when I ride in my station off Ostend, if the enemy should escape out and break through my squadron, I should be able to do but little, through the foulness of my ships. When the 28 sail are all come forth, the foulest should go in to clean, 1 or 2 at a time, as they can be spared. [1 page.]

Off Ostend.

87. Vice-Adm. Wm. Goodson to the Admiralty Commissioners. I came out of the Downs yesterday, but the wind slackening, was forced to anchor 4 leagues from Dunkirk; sailing to-day, and seeing some fishermen, I sent to get advice, but they were too quick of foot. This afternoon I came to anchor off Ostend, where there are 22 or 23 sail in the harbour, meeting the Tiger and Dartmouth; there are now 13 of the State's ships off Ostend, but they want water casks, and so are unable to supply themselves for any time; 2 ketches will therefore be needed to fetch water for all the ships. There are not above 6 pilots in the fleet, which is a great hazard to some ships, the masters and mates who take the charge having never been on the coast before. I do not know the reason of their backwardness, unless that some malignant spirits should incite them to it, for some of them, having been on board, and going ashore under pretence of fetching their clothes, hid themselves, so that they could not be found on my departure from the Downs. I want a cable for the Newbury and Selby, and a maincourse for the Newcastle.

I will endeavour to manage the service of his Highness to the best advantage, If the Spanish bottom at Dover and the other at Deptford may be sent out, they would be very serviceable in running in near to shore, and in chasing vessels, which no ship I have is capable of, by reason of their draught of water. 88. Capt. Jno. Stoakes to the Admiralty Commissioners. My last was from Leghorn of the 20th instant, giving you an account of the state of the squadron, as also of my intentions to set sail for Tunis, to endeavour a peace with those people, which I did on the 23rd following, and the 28th obtained Goletta Road. The next day I dispatched a messenger with a letter to our consul at Tunis, acquainting him with the occasion of our coming thither, and another to the Dey, demanding the surrender of the English captives, with which if he would comply, I should then entertain terms of peace with him. He returned me answer that if I would do as Gen. Blake had done at Algiers, meaning to redeem the captives at the price he gave, which was 213 $\frac{1}{2}$ dollars a head, one with the other, I was welcome, otherwise I might do as I pleased.

By this time, having fully informed ourselves, both from the consul and others, of the condition and number of their ships in Porto Farine, which were 8, and of the fortifications made for their defence, it was judged impossible to do any considerable execution on them, and we could not well block up the port longer than 6 weeks, for want of liquor. On consideration hereof, and of the condition of our ships which were foul, and our men daily falling down for want of refreshments, the captains with me thought it the best way to entertain a treaty, which accordingly I did, and sent three persons ashore to the Dey, who, as pledges for them, sent me three on board. After some days' dispute, though with much difficulty, we brought them to accept of 11,250 dollars for 71 persons, who before were valued in the sum of 30,000 dollars, and so agreed on articles, the copy whereof I send herewith.

We are now in Port Farine, cleaning the frigates, 4 of which are almost completed, and I trust within a few days to finish the other 2. I doubt not but the accommodation and benefit of this place, both to our ships of war and merchants, will soon balance the charge of the captives' redemption, and will also afford us a great advantage, not only for annoying the Spaniards, but the ships of Tripoli also, who I believe will now soon embrace a peace with us.

I purpose in a few days to send 2 frigates for Majorca, to ply about those islands, and myself with the other 4 to sail for Leghorn, to take in some beverage wine and bread, which I have caused to be provided there, and then to proceed for Cape Martin, between which and Furmentera, I have appointed our rendezvous. I desire if you think fit to send more victuals, that they may come away as soon as may be, to prevent a future want. [$1\frac{3}{4}$ pages.] Enclosing,

88. Articles of Peace concluded by Jno. Stoakes, Commander-in-chief of the English fleet in the Mediterranean Sea, in the name of his Highness the Lord Protector, with Seignior Musa Xerife Bassa, the Duana of Tunis, Haggi Mustapha Dey, and Mahamet Bey, and with the rest of the soldiers in the kingdom of Tunis, this 8th day of February in the year of our Lord 1657-8.

1. That all former grievances, losses, and other pretensions between both parties shall be void and of no effect, and from henceforward a firm peace for ever, free trade and commerce, shall be and continue between the subjects of the Protector and the people of the kingdom of Tunis and the dominions thereunto belonging, and the ships of either party shall have free liberty to enter into any port or river belonging to the dominions of the other party, paying duties only for what they shall sell, transporting the rest without trouble or molestation and freely to enjoy any other accustomed privileges, and the late exaction which has been on the lading and unlading of goods at the Goletta and Marine shall be reduced to the ancient customs in those cases.
2. That there shall be no seizure of any of the ships of either party at sea or in port, but that they shall quietly pass without molestation, they displaying their colours. But forasmuch as the ships of Tripoli, now in hostility with us, do wear the same colours as the ships of Tunis, for prevention of all inconveniences the ships of Tunis are to have a certificate, under the hand of the English consul there, that they belong to that place, which being produced, the

3. That if any English ships shall receive on board any goods or passengers belonging to the kingdom of Tunis, they shall be bound to defend both them and their goods so far as lies in their power, and not deliver them to the enemy.
 4. That if any of the ships of either party shall, by accident of foul weather or otherwise, be cast away upon any coast belonging to the other party, the persons shall be free, and the goods saved, and delivered to the proprietors.
 5. That the English that do at present or shall at any time hereafter inhabit in the city or kingdom of Tunis shall have free liberty, when they please, to transport themselves with their families and children, although born in the country.
 6. That the people belonging to the dominions of either party shall not be abused with ill language or otherwise ill-treated, but that the parties so offending shall be punished severely, according to desert.
 7. That the consul or any other of the English nation residing in Tunis shall not be forced to make his address, in any difference, into any court of justice, but unto the Dey himself, from whom only he shall receive judgment.
 8. That the consul or any other of the English nation shall not be liable to pay the debts of any particular person of the nation, unless obliged thereto under his own hand.
 9. That all the ships of war belonging to the dominions of either party shall have free liberty to use each other's ports for washing, cleaning, and repairing any of their defects, and to buy and ship off any sort of victuals, alive or dead, or any other necessaries, at the price the natives buy it in the market, without paying custom to any officer.
 10. That in case any ships of war belonging to Tunis shall take, in any of their enemies' ships, any Englishmen serving for wages, they are to be made slaves; but if merchants or passengers, then they are to enjoy their liberty and goods, free and entire.
 11. That if any ship of war belonging to the kingdom of Tunis, fighting under his own colours with an English ship not wearing English colours, shall surprise her under the same, the said English ship shall be prize, notwithstanding the peace.

12. That in case any slave in the kingdom of Tunis, of any nation whatever, shall make his escape, and get on board any ship belonging to the dominions of the said Lord Protector, the English consul shall not be liable to pay his ransom, unless timely notice has been given him to order that no such be entertained; and then if it appear that any slave has so got away, the consul is to pay his patron the price for which he was sold in the market, and if no price be cut, then to pay 300 dollars and no more.

Feb. 27. Earl of Norwich to Sec. Nicholas. The King is not yet come, though we expected him till 8 p.m., and most of his servants arrived by the boat. We think that not finding his coach ready by 4 a.m., he—not having been in bed all night because he would be in the ship by 5—stayed for the Duke of York, who had not come from Breda. “As for my father, the Duke of Gloucester,” he is not to come to us here, nor with us for England, where our new comers from Antwerp assure us we shall speedily be, though I see small likelihood of it, as to any assistance hence which should give England encouragement to rise first, without which I give my hopes for dead. Yet our politicians say all is sure, and we shall away speedily.

I fear we are not to the bottom of our affairs on this side the seas or that. If they in England rise not till we be ready to assist them, the Lord help us, for vain is the help of man. My baroness is said to have furnished her 2 brothers with 3,000*l.* or 4,000*l.* between them. [Extract, Flanders correspondence.]

I believe he will take his house at Bruges 1 or 2 quarters more. [1¾ pages, Flanders correspondence.]

[Sir] Jas. Hamilton about a jest, and between Benion and Silvius about an old play debt, but both prevented.

At the ball at Lord Newcastle's was the Duchess of Lorraine and her son and daughter, with the King and his brothers and sister, several French people, and some of the town. The King was brought in with music, and all being placed, Major Mohun, the player, in a black satin robe and garland of bays, made a speech in verse of his lordship's own poetry, complimenting the King in his highest hyperbole. Then there was dancing for 2 hours, and then Lady Moore, dressed in feathers, came in and sang a song of the same author's, set and taught him by Nich. Lanier. Then was the banquet brought in in 8 great chargers, each borne by 2 gentlemen of the Court, Mr. Erskine, Darcy, Sir W. Fleming, Sir Gilb. Talbot, &c., and others bringing wines, drinks, &c. Then they danced again 2 hours more, and Major Mohun ended all with another speech, prophesying his Majesty's re-establishment.

The day before M. Marsine received the order of the Garter at Mr. Harvey's. The George was put on by the King, the Garter and cloak by Sir Edw. Walker. My master [the Duke of Gloucester] was also knighted in the chapter held for the other's election. [Extract, Flanders correspondence.]

Thos. Ross to Sec. Nicholas. Lord Newcastle continued the discourse I told you of so long that it reached the ear of the Lord Chancellor, who told the King, and both were much offended. They checked Newcastle gently, but were severe on his intelligencers, Elliot and honest Will Love; but Newcastle and the King parted kindly, the King having real kindness for him, rather pitying his weakness than forgetting his inadvertency, and the malice of those who informed him, who are great decriers of this business, and in that satisfy the humours of Newcastle and of his wife, who swears that the affair can not and shall not be effected without her husband.

I hope that the affair is in a better way than was believed, for I hear that 20 butts of sack (men-of-war?) are brought to Overell (Ostend?), and more are on the way. The guide, who was G. Hollis' friend, and came from England to Richston (Rotterdam?) is sent to, and will be ready on call.

Your friend Mr. Eager is very diligent, especially with his new-made companion in the order of the Garter, who is very cordial to him, and has all ready on his part.

On our petition last May, you granted us 200*l.* a year out of the tithes as soon as they should come into hand, to be settled on 2 godly ministers. I am sorry I cannot obey you and wait on you at Bruges, for I hear our master will not return there to live, and if we have any hopes this spring of moving nearer home, I must wait close, that I may have the more time to fit myself for my journey; but I can discern no appearance of this, though others are sanguine. Caracena and Gamarra visited the King, and he visited Caracena and Don Alonso, but if I have any skill in countenances, all things are not right.

S. Fox to Nicholas. Your letters are delayed if they pass the Resident's hand. I spoke to the King last night about the reformadoes; he is earnest for their relief, and has ordered them credit for another month; but I can find no other way to do this than to write to my wife to send for the French cook, and try whether she can dispose him to furnish them for a month longer, before which doubtless there will either be relief or action for them. Send the names of those that should have the benefit of this favour, as some are gone, and others paid clear off.

His Majesty was busy with affairs yesterday. M. Marsine was with him in the morning, and they went together to Don John in the Park, the usual place of meeting, and Marquis Caracena and Don Estevan de Gamarra came to him in the afternoon.

We hear of a mutiny of Cromwell's soldiers so great that they killed his son, who was sent to appease them. I do not believe this, but he stands very ill with his army.

When the Princess leaves Breda, the Duke of Gloucester comes here, if the King can send him money to bring him and to put his menage into order. It is said the clergy intend to raise men for this campaign, but their number is not fixed. The Archbishop consents to our using our own butcher this Lent, which is very convenient, or we should have had more to pay. There is little talk of our returning to Bruges. Levant Company to Chas. Longland, Leghorn. Hearing that the Turks demand 75,000 rix dollars for the provisions carried away by Capt. We hear that he has sold at sea great parcels of rice and other goods which were part of these provisions, and that most of the coffee now at Leghorn, being 200 bales, belongs to the same account. We beg you to pursue the Protector's order, in returning what remains of the Grand Seignior's provisions there, and in order thereto, to secure the coffee till it be proved in whom the property lies, or any goods of the Captain, who ought to be responsible for his offence, that all may be done for salving so rash an attempt, and preventing the seizure of our estates in Turkey, and the dangers Levant Company to Roger Middleton, Morea. In ours of 19 Nov., we mentioned our resolution to manage the Morea trade by a joint stock, that it might not be appropriated to a few, but that all of the Company who pleased might have an interest therein. For the better advantage of the stock, we have, by a general court, imposed a penalty of 20 per cent. on all particular trade distinct from the same.

As, till a few days back, we had not received the least intimation whether you accepted the consulship on the terms agreed on here, before your letter of 24 Nov. arrived, we had, by a general court, dismissed you from that charge, and elected Rich. No oracle was ever more consulted than the Lord Chancellor, and now we are to believe that in 15 days we shall go towards our business. Lord Bristol has an ague. Toby Rustal is well again. Sir H. de Vic is to seek lodgings out of Court, for the pride of his woman, who would be as good as Lady Hyde. Our master was very cheerful all yesterday, though he had complaints that the bread was denied to his regiments, nor can he get from the Spaniards a penny of his pension, which is 6 months in arrear, besides the 3 months advanced, which they said should not be deducted, and all the expense he has been at for the regiments. At least Mr. Fox pretends this, yet some men abound while others want. Lord Ormond's business is not well carried. It is in everybody's mouth. [Extracts, Flanders correspondence.]

The world thinks the King of Spain contributes much to the King's affairs, particularly Cromwell, whose fears and jealousies are great. His reasons for dissolving Parliament are:—1. Denial of money. 2. Preparation in all counties of petitions against the present Government. 3. The officers of his army speak boldly to him and begin to cabal. Some say that the counties refuse to make new elections; that Sir Chas. Howard, captain of his guard, and Col. White, an officer, are sent to the Tower; that Monk in Scotland

God keep him as firm in his old religion as another earl seems to be in his, to which he is newly converted. He told me Lockhart might drive him out of France, but should never have his boy. He is treating to go and serve the Pope.

There are local whippers of large sums received by the King, and of great preparations for an invasion both by sea and land. I hope it is true, and wish it were secret. Is M. Marsine Knight of the Garter, and is the Duke of Buckingham in Holland?

the coal owners, I have taken a tedious journey from Scotland to supplicate against the exaction of 4s. a ton from natives, which is the intrinsic value of the same, and 8s. a ton from strangers, which is double the intrinsic value of the said coals, by pretext of the late Act for establishing of the subsidy of tonnage and poundage. As coals are one of the best staple commodities of the nation, thousands of families having their whole subsistence therefrom, and as I cannot long be dispensed from my charge as High Sheriff of the County of Fife, I beg an order to the Commissioners for Customs and Excise in Scotland to accept from the coal owners such a proportionable part of the value of coals for the subsidy thereof as they do of other commodities. I have made 2 journeys to London on this business, spending 8 weeks at great charge and loss of practice at home. Whereas 1,300,000*l.* is required for support of the government and defence of these nations against the common enemy and in the war with Spain, and the imposition of excise was found the best way to levy the same, and therefore in the additional Act for Excise, it was ordered that (except in and about London) no fine should be levied for nonpayment of excise, or seizure made by the sub-farmers, except by warrant of 2 or more indifferent justices of peace, who were to examine and determine complaints, and mitigate the penalty in case the fault has been through ignorance or mistake, so that the fine be not less than

Sec. Thurloe to [Amb. Lockhart]. Our enemies try to represent our condition as distracted, but I do not know the ground for their reports. I have never observed a greater calm than at this time. The army in all the 3 nations are in very good temper, and are now making their addresses to his Highness, assuring him that they will live and die with him in all events, and I am persuaded it comes from their very hearts. There is a lying report that Gen. Monk refused his Highness's order, but there is no colour for it, there being not a man in all the 3 nations more loyal and dutiful to his Highness than he is, nor one to whom his Highness is more indebted for weeding out of the army troublesome and discontented spirits. Our enemies have always made lies their refuge. [Extract, French correspondence.]

T. Mompesson to Sec. Nicholas. Thanks for yours and the prediction, which may come true, being on the side of so just a cause. I am transported to find that there are means in hand for effecting it, and would hazard my life in its execution. I have with me Mr. Hunt, who, had he not escaped, would have been beheaded the next day at Ilchester for the same business that I was in at Salisbury, and has shown more affection to the cause than I could do, being too young in the first war. We both think if we could slip into your own country, we could do more service by getting our friends together than by mere personal service. We are most willing to run that risk, so as to have foot in stirrup with the first, but will not presume to do it without your warrant. Col. Bowle, who is in Low Normandy, would also be ready. I am sorry my former news, written by a counsellor of the Parliament of Paris, is not true.

I am heartily sorry for the death of the Earl of Rochester, and hope the King will lose no more of his friends now when there is occasion for them.

We hardly know what news from England to believe, but some say that one of the members of the Lower House told Cromwell that there was no need of a House of Lords without a King, and if they must have a King they would have the right one, which I pray God to put into the hearts of the whole nation. Sir Edw. Walker to [Sec. Nicholas]. The King and persons in trust speak confidently of a speedy attempt on England, but when I consider the time of the year, no preparation visible on our part, and too much on Cromwell's, I cannot believe we shall attempt anything this spring. If we are to tide out another year here, Lord have mercy upon us! I do not despair but that the discontents in England may give his Majesty some advantage, so that he shall less need foreign aid, and only owe the cure to those that gave him the wound.

Ostend is taken, and a fleet is coming for our use from Holland, but the Spaniards say that shall not hinder their intended assistance. Don John, on information of the burgomasters of Dixmude complained that Col. Blagge forced them to an agreement, and did not punish some who robbed a church, and that his soldiers pulled down several houses. He has made a satisfactory defence, and is gone for Holland.

Mr. Langley complains that not being on the list, he had not the same assistance as the other reformed officers, but the King has ordered it, and Fox has written to his wife to assist Langley to the same proportion as the others have had. A Placaert is issued, forbidding commerce with England, and speaking kindly of our master, but if it is to be an advantage, why was not it published sooner?

I am sorry for your illness. I wish you had your due share in the conduct of affairs. Lord Berkeley's promotion has hastened Lord Langdale's, and revived that for Mr. Crofts, whose patent for baron is now drawing.

P.S.— $\frac{1}{2}$ March. The difference between Don John and Caracena, which has so obstructed our affairs, is now composed. The King was a long time with Don John yesterday, but not with much satisfaction, as I gathered by his countenance. Though all the talk is of going speedily for England, the Duke of York prepares for another campaign. The King is pressed to go for England the end of this month, or all will be lost. Our forwardness for it is too visible. Col. Stephens came last night, but whence or what he brings is a secret. [$4\frac{1}{2}$ pages, Flanders correspondence.]

Sir G. Talbot to Sec. Nicholas. In answer to your queries, as to the time of our setting out on this great business, you have good reason to doubt that it will not be within 15 days, from the want of a rendezvous, the ill usage of the few men we have, the improbability of getting the many more required, and the difficulty of procuring and launching a fleet. Yet M. Marsine gives it out confidently that we shall be at the waterside this month, and the King would have us believe it; though I think it will take longer.

As there are 15,000 arms in Thomson's hands for us, and others in Holland ready to be sent, I think a competent body will not be wanting. The great obstruction is the rebels' strength at sea. Yet our wise Vice-Admiral thinks if the King puts forth his flag and summons the rebel fleet, the greatest part will come over to him; but this is not to be depended upon. Gamarra provided the Holland vessels, and little Sir John was offended that the employment was taken out of his hands, and said he could have got them cheaper. This Gamarra resents, and Sir John's great patron has forbidden him his evening club lest he use intemperate expressions.

The King and Lord Chancellor are fully satisfied that the Spaniards intend the business seriously, but I think that, unless they have some great encouragement, such as a rising in England, or the declaration of the Hollanders in our favour, they will seem to prepare for us, but make the whole preparation serve for their own defence. They are too wise to run their heads against the wall for any importunities.

Our friends in England may probably have the same good inclinations, yet not so warm as to thrust them upon any action, till they see more forwardness abroad. The King cannot get a penny from the Spaniard, but goes all upon credit, and if not relieved by 6 April, will be bankrupt to all who have credited him for his expenses, which are as extravagant as ever I saw them since his exile.

Col. Philips refuses to wait on his master because he will not join with Mr. Griffith. Your undutiful son, Lane, is daily at court. Sir Jas. Hamilton is to go for England. If our journey there is disappointed, I cannot advise you where to fix your jointure house, for our great man will not declare that point, but I do not think the King will return to Bruges. S. Fox to [Sec. Nicholas]. I hope our great business may not end in discourse. The King has been very industrious since he came, and is for the most part in continual business, but has got no money, only fair promises. The Duke of York, who was not more behind, has had 9,000 florins within these 4 days, and the Prince of Condé is gone to Antwerp for 104,000 crowns from Spain. If our turn come not shortly as promised, it will make the King very uneasy, as he is called upon from all hands for debts now fallen due. Lord Bristol will go to Antwerp to-day if well enough. Sir H. de Vic has been to Antwerp, and I am confident has brought some money, yet I do not believe it will be put into my hands, or perhaps disposed of till the Spaniards do something for us; this money comes not from them, and the false reports that the King has money by other means has prevented supplies from them. They are glad of any pretence to delay parting with money. Sir H. de Vic removes to-day, so our quarters will be enlarged, and I hope the King will decide about his family and goods. I think with you that Cromwell will not hold long where and as he is, but it must be rather from what he is loaded with at home than what is likely to fall upon him from hence. I cannot with my best spectacles discover any probable ground for our passing the seas this spring, and I am told that within these 24 hours the King begins to think so too, whatever he says to the contrary, and that he is beginning, like the Duke of York, to prepare for the next campaign, and thinking how to live in the interim, which is a sad and shrewd symptom.

eoldness between the 2 brothers [the King and Duke of York]. God prevent it, and correct the puffers of it. We are in a sad case, and run aground on a sad coast, all being in distraction and division amongst the governors here. I am confident there is a kind of treaty between Cromwell and these people, as well in Spain as in these parts and in England. All our friends in England are excellently well prepared, but those here will not believe it till they see the effects, nor will they there stir till assured, on better notice than private emissaries, that a good succour is ready to set forth from hence; so between this and that, where are we? Our good lord-lieutenant is said to be returned to Zealand. What has become of his negotiation in England? [2 pages, Flanders correspondence.]

March 15. 23. Hum. Robinson to Williamson. I have forwarded your enclosures. Mr. Norris is gone for Weston. Business transactions. Your books in France pay no custom, neither did we, till bishops and learning were made malignant by the Long Parliament. We want some copies of Sir Kenelm Digby's tracts. Particulars of books.

Last week the Protector sent for the Lord Mayor and Common Council, and made them a speech above 2 hours. Having dissolved Parliament, because it was led aside by some turbulent spirits, he gave us to understand the dangers we were in; 10,000 men were ready to be shipped in Flanders. The Duke of Ormond had been here incognito, and now James Duke of York was somewhere in the North. Knowing not how soon these may be wafted over, he wished the City to put their militia in a posture of defence with all speed, which he intends all the nation over.

Much more was said, how he had protected us from the designs of most of our late Parliament, all which we like well, if he calls for no more money than the late Parliament exacted. If he had not dissolved that short Parliament, which some call the Blue Parliament, all your college lands would have been sold.

We think that, on the judges' return from their circuits, we may see something more done. Some say he is jealous of Monk, who refuses to come out of Scotland, but report says that Monk is well beloved by officers and soldiers, and that they will not let him go till they are paid, which will not be in haste. College news. [2 pages.]

March 16. 24. Edw. Norris to Williamson. I am just going to Weston. London. Mr. Robinson and I drank your health in claret. Send me word if you want any of your debt returned. I wish you a good passage when you come. [1 page.]

[March 16.] 25. Petition of Rich. Tomlyns, Baron of the Exchequer, to the Protector. By your warrant of 1 February 1654-5, you required Gualter Frost to pay me 500*l.* for 3 years' salary, at 163*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* a year, but Mr. Frost still refuses to pay, saying that he has no money for that purpose. I have much more due for my salary since, and a great charge of children unprovided for. I beg the arrears, and payment in future from the Exchequer as the other

24. 29. The Scotch Committee to consider a draft of commissions for the judges in Scotland, altered from the late form, perfect the draft, and report to Council.

31. On report from the Committee of Council, to whom the report from the Treasury Commissioners on his Highness's reference on Thos. Whitby's petition was referred,—that his Highness's Privy Seal of 24 Sept. 1656 allowed the petitioner, as Receiver-General of Revenue in cos. Salop, Stafford, and Chester a salary of 1*s.* in the pound for all he paid into the Exchequer, and that several estates were given into his charge, amounting to 7,400*l.* 16*s.* 4*d.* a year, some of which were discharged 1643, 1644, 1645 by the Haberdashers' Hall Commissioners, before the date of the Privy Seal, and others afterwards by judgment in the Exchequer Court, which estates so discharged amounted to 1,659*l.* 2*s.* 1*d.*, leaving but 5,741*l.* 14*s.* 3*d.* in the petitioner's charge; and the auditor has delivered out contracts of several other estates now depending in plea in the Exchequer to their discharge, to the value of 2,716*l.* 3*s.* 0*d.*, which, should they be discharged by judgment of the Barons, what remains with the petitioner would be but 3,025*l.* 11*s.* 3*d.*, and that therefore he does not receive such salary as was intended for him:—order that the Treasury Commissioners settle on Whitby a salary proportionable to that originally intended.

- March 16. Pres. Lawrence to the Lord President and Council in Scotland. The Whitehall. Protector referred to Council a petition of Earl Wemys about the impost on coals in Scotland as contrary to the Act of tonnage and poundage, but Council thinks the meaning of the Act to be that for every ton of coals exported from Scotland by natives, and in native ships, 4*s.* should be paid, and 8*s.* if exported by strangers. Yet it may encourage trade in Scotland, and not prejudice England, to respite part of these payments till the true meaning of the Act is more fully declared, and reduce it to 2*s.* 6*d.* by natives, and 5*s.* by strangers.
- As it appears that Martin Noel,—who has a farm from 25 March next of the said subsidy on coals, and has treated with the Earl thereon—is willing to give way to abatement, if defalcation be allowed him in his rent, his Highness and Council have consented thereto, and ordered this allowance. Therefore you are to cause publication to be made of his Highness's will that the said abatement be made, till his further pleasure is known. [I. 78, pp. 863-5.]

I fear the fair occasion which the conjuncture affords may be lost, whilst there is expectation which of the two, ourselves here, or our friends in England, should strike the first. We still talk of being able to overcome all difficulties, and he who is fearful is not thought well affected. Meantime our contrivements towards a settlement here, and even in this house (which I am leaving to make room for others more necessary about the King), do not betoken any sudden remove, unless it be done as a blind. Mr. Beling is here, and my Lord Lieutenant will be here soon. [Extract, Flanders correspondence.]

Sir Alex. Hume to [Sec. Nicholas]. I have been ill with gout and gravel. I am sorry for your indisposition. The Dane has been forced to an ugly agreement with the Swede. All advertisements agree that Cromwell is in a bad posture, as well for want of money as the general discontent, not only among the people but in the army, which gives hope that the time for his ruin draws near. I hope God will enable his Majesty to use this conjuncture. His preparations for it will be the more successful the less they are visible. Monk's jealousy of Cromwell's purpose to thrust him out of his command of the forces in Scotland should incline him to desert, and return to the King's obedience, if he were dexterously treated, his crimes, though great, not rendering him incapable of pardon. We hear that an express has come from Spain to Brussels with 300,000 crowns. The Princess will not leave here till she sees how the King and Duke of York will dispose of themselves. Lord Colepepper to Sec. Nicholas. I think with you that the season for attempting anything this year is past, now that the English ships can ride confidently on the coast of Flanders. God send us as good a conjuncture, and may we then be not lapsed in time, as we are now. The question is how the King should spend his time till winter. I hope he will not venture his person in the campaign in Flanders, and wish he would stay at Bruges till the season for action in his own affairs returns. They promise not to divert the materials destined to his service, but perhaps to add to them next winter,—the only season for anything of force from this side the sea,—unless some accident in England sooner open him a door there. Returning to Genoa, I wished to see England, was driven by storm to Warton, and travelled to Colchester, where I and all I had were seized and brought to Whitehall. 34. Navy Commissioners to the Admiralty Commissioners. We have daily brought to our office many tickets of persons discharged out of the State's ships in the Downs, Portsmouth, Plymouth, &c., who never personally appear before us, but the tickets are brought in by shopkeepers, tradesmen, and alehouse keepers, under pretence of debts, relief in sickness, &c., whereas in truth they are bought in these parts for so much in the pound, to the poor men's loss, and for the most part consumed in drinking, tippling, and ill-husbandry ashore. The major part of such tickets are said to be of able seamen, whereas many of them are servants, and scarce ordinary seamen, which is a great abuse to the State, proceeding from the captains and officers intrusted that make out such tickets.

Moreover great complaint is made at our office by masters of servants, that they are defrauded of their servants' wages by the captains granting out such tickets in remote parts. This disorder begets much trouble and clamour, both to our office and the treasury, where greater sums are weekly paid out than otherwise would be. Middleburg.

Thomas, Lord Wentworth, to Sec. Nicholas. Thanks for your letters. Several gentlemen who came over from England with this last convoy agree that there never was so fit an opportunity as now for his Majesty to make some attempt there. Several persons of quality, in many parts of the kingdom, are prepared to rise, whenever he shall land with any force, but here lies the great difficulty. They are unwilling, and indeed unable to rise till the King be landed to give some diversion to Cromwell's army; but though the Spaniards will provide all in readiness, they will do nothing till the business is begun in England.

How these two will be accorded I do not see, the time of the year being so far spent, but several of these gentlemen are gone up to the King at Brussels, to encourage and quicken the Spaniard; for unless the King can make some attempts as he has promised, he will discourage his friends in England, and it will be the ruin of divers of them, and may be the loss of their lives. It must get vent, being known to so many people. [$1\frac{3}{4}$ pages, Flanders correspondence.]

Pe[rey] Ch[urch] to Sec. Nicholas. The approved remonstrance is printed and sold publicly at Brussels. I marvel you know so little of the King's preparations, promised assistance, and speedy design for England, when letters from Flanders speak of nothing else. I hear that Cromwell will soon be declared King by a Committee of officers joined to his Council, notwithstanding Monk's refusal of coming to London, for redress of which, and to prevent danger, Lord Richard is to be dispatched northwards with some troops. Lockhart has proposed to France to recognise him as King, but the result is not known. [Extract, French correspondence.]

On the other side, our friends begin to cast about to get clear of the business, and resolve for the future to sit still. Dick Pile will wait only a fortnight, and then if he finds nothing done will be done, endeavour his peace and meddle no more. Many others have taken the same resolution. We shall soon find a thin court, if once we look to a campaign here. We are promised in a few days 300 suits of grey cloth for our King's guards; Marsine is much for the expedition of our business. The King has been entreating the Spaniards to know the cause of the delay, but does not get much satisfaction. We fear our hopes are so airy that they will starve us. March 23. 37. Petition of the inhabitants of Wells and Cuthbert's parish there to the Protector. On 17 July 1656, you ordered us the use of the cathedral, then ruinous, and we have been at great cost in its repair, and are progressing therein; but we are impeded by the violence of Dr. Corn. Burgess, who has got possession of the church without order, threatens those whom we put in to take care of it, keeps it locked, and admits none save at his pleasure, so that the subscribers refuse to pay in their moneys, thinking that he has some private right in it, and thus we cannot finish the work.

We beg you not only to confirm your former order, but to confer the church upon the city, to be employed for public worship and the burial of the dead, there being but one parish church, and a small churchyard, for 10,000 inhabitants. [1 page.]

[March 23.] 39, 40. Petition of Thos. Goodyear, merchant, to the Protector. I paid the usual customs and took cockets in the Port of London for tin to be shipped for the Straits, without at once bringing down the goods. Soon after the late Act for Customs passed, and before it was published, the Commissioners on 29 June set up an order in the Custom House that no lead or tin should be shipped by virtue of any former cocket, without paying 10*s.* a fodder on lead, and 12*s.* 8*d.* a cwt. on tin, as the duty imposed by Act of the Parliament begun 17 Sept. 1656. I applied to one of the searchers to pass my goods, but he said he could not, and should seize them if I shipped them.

Finding that one of the searchers shipped great quantities of tin on preceding cockets, I intended to apply to the Committee for regulating Customs, but they had adjourned.

Though Acts of Parliament bear date the first day of the session, yet as people cannot notice them before they are published, and, as in former changes of customs, cockets passed beforehand were always allowed, I beg the same favour as other merchants in like cases have had. With note that 600*l.* has been paid for customs, which the new Act rates at 1,100*l.* more. With reference to the Committee for regulating the Excise and Customs, to report, 19 Sept. 1657; their report, 8 Dec. 1657, that the petitioner only entered 162 cwts. of tin in his own name on 4 June 1657, but he claims large quantities entered in other names, the additional duty on all, which would be 1,172*l.* 18*s.* 8*d.* That they thought the Act, which they received 27 June, was a sufficient publication, and at first forbade the shipping of any lead or tin without the new duty, yet on 29 June consented that all entered before 26 June might be shipped before the printing of the Act, which was 4 July; but the petitioner's tin was not ready, the tin having been entered on the rumour of an additional duty, with intent not to ship it till later. They think if he is not allowed to export the tin, he should have his money repaid by transport of goods of like value. Signed by Sir Wm. Roberts, John Stone, and Gerv. Bennett. Also further reference thereon to Privy Council, 2 January 1657-8. [2 papers.]

[March 23.] 41. Reply in detail by Goodyear to the report of the Customs' Commissioners, stating that he got a private leave to ship part of his tin, which was not done till 10 Aug. last, and that it was then granted

T. Mompesson to [Sec. Nicholas]. Thanks for your promised favour in getting me and Mr. Hunt our commissions when you arrive at Brussels. God give us wisdom and courage so to use them that the King may be served, and you may not repent your trouble. We shall rely on your orders as to the time of putting them in execution.

I hear that Cromwell has long since had drums beaten for volunteers to be sent into Flanders, but cannot yet make up 2,000 men, as it is believed he is pressing men to make good his promise to the French King of 15,000 men this summer; but he will rather break the promise than part with any more of his old soldiers.

Do not send the commissions by post, but let them go by the Brussels carrier to Paris, and Mr. Coventry's son, or Lord Roscommon's tutor, will forward them. [Extracts, Flanders correspondence.]

Sir John Berkley to Sec. Nicholas. I will do my best to obey your and Lady Radcliffe's commands, in sending her the balance of 1,000 livres promised her by my master [the Duke of York], but I wish she did not share in the error about the goodness of his condition. I wish he could find his family subsistence and help others. I send her through Mr. Wayte 300 guilders. The Duke went to Breda on Monday, and returns this week for our public affairs. I can say but little about them, as I confine myself to what is incumbent on me. With order by George Wayte to Adrian de Meyck, to pay the 300 guilders. [2½ pages, Flanders correspondence.]

S. Fox to [Sec. Nicholas.] I hope you will soon be better. Beling has come back from Antwerp moneyless, though he had an order for 3,000 crowns, but the paymaster made an evasion. Sir Edw. Walker to Sec. Nicholas. I fancy some revival of our designs for England, but I have no reason to hope. Marsine has been here 2 or 3 days, and many of our adjutators have gone several ways, but we are dead in discourse, and no person so fallen in appearance and gesture as your great brother secretary [Earl of Bristol]. When the Duke of York returns on Saturday, we may see if another campaign be our sad fate; if so, I fear our troops will be but thin, being so ill-used between the Spanish court and their own officers. Col. Blagge cannot obtain his despatch. My Lord Lieutenant and Lieut.-Gen. Middleton are expected here.

I have had a hearing before the Lord Chancellor and Earl of Bristol against Sir Art. Slingsby, and made good my assertions, and they will report the matter for the King's decision. As to the fee of the clerk of the signet, it was asked whether the 8*l.* demanded was for the officer of the signet, or whether the secretary's fee of 5*l.* was included; if so, Lord Bristol said he would forgive him that fee. Tell your son this, that he may resolve the doubt, and what is due to him will be paid. [2 pages, Flanders correspondence.]

Capt. P. Mewes to Sec. Nicholas. I hear from England that Monk continues his contumacy, and that Falconbridge is to command in Scotland. That the Lord Mayor and Aldermen were summoned by Cromwell to Whitehall, but the business is not yet public. That several troops are sent to the sea coast in Kent. That there is soon to be a general rendezvous of the army at Blackheath, when his usurpership expects to be declared King. That some of the militia [officers] are added to the Council to carry on affairs. That 2 files or 12 men are drawn out of every company in London for Mardike, whither all the English near, being 3,000, are drawn till other recruits come over. We are languishing with the thoughts of the intended return. The troops here have lost belief in their officers, want bread, shoes, &c., are illtreated by the magistrates, and run away daily, and I see no redress. [3 pages, Flanders correspondence.]

T. Mompesson to Sec. Nicholas. I am glad of your good news of Monk's refusing to obey Cromwell's orders; I have heard the same from the French, and doubt not but there is something in it which gives Cromwell much trouble. The French say that Cromwell having ordered Monk to come for England, Monk replied that Cromwell might come to him if he had anything to say to him. Others say that had Monk intended any such thing, he would not have lately parted with 6,000 soldiers to Cromwell.

The 150,000*l.* you mention as furnished by Ald. Vyner was here said to be furnished by Noel, who is postmaster, and that the City was engaged for this, and have promised more for the setting out of the fleet. But a company of Huguenots here make lies to keep up the reputation of Cromwell, whom they take to be a great protector of their

Thos. Ross to Nicholas. The King sent me to take his little son out of the hands he was in, and bestow him for awhile in a place out of the knowledge of his mother or anyone else, but such as I took to help me, himself, and your younger brother. I wondered at the King's choosing me for this task. I believe I am designed for his tutor. He cannot be safe from his mother's intrigues where he is. It is a pity so pretty a child should be in hands that have neglected to teach him to read, or to tell 20, though he has much wit and great desire to learn. I have not heard of your being desired here. I am going to Antwerp, where Mr. Stanley is gone before.

I think the 300 suits for Col. Blagge's regiment are finished, for I saw 200 at Antwerp.

Declaration by the Protector for relief of divers Protestant churches driven out of Poland, and of 20 Protestant families driven out of Bohemia. On information that during the late wars in Poland, the Protestant churches at Lesna and other places have been driven away on account of their religion, and forced to fly into Silesia to preserve their lives and consciences, and have sent deputies authorized by 5 of their pastors, and by the testimony of Protestant princes who have afforded them shelter; and also on a petition from 20 Protestant families, driven from Missina in Bohemia into the Marquisate of Culembach, by the persecutions of the Jesuits and the House of Austria, whence they have sent a signed instrument attesting their distress, and their hope to find bowels of mercy among those who profess the same faith;—His Highness—not doubting that the people of this nation, who have been preserved from this anti-Christian tyranny, will have a fellow-feeling with their brethren—recommends them to liberality, as was exercised towards the poor Protestants in Piedmont (touching the faithful distribution whereof an account is ordered by his Highness to be printed for general satisfaction) and for the collection to be carefully made, and disposed to the relief of the said churches and families; and he requires the ministers in the churches in England and Wales to publish the same the next Lord's Day after they receive this declaration, and to make the collection the Lord's Day following, and pay the money within 3 days to the high sheriff of the county, to be by him paid to Sir Thos. March 26. Lord Chancellor Hyde to [Sec. Nicholas]. I send a letter to my

He is only a month behind of his allowance, so that he cannot be much in debt there; if he will come hither, I will give him something for clothes, for the service he shall do me, and if you supply him to bring him hither, I will repay you. If he be not willing to come, he is a fool. My tutor knows what to commit

 April 5. disbursements and the post of letters for the last 2 months, as we Brussels. are promised money when Caracena comes from Antwerp, from which I shall pay Mr. Rustat, as you appoint, 75 florins. Though I often name the expense we are at here in the hire of goods, and the nearness of the end of our term in the house at Bruges, no resolution can be taken for removal of the King's family and goods, till it be known what money we shall get.

I am sorry for poor Lord Napier, and will propose either the getting relief for the reformadoes, or the releasing them from longer dependence on the King, who is very unable to keep them. [1½ pages, Flanders correspondence.]

March 26. Percy Church to Sec. Nicholas. I believe Cromwell may soon be April 5. declared king by his Council of officers, for—

- 1st. He cashiered and imprisoned several of them, as lately Vice-Adm. Lawson and Col. Okey in the Tower.
- 2nd. His colleagueng speech to the Mayor and Aldermen at Whitehall, exhorting them to a firm union against the common enemy, Charles Stuart.
- 3rd. The sudden dispatch of Swift, Lockhart's secretary for England, might import something to the effect I named in my last.

Cromwell assured them that Ormond and O'Neale were in England, if not still in London, and not in Germany as pretended. You have their answer in the enclosed print, by which you may see that some have good intelligence from that Court, and know that the knighting of Col. Stephens was for his welcome news from Ormond. Also that Graves and Titus are dispatched for Scotland, and that Lord Langdale is soon going to the North. I know not who writes these particulars from Flanders. I know not how our master could have been sent to England this spring but by a general rising of the honest party; the foreign design will not be perfected before Michaelmas.

I am glad to hear that the King has reconciled the Lord Chancellor and Lord Gerard. [Extract, French correspondence.]

 Brussels. I have your letter, but have not seen old Newburgh, who brought it. All is as loose as ever here, the ministers dissatisfied with each other, and nothing executed which was resolved on, for which we pay dear, and cannot get the month's pay that was assigned. You overrate the gentlemen of the bed-chamber if you think they can prevail in anything they go about, and your neighbours will not procure the desired testimonial by their mediation. Whitby spoke to me for a licence, but I answered him as I had done Holt.

Antwerp did not proceed as you say; they rather interpose with the Court here not to publish the Placaert.

I look daily for 775, who is, I hope, on his journey, so I shall write to him no more. I know not which way he will come; it is not easy to choose a safe one. Lord Colepepper is in Holland; he complains of want, and cannot live in Brussels according to his quality. Earl Bristol is as well as ever with 630, who is good for nothing. O'Neale and Ormond are still in 750, but I have hastened them away, as there is no colour for their stay there. Col. Blagge is here, and will not go to his regiment till he can carry with him such orders as he desires, and it is not easy to procure them as the world goes. I do not believe Cromwell so ill a courtier as to labour what Card. Mazarin takes ill, nor do I think there is any intelligence between him and Prince Condé. Sir H. Bennet is as angry as we are, and complains as much.

Sir Edw. Walker, Garter, to Sec. Nicholas. Col. Blagge is still here and out of trouble, but he should be with his people at Dixmude. He and Lord Berkley are very instrumental to reconcile the Queen and the Lord Chancellor. I hear that the King is on some private, sudden action. It were better to venture something than daily to live in want and contempt as we do. Lord Bristol is gone to Ghent and lets his beard grow, hence rumours of some private undertaking; but I think the ministers here are unsatisfied with him. It was said that the Lord-Lieutenant was coming here, but I hear privately that he and O'Neale are gone for Ireland. Middleton came here on Friday, in good plight and with a full purse, which is well, as our Master has nothing for anybody.

These people would be glad if the King were elsewhere, but he cannot go the campaign unless they provide better for his troops, for there will be none to serve him.

I cannot hear where the King will reside, but it will not be at Bruges; so, to ease expense, I shall send for my wife here. The Chancellor has removed to Sir H. de Vic's lodgings in the King's house, and is handsomely accommodated. The Duke of York will be here to-morrow, and some say the Duke of Gloucester too. You will know him as a member of the late Parliament, or on account of his brother, to whom, I am sure, you would show any kind of respect. An M.A. degree is requested for him, which the University has always been most ready to grant on request of the Chancellor. I beg a letter to convocation requesting it, as he is of approved abilities, has long been a student, and is of 8 years' standing.

S. Fox to Sec. Nicholas. The order we had for a month's pension was found to overcharge the Treasury, so it was changed to 5,000 florins, which we have been soliciting, but cannot get, because a clause was omitted in the order. Till its payment I cannot remit to you. The Duke of York comes to-night, and also the Duke of Gloucester, as the Princess Royal goes from Breda. She has not paid any part of what the Duke of Gloucester expected from her towards his subsistence, which will make the King's burden the greater. The Lord Chancellor was well enough to be at church yesterday. [1 $\frac{3}{4}$ pages, Flanders correspondence.]

They were yesterday with their sister all over the fair, and in the dancing of the ropes, and to-day they dine at Ryswick, entertained by Lalceck, and others of our Dutch gentry. Downing has complained of their being here. He is a fearful gentleman. The day after the Princess came to town, he set 2 of his footmen to stand sentry the whole day, one on the top of the stairs before the door, the other at the corner of the house, to watch

The inhabitants of Wapping, the Hermitage, and East Smithfield, to the number of 800 poor housekeepers, preferred a petition to us at the Quarter Sessions of Westminster, 5 Oct., showing that by an explosion of gunpowder on 3 July, in powder houses at Wapping, many houses were blown down and shattered, to their damage of 9,665*l.* 17*s.* 6*d.*, many people were lamed and maimed, and many have become miserably poor, having lost their kindred and being destitute of their callings. [Ambassador Lockhart] to Sec. Thurloe. I hear from Flanders that their designs against England are laid aside till September with Charles Stuart's consent, on condition that the arms and provisions gathered at Nieuport and Ostend remain untouched, and that then no pretence hinder the vigorous prosecution of this affair. Mean-time they will continue their preparations, and give it out that they are intended for spring. They intended to land their little army at Plymouth, and were encouraged to do so from the little resistance they expected there, where they have friends who promised to secure one of the ports of the town, and they believed the garrison small, and the fortifications inconsiderable. They thought their landing would be favoured by insurrections at Bristol and Gloucester. I have seen the copy of a letter from Charles Stuart's agent at Madrid to his master, saying that he has not yet touched the 3,000 crowns which was to be given for the voyage of that person whom the King was to send into Spain, but should soon send him a bill for it on a merchant in 486. The Spaniards wish the treaty with this person could be made in Flanders, and complain that he is cautious and scrupulous. The person that manages this intrigue is one 23, 150, 222, 264, who was formerly with the Protector from Charles Stuart. If his correspondent in 486 could be found out, more light might be had. Their preparations for landing were utensils for fortification and palisades, fit rather to make a weak place strong than to take a place of strength. [Extract, French correspondence. Mardike Committee to Col. Smith, Governor of Hull. As the transport of men to Mardike requires despatch, you are speedily to complete the 300 or more, for each of whom you will be allowed 20s. for charges of raising and conducting aboard, which you are to pay them at their being shipped, and tell them that on landing in Flanders, they will receive coats, shoes, and stockings. You are to provide yourselves with the necessary funds from the county, and draw a bill of exchange on Wm. Jessop, with whom an order has been taken accordingly. The Admiralty Commissioners will appoint vessels at Plymouth for the transport, and you are to communicate with the Commissioner, probably Capt. Hatsell, about your proceedings. the people, without so inhumanly using our persons, being merchants seeking our livelihood; had we been among the Turks, we should have had a better passage than we have received from this people, who, though they have seen how freely those which our fleet took used theirs, yet have they no way regarded that piece of generosity, but smiled thereat, not valuing us, seeing that we were not so much as thought on to be demanded; and though you have given us notice of the diligence used with you there for our remedy, it as yet proves unsuccessful, nor are the letters sent to any purpose, neither do any of this nation, being once at liberty, regard any manner of gallantry used to them, but rather grow the more insolent, supposing it is on other respects than nobleness that they are freed, having made us the King's prisoners and sent our case up to Madrid, and God knows what will become of it.

Our hearts are broken to see our usage, for although I have no antipathy to the freedom and good usage the Spaniards have in England, yet till, by a little harsh usage, they be made to know themselves, this nation will never learn to well use their prisoners. Instead of the allowance their people have in England, since 6 Oct. they have not allowed us a maravedy, and in lieu of being confined to a town, they enclose us in a common jail, among rogues, murderers, and thieves, after having kept us in a castle 4 months in chains, without allowing us a bed to lie upon more than the hard soil, or suffering any man that would have accommodated us with a coverlid to have access to us.

I have not hitherto complained, but finding no remedy, I cannot longer forbear; the injuries we have received should be made notorious; had they taken us empty, they might be the more excusable, but after enjoying 15,000l. sterling, to use us thus is more like Turks than Christians, insomuch that had not cousin W. B. underhand relieved us in some measure, we had starved long since; and should he be forced away, we must of necessity come to that end. God in his mercy look upon us, and give us patience, and stir up the hearts of our governors in England to have compassion upon us. I beseech you to use your utmost endeavour with General Montague and apply yourself unto his Honour, as also unto the Admiralty Commissioners, that we may be redeemed from this our insupportable bondage. In case it happen that any Spaniards of quality fall into their hands, let them not be permitted to depart England till we are free, for except some such course be taken, we must end our days in this place. Let these lines be made appear to the world, that the Spaniards' cruelty may be known to all men, and neglect no opportunity to seek to obtain our

[Percy Church to Sec. Nicholas]. I hear from England that Sir Wm. Waller and Sir Rob. Harley's son, a couple of active Presbyterians, are committed to the Tower. Most of the governors of port towns being suspected of correspondence with Charles Stuart, the nightly search at London is general and more violent than ever for Cavaliers, Papists, &c., and hundreds of peaceable men have been carried to prison. The English are to have leave to take sea commissions from Portugal against the Dutch. Lord Fairfax has prevailed with Cromwell to have the Duke of Buckingham's business heard by 2 arbitrators, Sir Thos. Witherington, late Speaker, and Thurloe. Sidrach Blake is speedily to go with a squadron of ships to the coast of Spain. I doubt Ormond's being in your parts. Lord Berkley is here privately, and I hope it will be to good purpose. Sir Rich. Browne to Sec. Nicholas. No answer is yet given here to Cromwell's insolent proposition about being declared King. A strict search is made in London, almost every house ransacked, and 200 persons seized as suspected—Sir W. Waller, and Browne, late sheriff, among them, and divers other Presbyterians of note. It is said that his Majesty now ploughs with these heifers, and that his intended invasion was a Presbyterian plot, but is abated, and like attempts will now be prevented by the careful settling of the City militia in godly and well-affected hands. The Duke of Buckingham's business is referred to Sir Thos. Witherington and Thurloe, to take bail for his good behaviour, and he is to have his liberty. [Extract, Flanders correspondence.]

I spoke to Plumleigh* about it, and he told me, as a great secret, that Ormond was gone to Monk, and that was the principal ground on which the suit was to commence. Capt. P. Mewes to [Sec. Nicholas]. I send the enclosed by an express, the ordinary messengers being very negligent. I am sorry Altham's behaviour at Nieuport drew such a suspicion on him, and exposed him to so severe a censure from those who did not know his former conversation. He came by the packet because he could not find a convoy. That he did not come this way shows rather ignorance than guilt; he could not land at any of these ports without a strict examination, which hazard one who intended to be a spy would not run, when the passage to Holland was so easy and open. His having a pass from Lawrence is not strange, since they are easily purchased by any who have acquaintance in England, especially for one who was never in arms against Parliament. This season it is unsafe to be without one.

His proffer of a ransom must have been through fear of a chargeable imprisonment, or it might be on account of the late Placaert. His not going with us to Scotland, but going to England, was because he had not agreed with the lords of Over Yssel for his pension. He would have put himself in a condition to serve the King handsomely, had not our business in Scotland declined. He bears a very good character. Were I not assured of his loyalty, none would be more against him than I, the preservation of the King's person and cause being so dear to me that for it I am a stranger to some of my nearest relations. He may have been ill represented to his Majesty, and so some order he sent about him, but let him not be prejudiced till he is examined at Brussels. Endorsed [by Nicholas], "On behalf of Mr. Altham, now under restraint at Nieuport." [3 pages, Flanders correspondence.] Enclosing,

If I am not speedily removed from this noisome place, my health will suffer, but my petitioning rather aggravates them, so that I am looked on as a traitor to the King of Spain, though my letter out of England said I would engage in this

Sir Rich. Mauleverer to Sec. Nicholas. I do not know enough of Mr. Altham, now prisoner at Nieuport, to justify him myself, but those of his own country of Essex who knew him well said he left an employment in Holland for the King's service 4 years ago, and was then deeply engaged. Those designs would not have been told him without assurance of his fidelity. [1 page, Flanders correspondence.]

Col. Wm. Slaughter to Sec. Nicholas. Altham has always been reputed as well affected to the King, and when I was a prisoner in England, he showed me much kindness, and he has since advised with me how best to serve his Majesty. I am confident he came over with no other intention. [1 page, Flanders correspondence.]

143. Commissioner Peter Pett to Fras. Bacon, Master of requests. There are between 800 and 900 pensioners belonging to the chest of Chatham; 220 have lost legs or arms, and the greatest allowance that has been given to any, unless it be to some few who have lost both eyes, arms, or legs, is 6*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* a year, which is scarcely half the allowance given to others in like cases. Notwithstanding the last payment, there is between 2,000 or 3,000*l.* due to them, which has reduced them to such extreme misery, that I fear many of them have perished of late. We were willing last week to pay the most necessitous out of the 1,000*l.* last ordered, which gave little satisfaction to so great a multitude of poor people, notwithstanding that we left one quarter unpaid, so that I was forced to come out of town to avoid their clamours. Being returned home, I have little quiet, for there are many pensioners hereabout that are in the same condition, which with divers that daily come from London, begets so much unquietness, that unless some speedy course be taken for their relief, I shall heartily wish I had nothing to do with it. If it be made to appear that any number of persons can manage this business at a greater advantage to the State and to the interest of the poor men, I shall beg that we may leave off.

If Rochester Cathedral were given to the Governors to be improved, as mentioned in the petition referred by my Lord Protector to Council, it might go towards paying the arrears, but meantime if the Admiralty Commissioners could spare the other 1,000*l.* remaining on an order granted for their relief in Nov. last, it would conduce much to the satisfaction of those persons whose necessity is such that it makes them clamour for want of their money. 6 April 1658. 145. Petition of Anne, widow of Col. Thos. Ayloff, to the Protector. I thank you for your princely bounty to me and my children, when I first petitioned you on my husband's death [see 5 March 1657]. It has been my main subsistence ever since. But my whole personal estate is seized on by a judgment of 500*l.*, and I am put to compound for the bed I lie on, and the estate of inheritance will be forfeited next January, without speedy help. My last petition was referred to your Council, but no relief is yet given to me or my daughter, nor employment found for my son. I beg this, and help to redeem part of my estate. [1 page.]

Also allowance of the 632*l.* 5*s.* 1*d.*, due to me as executor to Major Bethell, &c., on Dean and Chapter lands without doubling, or lands in Ireland equivalent. With reference, 13 March, to Privy Council. [1 page.]

Creed, who will surrender them for the benefit of the parish—Approval of an order that the Trustees for Maintenance of Ministers cause the arrears of the 100*l.* a year to be paid to Cradock; that the tithes annexed to Langome Vicarage be settled on the minister, and that the said Trustees settle on Cradock for life 80*l.* a year from impropriations in the county, late in the tenure of Hector Morgan, the under tenants to pay him the respective sums and have them defalcated from their rent; Jones, Strickland, and the Lord Chamberlain to speak with the Trustees thereon, and on the premises being so settled, the 100*l.* granted to Cradock to cease. 148. IV. *Report of the managing committee of the Hospitals to the said Commissioners, on an order of 24 Dec. 1657. We were constituted a managing committee in 1653. We were to choose such pensioners as were not wholly disabled, and send them to serve in garrisons, bearing their charges thither, but not to exceed 20 per cent. In 1657 we were ordered to allow pensions to disabled soldiers from Jamaica and the West Indies, and to the widows and children of those slain in the service. Our revenues were 505*l.* a week from Excise, with the moiety of fines and forfeitures, being about 1,500*l.* a year, and 230*l.* a week from Goldsmiths' Hall, but in November 1654 the 735*l.* weekly was to be paid from the Exchequer. Then in 1656 it was to be paid by the Navy Treasurer, and has been so since, except 5 weeks' arrears from him, and 5 weeks from the Exchequer, amounting to 7,350*l.*, yet unpaid. The Protector to the Council in Scotland. For 100 years past the Gospel has been plentifully preached in the Lowlands, and competent maintenance provided for the ministry, yet no care taken to establish or maintain a ministry for the numerous people in the Highlands, most of whom have scarce heard whether there be a Holy Ghost or not, though some hunger and thirst after the means of salvation. Also there is a maintenance concealed, and unrighteously diverted to the sole benefit of particular persons, and detained both now and in the late King's time, for many years, by those who have no right thereto. Also some ministers who know the language have lately visited those parts, and been courteously used by many longing for the Gospel. We therefore, considering their sad condition, and the good that may rebound to many poor ignorant creatures, request you with all care to find out means for planting the Gospel in those parts, and the Barons of Exchequer in Scotland are to find out 600*l.* a year, from concealed revenues belonging to us, and pay them to nominees to be appointed for carrying on this service. been over the river to look out some vessels for transportation of the men, but find it a little difficult to procure such as are fit for this service, the river being empty of ships, and the time allotted short enough to make such provision. I shall do what I can to comply with your orders, though I have been sufficiently discouraged by the difficulty and trouble which I met with in obeying such commands as this is, for as yet I cannot, notwithstanding much solicitation, obtain your orders to this office to make out bills of freight to such vessels as I have contracted for by special order. In particular, I was commanded by his Highness and the Secretary of State to freight the Fortune flyboat, with her full lading of provisions, to the Fort at Mardike, and to be employed as a storehouse there, which service has been performed according to contract, and the vessel has returned home, but without your order, I cannot procure a bill for her freight, this Office not taking notice of such extra commands to any single person, unless directed to the body.

Please to give me a release from such vexatious complaints, that fill my ears daily, about this and the like cases, or else excuse me from such service as few except myself would accept of. I never hitherto disputed any commands, neither shall I now begin, provided I may be disengaged from my personal obligations, made for the State's advantage, which I am confident you cannot but judge equal and reasonable to grant me, who receive no allowance or consideration in lieu of my pains, care, and hazard of health. 154. Report, by Rob. Atkins, on the power of the Trustees for Bishops' lands, and Dean and Chapters' lands, in relation to the sacrist of a church [not named] who, though his place was made void since 29 March 1649, retains possession of the keys and goods of the church, sundry of which are missing, and takes and keeps without account fees for breaking ground, ringing funeral bells, &c. Also in Nov. last, he had the funeral bell rung and a corpse brought into the church during a sermon on the Lord's Day. The minister complaining to the mayor, who was also justice of peace, the case was referred to the sessions, and hurried through, in absence of the plaintiff, and dismissed for want of indictment, though the sacrist had confessed the offence.

Queries :—

- (1.) Whether an information lie in this case against both sacrist and justice, on the Act for better observing the Lord's Day?
- (2.) Whether the sacrist be not accountable to his Highness for the profits of his place and goods of the church, and a distringas to issue?
- (3.) Whether the minister may take the keys from the sacrist, and give them to another, to officiate as clerk there?

Answers :—

- (1.) That several informations will probably lie in the Upper Bench, both against the justice of peace and the sacrist.

- (2.) A bill in equity will lie in the Exchequer at suit of the Trustees for Maintenance of Ministers for what belonged to the sacrist, and the Trustees for Dean and Chapter lands may sue for an account of his profits.
- (3.) The Dean and Chapter Trustees, in whom is the freehold of the church, may dispose of the keys, not the minister; but the minister may choose his own clerk. [1 page.]

April 17. 155. Thos. Stradling to his nephew, Lieut.-Gen. Edm. Ludlow. Thanks for your letter and many favours. The proclamation for restraint of disaffected persons,—among which I am unjustly numbered,—has not prevented Mr. Mansell and his friends the innocent recreation of Ogmores Downs; and now, the cause being removed, the jealousy will cease, and I shall be able to wait on you in Wiltshire, if you go this summer; only ill-health or restraint should prevent. My service to your lady. [1 page.]

[April 20.] 156. Petition of William, Earl of Lothian, to the Protector. I was employed in the service of England and Scotland from 1637 to 1648, spent my own money, and signed many bonds for moneys which I never saw, which were used for levying soldiers, buying arms and ammunition, providing magazines, &c., I being really only a witness with others that persons lent these moneys for the public. They were esteemed public debts, and never demanded from me till 1652, when, the public representation of Scotland failing, I was pursued as a debtor therefor, and sentences obtained against me. I am the less able to pay by losing the keeping of the Signet given me for 10 years' service, by the wasting of my lands in 1650 and 1651, and by heavy assessments, so that my very numerous family is like to be scattered and turned out of doors.

I beg some remedy, and a stay meantime of all extents on my lands for public debts, for which the creditors cannot complain, as they are secured by infeoffment on my estate. With reference to Privy Council, 9 April 1658. [1 sheet.] Annexing,

156. i. Gen. Geo. Monk to the Protector. I write you at request of the Earl of Lothian, to say that he is like to be undone by his engagements for the public debts of this nation, in which he engaged with the honest part, and now all his lands are comprized, and a caption against his person for those debts, so that he will be ruined unless you stop proceedings against him till he can have relief from the country that ought to satisfy for those public debts. He is a nobleman who has always lived peaceably since I came hither, and before too, as far as I can understand. Dalkeith, 26 March 1658. [1 page.]

April 29. Reference thereon by Council to Sydenham, Desborow, Jones, Strickland, Fleetwood, Mr. Secretary, and Lord R. Cromwell, to report. [I. 78, p. 587.]

April 29. 167. Petition of Corn. Burgess, D.D., to the Privy Council. Your order of 23 March last, for me to deliver up the keys of Wells Cathedral was on an untrue information.

1. I know not the petitioners, most of the inhabitants, including the churchwardens, and the mayor and Corporation, denying it, so it was done by combination of a few.
2. I was not served with the order by any deputed thereto by the parish; I have not kept the keys to impede the order of 17 July 1656, of which I was glad, but for the trustees in whom the church is vested by Parliament, his Highness having granted, not the church, but the use of it, and the keys have ever been at the disposal of those who officiate.
3. The church has lately been much spoiled by some of the town. I am the only minister in the liberty in which the church stands; if the petitioners want it uniting to their parish church, they should apply according to the Ordinance for uniting and dividing churches.
4. These petitioners neither resorted to the church nor helped with the repairs for months before I had the keys, though last winter, on account of the broken windows, I could not endure the pulpit, but was obliged to use the reading desk, where divers could not hear me, and I begged for the glazing of the windows, but could not obtain it. The petitioners even quarrel with the townsmen who go to cathedral, and some tried to bring in a petition to oust me, though in their first petition [see 17 July 1656] they said they derived benefit from my preaching.
5. I never denied them the free use of the church, nor leave to repair it; but though they receive moneys, they do nothing, and none have denied payment on this account.
6. They seek to bring back an old malignant, who took arms against Parliament. I was dismissed in 1649, yet till of late, he usurped the place and took all the large fees, burial dues, &c., and has appropriated the cloisters and churchyard, and sundry goods of the church; he is an extortioner, and has made disturbance in the church for his own gain. This man and his son-in-law are those whom they speak of employing in the church.

I will testify the truth of all this, but beg that those witnesses who cannot travel may be examined in the country, and that I may have copies of all petitioners' answers, &c., in the case. The church door shall be kept open from 6 to 6 daily, and the clerk shall be ready to open any other door, when required for repair. Endorsed with a request that this be presented with any petitions of the inhabitants of Wells. [page.] Annewing, [President Lawrence to the Commissioners for Assessments in the counties.] By the Act made last Parliament for an assessment of 35,000*l.* a month on England, the Commissioners were to have their first general meetings on or before 2 July and 2 Jan., and their second on or before 16 July and 16 Jan., and so proceed that the first 3 months' assessment might be paid in before 1 Sept. and the second before 1 Dec., the third before 1 March, and the last before 1 June in every year during the 3 years. The state of affairs requires the bringing in of the June assessments with all speed, and the hastening of those for the next 6 months will be of very great advantage, and prevent free quarter, which otherwise will inevitably follow, and the Act authorizes the bringing in the moneys within 3 months.

We therefore request you to have the June assessment paid in by 1 June, and so to appoint your meetings that the moneys for the Sept. quarter be paid in before 6 July, and those due in Dec. before 6 Oct., without fail, on account of the urgent necessities of the State, which would be much prejudiced by any default. Use your utmost diligence and care, of which his Highness and Council will be sensible, that the army may be kept from free quarter. Approved 1 May. [I. 78, pp. 583, 588.]

1657. June 2	Major Wm. Burton, Yarmouth.	Adm. Com.	The Maidstone arrived on the 30th ult., with 240 soldiers for Mardike, but her rudder and stern being much damaged in a great storm, was forced to ship the soldiers in the Amity, now under sail, and to revictual them for 4 days. When the Pearl arrives with her soldiers, will send her on to Mardike. Begg they will clear Capt. Creene Clifton out of Canterbury Gaol, for John Browne, and Jno. Dobson, masters, and 3 mariners, all of Yarmouth; can get no quiet in his house for their wives, and Capt. Clifton was only commander of a little vessel of 4 guns. Being employed by the Ordnance Office to carry powder, &c., to Harwich for the Elizabeth, and to bring back 35 barrels of decayed powder, his boy sprang a leak, and having no money, he was constrained to sell one of the barrels to the master of a collier at Yarmouth for 30s., that he might bring the remainder home safely. "	John Greene, Deptford.	Major Robert Thomson.	Thanks for the Navy Commissioners' warrant to make out bills to Mr. Scott for payment of board wages, when he has laid out as much as his impress comes to; is surprised he should trouble them upon such a frivolous matter; gave him 6 bills last summer, but there was a mistake about them. Is willing to bear with an aged man, but begs he may make his bills quarterly, not weekly. Particulars of the difference between them. Can little bear the check and paymaster being in one person, although done in some other yards. If the Commissioners do not approve this, there are others in the yard of equal trust, who would take the charge, and pay the money weekly for less than 20 marks a year. Is not desirous to force Mr. Scott to throw up the business, as he threatens to do if he does not receive his bills, but to mind the royal rule to do to all men as he would they should do to him. Has been confined to his house with sickness, or would have attended the Commissioners; has written to Major Bourne, hearing Mr. Scott had made a similar complaint to him.	55

Kirby, by what means and by whose default she came to be lost upon Newark Sands, off Yarmouth, on 30th May last; also whether any of her guns, of which 9 were brass, may be gained out of the wreck, and if there is a probability, to order Mr. Willis, the diver, to endeavour to recover them.	70

"	Capt. Fras. Willoughby, Portsmouth .	Adm. Com	The Nasely, with 420 men, and other ships have sailed for the Downs; the Hampshire is paid off, and took 231. When the Resolution is in the Road, and some business settled about the yard, will attend their orders for moving to London. Is loading the ship for the fleet. If he receives no order for the Guinea to sail to St. Malo, of which several persons are very solicitous, shall order her to her station, the Hampshire lying in the Road being sufficient for the end propounded.	77
"	Capt. Hen. Pack, Amity, Downs .	Navy Com ^r	Hopes they do not harbour any ill-thoughts concerning John More's tickets; would have put them all in one, but he urged to have them made as Capt. Sanson's were, to whom he had formerly been pilot; agreed on his engaging to deliver them into the office at one time. Was necessitated to have a pilot, as the master and his mates were unacquainted with those places which were dangerous.	78
"	Aug. Aldridge, Lidney, Dean Forest .	"	Has formerly desired to be discharged of his engagements for the State in these parts; hopes they will hasten Major Wade or Mr. Shewell to let him have the money, otherwise cannot stir from hence. Is ready to obey their commands, although it has been a hard task to be called from home and livelihood, to such hard travail and work, which he has brought to pass to the wonder of the country and his predecessors, who found nothing but impossibilities, and now, in the glory of his hard labour, to have to leave it. It fell very happily that the ship came in, so that he might see his own provisions shipped, which lay ready for the use of the State. Has received 50 l. from Major Wade since Christmas.	79
"	Capt. Lamb, Cornelius, Bramble, Ostend .	"	Being ordered to Ostend, and not knowing that coast, applied for a pilot to the commander-in-chief, who referred him to Deal; had to go to Dover before he could obtain one. Is very often chasing near the shore, and had they not a very knowing man with them, would not have been able to venture, as the course is very dangerous; although their ship is but a 6th rate, yet she draws as much water as many 5th rate; hopes they will grant payment to the pilot. Had he been ordered on the coast of France, from one end to the other, would not have needed one.	80
"	Rich. Streate, Hart pink, Dover .	"	Sends two muster books. Came from Dunkirk Road to revictual, and to have alterations made to the pink, which, being new, has shrunk since leaving London, and shipped much water. The Mayor of Dover has remedied the defects, and instead of round ports has made square ones, which is convenient and wholesome; he has also removed the cook's room from the forecastle to the hold, and altered the masts and sails, so that she is now fit for summer as well as winter service.	81
"	Thos. White, Dover	"	Having finished the Lily, Rose, and Swallow, fell to work upon the Hart, and sends particulars of the alterations and repairs made.	82

Asks that Mr. Parker, master of the ketch appointed to wait on the London, but now on the squadron before Dunkirk, may enter his mate and servant on board the ketch, instead of serving in the London, Assistance, or Pembroke, and thus save confusion of accounts.	92

1657. July 3	Jas. Strutt, Half Moon, Yarmouth Roads.	Navy Com ^{rs}	The North Sea fishery being ended, has come in for orders. Rescued one of the fishery from 2 Dunkirkers, and followed them for some time, but they got away.	Vol. 169. 16
"	"	Adm. Com.	Went northward to seek for the North Sea fishers wanting, found 4, and saw them into Scarborough and Newcastle, and left order that if any others came meantime, they should clean their vessels and wait his return. Also left order with all the cobbler men at sea, if they saw any of them, to advise them to go to Tynemouth Haven or Scarborough. Then went northward, as far as Redhead, ranging off and on, and met several Holland fishers, but could hear nothing of the English. Coming back, called at Newcastle and Scarborough, and heard that there had been 7 or 8 there, but they had all gone home, and that all were safe except one. As the fishing is ended, desires orders. Heard at Dunbar that 2 Dunkirk men-of-war had taken a French ship laden with wine and brandy on that coast, and set the men on shore at Dundee.	17
"	Wm. Barton, Jun., Yarmouth.	"	Asks orders to supply Capt. Strutt, commander of the Half Moon, who has come in from the North Seas, with 40 tons of ballast, as he cannot go out of the Road without it. Will deliver their letters to Capts. Wilkinson and Rively when they arrive. The Fame has gone again as convoy to several vessels for the Maas.	18
"	Capt. Dan. Baker, the Lizard, Mount's Bay.	"	Convoyed several vessels from Milford to Ireland, and returning, being mistaken for a merchantman, was chased by a ship of 12 guns, which he encouraged, but suddenly mistrusting, she bore away, whereupon he gave her two broadsides, which lamed her foremast and spoiled some of her men, but she escaped, being a swifter sailer, notwithstanding he pursued her until 10 at night. Returned to Milford, and convoyed 8 vessels as high as the Deadman; is now plying towards his station.	19
"	Capt. Rich. Had- dock, Dragon, Portsmouth Harbour.	"	Came in by order from Capt. Whitehorne to clean and revictual, and will use all expedition to return to the Downs.	20
"	Capt. Sam. Shar- land, the Kinsale, Dawpool, Chester Water.	"	Came over with a French lord, whom he has landed, and was to return to Dublin with some members of Parliament, but only Sir Theo. Jones has yet come; there are 6 or 7 laden merchantmen whom he intends to accompany over.	21

1657. July 5	Jno. Morris, Graves- end.	Adm. Com.	Sent their packet to the Advice in the Hope, but as the boat has not returned, does not know whether the captain is on board. Has not pressed any men himself, but a ketch and a boy took a few last week to carry into the Downs. Only 3 or 4 watermen have appeared since the ships sailed from the Hope, and he could not dispose of them. Mr. Golling, one of the Press-masters for the watermen, has been for an account of those who have appeared at Gravesend and Chatham.	Vol. 169. 23
"	Capt. Anth. Rively, Vulture, Downs.	"	Convoyed 9 ships from the Downs to Newhaven, and brought back 9 from Dieppe Road, and will see them safe to Yarmouth.	24
"	Capt. Robt. Robin- son, the Preston, Humber.	"	Will sail with the cloth ships the first wind, and then return to his station	25
"	Capt. Jno. Stoakes, Rainbow, Treenia.	[Robt. Black- borne.]	Gave an account of the proceedings of the frigates under his command at the North Cape last April, as also of Capt. Mackey's breach of orders, and of the General's order to repair to him with the rest of the fleet, where he has continued. The Nonsuch has arrived with a packet for the General. Hears that a peace has been concluded with Sally, and that the Providence and Nantwich chased a Flemish ship on shore, but got her off again. She is of no great value, but had 350 Spanish passengers, who were mariners in the fleet formerly destroyed, and they were plundered of all their money.	26
"	"	Adm. Com.	To like effect. The General has lately returned from Sally, having concluded a peace with those people.	27
"	Navy Comrs. -	"	Having been put to much inconvenience, and the State often defrauded, by the giving of written tickets, contrary to orders, resolved at last not to sign such, whereby some stop has been put to them; but it has occasioned a great clamour, and divers poor people have and may suffer thereby, so as if they wholly forbear signing them, it may be very inconvenient. Desire that orders may be given to all the commanders-in-chief of the squadrons to prohibit such tickets, as they will not be accepted after a certain time to be fixed, and also that they may be supplied with a sufficient quantity of printed tickets.	28
"	"	"	Have examined the captain, master, and other officers of the Laurel, as to how and by whose default she was cast away on Newark Sands, off Yarmouth, and whether all opportunities were improved for getting her off again; find that she struck during the night, while the pilot and master were below, and that there was great neglect, especially in the chief officers, to whose charge the conduct of the frigate was committed. It is too manifest that with an ordinary measure of care she might have been preserved; the negligence of the officers' absence at that season cannot be answered. Have little hope of recovering any of her guns or other provisions, but have written to Yarmouth, and employed a person to advise therein.	29

"	Major Rich. Elton, Hull.	"	The trade of the port being very considerable occasions many troubles, amongst which applications from merchants for convoys, of which he encloses one, are not the least. Chased the man-of-war, but there being little wind, could not come up with him, but with the help of his boats, pursued till the Preston met them off Flamborough Head and gave chase, and after firing several guns, conceives she surprised him. The vessels retaken are at Scarborough, as also the prisoners, but a superior one was slain before he would strike, and the remainder are but ordinary seamen. 1657. July 10	Comr. Peter Pett, John Taylor, Chatham.	Adm. Com.	Being much importuned by poor maimed seamen for payment of their pensions, the least of whom have half a year due, urge the pressing necessity of money for them, or many of them will be starved to death, having no other means for themselves or families; if paid quarterly, it is too little for a livelihood, and much less in proportion than given by others to men in like condition. If Rochester College could have been granted, as was often solicited, it might have given a full supply, and enabled them to pay the $\frac{1}{2}$ year's arrears without further trouble. If it may yet be so timely ordered, before too great embezzlements be made, it may arise to such a sum as to clear the imprest taken from the treasury, and the governors be enabled to carry on that service with its own revenue. Until then not less than 2,500l. will pay off pensions and their arrears up to last midsummer. "	Navy Com ^{rs.}	Adm. Com.	Having received an express from Comr. Pett, at Chatham, of the arrival of the Marston Moor at Queenborough, and that he has sent a pilot to bring her up, desire orders as to the disposal of her men.	53
"	Com. Peter Pett, Chatham.	Robt. Blackborne.	Desires he will acquaint the Admiralty Commissioners of the arrival of the Marston Moor at Chatham, and the wishes of the inhabitants that she may be paid off there, as the non-paying of ships at Chatham of late has been very prejudicial to them, as also to those of Rochester. It is true they have received much benefit by former pays, and if there should be a continuance of the suspension, it would reduce the adjacent parts to extreme poverty. It can be performed with as small a charge to the State there as in London, and with more advantage to the service, as they could more easily invite the seamen to duty on board their respective ships, in unrigging and getting out ordnance. The Assistance is taking in her victuals, and will suddenly be gone, and the Fairfax will be launched next spring tide.	54

1657. July 17	John Dennis -	—	Bill of lading of spikes, bolts, and other ironwork, shipped by Major John Wade from the forge in Dean Forest for transportation to the Tower, by order from the Admiralty Commissioners of 27 Sept. 1656.	Vol. 169. 71
" 18	Geo. Pley, Weymouth.	Navy Com ^r	The delay in giving an answer to the sailcloth makers in the country, after sending up the samples, has prejudiced the business, as a merchant from Bristol has been down, and after sending for all the master workmen and servants, and giving them a feast, has agreed with them by bond to serve him with all they make for a year. It has not been usual to bind them to any obligation; if this agreement had not been made, could have been furnished with 100 bolts monthly. There is, however, one of the chief workmen who did not engage, from whom and other parts he may expect 50 bolts of the best sort per month, but they stand for $\frac{3}{4}$ d. a yard more, as given for that sort by those of Bristol, or at the former price if the carriage to Weymouth is paid. This party has a quantity ready for Bristol Fair on the 25th inst., therefore concluded with him for 100 bolts of the best sort; if some encouragement is given, there will be a considerable quantity made this year to supply all occasions. Asks how to proceed, and how to dispose of what shall be brought in, and whether it shall be sent for Portsmouth or London.	72
" 20	Major Wm. Burton, Yarmouth.	"	Understands that they have received the invoice and bill of lading of the cordage shipped in the Bachelor boy for London, and that she has arrived at Woolwich; will send what cables he has in the stores, from 9 inches and upwards, keeping 10 or 12 for 4th and 5th rate frigates. Asks whether to send some things belonging to the Laurel.	73

1657. July 30	Geo. Play, Weymouth.	Navy Com ^{rs}	As they approve of his contract for sailcloth, will procure what he can, answerable to the pattern formerly sent. A quantity is already brought in, and as soon as it is considerable, will dispatch it to the stores at Deptford; as the men who make it are mostly of mean estate, must advance money as they bring it, and therefore desires, when he draws on them for his disbursements, that his bills may find speedy payment. " "	Comr. Peter Pett, Chatham.	"	Cleaning, launching, and sailing of ships. Will send the survey of and estimates for the repair of the Marston Moor; desires order for 2 large anchors for the Resolution. Hears they have not agreed with Mr. Ewell about going to Portsmouth, but thinks if they had offered him a positive warrant for that service, he would not have dared to refuse, and if they yet conceive a want of him, will willingly join in such a warrant. If they gave him liberty to treat on terms, there is little cause of taking his refusing ill, when it is considered he never undertook the making but of 2 docks, and had like to have lost his life in doing them before they were protected. "	Capt. Thos. Lardge, Lark, Weymouth.	Adm. Com.	After receiving a month's provisions at Portsmouth, hastened to his station, but was forced by extremity of weather into Weymouth, where the storm increased to such a height that he was forced to cut his mainmast by the board, which carried with it the mizen and foremast. Has taken up a great part of the sails, masts, and rigging, which were driven on shore, and so has endeavoured to fit himself with jury masts and sails, and will hasten to Portsmouth for orders.	10
"	Geo. Pley, Wey- mouth.	"	Is informed by Capt. Pley, governor of Weymouth, that he has an order for his going to Jersey, but cannot do so until his frigate is fitted. "	Capt. Thos. Lardge, Portland Road.	"	Desires order to come in to clean, tallow, and revictual, as there are some of the enemies' men-of-war upon the coast, but he cannot do the service required, in regard of the foulness of his frigate, not having been tallowed these 3 months.	28
"	Capt. Thos. Wright, Fame, Yarmouth Roads.	"	Came in for victuals but found none; received order from Major Burton to convey a Hull vessel laden with lead and cloth, with the Vulture, to the Maas, and to bring back such as were ready there, but being detained by foul weather, and from want of provisions compelled to put his men on half allowance, left the Vulture there and made for Yarmouth Roads, and has sent his boat on shore for orders; if there are none, will repair to Harwich.	29
"	Wm. West - -	Major Robt. Thomson, Navy Office.	Has been unable to attend to business since his return to England through sickness, whereby some things have proved unsuccessful to himself, and prejudicial to others. The 3 short-allowance tickets which he sent to the Navy Office by one who was concerned in some of them as much as himself were given to Mr. Payler, a clerk in that office; but if there is blame, desires it may remain wholly upon himself; if it shall appear that there was anything intended therein which was dishonest, fraudulent, or fallacious, hopes he may be made an example. When restored to health, will attend, and when the business is cleared up, hopes he will not have his money detained. Although a stranger, is not unknown to Col. Bourne and Com-missioner Pett, and has been in the service by sea and land ever since the war with the Hollanders, and acted in several businesses, which have never been questioned, and to lie now under a censure for such a small matter, and to lose as well, troubles him, but hopes to receive what is his right.	30

"	Capt. Hen. Hatsell, Plymouth.	"	Understanding they have appointed 90 men and 22 guns for the Hector , late the 3 Kings prize, thinks she would bear 100 men and 5 months' dry provisions, and 3 months' liquid.	52

"	Capt. Wm. Barker, Lizard, Milford Haven.	Adm. Com.	Has been prevented proceeding to his station by the weather, but has great occasion to be there, winter coming on, and several of the boatswain's stores having been put on shore there at first coming out, for part of which he has no receipt. Desires the boatswain's wages may be stopped until his report is sent up, as he has the character of a very idle, quarrelsome, and drunken man; his late commander, Capt. Baker, turned him out twice, but restored him in hopes of amendment, and when the captain went on shore on one side, he would go ashore on the other without leave, and continue there drinking and carousing for 3 or 4 nights. Has examined the remains of his stores, with the assistance of the boatswain's mate, whom he recommends as fit to succeed him.	56
"	Major Wm. Burton, Yarmouth.	"	The Weymouth has arrived from Leith with a convoy, the Sparrow is bound northwards with a coal fleet, and the Roe ketch is about convoying some vessels for Lynn Deep, but her captain is ill of a fever. The herring fishery will be at sea in 14 days and wants a convoy, as do several other ships in the Roads. Gen. Monk has sent the Norwich to Orkney to meet the Iceland fleet. The Vulture and Fame have not yet returned from Harwich.	57
"	Capt. Robt. Duck, Hunter.	"	Went to Harwich to revictual, and then returned to his station, where he will remain plying about until he receives orders to see ships to their destination.	58
"	Capt. Edw. Grove, Yarmouth.	"	Has just arrived with several vessels from Lynn Deep; as several of his company have the new fever, which afflicts both the head and bowels, has put them on shore, the sea affording little accommodation for men in their condition; is under a course of physic himself; by order of his physician; has put his second in charge, to ply to and from the station, by order of Major Burton, until eased of his disease.	59
"	Capt. Rich. Hodges, Rasing, King's Road.	"	Transported Col. Sanders' wife to Ireland, and has since received their order to transport Lord Broghill, with his lady and family, as also Gen. Penn, with his lady and family; will take such vessels as may be ready, bound for Waterford, Loughall, and Cork. 1657. Aug. 12	Jno. Tippetts, Portsmouth .	Adm. Com.	Will endeavour to procure a supply of timber at reasonable rates; is now shipping off the goods for Plymouth. Mr. Pierson and Mr. Brewer have now come to a conditional conclusion, and in case the Commissioners will promise Brewer payment out of Pierson's contract, he engages to do all the carpenters' work yet to be done, and to finish the dry dock, wharfs, &c., as contained in the contract, by the end of Nov., for 525 l. , 2 7 . in hand and 100 l. a month until completed, save the last payment, which is to be 1 month after the decision, and to bear the charges of 4 labourers. If this offer takes effect, Pierson hopes they will order Mr. Child to pay the 100 l. balance of the last bill. Does not see how Pierson is to effect the business this year if Brewer's offer is rejected, and Pierson will only engage to pay Brewer as he receives money from the State, but if the Commissioners will engage to pay Brewer, he is content to be on his own account next week. Monk, and after seeing her as high as Orfordness, will return to Scotland. Has not seen or heard of any Dunkirk men-of-war. Hopes they will be mindful of him for a remove into a better ship, as the Scotch coast requires a 2-decked frigate in winter.	63

"	Capt. Thos. Latdige, Portsmouth .	"	Will refit with all expedition; desires 5 more men, as Capt. Thorowgood, master attendant, only supplied him with half the number he formerly applied for, and he is frequently ordered to convoy vessels of great consideration.	67
"	Capt. Sam. Sharland, the Kinsale , Beau- maris . Having only 4 days' victuals, the men are at half allowance; if his Lordship does not arrive by that time, will go to Milford for a supply.	68

1657. Aug. 14	Capt. Abra. Allgate, the Oxford , Ply- mouth Sound.	Robt. Blackborne.	While playing on his station with the Sorlings, spoke a Hollander from Glasgow, who 8 days before met 3 men-of-war belonging to the King of Scots, carrying from 3 to 10 guns each. Chased 3 vessels, but night coming on, lost them. Wanting a topmast, has come in to refit; left the Sorlings 80 leagues off Scilly.	Vol. 170. 71
"	Rich. Browne, Pembroke .	Adm. Com.	Capt. Barker has entered on his command, and would have been at sea but some of his beer being defective had to be changed. The Paradox will take charge of the Dutch prize to Plymouth. Cannot find that any of the company of the Lizard are tainted with Quakerism.	72
"	Thos. Shewell, Bristol .	Navy Com ^{rs}	Will send the cables and other things demanded for the new frigate building in Dean Forest; to prevent a double supply being sent, encloses an account of stores put on board the Friendship of London at Deptford last May, to be transported to Bristol for that frigate. Wants her captain and boatswain hastened down to receive the stores, or it will delay the launching.	73, 74
"	Capt. Hen. Hatsell, Plymouth .	Adm. Com.	Has received the carpenter's warrant, but wishes the commander, master, and gunner, were present to hasten the works on the Hector . A flyboat of London, coming into the Channel from Barbadoes, was chased by 2 men-of-war, and making for the shore, ran in the night upon the Longships , which are rocks between the Land's End and St. Ives, but it is supposed they were our own ships who chased, as there were 7 ships named on that station at the time. Last week changed a bill of exchange on the Treasurer for 1,500 l. , of which 800 l. is for French hemp and royals delivered into the stores 4 months since for ready money, and 800 l. for gunners' stores and supplying the Greyhound and other ships; as he will be at further charge in dispatching others, desires the 1,500 l. may be paid. 1657. Aug. 17	Capt. Robt. Nixon, the Worcester, Chatham.	Adm. Com.	When on the coast of Portugal, received 18 Spanish prisoners on board, by order of Gen. "	Comr. Peter Pett, Chatham.	"	The Worcester and Newcastle have come to anchor, with many Spanish prisoners on board; desires order how they are to be disposed of, and where the ships are to be paid off; if at Chatham, it will be an advantage. The Fairfax is ready for her victuals; asks if the Marston Moor and the two vessels lately come up are to be suddenly repaired.	82
"	"	[Navy Comrs.]	The Worcester and Newcastle having arrived, has put their men upon such work as will prepare them for the Dock, until their payment is ordered, which he wishes may be made at Chatham, as it would be for the State's advantage.	83

"	Thos. White, Dover.	Navy Com ^r	The reasons why he has not paid Mr. Culmer of Deal for supplying the State's ships with ballast are that he knew of nothing being due, having paid him for ballasting the London and Princess Maria, which were the 2 last ships. Two men came from Deal with a receipt for 40 tons; questioned whether the ships could take in so much, and as the receipt was delivered and signed by he knows not whom, refused it. Had no money and has not had one penny for all he has disbursed. Paid 100 l. to Deal for ballasting ships, before he received anything from the treasurer. Hears 500 l. has been paid at London on account of what is due to him, but none of it has yet come to his hand. Hopes he deserves no blame for giving the navy credit for what he furnishes them with; has but small encouragement, firstly in not being allowed the 20 l. a quarter for his pains and disbursements out of his own purse; secondly, in their abating him 2 s. 8 d. per cwt. in the cordage, which cost him 4 s. and they only allow him 4 s. Can run through their business wherein 1,743 l. has been expended of which 700 l. or 800 l. is out of his own purse, and the loss of the cordage eats up all they allow him. If they will pass his account monthly and send down the money, it will be more satisfactory, as since he has served them, he has never had any money until it had been due one month, and sometimes 4, and his bodily labour in tending upon the ships that come in early and late, and seeing their business dispatched, is worth double his salary.	85

"	Navy Com. - -	Adm. Com.	Have examined the accounts of Rich. Nutt, Edw. Golling, and Wm. Bromage for impressing seamen and watermen for the State's ships, and compared the number of men mentioned in the list with those who appeared on board the several ships according to the muster books, and find that of 511 men charged to have been pressed, there have been but 375 entered, so that there is a difference of 136 men; but as some of these may have entered themselves on board ships in the Downs, and there is nothing at present to show whether they are in the service, thought it necessary to mention it before determining the allowance. Further, find they demand 95 l. 3 s. 0 d. for press and conduct money, which is after the rate of 4 s. a man from Chatham and 3 s. 6 d. from Gravesend, besides 137 l. 12 s. 8 d. for their own travelling charges and boat hire, beating drums, and other incidental expenses—total amount 1087 l. 15 s. 8 d.	93

Pibet, and 4 others belonging to the Phoenix, together with a letter from Capt. J. Whitstone, her commander, showing that the captain gave Gleede orders to throw overboard, or otherwise dispose of a quantity of old and unserviceable cordage on board, and that he sent it on shore and sold it for 25s., which he divided between himself and his mate. Cannot say how far captains have power to dispose of such things, but as there was clearly a breach of trust, especially in conveying them away at night, after the candles had been ordered out, think if Gleede is reprimanded, and his mate slightly punished, it will be a warning to them and an example to others.	124-127

Goodson; do not know whether they were employed in the State's service or otherwise. With order, 29 Aug., to allow the tickets if the men served upon the vessels at the time named, and were not borne upon other vessels at the same time.	Vol. 170. 135-137
"	Comr. Peter Pett, Chatham.	Navy Comrs	Sends particulars of the tonnage to be allowed to Hen. Roach, part owner of the Friendship of London, for bringing timber and timber work from Lidzey Pill and Dean Forest to the stores at Chatham, Woolwich, Deptford, and the Tower, and for carrying back masts, rigging, &c., for the new frigate building there; supposes if Capt. Taylor's hand is required, he will sign it, being now in London. Particulars of ships fitting out.	138
"	Capt. Wm. Pickering, Pearl, Yarmouth Roads.	Adm. Com.	Has conducted the London ships, one for Rotterdam, and another for France, all laden with lead and cloth, as far as Yarmouth Roads, and will proceed with the London fleet until they are in security, and then return to his station. The Dart ships were not ready to go with him.	139
"	Capt. Robt. Sansum, the Portsmouth, Scarborough.	"	Has been plying on his station with the Sparrow pink, but has not seen or heard of any of the enemy being upon the coast. "	Adm. Com. -	Navy Comrs	Order for preparing a proportion of medicaments both for physic and surgery, value 100 l. , for the use of the forces in Jamaica, taking care that the electuaries and syrups be put in tinned or leaden pots, for their better preservation; also for 10 cwt. of twine for making tortoise nets, and a proportion of lines and hooks for fishing, to be consigned to the commandet-in-chief at Jamaica.	141
"	Lieut. Hen. Ady, Phoenix.	Adm. Com.	There is only one gunner's mate borne on the Phoenix, and he has been discharged by Capt. "	S. Bolton -	Navy Comrs	Received their letter to appear and pay the balance due on his bond, of which 74 l. has been paid by instalments, but Mr. Firbank long since received it and delivered in the bond to Mr. Lowe, who paid 6 l. , which is all that was due upon it. Cannot attend them at present, and asks that the matter may stand over a month; hopes that his absence may not give an opportunity to Firbank, who pretends that 36 l. is still due, to insinuate more than what is right; if they send for Mr. Lowe, he will satisfy them.	143
"	Jasper Grant, Bristol.	Adm. Com.	Sends a certificate from Mr. Shewell, testifying as to his character, and implores he may not be prejudiced or dismissed from his employment, on account of an information given to them by a woman to whom he owes 3 l. or 4 l. ; is anxious to pay, but has not seen her for 3½ years.	144

Haytubb concerning John Powell, and being well satisfied with him as surgeon for the Hector, asks whether to pay him the usual allowance. The gunner having fallen from his horse coming down, and having received other warnings, as he calls them, desires to be excused serving, so that another must be appointed. Has conveyed the ships from Hull to the mouth of the Thames, and will now return to his station.	Vol. 170. 145

"	Lieut. - Col. Elton, Hull.	"	50 sail bound towards Plymouth; in going into the harbour, and afterwards from the Needles with the enemy took several vessels, but let them go again for a sum of money; fired guns to keep them together, but they will scatter, and are sometimes 3 or 4 leagues asunder, as they were that day, and had he not run ahead, and fired again at the foremost of them, they had all run away, or the most part of them, and left him with a small ship, which went heavily. 1657. Aug. 31	Capt. Rich. Stayner, the London .	John Cooke.	Did not answer his letters because he received none, and only one from Major Pinkney, of Fleet street. Is sorry to hear that people fall out and go to law for that for which they did not labour, and is fearful Woofe and Palmer are too near a kin to agree. It is a lie of Palmer's or Woofe's that 600 l. should be given to his eldest son; the legacies were 400 l. to the eldest son, 200 l. a-piece to the other two, 10 l. to his sister, and something to his sister-in-law, and it was Woofe's fault they did not agree at first, as Palmer was satisfied to pay $\frac{1}{3}$ part to the widow. Believes they are knaves, and strive who shall cheat the widow and children. Had a bond for 2,000 l. to keep himself harmless.	Vol. 170. 155
"	Capt. J. Whitstone, Phoenix .	Adm. Com.	The Phoenix was victualled and had 10 supernumeraries on board, from Feb. 1655-6 to 11 May 1657, for which the purser has had no allowance; also 3,000 men for one day, part of which were sick, and others were carried to and from the fleet, and the remainder pressed, by order of Capt. Whitehorne, for manning the fleet; and 990 men for 1 day, being passengers carried to and from Lisbon.	156
"	General E. Montague, Jno. Pitt, Roger Curtance, Capt. Robt. Clarke, John Speare, sail maker, Fras. Lewis.	Jno. Culmer, Agent, Deal .	Requests for supplies of ballast to various ships named, 21 July to 25 Aug. With sundry receipts for the same. [24 papers].	157-181
"		—	Note of work done on board the George , 16 Jan.—30 Aug. 1657.	182

"	"	"	Order to suspend payment of the wages due to the master and 7 others named belonging to the Paul , now at Jamaica, a certificate having been received from Lieut.-Gen. Brayne touching some difference between them and Capt. Wm. Godfrey.	3
"	"	Navy Com ^{rs} and Treasurer.	Order to pay the wages due to the officers and company of the Tiger , as soon as she has been refitted at Deptford and arrives in the Hope , reserving 3 months' pay in hand.	4

"	Sir Jno. Barkstead, Tower, London .	Navy Com ^{rs}	Desires assistance for John Smith, who served in his regiment for several years, and was drawn into sea service in Feb. 1655-6. While on board, a fellow soldier died, and left Smith all that might be due to him at his decease, and as letters of administration have been granted, and his debentures signed by the captain and master, hopes they will dispatch him, he being on the service.	6

1657. Sept. 2	Major Wm. Burton, Yarmouth.	Navy Com ^{rs}	Wants an order sent to Portsmouth to unlade the Galliot hoy, which has been waiting there 5 days with cordage, &c., formerly belonging to the Laurel; also asks what to do with the Laurel's masts, now at Lowestoft.	Vol. 171. 7
"	Nich. Peirson, Portsmouth.	"	The carpenters with whom he contracted for completing the dry dock left their work on 29 June last; reckoning the 4 master workmen at 2s. 6d. a day each, and allowing to all under them what they agreed for, finds they have received 140 l. more than their wages, he having from time to time furnished them with money as they desired it; notwithstanding this, they have wholly deserted the service. Hearing there is 80 l. due to them for other work in the dockyard, desires suspension of payment, until he can bring them to account and receive satisfaction. Is now giving a deal more to Mr. Brewer than he contracted with them for, that the works may be effectually and speedily performed; the suspending payment of the money due to them may be a probable way for his getting some satisfaction from them, as he can assure the Commissioners the masters received money of him to pay their workmen all the while they were employed about the work for which this 80 l. has become due.	8
"	Christ. Pett, Woolwich. Peter Reeve - -	" Adm. Com.	Has sawed out 400 palisades, and will make up 600 by to-morrow night. Noted that they are to be sharpened at the smallest end, and not be above 10 feet long, as directed by Major Bourne. Petition for employment in one of the ships fitting out; has served the State for several years, and lastly as boatswain of the Sapphire, but has been laid up with sickness at Deptford. With certificates by Capt. N. Heaton, Thos. Scott, and Wm. Kendall.	9
"	Capt. Jno. Tippetts, Portsmouth.	Navy Com ^{rs}	Received the imprest bill of 300 l. for Mr. Peirson, which Mr. Child has promised to pay, as also 100 l. balance of a former bill. The business of the dock goes on very slowly, and not according to what was expected from Mr. Brewer, and the opportunities of tides are not improved to half the advantage they might be. Requests they will write them thereon, as the season of the year calls for it; they promise much, but perform little. With draft of a letter from the Navy Commissioners to Peirson and Brewer, and Capt. Tippetts, to hasten on the works.	10-12
"	Robt. Grassingham, Jno. Browne, Harwich.	-	Account of the guns recovered from the wreck of the Liberty by Robt. Willis, diver - -	13, 14
"	John Jones, seaman	"	Petition for relief, having long served the State at sea, and had his right leg shot off in the fight against the Hollanders off Portland, while serving in the Oak, since which he has been in St. Bartholomew's Hospital. With certificate by Hum. Fox, steward of St. Bartholomew's.	15
"	Thos. Marshall, mayor, and 6 ju- rats and inhabit- ants of Rye.	Adm. Com.	Petition for the exchange of Simon Ranwell and Nich. Gootman, natives of Dunkirk, and prisoners in Plymouth Gaol, for Geo. Broadbridge, late master of the Mayflower, of Rye, who was taken 8 weeks since by a Dunkirk man-of-war and carried thither, where he yet remains, notwithstanding the endeavours used by Anne, his wife, who went over to obtain his release, but was informed it could only be done by exchange for these men.	16

1657. Sept. 7	Comr. Peter Pett, Chatham.	Navy Com ^{rs}	As the Sapphire has arrived, by order of Gen. Montague, to be repaired, which will take 3 weeks, asks what to do with her men; believes if they are paid and discharged at Chatham they will enter themselves again. Is in hand with 4 other frigates, and the Fairfax will sail to-morrow. With order for their payment and turning over into the Fairfax and Newbury, 8 Sept.	Vol. 171. 18, 19
"	Thos. Shewell, Bristol.	"	The captain was present at the launching of the frigate in the Forest last Thursday; will employ men at board wages in rigging her, and husband the business as well as he can. "	Edw. Booth, Leith	Navy Com ^{rs}	Has drawn a bill on them for 2 l. 17 s. 3 d. , and sends an account of its disbursements; it ought to have been signed by Capt. Wilkinson, but as he was sent away in haste, hopes that will be no obstruction to its payment.	27
"	Jas. Disbrowe, S. Clarke, Prize Office, Coleman St., London. J. Falkener, Ordinance Office.	Adm. Com.	Have received 39 patacoes of tobacco from the Maidstone and 22 from the Newbury, and the Sub-commissioners at Dover have received 47 from the George, but certifies that in many there is but 2 or 3 rolls in a patacoe left.	28
"	"	Rob. Blackborne.	Has received into the stores from Robt. Keeble, master of the Mary at Harwich, a piece of brass ordnance, weighing 40 cwt, which was one of the Liberty's guns that was cast away. With the Admiralty Commissioners' order for 40 l. to Keeble for the service, if he recovered the gun, and if Willis, the diver, was not concerned therein. 10 Sept.	29, 30

1657. Sept. 9	Adm. Com. - -	Navy Com ^{rs}	Order for a bill to George, Nicholas, Benjamin, and Alex. Blake, executors of Gen. Robt. Blake, for his pay and entertainment from the time he was last paid to the time of his decease. As the carpenter's work is nearly finished on the new frigate, and men have been ordered to rig her at weekly wages, which is dearer than petty warrant and will take more time, desires leave to enter men upon her, when she can be brought down from Lidney to King's Road, and made ready to sail in 3 weeks.	Vol. 171. 32
"	Capt. Anth. Argher, Bristol.	"		33
"	Col. Ant. Rous, Wotton.	Col. Jno. Clerke, Lieut.-Col. Thos. Kelsey, Major Beake, Adm. Com ^{rs}	When last in London, prevailed with them to write General Blake on behalf of his kinsman, Lieut. Ben. Rudyard, for the command of some frigate, but as the general had no opportunity to gratify his desires, hopes they will now do something more. Should dread to appear further on his behalf, and could forget his relationship, but for confidence of his fitness and deserts; he served in the Dutch wars from the beginning, and since in the Straits against the Spaniard, to the satisfaction of those he has been under.	34
"	10 Adm. Com. - -	Navy Com ^{rs}	Order for a bill to the slopseller that furnished the Diamond with clothes at her last going southward for 36 l. 2 s. 6 d. , for clothes delivered to 30 prisoners on board by order of Gen. Blake. With Gen. Blake's order of 18 Sept. 1656.	35, 36
"	" - -	"	Order for a bill to Jacob Bryant, seaman, for 2 s. a day, from 11 Mar. 1655-6 to 10 Aug. 1657, during which time he served as Deputy-marshal to the fleet under Generals Blake and Montague.	37
"	Comr. Peter Pett, Chatham.	"	The payment of the Sapphire at Chatham will be welcome news to the people thereabouts. The Lion came to Queenborough last night, and will be at her moorings to-day, and by the time those two are paid off, the Resolution and Victory may be at Chatham, as he is about sending pilots to the Downs, according to orders from Gen. Montague.	38
"	11 John Packwood, Woolwich.	"	Soon after the Gift came to anchor yesterday, went on board, and found that all the officers and company, save the boatswain and 6 men, had left the ship, although she was very leaky, had 4 feet of water in her hold, and was making a foot per hour, when the pumps stopped; she so overlaid other ships' anchors that it would require 100 men to clear her of them, and she had to be unrigged, and her guns and provisions, besides some merchants' goods, taken out, which is all a matter of charge, principally contracted by the neglect of her crew in deserting their business. Desire they will suspend the pay of such of the company as deserted the Gift and left her in hazard of sinking in the Thames. 10 Sept. With reference thereon by the Admiralty Commissioners to the Navy Commissioners, 11 Sept.	39, 40
"	Capt. Anth. Archer, Bristol.	Adm. Com. " 12	Adm. Com.	Navy Com ^{rs}	Order to examine the complaint of the purser of the Worcester, concerning damage done by the captain and master in reference to the victualling; and on satisfaction being made to the purser, to order the captain's and master's pay, notwithstanding any stop thereon.	51
" 14	Danl. Furzer, forest- er, Lidney Pill.	Com ^r Fras. Wil- loughby.	All things are in good condition since the launching; is now setting the masts, and had the seaman's work been more forward, she might have been down this spring tide. Had engaged a pilot, but has since heard that Mr. Shewell, of Bristol, has an order to fetch her; this is contrary to Major Wade's expectation, as well as his own, but submits.	52
"	Capt. Jno. Taylor, Chatham.	[Adm. Com.]	Has surveyed most of the ships which have come in, and find they will require sheathing and great reparations, which cannot be done in a short time with the number of men allowed, as many that stand in the books are absent through sickness; desires warrant for entering 60 more.	53
"	Capt. Edm. Thom- son, Yarmouth.	Navy Com ^{rs}	Has safely arrived with the Iceland fleet, and as his provisions were out, obtained 7 days' supply in the Orkney Isles, which will end the 17th. Waits orders from the Admiralty Commissioners, and will then send a further account.	54

Navy Com ^{rs}	Order not to sign or allow of any written tickets for the service of any officer or mariner serving in any of the ships of the Commonwealth whose station is in the Channel, or on the Scotch or Irish coast, on any pretence whatever, after 10 Nov. next.	Vol. 171. 56
"	"	"	Order to allow Hen. Hudson, boatswain, and Jas. Croke, cook of the fireship Fox, burnt at Malaga, their pay from the day she was fired to the time the Naseby was paid off, defalking any pay they received as private seamen.	57
"	Capt. Hen. Hatsell, Flymouth.	"	Thanks for the proportions of boatswains' and carpenters' stores allowed to a 5th-rate frigate for Jamaica. Has sent an account of disbursements for carrying on the affairs of the navy, amounting to 2,8447. 14s., and desires it may be passed with speed. Asks the present price of hemp, as he may be able to get some more from France. Particulars of ships.	58
"	Christ. Pett, Wood- wich.	"	Has pressed 60 able men for carrying on the work, but as 14 have refused to appear, although they received press and conduct money, and as this is disheartening to the rest, desires they will send a messenger to scare them to their duty, or punish some of them as an example to the others.	59
"	Comr. Peter Pett, Chatham.	"	A ship load of masts has arrived belonging to Capt. Taylor; as there are few in the stores, suggests that Capt. Taylor be treated with, and Mr. Slush sent down to survey and measure them.	60
"	Major Robt. Thom- son.	Adm. Com.	Has read General Montague's letter enclosed, as also that of E. Wivell, Mr. Gauden's agent at Dover, to Montague, as to his inability to supply the victuals demanded before October, having already supplied more ships at Dover than the State declared for. Thinks it would be an advantage to supply the fleet with the General on the coast of Flanders from Harwich, where there is a quantity of old provisions, more particularly as Mr. Gauden expects the last year's price for any he issues from Dover before next October. Nevertheless has spoken to him thereon, in case they should think fit to have any from Dover.	61-63
"	Thos. White, Dover	Navy Com ^{rs}	Recommends Thos. Whale, shipwright, for fitting out the State ships. Two shipwrights will be no greater charge, and yet give more dispatch to naval affairs, as when two ships came in together to be refitted, they could each take one; during the quarter, has had as many as 5 in the harbour.	64
"	Comr. Peter Pett, Chatham.	Adm. Com.	Has sent two pilots to the Downs to bring up the Resolution and Victory, as also 20 cables and 16 anchors desired by Lord Montague, in two hoys under convoy of the Eaglet ketch. Particulars of ships.	65

1657. Sept. 21	Thos. Shewell, Bristol.	Navy Com ^{rs}	Agreed with a pilot for bringing down the Forester frigate from Lidney to King's Road, but has since heard that Major Wade sent one on board last Thursday; he ordered them to set and rig her topmasts, which cannot be done in time to bring her down this tide. Asks whether he is now to send for her.	Vol. 171. 71
"	Adm. Com. - Major N. Bourne, Navy Office.	" Adm. Com.	Order to supply the Marston Moor with a sayne, harping irons, and other fishing tackle, value 10 l . Has provided ships for transporting the 1,500 men to Flanders, and made full provision for more than their number, so as not to add to their discontent by putting them into too great straits; has also procured vessels to carry them on board, and is now going down the river to see that nothing obstructs. Has promised payment for their transportation as soon as certificates are returned, and had given order for the ships to sail for Mardike Pits and apply to Lord Montague, but has since received orders from Sec. Thurloe to send them to the Downs, and apply to Col. Gibbons for further directions.	72 73
"	Dan. Furzer, Lidney.	Navy Com ^{rs}	There are 80 tons of timber at Lidney Pill and Newuam, and 50 in the woods fit for transportation, and more providing every day. Major Wade mentioned Shearhampton Wharf as the most convenient place to ship timber, and was answered that the next contract should be to that effect; it is 2 cables length from where the Friendship was last loaded, and the timber may be brought there by the State's trough. Desires order where to provide a loading, as there is not sufficient in the Yard. The new frigate is lying in the Pill, and has her masts and yards set.	74
"	Christ. Pett, Woolwich.	Thos. Turner.	Desires he will move the Commissioners on behalf of Mr. Pichison, merchant, who has 200 l . worth of hard tallow, which he is willing to sell to the State.	75
"	Comr. Peter Pett, Chatham.	Navy Com ^{rs}	Sends a demand by Capt. Taylor for a supply of deals and wainscoat from Deptford. Will supply the 4 frigates with the extraordinary stores required.	76, 77
"	Adm. Com. -	"	Order to allow Robt. Willis, diver, 20 s . per cwt. for 4 brass guns recovered by him from the wreck of the Liberty, sunk at Harwich, and weighing 102 cwt. 1 qr. 16 lbs.	78
"	Geo. Tippetts, Portsmouth.	"	Mr. Brewer died on Monday, after 5 days' sickness; being informed by Mr. Peirson that Wm. Miles, his late foreman, is to join him as partner, hopes before he comes down the Commissioners will be satisfied as to his ability for the management of the work; if he is not judged fit Mr. Randall, of Deptford, is reported to be so, and might be sent. Has no doubt the water will be kept out by the end of the week, if an able man is sent down to take the charge. Paid Mr. Brewer 50 l ., and is informed that more than 40 l . thereof has been paid to his workmen.	79
"	Eliu. Palmer, Jo. Falkener, Ordinance Office.	Adm. Com.	Have dispatched the several vessels for Mardike Pits, and shipped away after them, under convoy of the Princess Maria, 1,000 pikes and 1,000 muskets; doubt not but she will be ahead of those that carry the soldiers. Nothing more is wanting but the remainder of the baskets and some hatchets and plank, which will be shipped as soon as they can be gotten. Mr. Wright, the fire-master, has not yet returned from his visit to his wife in the country, but supposes His Highness will take order in that particular.	80

1657. Sept. 23	Capt Sam. Shariand, the Kinsale, Dublin.	Navy Com ^{rs}	When the Kinsale was refitted at Bristol, she was supplied with two new cables, and though they have not had much wear, they have gone in a manner all to dirt; the stuff must have been rotten when made up. As none are to be had at Dublin, desires 2 may be sent in any ship that comes from Plymouth or Milford. Understands he is to use printed tickets when he has occasion to discharge men, but never had any sent him.	Vol. 171. 81
"	Adm. Com.	Navy Com ^{rs} and Treasurer.	The late Gen. Blake having given directions for entering Nich. Bartlett, and 5 other midshipmen on board the Swiftsure, and on his removal to the George, having given the like order for the three first named to be borne on that ship, for which they have received tickets, but upon payment of the Swiftsure, they were found supernumeraries to the establishment of that ship, and in their tickets for the George, are set off as extra, whereby their wages have been stopped;—order that they be paid off on their tickets as able seamen, and that what the same falls short of the entertainment of midshipmen for the time they were on those ships be made up to them by bill.	82
"	"	Navy Com ^{rs}	Order to examine the amended accounts of Lieut.-Col. Eilton, for money disbursed in washing, tallowing, and searching the Pearl, and to make out a bill for what shall be due thereon.	83
"	"	"	Order to examine the articles of charge exhibited by the purser of the Bear against Capt. Dare, concerning his undue expense of the provisions, and if it shall appear that the captain is chargeable, to defalk the same out of his pay; if otherwise, to allow him his whole pay.	84
"	Col. Thos. Kelsey	"	As there should be two master carpenters for refitting and expediting such frigates as go into Dover Pier, recommends Thos. Wale, shipwright of Dover, of whom he has received a very good character for honesty and ability, and desires he may have order to fit out such frigates going in thither as they shall think fit to allot him.	85
"	Ordnance Officers	"	Have laden on Capt. Clerk's vessel, bound for Jamaica, 20 tons of powder, match, bullet, and other war stores; but having no order to make him out a debenture for the freight, must leave him to receive satisfaction from the Navy Office.	86
"	"	Adm. Com.	Send the examination of Martin King, master of the hoy William of London, that a month since he was ordered by the Ordnance officers to go with his boy to the Colechester, off Deptford, to receive such gunner's stores as the clerk appointed to take up her remains should appoint. That Peter Crawley, master gunner, in the absence of the clerk, gave him 7 barrels of powder, half a coil of cable, and 15 or 16 fathoms of breeching, with a promise of an order to dispose of them, but the clerk coming on board, the embezzlement was prevented, and the powder and cordage brought up to the stores. Although both the examiner and gunner deny any guilty intent, have much reason to believe otherwise, and are also not satisfied with the gunner's accounts; desire order.	87, 88

1657. Sept. 26	Ordnance Officers - Chatham.	Adm. Com.	In Feb. 1656-7, Gen. Quinyne proposed to furnish the London with 7 iron guns, and agreed to take them again if, after 6 months' trial, they were not well liked, otherwise to be paid after the rate formerly given for the best sort. The time having expired, desire an order to make out a debenture to him at the rate mentioned in his proposals, or otherwise to satisfy him. With draft of a warrant to the Ordnance Officers, to return the guns when the London comes in, as Gen. Montague and other officers have certified that they are too heavy, and unfit for the service. "	"	Adm. Com.	The Resolution and Victory are now at anchor off Gillingham; will bring them up to the moorings to-morrow, and put their company to fitting them so as to ride the winter, and securing their stores. To effect this will take 3 or 4 days; has given the whole of them strict orders to stay on board until order is given for paying them off, which he begs may be at Chatham, as well in reference to the good of the service, as in answer to the cries of many poor shopkeepers, who, for want of successive pays there as formerly, are almost undone. Mr. Maplesden also desires an order for payment of his 500 l. imprest, for want of which the service much suffers, and himself not a little in his reputation; respect cannot be shown to a man more faithful and diligent in the service than he.	93
"	Capt. Wm. Badley Dan. Furzer, Bristol	Navy Com ^{rs}	Desires they will grant him a bill of imprest for 100 l. , for satisfying the extra work	94
"	"	"	With assistance of Mr. Shewell, brought the frigate from Lidney Pill to King's Road, in little more than 2 hours, and intends bringing her on shore to-morrow, to rip off two of her cleats near the keel, which could not well be done in the Pill.	95
"	Thos. Shewell, Bris- tol.	"	Last Saturday went, with the best assistance he could get, to fetch down the Forester from Lidney Pill, where he met Major Wade, and both concurring, they have brought her safe to King's Road, where she now rides at anchor, and from whence she shall be suddenly dispatched.	96
"	Comr. Peter Pett, Chatham.	Adm. Com.	Sends a Spanish prisoner taken in the West Indies, and brought home in the Lion, whom Capt. Lambert was to have conveyed up by some of his officers when they came for their pay, but it was forgotten. Desires the victuals may be hastened down for the Newbury, Marston Moor, and Newcastle, and the pay for the Resolution and Victory, as also an order what to do with their men.	97

"	About 12 months since, had Mr. Culmer's charge of the State's provisions at Deal, and since then an additional charge from several ships and frigates; having compared them with his remains, and deliveries, according to order, finds all things fair, so far as he is able to inspect his trust; but as he before hinted, if the men were not honest, he might sometimes charge or not charge himself as he pleased; as for example, ships are going for the West Indies or the Straits, and leave boats or other things behind in the Downs, and if this or that ship miscarry at sea, or be so long abroad that it be forgotten, it cannot be known to himself, or any other clerk of the survey, till Mr. Culmer tells them; hopes he is not guilty.	109

1657. Sept. 30	Capt. Geo. Pley, Weymouth.	Navy Com ^{rs}	Has shipped 5 bolts of the best sailcloth in the Andrew of Weymouth, for the stores at Deptford, giving particulars of each: he goes without convoy, but he intends stopping in the Isle of Wight to take the benefit of one. Can now increase the quantity, having prevailed with them to give up making any more of the lowest sorts, and to go on with the highest price; to encourage them, has advanced them money for providing materials. Hoped to send a larger quantity, but altering their work to make the best sort requires some time for whitening and preparing their stuff; when their agreement with those of Bristol has expired, will endeavour to agree with them to have it all for the State's use, which will then be 100 bolts a month. Those of Bristol have offered him 3 parcels, but he refused it, as they demanded profit above the agreement. Will speedily have ready a similar parcel to that now sent, and asks whether he shall send it without convoy. P.S.—As the Andrew is detained by contrary winds, asks whether she shall wait for one. Oct. 1	Mat. Clarke, surgeon	Adm. Com.	Petition stating that he served the State several years, and during the wars, as also in the expedition to Hispaniola, where he was appointed surgeon's assistant by warrant from Gen. Penn, with an allowance of 50 l. a year; and besides 18 s. a month for a servant. That upon Penn's leaving Jamaica, he was left chief surgeon, and his diligence in that employment gained him good testimony, but it has proved very chargeable; as, besides many losses in his voyage, the 18 s. a month was detained, being his due by warrant, and he has had no allowance for the time he acted as surgeon-in-chief in the room of Mr. Markham, who had 10 l. a month, but only his bare salary of 50 l. , while his pains and care were in all points equivalent to Mr. Markham's, if not beyond, as his papers will show. With order thereon to the Navy Commissioners, to allow him 18 s. a month for the time he served in the West Indies, and to make out a bill for the same.	Vol. 172. 1

1657. Oct. 1	Capt. John Baskett, the Wakefield , off the Fishing Ground , Yarmouth .	Adm. Com.	The Generals have sent the Pembroke and Acadia to his assistance, and he has sent away the Signet , being of no use, as the least of the fishermen will endure more sea than she. Has had bad weather, and no fish until this week, and now indifferent weather, and scores of fish. Has not heard of any of the enemies' men-of-war on the coast. Has but 3 weeks' provisions, but that will be sufficient for this season, and then he will repair to the Downs.	Vol. 172. 5
"	Capt. Zach. Browne	"	Hears that Jno. Ashley, boatswain of the Success , delivered into a wherry at Deptford 2 coils of ropes, and some cordage, and that Chas. Newton and Mr. Harris, a waiter then on board, and a servant of Capt. Garrett Tyssen, who came with him from Jamaica, were eye witnesses. Also two other waiters on board will not prove ignorant if examined. With the examinations of Jno. Ashley, that he sold the ropes to a waterman unknown, but they were not the ships' stores, he having bought them himself of a waterman. Also that he lent the cordage to the boatswain of the Sophia , to haul the Adam and Eve to where the Sophia lay; also examinations of Abr. Barnaby and Jno. Harris, as to seeing the hawsers and ropes carried away at 10 p.m., while Ashley, the boatswain, was on board, but he followed them to shore.	6-8
"	Capt. Sam. Sharland, the Kinsale , Milford Haven .	"	Had a verbal order from Lord Hen. Cromwell to go from Dublin to Holyhead; meeting with a high storm in returning, and having only 18 days' victuals, put into Milford, where he found their order to fetch a cable from Plymouth. As he cannot procure any provisions for a fortnight, and is in great want of ground tackle, will now repair to Plymouth, and then return to Dublin. The Basing has gone for Cork with Col. Faire. Particulars of ships.	9
"	Adm. Com.	Navy Com ^{rs}	Order to sell the Plover , Little President , Westergate , and Hector , by the candle, they being too decayed for service, reserving such of their tackle, guns, carriages, &c., as may be deemed serviceable by the Ordnance officers; also to give notice that all to whom the State is engaged for naval debts since 1642 may have liberty to buy the same, towards satisfaction of their debts; all bills and money received thereupon be paid to the Navy Treasurer.	10
"	Capt. Wm. Barker, the Lizard , Milford Haven .	Adm. Com. "	Capt. Geo. Pley, Weymouth.	Major Bourne.	Has sent 7 bales, or 1,507 yards, of the best sailcloth by the Andrew of Weymouth, and hopes they will be approved; they are by different makers, and No. 4 bale is 15 z. a yard. "	Capt. Rich. Rooth, the Dartmouth , Spithead.	Adm. Com.	Is conveying 4 vessels from Dover, bound to Dieppe and Seine Head, by order of Capt. Robt. Clarke, Commander-in-chief in the Downs, but has been forced back by contrary winds. Has received their order from Capt. Thorowgood to transport to Mardike Pitts such soldiers of Col. Hewson's regiment as shall be put on board by the deputy-governor of Portsmouth.	16
"	Capt. Jno. Tippetts, Portsmouth.	Navy Com ^{rs}	Wm. Miles, the carpenter, of whose abilities he desired them to be satisfied before he came down, has arrived. He has given account of several considerable pieces of work he has been engaged upon, is willing to proceed on Mr. Brewer's contract, and has no doubt of perfecting the work to their satisfaction. The great difficulty of keeping the water out is now over, so that a chain pump will now cast out as much water in two hours as is made in a day; this had been done long since, and saved much on Mr. Peirson's account, had he taken advice. If a competent number of men are now employed, the work will not be long in hand; when finished it will prove as dry a dock as there is in England. Desires order as to repairing some Flemish ships in the harbour; wrote Comr. Willoughby thereon, but received no answer. Noted, to trim them above water, and do so much only as will keep them from decay.	17
"	Capt. Chas. Thorowgood, State's Yard , Portsmouth.	Adm. Com.	Has signified their pleasure to Mr. Betts, who will take his journey next Monday. The Fagons has not yet arrived, and the wind changing, has lost the opportunity of sending the hulk to Plymouth. The water was pent out of the dock or dam last Thursday, so that next week they will be laying the apron whereon the gates must stand, which is the most difficult part of the work; if there is fair and dry weather, it will go on apace. What is now doing might have been done at Midsummer, had not the undertaker been too parsimonious; but bought wit is best. Has given Capt. Rooth their order for transporting the soldiers, and the deputy-governor will send them on board next Monday.	18
"	Capt. Rob. Wilkinson, Leith.	Navy Com ^{rs}	Having urgent occasions for money, and being far from any relations to supply his wants, has had 10 l. from John Neale, merchant in Leith, and given him a bill payable to Marie Neale, his wife, living near the Tower Dock, London; hopes they will make good payment, and place it to his account.	19
"	Capt. Robert Wilkinson, Weymouth pink , Harwich.	Adm. Com.	Has just arrived, and left the Fame at Newcastle to follow. The Scotch fleet, with 100 sail of coal ships, passed for London. Has been to the storekeeper for 2 cables, by order of Lord Monk, and as his provisions will not carry him back to Scotland, went to the victualler at Ipswich, but he refused to deliver any without order.	20

The clause mentioned in their letter rose from some words of Major Kelsey when he received his commission, by which he gathered he had been wronged by injurious reports; will endeavour to wipe off those wrongs by following their advice in minding his business, and thereby show that however his head and hand may have erred, yet no man has a heart more entire to their service.	30

The vessels with the pallisadoes, &c., having arrived, asks whether they shall sail without convoy, or wait for other hoys. Has ordered the 3 Jamaica ships to go for the Downs, but only the White Roach has gone out of the Hope, there being some demur concerning the rest; she has sufficient dry provisions for 1,800 men, and the beer will be speedily sent afterwards. The demur is that some of the bread may be wanted for the frigates in the river, but if they order their sailing to the Downs, it will be prosecuted. Supposes the pallisadoes provided at Chatham are gone; wrote Mr. Pett to send them away, but has not heard from him.	42

Farr that he and Squire Gookin had a joint order for transportation to Youghall, with their wives and families, consented to carry them over; but Col. Farr's wife being taken sick at Gloucester, he was forced to stay behind, so took Squire Gookin over, with his wife and servants, and then plied about the Land's End until, wanting water, he put into Milford. Wants printed tickets, having several sick men on shore; as there is no provision for them, must give tickets for some of their pay to those who entertain them. Also wants flags and hammocks, which may be sent by the Kinsale from Plymouth, if they will send an order to Capt. Hatsell.	48

"	Capt. Geo. Pley, Weymouth.	"	Sends the invoice for 7 bales of sailcloth shipped in the Andrew of Weymouth for the stores at Deptford. Has nearly the same quantity ready, but has no convoy. Desires they will examine it and inform him whether, if approved, he is to continue to supply it, as the makers promise, if the employment is permanent, they will only make the best sort, quit all their other customers by degrees, and depend wholly upon the Commissioners. If the goodness of the commodity will allow of an advance of $\frac{1}{2}$ d. or 1d. a yard, could get it clean out of the hands of those of Bristol, when their contract for the year has expired. Will draw upon them for his disbursements. Has supplied the Nonsuch with 9 tuns of beer. Can send to Portsmouth any quantity of beef, pork, and peas, on as good terms as the times govern.	63

1657. Oct. 12	Capt. Jno. Baskett, the Wakefield , Fishing Ground, North Yarmouth.	Adm. Com.	As there has been a great difference between the English and Dutch fishermen, through the latter falling in amongst the former, cutting their nets, and overbearing them, being the larger vessels, has commanded them out of the fishing grounds, and not to come within half channel, according to the Articles of Agreement. Although he has turned them off in the daytime, they run in the same night, and fish where they find our men catch store of fish. Does not know what to do with them, his orders not extending to using violence, and desires directions.	Vol. 172. 67
"	Major Wm. Burton, Yarmouth.	"	Arrival and departure of ships. Wants a convoy for the Scotch fleet. Has delivered 7,250 lbs. of bread to the Great President and Portland, by order of Gen. Montague, and asks to whose account it is to be charged. There has been a great dearth in the fishing, but as great a quantity has been brought in the last 7 or 8 days as ever was seen.	68
"	Dan. Furzer, Lidney .	Navy Com ^{rs}	Asked before whether to provide a load of timber at Shearhampton Wharf or Lidney Pill, and as progress has been made therein, and 3s. a ton will be saved if the State's tow carries it down, desires orders to suspend sending any ship for timber at present; the tow has been employed in ballasting the frigate and carrying her guns and carriages on board. If a load of timber is provided at the wharf, without any expense or trouble to provide vessels to bring it down, from 6s. to 8s. a ton might be abated from the freight.	69
"	Jno. Greene, Deptford .	—	Account of ships at Deptford, number of men on each, and the time they have been on rigging wages.	70
"	Capt. Hen. Hatsell, Plymouth .	Robt. Blackborne.	Has been staying at Exeter on public business. Particulars of ships	71
"	Capt. Robt. Plunleigh, Reserve, Plymouth Sound .	Adm. Com.	Convoys several ships from Plymouth bound for New England and Newfoundland, and when off Scilly, left Capt. Butler with those for New England, and proceeded with the others to Newfoundland. Found the English fishery there all safe, but there had been a great want of provisions in the land, and the fleet was in great distress for bread. Spared 3,000 lbs. to such as had most need. Has returned with 47 sail, and the masters return thanks for the convoy. The best fishing voyage made this year will be a losing account, both to adventurers and seamen, the price of fish this year being only between 16 and 17 ryals per quintal, which is a very low rate, and besides only a small quantity is taken.	72
"	Capt. Hen. Powell, the Portland, Harwich .	"	Has come in for 3 months' provisions, by order of the General in the Downs. In heaving up his anchor, it brought up another of 29 cwt., which had lain so many years in the sea that one end of it is worn away; as it is of no use, asks leave to dispose of it for his own benefit.	73
"	Capt. Sam. Sharland, the Kinsale, Plymouth .	"	Has received their order for a cable, but wants 2, and other stores, which Capt. Hatsell seems unwilling to supply. Some carpenters' work is needed to make his ship serviceable for the winter.	74
"	Martin Simon, Chatham .	Navy Com ^{rs}	Is glad to hear his business is so near a period, but not having sufficient strength to attend them as desired, hopes they will defer it.	75

1657. Oct. 12	Jno. White, Bristol	Adm. Com.	Thanks for appointing him boatswain of the Forester, but though he has completed the rigging and made her fit for sea without any assistance, now finds that he has been so much abused that they have sent another to reap the harvest of his labours. Hopes they will reconsider his case, as it not only tends to the loss of his employment, but to his utter ruin and disgrace; has in this, as in all other undertakings for the State's service, acquitted himself as a faithful servant.	Vol. 172. 76
"	Capt. Jno. Woolthers, Nonsuch, Spithead.	"	Convoys 16 sail from St. Malo, bound for England, in company with the Fagons, and has seen them to their several ports. Having been off the ground 19 weeks, and having only 4 days' provisions left, desires order where to clean and revictual.	77

Taylor, master shipwright at Chatham, for pay after the rate of 200 l. a year, from 30 June 1656 to 30 June 1657, for his extra care and pains during that period, the salary he has received within that time, on the ordinary or otherwise, being deducted.	79

"	Capt. Robt. Clarke, Naseby, Queens- borough.	"	Has just arrived with the Dunbar from the Downs, and hopes to get up the river to-morrow, when he will wait upon them.	84

"	Ensign Rich. Elton -	"	Desires they will direct the treasurer to pay him the money due to his father for cleaning and tallowing several ships named; has several bills charged upon him by his father, which have to be paid out of the money, and were payable last Saturday, but the merchants agreed to stay until today, being unwilling to discredit his father by returning them.	88

1657. Oct. 13	D. Gauden, Ipswich	Col. Jno. Clerke.	Sends Gen. Montague's warrant to Capt. Jas. Strutt, commander of the Half Moon, to sail to Harwich, and apply to Commissioner Neh. Bourne for 3 months' provisions, and then return to the Downs. Has laden in the Mayflower of Ipswich, and the William of Dover, 100 men's victuals for 6 months for the fleet in the Splinter, off Flanders, which will be in Harwich water this evening, and has requested Capt. Edw. Thomson, of the Expedition, to give them convoy; the other 100 men's victuals for 6 months shall be sent away as soon as any fit vessels present for carrying them. Will also put on board the provisions required by the Portland, Elias, and Half Moon, as soon as they are ready to receive them, although no order has been sent to the victualler, which he desires, but on account of these issues, cannot supply the port of Dover with beef and pork so soon as occasion may call for it, and therefore desires they will supply it from London, and he will return it in 14 days, without charge to the State, and afterwards supply that port with some from Ipswich, which he hopes will be time enough to comply with his unpleasing and unprofitable contract.	Vol. 172. 89, 90
"	Capt. Robt. Grassingham, Harwich.	Adm. Com.	The Half Moon, Elias, and Portland have come to be refitted; will give them all dispatch -	91
"	Capt. Hen. Hatsell, Plymouth.	"	The Fagons has arrived with the hulk; has given order for delivery of the powder and shot to the gunner of the Hector. Capt. Elliot complains of leakage in his frigate, but as he has 9 or 10 days' victuals, has ordered him to ply on the coast until it is expended, and then to come in. Particulars of ships.	92

"	Capt. Thos. Lardige, Lark, Spithead.	Navy Com ^r	Having heard of the miscarriage of his letters and sea hooks, sends two more hooks; hopes they will not impute it to his neglect.	94
"	"	Adm. Com.	Being forced into Plymouth by weather, was ordered by Commissioner Hatsell to take a month's provisions, cruise between the Deadman and the Start, and wait for the Welcome; but hearing she had passed up Channel with other ships, returned to his station, and has now come for water, and to send some sea books to the Navy Commissioners, the others having miscarried. Had many of his men seized with sickness, and it not being convenient to bring them to Portsmouth, has set them on shore at Weymouth, but as there is no provision for such as desire the State's allowance, asks what to do in this as in like cases; has formerly given them their discharges, as unfit for service.	95
"	Capt. Thos. Morris, Plymouth.	"	Has been cruising in the Channel until 15 days' since, when he came in and received 14 days' victuals, by order of Capt. Hatsell, and then took charge of 10 sail of merchantmen bound for Rochelle, and 5 for Ireland; having seen them on their way, has returned to refit and victual.	96

"	Capt. Robt. Sansum, the Portsmouth , Scarborough.	"	While plying on his station with the Pearl , spoke 2 Holland men-of-war, going for Bridlington Bay to water, who reported there were 12 more about the Dogger Sand , waiting for their East Indian and Straits fleets.	98
"	Capt. Robt. Wilkin- son, Weymouth pink, Newcastle.	"	Having been ordered by Gen. Monk to take charge of all vessels bound southward for London, or any other place, and see them to Orfordness, and wanting 2 new cables, and there being none in the stores at Scotland, was directed to Harwich for them, and then to sail to Scotland; but meeting with contrary winds and foul weather, has been forced with his fleet into Newcastle Harbour ; will take the first opportunity for gaining Yarmouth Roads .	99
"	Jasper Grant, Bris- tol.	"	Thanks for appointing him master of the Forester ; but as they have since dismissed him, and sent another to take charge, feels bound to state that he has now attended upon her 6 months, and has been at very great charge to complete the ship, having had to make many journeys to and from Bristol and the Forest . Mr. Shewell can certify this, as also that he has not abused his trust, but having, in the absence of the boatswain, carried up many things at his own expensè for launching her, a difference arose thereon between himself and the boatswain, for which they have both been dismissed. Capt. Archer will acknowledge there has been no quarrelling between them since they went on board at King's Road , nor would have been if they had been kept in the service, both being sensible of the evil of what passed while at Lidney . Would come to Whitehall as ordered, but his long attendance, expensè, and loss of time, has driven him to such straits that he has not wherewith to bring him to London, or to subsist at Bristol , unless they relieve by giving him some allowance for the time he served, and for his journey, when he will attend and render an account.	100
"	Capt. Edw. Grove, Roe ketch, Dept- ford.	Navy Com ^r	His sea victuals were expended the 1st inst., when he received 1 l . of the Mayor of Lynn , which, according to the State's allowance, ended the 13th; as his men are yet unpaid, and without provisions, desires they will order the clerk of the check to victual them by petty warrant.	101
"	Christ. Pett, Wool- wich.	"	The Switsaure had a narrow escape of being burnt yesterday, through the carelessness of the caulkers in breeming her down under water, the fire got too high on the jink side, but having a store of help, some water in buckets in the ship, and the engine on shore, they mastered the fire without more damage than blacking her side; the mercy was greater in regard all the ports were open, and store of shavings on the middle deck, where the joiners were at work, though they are mostly cleared out daily for fear of such accidents. Will cause more care to be taken for the future.	102

Bourne, Victualling Office.	Navy Com ^{rs}	Several pursers are now attending to pass their accounts, particularly those returned from the coast of Spain, and produce certificates for victualling prisoners at whole allowance, and some of them for having carried supernumeraries above the establishment. To the first, order was formerly given to permit but half allowance, from which they will not recede without further order; have no rule to lead them with regard to the latter, and as their clamour is great, must refer them to the Navy Commissioners, or have instructions how to answer their demands; some of the commanders at Jamaica gave orders to their pursers to issue extra provisions to encourage men to do service on ships, and in the forts on shore. With notes of the reply that they are to make allowance where there is an order from the generals or commanders-in-chief at sea or on shore.	107

Sailed from Harwich with 2 hoys laden with provisions from Ipswich, and being forced into the Downs, and understanding the General was at London, went on board the Rear-Admiral, who ordered him to stay, and sent Capt. Sparling, of the Assistance, with the hoys for Mardike.	Vol. 172. 125
"	Capt. Robt. Vessey, Constant War- wick, Plymouth Sound.	"	Has repaired, cleaned, and victualled for 2 months, and is ordered by Comr. Hatsell to lie to and again in the mouth of the Channel.	126

Wright, Fane, Yarmouth Roads.	Navy Com ^{rs}	Will not issue any more written tickets, but only received 30 printed, 15 of which were given to men discharged into the Portsmouth, and the rest, with 33 written of which he kept copies, have since been issued; has had occasion for more for some sick men, but will wait until supplied with printed ones. Is now going over to the Maas with several vessels laden with cloth and lead; hears there are many others there waiting to come for England.	127
"	Adm. Com.	"	Order to confer with Capt. Lambert, lately returned from the West Indies, and to give order for putting on board such ships as are bound for those parts 20 chaldron of coals, and a supply of cables and rod iron for making nails.	Vol. 173. 1

Has been cruising on his station with the Pearl; desires orders may be sent to Scarborough for him to revictual, clean, and be supplied with necessaries. Met 2 Holland men-of-war, who reported that De Witt, with 12 of their men-of-war, were waiting off the Dogger, for their East India and Straits' fleet.	5
"	Sir Rich. Stayner, the Essex, Downs.	"	Capt. Valentine Larnell of the Adventure has brought in the Peter of Ostend, a man-of-war of 7 guns and 40 men and boys; sends the examination of Jan Morette, her commander. There was another frigate in her company which escaped, and the Assistance has gone to look after her. Wishes he had 3 or 4 frigates to cruise about, does not doubt but they would bring in some of the enemy. The hoy with 70 tons of beer has arrived, and gone back to London with the empty casks. The messengers with the letters from his Highness have gone for Mardike. Is in great straits for want of the provisions detained by the wind. Particulars of ships.	6, 7

1657. Oct. 17	Capt. Gec. Pley, Weymouth.	Navy Com ^r	Sends invoice for an extra bale of sailcloth, shipped in the Andrew of Weymouth, for Deptford; wonders they should raise the question who is to bear the risk of sending it, having advised them of the agreement he made with the makers, to give them 18 d. a yard on the place; therefore it cannot be expected that they will bear the risk. For such poor countrymen to adventure their goods at sea is out of their element; many of them are not worth a bale of cloth; is constrained to advance them 20 l. a piece to help them with materials, and they can bear no adventure, as they have only the same price formerly paid to them by the merchants. With regard to himself, only acts by their commission, and therefore hopes they do not expect that he should bear the risk and charges, which his commission will not allow; but to save further charge, will in future send the cloth to Portsmouth by the State's ships, whence if not used up there, it can be taken by other of the State's ships to Deptford, at no charge or risk. Has 6 bales more ready, and as the men have given up making the ordinary sort, hopes to have a quantity of the best sort brought in weekly.	Vol. 173. 8
"	Jno. Tippetts, Portsmouth.	Maj. Neh. Bourne.	Account of the works executed in making the new dock; desires that an experienced man may be sent down to advise therein, until the principal part is completed, and that Thos. Hatch, who has been long in the service, and for some time his foreman, may succeed.	9
"	Capt. Chas. Thorowgood, State's Yard, Portsmouth.	Adm. Com.	Mr. Hawkins, the boat maker, who died on Wednesday.	10
"	Lieut. - Col. Elton, Hull.	"	Is in hand with the Nonsuch. The captain of the Lark requires an order for refitting and victualling; there are 12 sail laden with linen, drapery, and other commodities from St. Malo and the West, who desire a convoy to the Downs.	11
"	Capt. Robt. Robinson, the Preston, Humber.	Robt. Blackborne.	Thanks for paying his bills to his son. There being 8 ships ready to sail for London, has solicited Capt. Robinson to give them convoy as far as Yarmouth.	12
"	Major Wm. Burton, Yarmouth.	Adm. Com.	Having put in through the easterly winds, has been desired by the Governor to give convoy to 8 ships laden with lead, &c., for London; hopes he will not offend by complying with his request without the Commissioners' order.	13
"	Jno. Greene, Deptford.	Robt. Blackborne.	Understands they will ask Lord Montague how he is to place the bread and beer to the account of the Portland and Great President. Thinks Capt. Baskett has gone for the Downs, but will follow their order if he returns. There has been a great storm since Saturday, and the Fame was forced away, and fired 2 guns; believes she has gone for the Humber, as it is said she ran foul of a wreck in the Roads. Sent 3 vessels with provisions to Mardike, but there is no order for delivering the goods, nor any one to receive and pay for them, and they are now lying in a wild road, at the hazard of both vessels and goods, contrary to his Highness's and the Council's order. Gen. Montague wrote him that Gen. Turenne had promised to pay ready money for them; beseeches help.	14

"	Comr. Peter Pett, Chatham.	Navy Com ^{rs}	There has been no ammunition from Flanders since Lord Montague went from the Downs, nor any victuals from London or Harwich, save 9 weeks, in the Expedition and Convert, and 93 tuns of beer from London, which has been disposed of amongst the fleet; as several ships have only flesh for a few days, they will be in great straits if the easterly wind continues, and the convoys for Mardike, one of which carries 30 horses and 8 carts, cannot sail. Desires directions as to giving convoy to 10 sail bound for Bordeaux, and as to the disposal of the French prize and her prisoners. Her captain says there are 6 Biscay frigates lying off the North Cape, carrying from 24 to 28 guns, and 4 more coming for Flanders. The Convert has brought over 2 Frenchmen from Calais, bound to London on business to his Highness. Particulars of ships.	18
"	Sir Rich. Stayner, the Essex, Downs.	[Adm. Com.]	Order for building 2 shallops for the use of Vice-Adm. Goodson before Mardike, unless there are any in the State's yards that will carry 2 guns each in their head, and row well with oars.	19
"	Adm. Com.	Navy Com ^{rs}	There is 2,500 l. due to them for brandy, and 400 l. for Madeira wine, and their occasions for money are very great, besides being engaged to pay 1,150 l. for freight of the brandy; beg particular directions for payment, otherwise are advised by Capt. There is only the Speaker and the Hind ketch in the Hope, and men have been on board 7 or 8 days in hopes of being entered, which he has refused to do; had much trouble to reduce them to their complement. "	Capt. Jno. Grove, the Pembroke, Yar- mouth Roads.	Adm. Com.	Has been plying off Yarmouth to secure the fishery, and his victuals being expended, made for the Downs, but meeting with a storm, was forced to anchor, and had to cut his mainmast by the board to save the ship and lives; will resail for the Downs.	27
"	Major Wm. Burton, Yarmouth.	Navy Comrs	The Fame nearly came on shore in the storm last Monday, but has since gone for Harwich; the Pembroke was forced to cut down her mainmast, and has now gone for Harwich. The mainyard and sails being at Caistor, was forced to send a warrant before he could get them from the agents of the lord of the manor; the mainmast and maintopsail yard having come on shore at Caistor, either he or his son will go after them, and return them to the frigate, as also the foremast of the Laurel, which is still at Lowestoft, and put it on board the Pembroke.	28

Is bound to St. Vallery by order of the Governor of Calais, to convoy some vessels from thence with provisions for the French army.	32

Would have charged the money sooner, but judged it would have been fruitless in regard the 1,500 l. was so long in paying; thinks it hard to be kept so long without his money. Particulars of ships. Hears the Portuguese have had some success against the Spaniards.	42
"	Capt. Fras. Parke, Poplar.	Col. Clarke.	Asks whether he is likely to be re-employed by the State, as, since his return from Jamaica, he has been a prisoner in his own house, Peter Barby, a French factor, having threatened to persecute him to the height of his malice, so that he is out of the frying pan into the fire. If the Commissioners would give him the command of the 5th rate frigate building at Chatham, or a letter to Vice-Admiral Goodson to give him employment, it would be better enable him to compound with his adversary; there is 85 l. 6 s. 10 d. belonging to him which has been in the hands of the State these 3 years.	43

"	Capt. Thos. Wright, Fame, Tynemouth Haven.	Adm. Com.	Conveyed several vessels laden with cloth and lead out of Yarmouth Roads, bound for the Maas, by order of Major Burton, but was forced back by a violent storm, and having lost his cables and anchors, has put into Tynemouth for a supply, when he will rejoin his convoy in Yarmouth Roads. "	Jno. Stainforth, Deputy - Marshal, Chelsea College.	[Adm. Com.]	Certifies, at request of Capt. Sidrach Blake, the names of 15 prisoners in Chelsea College, supposed to be Biscaneers, and sends a list of 38 formerly belonging to the Peter of Ostend.	49, 50
"	Sir Rich. Stayner, Esser, Downs.	"	Capt. Packe of the Amity has arrived from Flushing, by order of Lord Montague, to carry over a French gentleman, as also to convoy a vessel of Sandwich thither, and brought a parcel of letters addressed to Mr. Stock of Dover. The White Roach has also come with provisions, but much powder, match, and oatmeal being stowed upon it, which he has no orders to dispose of, will be forced to send it back unless otherwise directed. Lord Ambassador Lockhart having arrived, appointed the Elizabeth to transport him to Calais, and the Judge-Advocate has gone with him. The Drake has brought in a sloop and a hoy taken between Dunkirk and Newport; the sloop pretends to be bound for Calais, but it is believed she was intended for Dunkirk; will secure their papers, and take their examinations, and if they prove prize, send them to Dover. Hears that all things are well with Admiral Goodson, but that he expected an assault every day. He wants 3 cables, blunderbusses, and firelocks, those they have not being fixed. Particulars of ships.	51

1657. Oct. 24	Anth. Wilson, Ri. Greene, Leith .	Adm. Com.	A year since, received certain rigging with 5 brass and 12 iron guns belonging to the Islip, and sent the guns up to them by Capt. Sparing of the Assistance, by Gen. Monk's order, but have had no receipt. As the State is at great charge in keeping the rigging, and there are 10 anchors and 10 stocks sent from London of no use, desire order for sending them up. "	Sir Richard Stayer, the Essex, Downs .	"	Has sent the Adventure, Convert, and Expedition, to ply on the French coast, to surprise and destroy any of the enemies' vessels they may meet, having had intelligence of some of their men-of-war lying thereabouts. Particulars of ships. Being informed by the victualler at Dover that he has 30,000 lbs. of bread, and 300 tuns of beer ready, has given him orders for 3 months' beer for 300 men. Several vessels have arrived with provisions, which shall be disposed of as directed; desires order as to a quantity of match and powder on board the White Roach.	58

"	Major Wm. Burton, Yarmouth .	Adm. Com.	Will send the victualling accounts and vouchers. Saved all the rigging and masts cut away belonging to the Pembroke, and returned them; also supplied her with 200 fish and a firkin of butter to carry her to Harwich; directed Capt. Groves to send to Lowestoft for the Laurel's foremast, which will make him a mainmast. Thanks for giving Col. White orders to receive his goods at Mardike fort.	60
"	Capt. Hen. Hatsell, Flymouth .	"	Has given the marshal order to discharge the persons they mention, and will send a list of the prisoners remaining, with their qualities, and the ships they were taken from. Having had some fine weather, the carpenters and caulkers are dispatching the work on the Sorlings and Fagon.	61

"	Will sail to-night with 12 laden merchantmen bound for London, this being the first opportunity they have had since the tempestuous weather, which caused many wrecks upon the coast. "	T. Dickinson, Mayor of York.	Adm. Com.	Again desires they will appoint 2 or 3 frigates to convoy 10 sail belonging to merchants of York, which are bound for York and Hull with wine, and likely to pay a considerable sum for excise and customs. "	Capt. Robt. Grass- ingham, Harwich.	"	Will give the Pemhroke and Wakefield all dispatch when they come into port. The Half Moon and two others are waiting for their victuals, but on account of the great southerly winds last week, the boats could not bring them from Ipswich.	66

"	Sir Rich. Stayner, the Essex , Downs.	"	All the beer has come down except 100 tuns; there are some provisions on board the White Roach above the proportion, which would be useful if he had order to distribute them amongst the ships; there is a great want of boatswain and carpenter's stores, as when at Mardike, they spared all the spikes and nails they could. A ship of 16 guns belonging to the Pope's dominions has been brought in; believes the goods will prove prize. A Plymouth man has ran ashore at the North Foreland, having neither anchor nor cable; has supplied her to save the ship, and for which they gave the bill enclosed.	68
"	"	Adm. Com.	To similar effect. Has again inquired as to the demands for gunner and carpenter's stores of the respective commanders, who assert they were made as sparingly as possible, and that there is nothing specified therein but what necessity requires. Has taken in almost all the beer, and would have cleared the White Roach of the provisions, but for the weather. Particulars of ships. Asks what is to be done with the prize brought in by the Convert and Adventure, her company being English, Greeks, and Hollanders. Will send up the prisoners on board the George by the next convenience. There is a very hard gale, and the wind S. and by E.	69

1657. Oct. 28	Major Wm. Burton, Yarmouth.	Navy Com ^s	Will ship the Laurel's foremast on board the Pembroke. Will send an account of the quantity of hemp he can procure, and at what price. Such a quantity of sound hemp came up this year, that the countrymen despaired of selling it, and slighted the reaping, and the rain took it, and it rotted upon the ground, so that there will be a great quantity of rotten hemp which may be had cheap; but that which is good will be as dear as last year, viz., from 4s. to 5s. per stone, besides the charges of bringing it home. Cannot say the price of cordage before he knows how he can buy the hemp; if there be several buyers, the price will be up aloft presently. Was forced all last year to employ but one man, and paid the money down before he fetched away the hemp; there is no considerable quantity in one man's hands, but here 100 stones, and in another place 50, 40, 10, or 5 stones, and so a man has to go all the country about, which is no small trouble. Wonders they should ask him to advise about hemp and cordage, because a gentleman of the town lately abused him touching the hemp and cordage he delivered last year, which falsehood was spoken to Major Bourne; wrote Major Bourne about it, and how the party had since confessed he did it to get some of the rope employment, but he has no more skill of cordage or hemp than a ploughman. Has not heard any more of the Fame, but has recovered an anchor and 2 cables, and will get the other when the fine weather comes.	Vol. 173, 72
"	Capt. Phil. Holland, Assurance, Witten- burg, near Han- bury.	Adm. Com.	Has had strong easterly winds, so that little has been done by the masters or merchants in delivering or shipping goods, and it froze so hard that it was as much as they could do to secure their ships. Hopes soon to get to sea.	73
"	Major-Gen. Thos. Morgan, Calais.	Col. Salmon Adm. Comr. York House Strand.	One half of his officers and soldiers are sick, and it is generally supposed from the same disease as in England. Understanding the Admiralty Commissioners intend to appoint some of the navy now lying upon the coast of Flanders to ply upon the northern coast, begs that Captus Nixon and Liburne, north countrymen, and fit for that coast, may be appointed for that purpose. The service they were upon together in Scotland was judged toilsome, but this is ten times more toilsome and laborious. Are like to endure very much hardship this winter, and very many of the soldiers die. If he will do this favour on behalf of the two captains, shall take it as done to himself.	74

1657. Oct. 28	Sir Rich. Slayner, the Essex .	Adm. Com.	Sends a demand for boatswains' and carpenters' stores. The Judge-Advocate is taking the examinations of the company of the ship brought in by the Convert, which by the foul weather sheared on board the Entrance, and carried away her foremast, boltsprit, and head. Believes her goods will prove prize, if not the ship also. The weather is so foul that the ships could hardly go about to fetch any victuals for the last 2 days, or to ascertain from the pursers what they have on board. 4 pinnaces are much needed for the fleet, and a long boat for the London. The North Foreland fishermen having come for a convoy, ordered the Beaver to lie among them until further order. There are 30 sail that fish off the Ness who desire the same. Has only the 2 ketches, some time employed as convoys to Mardike. The man that General Montague sent to Flushing in the Amity desires a ship to bring him back. Particulars of ships.	Vol. 173. 76
"	Capt. Jno. Taylor, Chatham .	Navy Com ^{rs}	The anchor-smith at Chatham is a great sufferer for want of money; there are such great sums due to him from the State that he is not able to forbear and keep his credit. A great part of his gains goes in the extra price he pays for the iron bought on credit. If smiths have no money to buy of the merchant, the ironmonger will force had iron away with the good, and charge 2s. and 3s. in the pound more, so that if they intend to have good iron for the service, and for the smith to perform his duty, they must make him a present supply of money. The Amity and others still wait an opportunity to sail from Spithhead. The Nonsuch is off the ground, and will soon be ready. The President has passed with several ships towards Cowes.	77
"	Capt. Chas. Thorow- good, State's Yard , Portsmouth .	Adm. Com.	Sailed from Chatham Dock the 26th instant, not considering it his duty to wait there any longer for men, but has now 190 men and boys on board.	78

"	Capt. Ri. Hodges, Basing, Miford.	"	Has been plying on his station, and had such high winds that when within 5 leagues of St. Ives, which is a lee shore, was forced to bear a fore and mizen sail to keep from going ashore, and they being soon after blown from the yards, was put in some danger. There being less wind afterwards, and the ship so leaky that the powder room was as wet as the deck, and wanting sails, cables, anchors, powder, and almost everything, came in, in hopes of obtaining an order to refit, but has received one, dated the 23rd inst., to transport Col. Walter's wife, which he will perform the first fair wind.	90

"	Capt. Thos. Penrose, Maudstone, Hopé.	Adm. Com.	Will convey the ships in the Thames bound to Lister Deep in Hoistein. Wrote Mr. Blackborne of the abuse he had from And. Coleman on account of pressing Wm. Whitfield, who then professed to be a seaman, and not a bricklayer. Seized on him for the service, and he refusing, Coleman came out, saying he was an officer, and would not suffer any to be pressed out of his home, rescued Whitfield, and, with the assistance of others, beat him and those who went to assist him, and turned them out. There was no combination between him and Hall to prejudice Coleman. Would not be so unworthy as to beat any man out of his possession. Has no concernment either with one party or the other, but if their Honours' warrants are slighted by one of their own officers, as Coleman pretends to be, doubts not but they will vindicate those whom they employ in the due execution of them.	92

Has also got two of the Fame's anchors, and 3 cables; her sheet anchor having no buoy is left behind, but will get boats to sweep for it. The fishing season is done. Has sent the Sparrow pink and the Acadia to the Maas with 14 or 15 sail of Newcastle and Boston men, and some of Yarmouth; those of Newcastle, being richly laden with cloth and lead, dared not venture without convoy. 1657. Nov. 3	Sir Rich. Stayner, the Essex, Downs.	Navy Com ^{rs}	Has sent up Thos. Parker's ketch which belonged to the London. Hayward to remove into the Essex , and himself into the Loudon , which shall be as speedily done as weather permits, which at present is very bad, a vessel being cast away in the Downs yesterday. The Assistance has arrived from Dieppe with the Countess of Holland; has furnished the ship with a month's provisions out of the fleet, as she is going to Mardike. The victuals sent from Harwich for 100 men for 6 months were taken up by the George and Expedition , and those for 300 men for 3 months were sent for supply of the ships at Mardike, where they have only the victuals which were sent in the White Roach , which is in part of the ships of the 20 sail; has ordered the Wakefield 14 days' from Dover. As there are 7 vessels out of the West country bound for Rotterdam, will appoint the Foresight or Convent as a convoy. There is a very fresh gale with the wind at N. & W. "	Major Wm. Burton, Yarmouth.	Navy Com ^{rs}	The man he employed to buy hemp expects to get 2,000 l. or 3,000 l. worth, if there are not too many buyers, but will not engage to deliver so much at Norwich at 4 s. a stone, and the charges from there will be 5 d. a cwt., and then the carriage and warehouse hire from the ropers, if made at Yarmouth. If it is to be sent to London, can ship it at Lynn, or some port thereabouts, and save 20 per cent. in the carriage of it to Norwich from Lynn, and can deliver cordage at Yarmouth at from 38 s. to 39 s. a cwt. Desires a speedy answer, as if he does not soon employ this buyer, others of London and Ipswich will; if employed, he promises not to buy a pound's worth for any other man. Others may promise to deliver it cheaper, but he will trade for as little as any man, and deliver the best.	32

Powell, scandalizing the State, by openly stating upon deck that it was impossible for an honest man to live in the service upon his salary, and that he must shift for himself; and to make his actions confirm his words, meeting immediately afterwards with a Fleming between Calais and Dover, he sold him an anchor for 28 dollars, as also 2 cheeses. On coming to anchor in Dover Road, his anchor came foul of another of 29 cwt., supposed to have been lost by the Tredegar, or some other of the State's ships, which he caused to be recovered, and sold it at Harwich on his own account for 39l.	37
"	Capt. They do not so much concern themselves as some honest but poor men in New England, whose credit lies at stake in London, and who are expecting them to be paid according to the time mentioned. 1657. Nov. 10	Hen. Careless, mas- ter carpenter of the Dunbar .	—	Proceedings of a Council of War held on board the Dunbar , on the complaint of Capt. Jer. Smith, president and commander-in-chief, against Careless, for wilful neglect of duty in not driving out a plug for letting in water, and to clear out the well of the ship whereby two of the company, Wm. Chapman and Thos. Burbridge—the latter having a wife and 5 children—were suffocated; and others, in endeavouring to rescue them, nearly lost their lives, and were several hours before they recovered. The Court, in the absence of Capt. Jer. Smith, who retired for the time to avoid prejudice, found that Careless was guilty under the 32nd Article of the Laws and Ordinances of the Sea, viz., that no man shall neglect to perform the duty imposed on him, under a penalty of death, or a lesser punishment; but as there were extenuating circumstances, he was sentenced to be dismissed, and notice ordered to be given to the Admiralty Commis- sioners to appoint another in his place.	Vol. 174. 56
"	Capt. Rich. Potter, President, Spit- head.	Adm. Com.	Received order from Sir Rich. Stayner to convoy some ships for Bordeaux, and to touch at Plymouth for victuals, but meeting with foul weather, put into the Isle of Wight; after taking in a month's provisions from Portsmouth, will proceed on his voyage.	57
"	Capt. Anth. Rively, Vulture, Spithead.	"	Has been plying on his station between the Maas and Yarmouth, and coming into Yarmouth Roads, was ordered by Major Burton to convoy 7 vessels to the Maas, but meeting with a sad storm, and spending his mainmast, was forced into the Texel. Since then, has fished his mast, refitted, and taken in 6 weeks' provisions, and having his full complement of men, intends putting to sea.	58
"	"	"	Hearing from Major Burton that some of his men have presented false written tickets, hopes they will be punished, particularly one Pike, and whose wife went to his wife for her to move him to grant her one, and because she could not prevail, she has abused both of them. Received some printed tickets before going to sea, and has used no others since.	59
"	Sir Rich. Stayner, the London, Downs.	"	The Assurance has gone to relieve the Vice-Admiral, and convoyed over 2 vessels with balks and deals for the service at Mardike. Particulars of ships. Had a council of war yesterday upon the corporal of the Adventure, for shooting a man; but as it was proved he did it by command of the master, he was acquitted. The business of the master of the Half Moon was also gone into, and although it was understood by the court that the complaint of the captain against him was more of malice than otherwise, yet as he was not free from blame, and it was thought good for the peace of the ship that he should be removed, he was dismissed, and sent on board the London, and the captain checked for his malice. There are 2 men, Crabb and Brown, in the London, who are fit for his place, and have been promised encouragement. Wants cables and boats for the supply of ships; desires that Josias Nicolls, chaplain in the Entrance, may be appointed to the London.	60

1657. Nov. 11	Wm. Acworth, Sam. Raven, Woolwich .	Navy Com ^{rs}	There was delivered out of the stores at Woolwich, on 8 Oct. last, to Geo. Martin, master of the Ann hoy of Colechester, for transportation to Mardike, 1,080 oak pallisadoes, from 10 to 13 feet long; and there being only a man and 2 boys aboard, another able seaman was sent for the voyage, to whom Martin was to pay 5 s. , to be abated out of his freight. Have received a certificate from Lieut.-Col. White that it was the 3rd of Nov. before the hoy was cleared of her lading, and that she was 55 tons burden, all which is to be considered on the allowance of freight.	Vol. 174. 61
"	Major Wm. Burton, Yarmouth .	Adm. Com.	Will observe their order when the Sparrow pink returns from the Maas; believes she is not so leaky but that she can remain out until her provisions are spent. All the coal fleet is laid up in England, and there is little use for her to the northward, as all the trade from these roads is to Holland, London, and the Downs, will send her to and fro in this station, where she is much wanted. Has been solicited to ask for a convoy for a fleet bound to Bordeaux; as Capt. Robinson of the Preston is at Harwich, he might get ready by the time several Straitsmen are laden, when he could see them out of the Channel. The townsmen are forced to adventure their herrings in their own ships, as there are no buyers here; has sent two of his own ships to carry the herrings away. Has sent the price of hemp to the Navy Commissioners.	62
"	Capt. Thos. Ludge, Lark, Spithead .	"	Has been cruising on his station, and now come in for provisions. Hears that Capt. Cary, with 2 other frigates, has left the station, and gone for Dunkirk.	63
"	Capt. Christ. Myrings	"	Desires they will examine the person who has re-arrested his purser, as it much prejudices the dispatch of his ship, and the business can only be solved by them.	64
"	Capt. Chas. Thorow- good.	"	Arrival and departure of ships	65
"	Capt. Thos. Wright, Fame, Yarmouth Roads .	"	Capt. Toppin, governor of Tynemouth Castle, and himself had engaged for an anchor and cable for 70 l. , before their order arrived, and think they are well worth the money; if he had not had them, would have had to run his pink ashore, as the Mayor of Newcastle would do nothing without order. Is waiting an opportunity to take in his other cables and anchors, which he was forced to leave in the Roads, and which have all been recovered save about half a cable. As his provisions will be out on the 20th, will put into Harwich for order when to revictual.	66
"	Adm. Com.	Navy Com ^{rs}	Order to supply Capt. Robinson of the Preston, victualling at Hull, with such anchors, cables, sails, &c. from Harwich as he may require, he being appointed one of the winter guard.	67
"	Capt. Thos. Bowry, Roe ketch, Hope .	"	Has been on board, and as there are only 19 men, desires a press warrant; when he has completed his number, will proceed to his station. There are several vessels bound northward coming down.	68

1657. Nov. 12	Capt. Peter Butler, Satisfaction, Downs.	Navy Com ^{rs}	After receiving Col. [Thos.] Temple and his company on board, sailed for Boston, New England, and then made for St. John's Fort and Port Royal, intending for Newfoundland; but meeting with violent storms, and getting short of provisions, returned for England; neither he nor his company are ashamed to speak of the goodness of the Lord in preserving them from such great dangers. "	Isabell Hall	"	Petition for exchange of her husband, William Hall, mate of the Diligence, and of Joseph Haddock, master, and his boatswain, who were taken by a Spanish man-of-war, and now prisoners at Vigo, Galicia, for 4 Spanish prisoners in Chelsea College, who are feeble and sick. Has 5 small famishing children. With certificate of John Stainforth, Deputy Marshal-General, that these are the 4 Spaniards, named, who were taken in the Virgin Mary, now prisoners in Chelsea College.	70, 71
"	Sir Rich. Stayner, the London, Downs.	"	Has sent to Commissioner Pett for a pilot to carry the George up to Chatham, and would have taken out her provisions but for bad weather. Sent the packet for Marüke to Capt. Sparing, the Vice-Admiral having left the Downs; the Satisfaction has arrived from New England with the Deputy-Governor, who has gone for London. Has desired Capt. Clerke to spare the 20 men he had out of the Dunbar to the Newbury; sent an anchor and cable to the Assistance at Mardike. Desires order as to the gunner of the Newcastle, against whom the captain has made a complaint.	72
"	Major Wm. Burton, Yarmouth.	[Adm. Com.]	Has sent his friend into the country to buy all the best hemp as cheap as he can, but does not think there will be 200 tons; as it is bought in small quantities here and there for ready money, desires he may have some from the collectors of customs and excise at Lynn. Asks whether to procure Holland cordage, as he supplied it last year as cheap and good as any man could. Has sent several receipts for things delivered, but received no answer; if the collectors at Lynn have orders to pay money at Lynn to his order, it will do. The Feme is shipping her anchors and cables.	73
"	Capt. Edm. Curle, Sparrow Harwich.	Adm. Com.	Convoys some vessels to the Maas, and coming back, being leaky and wanting a cable and water, put into Harwich; when supplied, will return to his station, but cannot stop the leak till ordered on shore.	74
"	Capt. Robt. Henfield, Acadia, Harwich.	"	Has been waiting on the Yarmouth fishermen; then convoyed several ships for Holland by order of Major Burton, and being now out of provisions, has come in for orders.	75

1657, Nov. 13	Rich. Foote, late master's mate of the Nantwich .	—	Deposition before Col. Clerke, Major-Gen. Kelsey, and Major Beake, that he got out of the galleon which the Speaker took 3 cakes of gold, weighing 6 lbs., which he sold to Capt. Jno. Jefferies for 105 l. , 50 l. whereof he received in hand, and a bond for 55 l. more payable in England, which he has not yet got, but may receive when he likes. The bond was drawn and signed by Capt. Jefferies on board the frigate, before the gold was seized in Capt. Jefferies' cabin; heard that the reason for searching the Nantwich was on account of the taking of a Fleming which came from Santa Cruz. At the search, besides the gold taken away, he lost 257 dollars, and the captain and lieutenant lost some. Heard that John Herbert, and one Woodford, 2 others of the ship's company, also had some gold out of the galleon, which they sold to Capt. Jefferies.	Vol. 174. 76
" "	Capt. Peter Motham, Downs .	Adm. Com.	Sailed from Margate Road with a convoy bound for the Maas on the 2nd instant, but meeting with violent storms, was forced to anchor off the Texel, where he rode until the 9th inst.; since then, has been beating up to get to the Downs. "	Capt. Robt. Robinson, the Fresion, Hull.	Adm. Com.	Will proceed to the Rolling Grounds for his provisions as ordered, and use all expedition to sail. Before sailing to the North Seas, sent some of his men to weigh his lost anchor and cable without effect, but recovered those at Yarmouth; the cable being unserviceable, hopes to meet with another.	86

Has ordered all the victuals in the Triumph and Entrance into the Elias and Half Moon, for transportation to Mardike; if there should be occasion to take any more from the ships, it would be best to put it on board those appointed for the winter guard, as the weather being often bad, it takes much time transporting it from one ship to another.	88

1657. Nov. 18	Thos. Bendish, Yarmouth.	Navy Com ^{rs}	At the request of a friend, proposed to furnish the State with a considerable quantity of cordage, upon such terms as were cheaper than they had formerly been supplied, and better; it might have been a great provocation to another to render him odious, and to carry on a design for future profit, and to justify himself for former matters. Values no such calumination, and seeks no employment so mean, having enough to provide for his family; had he gone on with the business, has as good an estate to engage for its performance as he that reproached him, and may be as able as a lad of 20 or 21, who managed most of that sort of business at Yarmouth last year. If he propounded reasonable rates, better make, and is ready and able to give security for performance, it will tend little to any man's credit to say he is no better than a fool in such things, for if a fool does better than a wise man, it will not speak him very honest. "	Capt. Geo. Pley, Weymouth.	Navy Com ^{rs}	Has not yet been informed how the cloth is approved of, or whether to treat with those who contracted with Mr. Boswell, of Bristol, last year; believes he could now engage with them to furnish the State with all they make. What is to be done must be speedily effected, or Boswell will engage them for another year; he has acquainted the sailcloth makers that he who is to furnish the State with it again, and that he gives 18 d. a yard on the place, and sends it by land, which costs another 1 d. per yard; and if Boswell gets but $\frac{1}{2}$ d. per yard for his particular, it must needs stand Tyler 19 d. , and therefore does not think their Honours will be drawn to buy third hand, when it is to be had at first. Hearing from Dan. Arthur of London, that his bill upon them is not complied with, desires that when he has occasion to draw bills on them, they may be punctually paid, otherwise will not find anyone that will furnish him. If it be taken up at Weymouth of the customs' money, it may be nothing to the Commissioners of Customs to wait for it, but for merchants that depend upon it at their day, to satisfy their foreign bills, it must be punctually paid, or they may receive great prejudice. Is in disburse weekly 50 l. for the commodity, and waits an opportunity to dispatch away a good quantity.	109

Parted from his company on the 15th, and sailed near to the Holland coast, but meeting with easterly winds, was forced to bear up and come to anchor. Hears that no one will take charge of his ship to carry her into the Deeps, in regard of the shoals about 7 leagues off, so asks orders.	110

1657. Nov. 20	Cap. Hen. Hatsell, Plymouth.	Navy Com ^{rs}	Thanks for the letter sent to the Commissioners for Prize Goods to pay him half what is due, and hopes the rest will be suddenly satisfied, as he has small encouragement to disburse his own money, and the service is more than a burden. None of the frigates stayed one hour for anything that his money or credit could procure in order to their dispatch. Is sorry to hear of the losses, but they are further off than 40 leagues, within which compass few vessels have been taken for a long time. Hears that 5 weeks since 4 ships of Dartmouth and 2 of Plymouth were taken off the coast of Portugal, which has made many a sad heart in those parts; has often said that unless some frigates were appointed to ply on the coast of Portugal, it would be impossible to secure the trade of this nation in those parts, which is of no small concern. Has refitted the Constant Warwick, Sorlings, and Fagons, and hopes they will endure the winter's tumbling. The Fagons, through the carelessness of a Dutch skipper, has received some prejudice; will repair the defects and send an account, and asks if he shall cause the Dutch ship to be arrested for the damage: she pumps very sorely in the Road, but the wind is so hard at north-east that if it were to save ship, lives, and all, they are not able to weigh and turn into port. 6 of the Holland men-of-war are still at Plymouth, and others have been forced into Falmouth. Asks whether to send the State's ships to Holland.	Vol. 174. 142
"	Capt. Edw. Grove, Lynn.	"	Hopes they will consider the maliciousness and wickedness of his accusers, and the advantages they took to do him hurt by their false articles exhibited; had previously admitted that part of the articles about being long on shore, but it was through sickness and waiting for his convoys; hopes they will pardon all offences and give him further employment; would rather have chosen death than displeased them and those who recommended him.	143
"	Jno. Morris, Gravesend.	"	Delivered their letters to Capts. Myngs and Rooth. The latter sent his boatswain to attend the Navy Commissioners, and Capt. Myngs went up to-day. The Assurance has sailed for Deptford and the Vulture from the Hope, according to orders.	144
"	Hen. Powell, the Portland, Downs.	Navy Com ^{rs}	As Mr. Somerland, his late surgeon, sent in his resignation to the masters of Surgeons' Hall, they have appointed Robt. Taunton in his place, and desired him to certify the Commissioners thereof.	145
"	Capt. Robt. Duck, Hunter, Harwich.	Adm. Com.	Has been plying on his station, and conveying vessels up and down the Swinn. Will come up for Deptford when his provisions are exhausted, but has yet 35 days' left.	146
"	Adm. Com. - -	Navy Com ^{rs}	Order to determine the accounts of the governors of Watermen's Hall for impressing men, it being certified that the charges are very high, and that many of the men never appeared on board, which has caused a stop to be put thereon.	147
"	" - -	"	Order for a bill to Capt. Rich. Kingdon and Thos. Hayter for 177. 11s., disbursed in travelling to and from Dean Forest to examine the accounts of Major Wade, for the management of the ironworks there for the last year; as also for 10l. for their care and pains.	148
"	Capt. Jno. Lambert	Adm. Com.	After attending them several times, at much trouble and expense, for a share in the ship taken by him while drifting at sea, hears that nothing is allowed him; fearing they have not been properly informed, reminds them that when found, she had 3 shots under water, much water in her hold, and was sinking; that he went on board of her himself, and after much difficulty, stopped her leaks sufficiently to bring her home; that he and his company had much care and trouble therein, and that he was at great loss of time and expense in her adjudication in the Admiralty Court, but could not stay the issue, being ordered to Jamaica.	149
"	Thos. Margetts, Somerset House.	Major-Gen. Kelsey and Major Beake.	Desires they will hear a poor man's petition, and cause an officer or two of the fleet to pay him what they owe, or give him liberty to take his course at law against them. He will satisfy them of the justness of the debt, and would rather have it without than by law.	150

1657. Nov. 24	Capt. Robt. Robinson, the Preston , Hull .	Navy Comrs	Not having any printed tickets, on discharging the men of the Maria prize, gave them written ones, but has since received a supply of printed tickets, and orders from Mr. Blackborne not to give written ones for the future. Having orders to go to Harwich for a recruit of stores, wants a boat. The Pearl is waiting to convey soldiers over sea, and the Weymouth pink is bound for Scotland.	Vol. 174. 151
"	"	Robt. Blackborne.	Received the 50 printed tickets. Has desired the victualler to hasten his provisions, but they will not all be ready for a few days.	152
"	John Redwood	Adm. Com.	Petition to continue master of the Taunton , or be removed to a better ship. Was in the Naseby in the expedition to Spain, and made master of the Tredagh by the generals, but was ruptured in the engagement at Santa Cruz, and obliged to come home as master of the Taunton , but is now recovered. With certificate of Capt. Jno. Stoakes, Capt. John Poyutz, and 13 other commanders at Lisbon, that he was discharged the service through a rupture, and that he has a great family and is wholly destitute, and they recommend him for employment on shore.	153, 154
"	Thos. Bendish, Yarmouth .	"	Feared the reproaches cast upon him might blast his honest intentions and proposals about making cordage, sent to one of the Navy Commissioners at his desire, which he communicated to the rest, but concealing the writer's name; they, however, concluded he was the man, and rejected them as despicable, like their author, although he was a stranger to all of them except the one to whom they were sent. It seems strange that gentlemen of their quality should despise such light on a bare report, without enquiring into the truth. Discovered therein the mystery of the trade, and the cause which imbued English ropes, and how cheap they might be afforded, which is, according to the price of the best hemp this year, 2s. 8d. cheaper than last year, so that he could furnish ropes at 37s. per cwt., giving 1s. per cwt. to the workmen more than they had last year, that they might dress the hemp better and so spin it fine, whereby the cordage will be 5s. or 6s. per cwt. better, and if hemp got cheaper, he would abate the ropes. Will not apply again to the Navy Commissioners and beg an employment until he has more need of it, nor would he accept it should they now offer it, were it not out of respect to the State, and lest it should be said he proposed more than he dared undertake. Has now trusts that are chargeable, but none profitable; is content with what he has, knowing there is a blessing in it, and only covets to be estemed. The best Holland ropes may now be afforded at 41s. 4d. per cwt., and if they be laid in the warehouse at Yarmouth, they will increase in weight 4 or 5 per cwt. in a short time, so as to bring them under 40s., but English ropes will not do so, though they will lose nothing.	155
"	Wm. Hempson, Lynn .	[Navy Comrs.]	Sends the muster books of some ships which have come home; has ordered the pursers of others to complete and send two each, one for themselves and the other for the Treasurer.	156

1657. Nov. 24	Capt. Jno. Vasey, Beaver, Portsmouth.	Adm. Com.	It blowing very hard when proceeding to his station off the North Foreland, was forced to bear up and come to anchor in the small Downs; but the storm increasing, one of his cables gave way, and being upon a lee shore, was dubious of the other coming home, so for better security of themselves and frigate, cut their mainmast by the board, and so rode until last Saturday, and then his other anchor coming home, was forced to cut and leave his two anchors behind, with a great part of their cables, and a slip buoy at one of them; had the cables proved according to the anchors, the frigate would have rode out the storm. It being late at night, could not get into Dover by reason of the storm, which caused a great breach of the sea there, but has since arrived at Portsmouth with much difficulty, and with a week's provisions.	Vol. 174. 157
"	Capt. Chas. Thoroughgood, State's Yard, Portsmouth.	"	The Beaver having been forced out of the Downs by extremity of weather, cut her mainmast by the board, and left her anchors behind, and has come into this port. Is fitting a mast, but desires order as to tallowing and revictualling.	158
"	Dr. Wal. Walker, Doctors' Commons.	"	Received their order to attend them to-morrow; but it being the latter end of term, and the Court of Probate sitting to-morrow, and he engaged in several causes which would much suffer by his absence, desires they will excuse him till after term, or till next Saturday.	159
"	Capt. Edw. Blagge, Triumph, Swate, near Queenborough.	"	Had orders on the 16th inst. to sail from the Downs to Chatham, but up to the 24th, was delayed by weather, then left with the Entrance and Satisfaction; the former is still with him.	160
"	Capt. Rich. Rooth, Dartmouth, Hope.	"	Upon receipt of 4 of the captured soldiers from Col. Crompton, and the overplus of ground tackle, intended to sail for Mardike , but receiving their order for conveying the Fortune flyboat and a small hoy with provisions for the State, will fall down to Lee Road and wait for them.	161
"	Adm. Com.	Navy Com ^{rs}	Order to sign a ticket sent for William Clymer, servant to Jno. Wade, late boatswain of the Forester , notwithstanding the ship's books are not returned.	162
"	Capt. Robt. Grasingham, Harwich.	Adm. Com.	Delivered their letters to the commanders of the Adventure , Fame , and Acadia . The Fame is on shore tallowing, but the others are riding within Landguard Fort for safety during the bad weather.	163
"	Lieut. Thos. Strey, Entrance, Medway.	"	As he hopes to get up to Chatham to-morrow, desires order as to the disposal of the ship and her company.	164
"	Capt. Anth. Young, Tredagh, Lisbon.	Rich. Hutchinson	Order having come for 10 sail to stay out for further service and the rest to go home, and the commander-in-chief desiring he should stay with him, has been removed into the Tredagh , and the commander-in-chief has gone into the Lyme . Sends the names of 6 men that came out of the James into the Tredagh with him and have since run, and as they had tickets for the time they served in the James , desires he will stop payment of them.	165

"	Capt. Hen. Haisell, Plymouth .	"	Capt. Elliott has come in for a new mizenmast, lost in chasing a Biscay man-of-war, who much damaged his rigging and sails with shot, and wounded two of his men, one of whom has since died. He met a great fleet of Dutch ships from Bordeaux and Rochelle, one of which reported that the Constant Warwick had taken a Biscaneer of 10 or 12 guns, and was at St. Martin's. Capt. Country also spoke a great Dutch ship, laden with salt from Rochelle, which had sprung a leak and was in great distress, but he could not assist her owing to the storm. Her skipper told him that 3 of his consorts had foundered. Desires payment of 800 l. , disbursed in carrying on the service. Particulars of ships.	172
"	Capt. Sam. Sharland, the Kinsale , Milford .	"	After leaving Plymouth, was forced by a storm into Ireland, and not finding victuals at Kinsale, or any order from the Council, made for Milford to revictual and tallow, and will return to Dublin for orders.	173
"	Capt. Fras. Allen, Advice , Leith Road .	"	Has been ranging upon the Scotch and English coast, but not heard anything of the enemies' ships. Received order to convoy a fleet bound for London and Newhaven with salmon and salt, but was forced back by the storm, which has been exceeding bad. It is reported that a Holland man-of-war of 80 guns has been cast away about the May or Bass Island, and a flyboat in the Firth took up a piece of the combing of the grating of an upper deck, which was half a foot longer than his own.	174
"	Rowlif Corten -	-	Deposition before Captains Robert Storey and Willoughby Hannam at Lisbon, that the Prince William, of which he was master's mate, and all the goods in her, were Spanish, and although pretended to be for Madeira, she was bound for Teneriffe, and after her discharge there, she was to proceed in the service of Spain, and such of her crew as would not serve the Spaniard were to take their passage on some English or Dutch vessel for their own country.	175
"	Elizabeth Harris -	Adm. Com. 1657. Nov. 28	Capt. Geo. Pley, Weymouth.	Adm. Com.	Understanding that his bills on the Navy Commissioners have not been paid, after being days overdue, desires they will see that they are paid for the future, as the sailcloth makers are poor countrymen, to some of whom he has to advance money to carry on the business, and the rest must be paid on delivery of the goods. Having taken them from their old customers, and caused them to alter their looms and materials to make only the best sort, it will be a pity if they are not encouraged and the manufacture kept up. The Commissioners of Customs at Lyme and Weymouth should be ordered to supply him with money, the receipts at Weymouth being too small. A merchant of Bristol contracted with several of the sailmakers for all they could make during the year, and made them give a bond for performance; the time will shortly expire, and then can put them by and supply the State with 100 or 150 bolts per month, but the makers must be encouraged, or they will enter into fresh contracts with Bristol. "	Capt. Robt. Robinson, the Preston , Humber .	Adm. Com.	After waiting 16 days, has got some of his provisions on board; will be forced to take half his bread at Harwich. Will take the first wind to get to sea.	180
"	Capt. Chas. Thorowgood, State's Yard , Portsmouth .	"	Has supplied the Beaver with a new mainmast and made good her rigging, and when order comes for her revictualing, will give her all dispatch. The gates of the dry dock will be placed in a few days; hopes it will soon be ready to entertain one ship.	181

"	Phineas Pett, Chatham .	Navy Com ^{rs}	Has not entered supernumeraries mentioned on board the Marston Moor , as the muster books sent will show that 188 men were mustered and 29 picked, which make 217, being under the number. It is very rare that any ship completes her number at Chatham. Will be careful for the future, but has nothing from the office to guide him. The Entrance is at her moorings, and the Triumph on board the Resolution , whose books he has despatched to the Treasury Office.	184
"	Capt. Jno. Woelsters, Nonsuch , Portland Road .	Adm. Com.	Is still detained by the wind, and when it did present, the vessels he was to convoy were in Weymouth harbour, and are still there, whereas if they had been in the Road, it would have ended the business, and he might have delivered the money and provisions for Jersey, gone to St. Malo for the ships bound for England, and been where he now is. Considering the time of the year, and the winds, it would be best to go to St. Malo for the vessels there, prosecute the first part of his order, and send Capt. Ladge of the Lark as convoy to the two vessels bound for Morlaix; can meet him at St. Malo.	• 185

1657. Nov. 30	Capt. Thos. Wright, Fame, Harwich Water.	Adm. Com.	Has tallowed, is taking in gums and provisions, and will hasten to his former station. Desires order about his boatswain, who neglected his duty at Tynemouth for 11 days, and for 8 at Harwich, and if it had not been for his own trouble, this would have hindered the dispatch. As he cannot obtain payment of his last quarter's account, and is forced to pay ready money to several men, has taken up 300 l. , and desires his bill at 8 days may be paid, as it will save 12 s. 6 d. postage per 100 l. His account this quarter is 452 l. 2 s. 3 d. , and on the last is due 1818 l. 5 s. 9 d. , which makes moneyless men at Dover. "	Major Wm. Burton, Yarmouth.	"	Will send the hemp to Woolwich when he has a shipload, but as it is brought from several parts in carts and boats, and often gets wet, unless it was dried it would all be lost. If it were made into cordage at Yarmouth, the ropers would dry and work it up immediately on its arrival, and deliver in as much cordage as they received in hemp, 2 s. per cwt. cheaper than any others, which would avoid all risk and be an advantage. Being much pressed for money, and having expended his own in fitting out 2 ships for the Straits, desires they will send him some to Lynn, as also an order to the Commissioners of Customs and Excise to supply him on his order for what he may require.	15

"	Capt. Geo. Pley, Weymouth .	"	Thanks for their order to the Treasurer to pay him 130 l. on account of sailcloth; presumes that 2 other bills for 30 l. and 50 l. have been met. In asking that when he wanted money to satisfy disbursements, he might take it up upon bills of the collector of customs at Weymouth or Lyme, did not desire it as an advance, but only to reimburse himself; will never draw a bill on the Commissioners until he has disbursed the amount. The promise that on the delivery of every 100 l. worth of sailcloth he shall receive payment for what is due will no way answer his disbursements, as he is ordered not to send up any unless a convoy presents, and has consequently 300 l. worth ready, and much more may be brought in before any opportunity presents of sending it away. Begs encouragement for carrying on the manufacture by the timely payment of his bills. Deals with poor tradesmen, whom he pays on delivery of the goods, as they cannot wait for it a day. There has been a great wreck on the Goodwin Sands, and a hoy lost in the Downs. Received their order through Major Burton for a convoy for several ships of Yarmouth bound for Bordeaux, and has sent the Expedition, who will also call at Plymouth and Falmouth for any others, and bring back any that may be ready within 24 hours. They must be made of oak, 11 feet long and 5½ inches square at the great end, and 3½ at the lesser, but they may be sawn out of the worst, sappy, knotty, and refuse timber about the yard. The Sparrow pink has returned from Holland with a fleet belonging to Boston and Hull, and as the latter are very rich, has sent him with them to the Humber, and then to go for Deptford, touching at Harwich to take in 4 brass guns. Is buying hemp as ordered, but cannot tell what to do for want of money, as all in the country is bought for cash. Knowing they cannot get one quarter enough English hemp to serve their turn, if they will have any Holland cordage, they may have it cheaper than last year, as it has fallen 4s. a cwt. Capt. Cirtle has not brought the Vulture's cables and anchors from the Hague, the men sent to clear them not having returned when he sailed, but will have them by the next ship that goes, as his friend there will advance the necessary money.	35

1657. Dec. 7	Rowland Claus, Lis- bon.	—	Deposition that he is a Swede, and sailed from London in the Prince William for Teneriffe, under Jno. Pyne master, who went on shore there, and the ship being forced out to sea by a storm and not returning, but continuing her course northwards with her lading, the company asked Rowlf Corten, the master's mate, the reason; he said he intended for Lisbon, and on their refusing to go, he threatened them, and as they were ignorant of navigation they were compelled to submit. Corten broke open the master's chest, drank his liquors, wore his clothes, embezzled some of the merchants' goods, and said if he could only get to Cadiz, the owners would never have their goods again, but he would share them between themselves. They were chased and taken by Capt. Willoughby Hannam of the Kent frigate, and brought into Lisbon. With inventory of the goods, hoists, guns, rigging, &c., on board the ship. Is still waiting for a wind to convoy the 3 victuallers for Jamaica	Vol. 175. 37, 38

"	Capt. Edw. Thom- son, Plymouth.	Adm. Com.	Has come in by order of Sir Rich. Stayner with 3 vessels bound for Bordeaux, and one for Nantes, that go under his convoy. Has not received the 2 cables that he wrote for when he came from Martike, and cannot obtain any at Plymouth.	41
"	Jno. Banks, London	"	Asks for a supply of money which will be an encouragement to give further credit. Has had worse payment than his neighbours, for whereas he had 3 hills due last August, to the value of 3,400 l. , has only had 1,000 l. , and that 3 weeks after some in London had had their full money. Now has another bill for 2,400 l. , of 2 months' date; hopes they will order him to receive the full of his former bills.	42
"	Capt. Robt. Blake, Newbury, Isle of Wight.	"	Has been plying on his station between the Isle of Wight and Cape de Hogne, with the Essex and Maidstone; when off Dover, met one of De Ruyter's fleet come from the Groyne, and bound home, who put in there one of his prizes which he had taken from the Portuguese, she having sprung a leak; he shifted her sugar into his own ship, and then sold the prize. At his coming there, 9 Englishmen that were taken by a Dunkinker and brought in thither desiring a passage, he shipped them, and they are now on board the Newbury. They saw no soldiers at the Groyne, nor heard of any coming there to be shipped for any place, and there were only 2 men-of-war fitting upon the Spaniards' account, which were reported to be for St. Loeur. The Dutch man-of-war had nothing on board but sugar, which he had taken out of his prize, and none but his own company on board. As the Essex wants water and ballast, has sent her to Spithead. Hopes the easterly winds will be no prejudice to their design.	43

"	"	"	Hopes the Lord's dealings with his child may be sanctified to his and his wife's good. Understands that the Expedition and Elizabeth are added to this squadron; the former is fitter to ride between Queenborough and Chatham than to tumble in the western seas. Will make the best use of her, and dispose of the frigates to the westward, where they may meet the enemy, and do service on them; if they come with such a number of men, they cannot have less than 16 ships, and it will be needful to be in such a posture as may signify something. Giving notice to the frigates scattered in several stations to look out for them will be of little advantage if they should meet with them; believes they will endeavour to keep as near the French shore as they can, and so come by Ushant, when our ships will be in the Soundings, and far from them. Thinks the Spaniard will hire 10 or 12 great Dutch ships, who, with a Dutch convoy or two, may come as if they came from Rochelle or Bordeaux, and so deceive us; it will therefore be necessary to search as many of the Dutch ships as may be suspected, without giving offence. Thanks for his advice about the East India Company. Asks what should be done in case the Spaniard should hire Dutch ships to transport their men.	47
"	"	"	Will so dispose the ships that they may meet the squadron at Plymouth; they may probably meet those with the soldiers from St. Sebastians. Arrival, departure, and refitting of ships.	48
"	Martin Noel, London	Adm. Com.	John du Pont, a native of Canterbury, in going from Dover in an English vessel for Flushing, was taken by an Ostender, and kept prisoner for some months. The Admiralty at Dunkirk having lately given him his liberty, on condition that he will obtain the release of Eras. Renier, a seaman of Dunkirk, and a prisoner at Plymouth, or deliver himself up again, desires they will order Renier's release.	49
"	Capt. John Taylor, Chatham.	"	The Plymouth has come into the Downs; it is usual for the commanders to say that if sent to the right father for repair, more care will be taken to heal their infirmities; hears of some old rags on her lower parts, as also a broken head, and other wounds from shot, but hears well of her quality; can help her at small cost, if they will send her to Chatham.	50
"	Capt. Robt. Grasingham, Harwich.	"	The boatswain of the Fame having returned to his duties, and expressed regret for his 8 days' absence, the commander has entertained him again. Has received order from the Protector to provide a ship to transport part of a regiment under Col. Salmon, and victuals for the voyage. Has set the brewer and baker to work, and hopes to be ready to ship them off by the 16th instant.	51
"	Capt. Thos. "	Gen. Geo. Monk, Dalkeith.	Adm. Com.	Has taken an account of the ordnance and other stores in the custody of Messrs. Wilson and Greene, and sends particulars. Has put what was not wanted on board the Weymouth pink to bring home, and as she will hardly endure the boisterous northern seas, will leave them to dispose of her until the spring, and make shift with the Advice and Norwich upon the coasts this winter.	58
"	Comr. Peter Pett, Chatham.	[Adm. Com.]	Received their order to deliver such books to Mr. Kendall as he needs, and for Mr. Colepott to remove out of his house that Kendall may apply himself to his service. Finding the boatswain of the yard very willing to submit to their commands, yet ambitious of being near his business, that he may comfortably discharge his duty, desired the master shipwright and others to look for some convenient place within or without the yard, that might make some small convenience at a little charge, knowing how necessary it is that such officers should be near their duty, and encloses their certificate.	59

He has a brother, Roger, a poor man, who also lives in the parish; the father and mother are both dead, and it will be an act of charity to help him to any money due to his deceased brother.	60
"	Capt. Fras. Allen, Advice, Yarmouth Roads.	Adm. Com.	Sailed from Leith on the 6th instant, with a fleet of convoys for Yarmouth Roads, and arrived there the 10th. Having been off the ground 7 months, and the frigate being very foul, asks an order to clean and to obtain cables and stores, having to return to Leith. "	Has not yet received any reply to his letters to the Navy Commissioners, for money to pay for the hemp or as to drawing on the Collectors of Customs and Excise at Lynn for it, and cannot proceed without. The Vulture has arrived from the Maas with the anchor and cables she lost, which cost 90 guilders to recover. Capt. Sanders of the Tiger has also come in; falling in with the Vulture at sea, and finding 4 French gentlemen with their 6 servants on board, he brought them on shore, and examined them, when it appeared they had only come over to see his Highness and the country; but there was another man who came out of Flanders, and as it is feared he is a sharking knave, he is kept. Capt. Sanders is going back to his station, the Vulture to Harwich for victuals, and the Convert to Mardike with some vessels laden with provisions and coals.	115
"	Capt. Wm. Fickering, Hull .	"	Has had his frigate on shore and off again, and taken in most of his 3 months' provisions, and has been ill. "	Jno. Tippetts, Portsmouth.	[Adm. Com.]	Sends an estimate of the works to be performed. Has treated with the carpenters, and finds the removal of the houses will cost 120 l. , and the completing of the crane, 40 l. ; asks whether it is to be performed by contract or otherwise. The works of the dry dock go on well considering the season, and it may be ready to receive some ship by February. When at London, proposed the laying of the ways upon the ground, to save the charge of a floor of 6-inch plank, the ground being so good, but will not do it without their order. Noted that half the dock next the gates is to be floored before the ways are laid, by reason that the greatest weight will be there, but that there will be no such need at the other part, as the ground proves so good, and that the crane be built, but nothing further.	125

Morris that when off Scilly, he prevented some ships from the East Indies going on the rocks in a fog, and that they reported there were 2 more whose company they had lost. 4 great ships of London with wine have come into Plymouth, so that Capt. Plumleigh is like to have a considerable convoy.	132
"	Jno. Morris, Gravesend.	Adm. Com.	Capt. Coleman of the Elizabeth, ordered by Sir R. Stayner to ply in the mouth of the river 20 days, now over, wants orders. List of 4 ships in the Splinter and 7 at Dunkirk.	133

If the Commissioners will order his release, and authorize Mr. Light to perfect the exchange by receiving and returning the money, it will be punctually performed, and will be a seasonable relief to Capt. Beare, who is worthy and fit.	138
"	Thos. White, Dover.	"	The John ketch having arrived with a packet from Major-Gen. Morgan at Mardike, will put on board as much of the 30 or 40 loads of straw ordered by his Highness for the soldiers to lie upon as he can take, and also write the Major-General to send him back for the remainder; as the vessel he was about to hire wants 8 l. a load for freight, hopes the John will save this, and make 3 voyages a week.	139

1657. Dec. 23	Geo. Spilshay	- Adm. Com.	Petition for re-employment as a boatswain, having served the State at sea for several years, and lately in the Falmouth, now laid up at Portsmouth. With certificates by Captains Jos. Saunders, Thos. Bunn, Fras. Kirby, Chas. Thoroughgood, and others.	Vol. 175. 140-143
"	Adm. Com.	- Navy Com ^{rs}	They are not to go on with the repair of the Sparrow pink, but to pay her off, and to order the repair of the 16 ships mentioned in their list, those of the 3rd rate to be dispatched before those of the second.	144
"	"	- Navy Com ^{rs} and Treasurer.	Order to pay the wages of the officers and company of the Sparrow pink at Deptford	145
"	"	"	Order to pay the wages of the officers and company of the Signet at Deptford	146
"	Capt. Wm. Barker, the Lizard .	Adm. Com.	Plied on his station until the 15th instant, when he put into harbour through the high winds. Met several vessels, and sent his boat to Lundy and St. Ives, but could not hear of any of the enemy's men-of-war. Having received order from Mr. Stracey, the victualler's agent, to convoy a ship laden with provisions for Plymouth, and there being 7 or 8 others, will see them all safe to their several ports, wait on Capt. Hatsell for stores, and then return to his station.	147
"	Comr. Peter Pett, Chatham .	Navy Com ^{rs}	Mr. Ewell, who came from Mardike last Thursday, desperately sick, having died last night, recommends Thos. Tunbridge of Chatham to succeed him, being an able man, and formerly engaged in making both the docks there.	148
"	Jonas Shish, Deptford .	"	Has surveyed the Sparrow pink, and if the works mentioned are performed upon her, which may amount to 118 l. , she can be made serviceable for the State.	149
"	Major Wm. Burton, Yarmouth .	Adm. Com.	The Vulture , having seen a Hull ship into the Humber, is going to Harwich to clean and revictual. The prisoner is still confined, and his examination has been sent up to Mr. Secretary. Perceives they are in a straight for money at present; is in the same condition, but if he had it, would not stick to lay it out to do them service. Is 1,900 l. or 2,000 l. out upon the Mardike business, in victuals, coals, and hay, and cannot get a penny, which will make him give over, as he cannot trade without money. If order was given to the Collectors of Customs and Commissioners for Excise at Lynn to pay him what money they receive, he could buy; if not, others will buy it up. Has drawn a bill for 800 l. upon the Navy Treasurer, by order of the Navy Commissioners, and sent it up. The Convent is bound for Mardike, the Weymouth for London, and the Fame has gone with a fleet for the Maas.	150

1657. Dec. 25	Capt. Hen. Hatsell, Plymouth.	Navy Com ^{rs}	Sends accounts, receipts, and indents for things bought for the stores, as also for refitting frigates and supplying them with necessaries. Has charged a bill for 1,618 l. 7 s. upon the Treasurer at 5 days, and desires it may be paid. Need not tell them how troublesome it is to disburse money and he kept so long out of it; hopes it will not be long before such things are remedied. The Reserve has sailed from the Downs with 30 ships from the Canaries, Bordeaux, and other places under her convoy.	Vol. 175. 151
"	"	Adm. Com.	Believes the account he sent of the engagement with the Biscay man-of-war by the Fagons and Sorings was the truth, and that their officers did their duty, although some merchants may write what they think will take best with their correspondents. Has repaired the mast and other defects of the Fagons , and sent an account to the Navy Commissioners for disbursements at Plymouth, amounting to 1,600 l. Although they are straitened for money, that is no reason why such a burden should lie more upon him than any other that serves them, and hopes they will give order for his money. Capt. Green, who went to St. Sebastian's to buy a ship, which he took and carried in there, did not hear of any soldiers being levied there but for their own defence, and many of them had liberty to go to sea in men-of-war. They have many men-of-war abroad, but most of them lie on the coast of France; while he was there, one of them, of 14 guns, came in very much shattered by shot, and had had 38 or 40 men killed. He was informed that she and another of 18 guns met 5 great English ships. The ship of 18 guns attempted to board one, but was prevented, and one or two merchant ships bearing up to the relief of their consort, they between them sunk the man-of-war of 18 guns, and all his men perished; the other came off with the damage before mentioned. Capt. Plumleigh has sailed with 30 vessels bound eastward, and others have gone to ply upon the coast.	152
"	Capt. Thos. Sparling, Assistance, Dun- irk Road.	"	Is in great want of provisions, and has had to transfer victuals from one ship to another, and if not supplied with the 900 lbs. of cheese, 78 lbs. of butter, and 10 tuns of beer deficient will be at a loss to give the men content, and especially the shallops.	153
"	Jno. Morris, Graves- end.	"	Sent their letter to Capt. Coleman, and directed Capt. Curtes to attend them to-morrow - - -	154
"	Capt. Robt. Wilkin- son, the Weymouth, Yarmouth Roads.	"	Waits a wind to convoy ships bound for London. Having only received one month's provisions in Scotland, they will end on 9 January next.	155
"	Wm. Blydes, Hull.	"	Will clean the Pearl frigate, and supply the ships with what they may want, as he has done since Lieut.-Col. Elton left. Could have furnished one with a new cable at 36 s. per cwt., but wanted their order.	156

1657. Dec. 26	Rich. Kingdon	Adm. Com.	Sends draft instructions for the future management of the accounts of the State's ironworks in Dean Forest, prepared by their order.	Vol. 175. 157
"	Capt. Thos. Fleet, Falcon Downs .	"	Sailed from Lisbon 27 Nov., by order of Adm. Stokes, with the Taunton and others, but lost them by extremity of weather, and was forced into Scilly, where he stayed until the 23rd inst., when he sailed with 2 ships from Lisbon and Malaga belonging to Lynn and Weymouth, and anchored in the Downs the 27th inst. Asks orders.	158
"	Capt. Robt. Vessey, Constant Warwick , Plymouth Sound .	Capt. Hen. Hatsell.	Since coming from Plymouth, has chased and searched several vessels, but found nothing but their own company and merchants' goods, although one heaved many things overboard to sail before the wind, and thus escaped. Will be forced to put into some place shortly to fish his mainmast, as it has a great crack in it.	159
"	Capt. Robt. Willin- son, the Weymouth , Hope .	Adm. Com.	Sends up Christ. Payne with an inventory of anchors, sails, and other stores shipped by order of Gen. Monk, and desires order as to their disposal. There are 20 laden vessels with him, which came from Newcastle, Hull, and Yarmouth.	160, 161
"	Capt. Thos. Wright, Fame , Yarmouth Roads .	"	Arriving in Yarmouth Roads on the 22nd inst., received orders from Major Burton to convoy several vessels there ready for the Maas, and meeting with a gale and hoisting his maintopsail, his main chain plates gave way, and the mainmast and topmast sails all went by the board, and his boat was staved. Made a jurmast of his foretopmast, &c., and has come in for orders where to get a supply.	162
"	Sir Rich. Stayner, the London , Downs .	"	The Taunton and Falcon flyboat have arrived from Lisbon with only 6 days' victuals left, and the former has lost many men, and has many sick. Particulars of other ships. Could not send out the Portland until the business of the captain and master had been heard before a Council of War, when it was found that the company were divided, that the captain and master were very faulty, that it was not safe to keep them both in one ship, and that the captain should be made sensible of his misdeeds and the master dismissed. Some 40 sail richly laden have come in from France, Portugal, the Straits, and the East and West Indies; the latter being in great distress, spared them cables and cordage and some men to carry their ships up, and has sent the captains' receipts for what they had to the Navy Office. Particulars of ships and want of provisions. There being great complaint of the captain of the Convert against his master, will settle the difference before she goes to sea, unless it is as bad as the business of the Portland , which he is forced to make ride on his broadside, for fear of a greater evil, until he has the Commissioners' answer, for as yet neither the captain nor master know anything of the sentence pronounced. Has 3 or 4 men who came in with Lord Montague, and who are fit for boatswains or masters. One of the latter is wanted in the Half Moon .	163

1657. Dec. 27	Sir Rich. Stayner, President, J. Fow- ler, Judge-Advo- cate, the London , Downs .	—	Order in a Council of War on a petition of Jno. Gardner, master of the Portland, against Capt. Hen. Powell, commander, charging him with reviling him, threatening to put him in the bilboes, forbidding him to act as master, striking him, bringing the ship on ground on the Ripraps, selling the kegs anchor to a Flenish ship, recovering a State's anchor from the sea and appropriating it to his own use, and ordering the unstocking and stowing in the hold of the stream anchor, so that when the ship grounded, there was no anchor ready. Also on information of Capt. Hen. Powell against Jno. Gardner, charging him with so working the ship that he drove her on ground upon two occasions, broke her anchor, and much endangered her on the sands south of Yarmouth and between Calais and Gravelines, declined to bear up to the Speaker when commanded, chased a ship without orders, used threats, and endeavoured to draw the men to disobey commands, and to sign his papers against the commander; with the answers of Gardner and Powell thereto, and sundry depositions:—That Capt. Powell is acquitted of endangering the ship, but is much in fault in threatening and striking the master and forbidding him to act, and liable under the 39th article of the Laws of War and Ordinances of the Sea, as also for selling the kegs anchor, and that he should receive a severe admonition; the disposing of the kegs anchor, and the value of the one alleged to have been purchased in lieu of it, as also the disposing of the anchor recovered from the sea, being left to the consideration of the Navy Commissioners; and that Gardner, being guilty of badly working and endangering the ship, disobeying orders in not bearing up to speak with the Speaker, and giving chase to a ship without acquainting his commander, is liable under the 29th and 39th articles of the Laws of War, and is worthy to be dismissed from his charge as master in the Portland. With the several papers alluded to. Has been to Jersey with some vessels with passengers and things for the garrison, and also conveyed others for Morlaix, but did not bring any back, as Capt. Plumleigh had gone before with them. Is nearly out of provisions, and will cruise about until he receives a reply or order. Came from Seinehead with a Plymouth vessel, partly belonging to Comr. Hatsell, and met Capt. Plumleigh of the Reserve, with vessels from Bordeaux and Morlaix bound for London, but they were forced by the wind into the Wight. Having only a month's provisions, and having been off the ground 4 months, desires orders. The Fame having arrived from the Maas and lost her mainmast, has sent her to Harwich to wait orders. The North Sea fishers will be ready to sail 1st Feb., having lost their last year's work through going too late; as they desire a convoy, and it will not be ready until 1st March, they intend to go and wait in their fishing grounds until it comes. Will ship the hemp at Lynn for Woolwich, but wants money to pay for it, and if they do not help him, knows not what to do, as his stock has run out to Mardike, and he cannot get payment of bills drawn from thence.	Vol. 175. 164-170

1657. Dec. 29	Sir Rich. Stayner, the London, Downs.	Adm. Com.	Arrival, victualing, and resailing of ships. Having reconciled the difference between the captain and master of the Convert , has sent her with the Colchester to lie off Ostend for 8 days, but dares not send out the Portland until further order about the captain and master, both of whom are much to blame. The Court of War rendered the master not fit for his place, and ordered the captain only a strict reproof, but there was little difference in their faults; the business is, however, referred to the Admiralty Commissioners. Capt. Motham chased a small frigate of 8 or 10 guns on shore on the sands at Margate; supposes she is cast away, as the Eaglet ketch took up a boat of Flanders build with 3 muskets and a Holland cheese in her, so that she was either a man-of-war or the boat belonged to one; hopes it was the Parrot from Flushing. There is a small sloop or two amongst the sands between Orfordness and the Foreland , but has not a small vessel to ply out after them. Two laden ships have come through the Downs from the Canaries and Madeira , bound up the river. Has sent for Capt. Horne, who will come up in the Hawk ketch.	Vol. 175. 184
"	"	"	Has ordered the Taunton and Falcon flyboat to Woolwich, and the captain and master of the Portland to London. Sent Lieut. Cuttle and a master on board the frigate, with some commanders, who called the company together and gave them notice that Lieut. Cuttle was their commander for the present. The men are better satisfied with these than with the captain and master who are gone. The fishermen of Sandwich, Margate, Ramsgate, and Bradsto, being 20 sail, desire convoy to the North Seas, and will be ready to sail in a month. It is reported that 2,000 of the enemies' horse came by Maritke and fetched relief to Gravelines last Sunday from Dunkirk , at whose return the English horse at Mardike took some prisoners in the rear, and behaved very well with the party of horse they had.	185

Hearing that the Admiralty Commissioners have ordered 160 l. more into the treasurer's hands for carrying on the manufacture of the sailcloth, has given a bill on them for 100 l. , and hopes it will be paid.	187
"	Capt. Chas. Thorow- good, Dockyard, Portland.	"	The Elias has arrived at Spithead to take in 3 months' victuals, by order of Sir Rich. Stayner, and the Dragon to refit and victual.	188

1657-8. Jan. 1	Charles Chubb, Dunkirk .	Andrew Willing, Plymouth .	Coming home from Portugal with a lading of figs, when off Plymouth, was taken by an Ostend man-of-war, who ran his ship aground, took the goods out of her, and then burnt her, and carried him to Dunkirk, where he is now confined in prison, and in a miserable condition. Having sent a note from the Admiralty Commissioners at Dunkirk, offering to release him in exchange for Paul Andema, a Spanish prisoner at Plymouth, desires he will see the Navy Commissioners and obtain an order for the release of Andema, on whose return to Dunkirk he will be set at liberty, but not before; also to send him 30s. or 30s. to buy clothes and food. She has no doubt been into some port since to refit, and might have then been recruited with whatever she wanted, without exposing her to so much danger; she had a spare hawser, which might have served for shrouds.	8

1657-8. Jan. 2	Jno. Tippetts, Portsmouth .	Col. Jno. Clerke.	Has been to West Beare Forest with others better acquainted with it, and finds there are two parts belonging to the State, the East and West Walks, and the Purlews are the interest of private gentlemen. In the West Walk there are the New and Old Coppes, the former contains 60 acres, but wasted, the little left on it being of 30 years' growth, and valued at 90 l . The new copse of 45 acres has some of 25 years' growth, valued at 200 l ., but much spoil has been and still is made there daily, as no man has had charge of them for 12 or 14 years. Besides the waste made by the country, they decay through age, and it is judged that if they stand another year, they will not yield so much by 30 l . as now. There are some few oaks and ashes in these coppes which are not valued with the wood. In the West Walk are hundreds of trees decayed and only fit for wood, which may now be worth 600 l . or 700 l ., besides 100 timber trees of oak, and 30 ash fit for the use of the navy, but these are also decreasing, and will every year be worse. Advises to sell and convert the timber trees for the use of the navy, and dispose of the rest for the best price that can be obtained.	Vol. 187. 9
"	Anth. Wells, Hull -	Adm. Com.	Is requested by Capt. Pickering, who is still very ill, to thank them for giving him liberty to remain on shore until better, and to inform them that his frigate, having been cleaned and victualled, has returned to her station, under command of the master. Having supplied her with 7 weeks' victuals, desires an order accordingly. There are several Hull ships ready to sail for London.	10
"	Capt. J. Grymes- ditch, Princess Maria, Harwich Water .	"	Received their order to the victualler, and will send his purser to Ipswich for the provisions; as his convoys want both victuals and men, fears he will be detained some time, but will hasten them.	11
"	Capt. Thos. Bowry, the Roe ketch , Yarmouth Roads .	[Adm. Com.]	Has come in with 4 vessels from Lynn, and 4 from Boston; his ketch being foul, and having only 14 days' victuals left, desires orders. His gunner has been absent a month, having at first obtained leave to go on shore sick.	12
"	Major Wm. Burton, Yarmouth .	"	Sends a letter from Capt. Wright of the Fame in Yarmouth Roads, of 27 Dec. that his chain plates having given way, his masts, sails, and rigging having gone, and his boat being staved, he has been forced to come in to repair. Will examine into the cause of the loss. The fishing boats will be ready to sail 1 Feb.	13, 14
"	Capt. Thos. Wright, Fame, Harwich .	"	The damage done to his frigate was not through any wilfulness of his company, but through the iron work giving way, and the breaking of the chain plates. It is true it did not blow hard when the masts went, but it did so in the night, and there was a great sea, which caused her to labour hard. Knows nothing of the petition sent, and cannot find that any warrant officer had anything to do with it, but it was done in the gun-room after the disaster. Hopes they will harbour no ill thoughts of him or his officers, and send him a copy of the petition, when he may discern the cause of such folly. Will hasten to his station as soon as refitted and victualled.	15

"	Capt. Robt. Wilkin- son, the Weymouth , Deptford.	"	Is about to haul on shore to tallow, and as he will be ready for his victuals, and the victualler has no order, has sent up his purser for it.	30
"	Capt. J. Grymes- ditch, Princess Maria , Harwich Water.	"	Sends a certificate from Abra. North , that he took charge of the Princess Maria the 3rd ult. as pilot, and proceeded on her voyage towards Sweden , but meeting with contrary winds, and not being able to keep the sea, was forced to return to Harwich ; and that as the Elbe and all other harbours belonging to the King of Sweden are now so much frozen, he dares not take further charge, and desires to be dismissed. Has since waited for a wind to proceed on the voyage, but as all pretending any knowledge of that country affirmed it would be impossible to land the soldiers either at the Elbe , Lister Deeps , or any other port in Sweden , until the end of March , the rivers being frozen up at 4 or 5 leagues distance, the soldiers have been put on shore, but their commanders have not agreed as to victualling them until they hear from Lord Gen. Fleetwood .	31, 32
"	Capt. Robt. Robin- son, the Preston , Humber.	"	Has been cruising on his station off Flamborough Head , but cannot hear of any of the enemy's men-of-war, nor have any been seen since the Mary prize was taken. As there are no ships at Newcastle , it being the worst time of the year, intends to go to Yarmouth for a spare topmast, and some fresh water, having several of his men sick.	33
"	Adm. Com.	Navy Comrs	Order to make out a bill to Robert Sewell , in-storekeeper at Chatham , for 15 l. for his care in discharging the duties of out-storekeeper there for 6 months ending 31 Dec. last.	34

Firmass , of Boston , New England , and 5 bills of exchange annexed, drawn by him on the Admiralty Commissioners , for timber, spars, tar, &c., purchased and shipped in the Golden Falcon in New England , for the forces in Jamaica , by order of Lieut.-Gen. Brayne , Adm. Wm. Goodson , and Governor Stoakes , and to make out bills for payment of what is due.	35, 36

1657-8. Jan. 7	Capt. Robt. Colman, Harwich.	Adm. Com.	Has been cruising between Orfordness and Yarmouth Roads, but having spent his mast and split his sails through the foul weather, was forced into Harwich for a supply; will hasten back to his station.	Vol. 187. 37
"	Sir Rich. Stayner -	"	Will transfer the provisions from the Portland to the Convert, and send them to Capt. Sparling; the Convert is very fit for that squadron, as she rides well, and draws little water. The Foresight has arrived, and as she has only 13 days' victuals, will send for some to Dover, where there is now a good supply. The vessels there are all ready to sail the first wind; Mr. White has taken great care therein, but their commanders are very careless, especially that of the Bramble, and Capt. Street, who are the worst that go there. The Indianen and other ships with them bound to Guinea have sailed. Will send, as ordered by his Highness, to Mardike, for the 5 companies of soldiers who last went over.	38
"	Capt. Anth. Rively, Yulture, Harwich.	"	Having cleaned and victualled for 10 weeks, will hasten to Yarmouth Roads, and ply between the Maas of Holland and Yarmouth.	39
"	Capt. Thos. Wright, Fame, Harwich Water.	"	The damage done to the Fame was caused by a great sea, the variability of the winds, and the slightness of the weather chain plates, which all broke save one, and that broke the shroud. Had just then set the topsail, and hoisting it, the mast went by the board; was forced to cut the gear that held it to save the frigate from further damage. Has now got in his mainmast, and after taking in another months' provisions, will hasten to his station.	40
"	Rich. Browne, Pembroke.	"	Sheriff White has sent away the cup to find its value, and Jas. Phillips is bringing up the examinations. Cannot learn what has become of the jewels. Supplies of ships.	41
"	Phineas Pett, Robt. Sewell, Chatham.	Navy Com ^{rs}	Are preparing an account of the charge of the naval affairs from 1 Oct. 1656 to 1 Feb. next, but find it so intricate they doubt if they will be able to send it next Monday as ordered.	42

"	Capt. Geo. Pley, Weymouth.	Navy Com ^{rs}	Has often advised them that he agreed to give the sailmakers 18 l. per yard cash for the best sort of sailcloth, the charge of packing, loading, carriage, and risk to be borne by the State, and that as he acted on commission, and not by contract, and the commission was so small, he could not be at the risk of sending it up to the stores. Has now 200 packs ready to send, either to Portsmouth or Deptford, and the charge and risk must be theirs. If these terms are not approved of, desires order to desist, for as things now stand, he has little encouragement to proceed. No man will accept his bills, payment having been so long delayed, and when money has been ordered, none has been paid; has only received 80 l. out of the 290 l. last ordered, and for the last 6 weeks, has not had a penny. Desires, if he is to keep up the manufacture, that better order may be taken; his disbursements are constant, and he never draws before he is in disburse.	45

" 10	Capt. Thos. Lardge, Lark, Weymouth Road.	Adm. Com.	Has received his provisions, also 2 iron demi-cannon from Thos. Newberry, Deputy Ordnance storekeeper at Portsmouth, to transport to Jersey, and an order from Capt. Chas. Thoroughgood, master of Attendance, to bring 2 brass ones back. Hopes they are not displeased by his not omitting the performance of the order in behalf of Major Harding.	47
" "	Sir Rich. Stayner, the London, Downs.	"	Has not sent up the Portland or the Convert and Half Moon at Mardike, owing to the bad weather, but will do so the first opportunity; the small frigates are yet detained in Dover Pier. Is getting very short of provisions, most of the ships not having above 8 days' left, except the Speaker; will be forced to take some out of her when the weather will allow.	48
" "	Capt. Wm. Whitehorn, Deal.	Navy Com ^{rs}	Went on shore on the 5th inst. with Sir Rich. Stayner and Capt. Ames, and with the aid of 2 carpenters, surveyed the boats, and found that 5 may be made serviceable, and 7 not; those cast not being worth above 7 l. , it would be best to order Mr. Culmer to sell them by inch of candle. The wind having come up at N.E. and E.N.E., they have been forced ever since to stay on shore, to their great trouble, but all the ships have hitherto rode it out very well.	49

" "	Capt. Geo. Pley, Weymouth.	"	Reiterates his entreaties for money. Will dispatch the 20 bales of sailcloth to Deptford or Portsmouth by the first frigate that arrives, but is now resolved to give over, as it is not worth his commission and trouble to be in constant weekly disburse with his own money, and reimbursed with so much trouble and long waiting. Besides all that, if he waited, knows not how to returnish, as no man at Weymouth will accept his bills.	53
" "	Sir Rich. Stayner, the London, Downs.	Adm. Com.	Has sent up the Portland to Woolwich, under his lieutenant and a man whom he has appointed as master, and recommends them for employment.	54
" "	" "	"	The weather having changed, the Half Moon and Convert have sailed for Mardike and the Portland for Woolwich. Has taken provisions out of the Portland and Speaker, and sent to Dover for a supply for 350 men for 14 days, but is still in great want, and knows not what to do, as the ships rely on him for a supply; the weather being various, he is in the greater straight. Encloses an account for provisions on board the ships. Movements of ships.	55
" "	Jonas Shish, Deptford.	Navy Com ^{rs}	Asks an order to enter 15 more shipwrights to hasten the work, the mast-makers having taken 15 off to make masts for the ships at Woolwich; has only 37 left to fit 4 ships for sea.	55A

After that, had to wait for his beer, provisions, and a wind, and returned to Dunkirk on the 2nd inst., so that they may judge if there has been any neglect.	67

1657-8. Jan. 25	Capt. Thos. Wright, Fame, Yarmouth Roads.	Adm. Com.	Received their orders, and one from Mr. Burton, to convoy several vessels to Harwich, which he has performed, and is now going to cruise on his station for 4 or 5 days.	Vol. 187. 127
"	Mary, wife of Geo. Pitman, boatswain of the Tredagh .	"	Petition for the signing and paying of a written ticket sent to her by her husband on account of his wages, which the Navy Commissioners refuse to sign as not being printed. With order to the Navy Commissioners to examine the matter, and grant her a ticket for 12 months' pay on account of her husband's wages, if reasonable.	128
"	Adm. Com.	Navy Com ^{rs}	Order to make out a bill of imprest to Rich. Creed, Deputy-Treasurer of the Fleet, for 75 l. , to be issued by him on orders from the Generals.	129
"	"	Navy Com ^{rs} and Treasurer.	Order to pay the wages due to Jno. Gardiner, late master of the Portland	130
"	Capt. Abra. Allgate, the Oxford, Plymouth .	Robt. Blackborne.	Desires a supply of tickets, so as to relieve the wants of his men, whose complaints are great; his surgeon wants a supply for his chest. Will soon be ready to sail.	131
"	Peter Dulcer, mariner of Jersey .	The Protector.	Petition for payment of the wages of David Williams, late mariner in the Bear, who, before his death at Jamaica, made a will bequeathing all he possessed to him, which will has since been proved, and a reference and order made to the Navy Commissioners to pay the wages due to the deceased to him, but they refused to give him more than one third, alleging that the deceased had a brother; if he has a right to one 3rd, according to law he has a right to the whole. With reference thereon to the Navy Commissioners, to give due satisfaction for the said wages to the petitioner, whose right it is by his executorship, the will being duly proved, or certify the reasons why they detain the same.	132
"	Capt. Jno. Baskett, the Wakefield, Harwich .	Adm. Com.	Got into Harwich after much danger and difficulty, owing to the bad weather, and the sea being so full of snow that he could not make his marks ere he came upon the Sheepwash Sands, and was for one hour in from 15 to 18 feet of water. Is now tallowing the frigate, but will not move until the weather breaks; his provisions have to come from Ipswich, and no boat can come within 2 miles of the place by reason of the ice. If Capt. Thorowgood had had the same respect for their order of 24 Oct. last as Mr. Browne at Harwich had, the frigate might have been in present employment, while now she must continue until the weather alters.	133
"	Elinor, wife of Wm. Coale, surgeon of the Jersey .	"	Petition that the Navy Commissioners may be directed to sign a written ticket sent her by her husband for a portion of his wages, for support of herself and family, which they refuse because it is not printed, and the Treasurer refuses payment, because it is a re-entered ticket. With order to the Navy Commissioners to examine the ticket, and if it appears right, to give order for payment, although it is not printed.	134

Is a Fleming, and a surgeon, and has been kept a prisoner-of-war 10 months, having incurred debts for meat, drink, and lodging, expecting money from Ostend; is now totally frustrated of everything, and likely to perish. "	Capt. Ri. Hodges, Plymouth.	"	Sends an account of the expenditure of the gunners' stores as ordered. A large quantity of the powder was damaged through a leak, and the water getting into the powder room; it was viewed by Capt. Hatsell's kinsman. Is returning to his station.	138
"	Capt. Joseph Larke, Little Britain.	"	In obedience to their order to muster the prisoners in Chelsea College weekly, was there yesterday, and having called over those in health, viewed those that were not, and finding none had died or been discharged since his last muster, deemed it more proper to give this breviate than the trouble of a muster roll.	139
"	Martin Noel, Old Jewry.	"	Renews a former request on behalf of Jno. Du Pont, of Canterbury, an honest man, taken by an Ostend man-of-war, and carried there prisoner; but released on parole, by the Admiralty Commissioners at Dunkirk, on condition that Francis Renier, mariner of Dunkirk and prisoner at Plymouth, is set at liberty.	140

"	Sir Rich. Stayner, the London, Downs.	"	Arrival and departure of ships; a hoy is ready with provisions for the fort at Mardike. The North Sea fishermen of 22 sail will be ready to depart 1 March; they fish alone and not with those of Yarmouth.	142

"	Capt. Chas. Thorowgood, Dockyard, Portsmouth.	"	Repair and sailing of ships. The victualling agent desires an order for 14 days' provisions supplied to the Wakefield; he will not accept any purser's receipts without an order, which is very detrimental to the service, as ships often come to Spithead and have not one day's victuals left, and if not immediately supplied, would have to send to London, and be put to much inconvenience. Desires instructions, as he never supplies unless the captain testifies to the great necessity.	144

1657-8. Jan. 28	Capt. Wm. Barker, the Lizard , Milford Haven .	Adm. Com.	Sailed from Plymouth with Mr. Butler and a vessel of North Yarmouth; saw them safe into Milford, and put on shore there all his old cables, sails, &c., pestering the frigate; would have done this at Plymouth but they would not receive them. His purser has remained behind at Plymouth, and much neglected his duty; as there are only 8 days' necessaries on board, will supply them himself till there be a remedy, either by reproving the purser or discharging him and appointing another.	Vol. 187. 145
"	Capt. Robt. Clay, Sapphire , Queenborough Swale .	"	Sailed from Chatham the 26th, and wanting some of his men who were left behind, anchored near Queenborough for the night, and then sailed for the Dowus ; but the wind changing, has been forced to anchor again.	146

Recommends Mr. Hubbert, late master of the Speaker , for preferment, he having been in divers encounters against the Dutch, and behaved very gallantly. Is informed by the inhabitants of Portsmouth that he is a godly man, and of great resolution and ability, but very modest, so did not use means for his own advancement.	148
"	Sir Rich. Stayner, the London , Dowus .	Adm. Com.	Appointed Capt. Motham of the Foresight to convoy several vessels bound westward to Plymouth, and to deliver orders to Capt. Blake and the commanders of the other frigates cruising in the Channel, to stay out for 8 days longer. Presumes Capt. Sparling has given an account of the Colchester meeting with a frigate from Dunkirk, which was forced to leave her boat, &c., overboard, and put before the wind to escape. Hopes they will be mindful of his coming to London, as his occasions are very great.	149
"	Capt. Fras. Allen, Advice , Hull .	"	Capt. Wilkinson has recovered and returned his anchor and cables. 1657-8. Jan. 29	Capt. Thos. Penrose, the Maidstone , Spithead .	Adm. Com.	Has been plying between Cape de Hogru and the Isle of Wight, with the Tiger and Elizabeth, by order of Sir Rich. Stayner, but has not met with anything worth their knowledge, save a ship in the company of a Dutch fleet off Beachy from the Canaries, which he followed to the Isle of Wight, and found her manned with Dutch and Portuguese, and the goods they pretended belonged to English merchants, but there was only one English merchant in her, who desired a convoy to the Downs, doubting lest the Dutchmen might carry the ship elsewhere, there being a quantity of silver and other rich goods on board; appointed the Tiger to see her to the Downs. Chased a small Ostender for 2 hours, but lost her on the coast of France. On the night of the 26th instant, there being a very thick fog, the Tiger in tacking came foul of the Maidstone, and broke both their heads, and the Maidstone's bowsprit; being both disabled, they have come to Spithead to repair. There was no neglect or wilful mistake in either ship. Has had a survey taken, and they cannot be repaired unless they come into harbour. Has only 3 weeks' victuals, and has been off the ground 5 months.	Vol. 187. 153
"	"	Robt. Blackborne.	Account of the late collision. Is thankful the ships escaped with no more damage, being forced many times to bear sail for life. Has observed the Commissioners' orders prohibiting the signing of any but printed tickets.	154
"	Capt. Chas. Thorow- good, Dockyard .	Adm. Com.	As the Maidstone and Tiger have come to Spithead to repair, and must be brought into dock, desires order to clean and revictual them. The Essex put to sea with a convoy bound for the Downs, but was forced back by the weather.	155
"	Major Jno. Wade, Little Dean .	"	When last with them, the Navy Commissioners moved them to give an order for some money to Mr. Furzer, the State's purveyor in Dean Forest, but if such should now come, cannot pay any of it to him, having an order from the Protector and Council to pay 1,500 l. to Lord Maynard, and other sums to other persons. Furzer is in great distress for money, not having had any for a long time, and the sad condition of his workmen causes them to complain daily for their wages, so that he does not know where to show his face; if an order is not speedily sent, the public work must fall to the ground, and he be cast into prison, or leave the country. He has written the Navy Commissioners several times, but cannot get any answer; as he has been a faithful and careful man, desires some speedy course may be taken to supply him with money, until some may be had out of the profits of the iron work; asks his own discharge on his last account.	156
"	Hen. Osgood, Pearl , Humber .	"	Sailed from Yarmouth Roads with a fleet bound for Bordeaux and Hull; saw them safe, and put into the Humber for the remainder of his provisions, and to find his captain, but he was gone to Scarborough to look for them.	157

1657-8. Jan. 30	Capt. Edw. Nixon, Hull.	Adm. Com.	Went to Scarborough expecting the Pearl would be there, but hearing she was at the Humber, went to Hull, where he met her. Finding she had but 7 days' bread, though plenty of other stores, went to the victualler, who promised to send sufficient new bread for 7 days, so as to carry him to Ipswich to obtain more; will then proceed to his station, calling weekly at Scarborough for orders.	Vol. 187. 158
"	Capt. Peter Motham, Foresight, Cooves Road.	"	While conveying ships westward, and for Plymouth and Falmouth, was forced on the coast of France by a violent storm; but by the aid of Providence, escaped, and has now safely arrived with them at the Isle of Wight.	159
"	Thos. Raine - -	"	Petition for an order for his reappointment as minister of the Assurance, she being about to proceed to sea again. With certificate by Capt. Phil. Holland and 6 others.	160, 161
"	Capt. Rich. Streats, Dover.	"	Has never neglected his duty by staying too long in harbour, and always certified his reasons for going in; the causes of his coming in on the last 3 occasions were to land soldiers from Mardike, to revictual, and to obtain a new mast. Particulars of his proceedings in conveying ships by order of Sir Rich. Stayner, and other services.	162
"	Capt. Edm. Thomson, Expedition.	"	The ship with the brandy which was put on shore was got off, but has again been forced on by the ice in the river, and as she will have to wait for the tides, and a large portion of her lading will have to be taken out to get her on smooth ground, it will be 14 days before she will be ready to resal. Is willing to perform the service ordered, but has only 19 days' provisions; has been on short allowance 10 days, and has 30 men sick, and others falling ill daily. Has hauled his ship off the ground, and all is well concerning her.	163

Feb. 1	Adm. Judges of Ostend.	"	We sent you a list of your prisoners whom we have set at liberty, with those of ours whom we claim in exchange, but as yet not one has arrived. Yet counting on your promise, we send you another list, among whom are merchants and passengers, whom we have counted only as one man, hoping you will do the same as to ours. Pray send those whom we name, for our prisoners complain that their jailers send those whom they think good. Our Flemish captives have taken in Biscay and keep your 10 or 12 shipmasters, to exchange with the prisoners taken by Capt. Adrian Cots at Plymouth, and others. In pity to our prisoners, we will have all these released, if you will release all ours. With lists of 19 English prisoners, and of 6 Flemings at Chelsea College, and 13 at Plymouth.	Vol. 188. 1-3

"	Capt. Chas. Thorowgood, Dockyard , Portsmouth .	"	The frigates would have come in to be refitted but for the wind. Desires order as to revictualling them, and changing their bad provisions; also whether, when any ships come to Spithead and are in need of an immediate supply, he or the victualler may allow a week or two's provisions without waiting an order from London, as the accountant there will not pass any account without a warrant for it.	5

"	Sir Rich. Stayner, the London , Downs .	"	The Princess Maria has been prevented from sailing for Harwich through the bad weather; the Maidstone and Tiger have each broken their head and bowsprit by running on board each other; expects that all the ships cruising in the Channel have been forced leeward by the easterly winds, which have been so violent that he has had enough to do to ride in the Downs, and some have lost their masts and cables. Will send the Newbury and Essex to cruise off Beachy as soon as weather will permit.	8
"	Capt. Chas. Thorowgood, Dockyard , Portsmouth .	Adm. Com.	The Dartmouth has arrived at Spithead, by order of Sir Richard, to refit and victual, but is prevented coming in by the weather, which is blowing so hard that boats cannot pass. "	Capt. Robt. Vessey, Constant Warwick , Plymouth Sound .	"	Asks an order to clean and tallow his frigate, which is so foul that she is of little service but as a convoy; will cruise in the Channel until it arrives.	10

"	Capt. Geo. Pley, Weymouth .	Capt. Hen. Haisell, M.P.	Thanks for his care of his business. Heard that 200 l. was ordered him; hopes the Commissioners will make it 300 l. , to satisfy what he has disbursed, and make good the bill returned; will not then trouble them until he has disbursed a large sum. Was desired by Major Harding, after 20 days from his departure, to procure an order for the Nonsuch or Lark to fetch him back from Jersey; as the Nonsuch is in the Roads, begs she may convoy a ship of his laden with herrings for St. Malo, as far as Cape Frehel, and on returning, touch at Jersey for the Major.	13

1657-8, Feb. 3	----- East Cowes	—	As Capt. Van Zaan is very angry at the arresting of the Portuguese prize by Capts. Penrose of the Maidstone and Sanders of the Tiger off the Isle of Wight, desires he will send to the Admiralty Office for a copy of their warrant; it was never known that any of the State's ships served a particular man's arrest; if Lord Sydenham or Mr. Paine will move the Council, it would be otherwise ordered. What is done must be done speedily, as they threaten to carry the prize into Portsmouth, and Capts. Van Zaan, Sonck, and de Haes, 3 of the States General's ships resolve to oppose it, as a great affront to their Government, and that she should remain at the Isle of Wight.	Vol. 188. 14
"	Adm. Com.	Navy Com ^{rs}	Order to make out a bill to Rich. Gerard, Deputy-Marshal General of the army, for 100 l. towards the maintenance of prisoners in his custody.	15
"	"	"	Order on letters of Capt. Thos. Wright of the Fame off Dunwich of 27 and 30 Jan., asking for the delivery of a portion of his mainmast lost overboard, from Mr. Lestwood, bailiff of Dunwich, who recovered it,—to have it brought to Harwich, and disposed of to the best advantage.	16-18
"	Capt. Matthew Browne, Cornelian, Dover.	Adm. Com.	Chased and boarded what was supposed to be a Flemish vessel making for Dunkirk, but found she was a Dutchman bound for Calais, with English and French passengers. Was prevented regaining his station by a great storm, broke his rudder, and was forced to leave his boat, oars, one of his guns, the men's chests, and all that came to hand, overboard, to right the ship, and being forced from his anchor, made for Dover, where he struck against the pier, and lost his bowsprit and head. All his men are in such a sad condition through the piercing frost, that scarcely any of them are fit for service. Asks whether to discharge them on tickets until the ship is refitted, or continue them.	19
"	Thos. White, Dover	"	The Cornelian has come in to be repaired, having received much damage through the storm. Asks an order for a bill of 200 l. and 1,300 l. , balance due to him on his quarterly accounts, as 8 more ships have come in to be refitted since they were delivered.	20
"	Robt. Grassingham, Harwich.	"	Sends account of the charges for provisions taken up by him for the voyage to Mardike, with the bills of those from whom he received them, except the turner's and drapers', which the cruel weather prevented him from going to Ipswich to obtain. Although the provisions were generally good, there has been some loss in the beer by leakage, and some of the bread and cheese being much eaten by rats, the sooner it is disposed of the better; can dispose of the butter and cheese at a loss of 2 s. in the pound. The provisions from Ipswich have not yet arrived on account of the river being frozen over.	21
"	Capt. Jeremy Cunn- try, Greyhound, Plymouth Sound.	"	Has been plying between the Lizard and Scilly, endeavouring to speak with all vessels he met, which were mostly Hollanders to and from Bordeaux, but did not hear any news of war. Wants some of his guns changed.	22

"	Capt. Robt. Clay, Sappliers, Guis- borough.	Adm. Com.	Has made several attempts to get to the Downs, but has been forced back by the storms, with the loss of two of his cables; after being supplied, will take the first opportunity, and proceed.	24
"	Danl. Furzer, Lid- ney.	"	Sends copies of his letters of 5 Dec. and 19 Jan. last, giving an account of timber shipped from Dean Forest, with particulars of the amounts due for freight, &c., and of abatement to be made in the freight for the State's trow that shipped the goods onto the Friendship, and desires a speedy supply of money, or will not be able to carry on the work. With receipts of the said goods sent on the Friendship to the Tower stores by And. Boul, 3 March, and at Deptford by John Davies and Jonas Shish, 13 March.	25-28

"	Capt. Chas. Thorow- good, Dockyard, Fortsmouth.	"	The provisions complained of by the Maidstone and Tiger were taken in at London, they will make shift to spend them. The Dartmouth has come in after much difficulty through the weather, but there are 2 others unable to do so. Capt. Groves of the Pembroke, being forced from his station, has come to Spithead; as he is short of victuals, will supply him for 14 days.	31
"	Thos. White, Dover	Navy Comrs	Being ordered by Sir Rich. Sturmer to dispatch away the Cornelian with all speed, has hauled her upon the ways; although it is very foul weather, with much frost and snow, has set the new mainmast of the Hart pink, which will soon be ready to sail. Desires order as to refitting the Acadia, and suggests the discharge of 20 of her men upon tickets, and replacing them with 20 more able. Having two sums of 1,550 l. and 1,150 l. due on his last two quarters' accounts, has been twice to London, waited on the Admiralty Commissioners, and sent in two petitions, but was told that no money could be allowed him until the seamen were paid, save a bill of exchange for 300 l. , and there still remains 2,600 l. due to Dover, and 200 l. to the Prize Com-missioners, who were to have been paid out of the 300 l. received, but as that has been expended on the navy account, desires they will ask the Admiralty Commissioners to order payment of the 200 l. to the Prize Office, as also a supply of anchors and cables for the stores.	32
"	Capt. Jno. Bowrey, Reg.	Adm. Com.	Has been forced from his station in Dunkirk Road through the ice, and having lost his anchor, will endeavour to recover it, unless otherwise ordered.	33

1657-8, Feb. 7	Sir Rich. Stayner, the London, Downs .	Adm. Com.	The weather has lately been so had through frost and snow that the like was never known; no ships could go to sea, or well ride in the Downs, 3 being forced to cut their masts by the board, but got safe into Dover Road. The Newbury and 2 others are yet in the Downs; the 3 from the southward want ground tackle, and half their men are sick through the cold and want of clothes. Hears from Flushing that the captains of the Holland men-of-war are to search all English ships bound to Portugal, and what goods they have which are provisions of war are to be good prize to them. Also that there are 12 sails fitting out at Ostend, but for what design is not known.	Vol. 188. 35
"	Adm. Com. - -	Navy Com ^{rs}	Order to make out a bill to Jno. Pitt for 10 l. beyond his pay upon the sea books, for transacting affairs in the Downs for a quarter of a year, by order of the commander-in-chief.	36
"	W. Aekworth, Woolwich .	"	As the stores at Woolwich are so full, cannot receive more than 2 tons of rosin, there being 3 tons still there; a storehouse for laying pitch, tar, and rosin is very much wanted, as they are continually lying in the open yard, and run to waste for want of one.	37
"	Rich. Bradford, the Dartmouth, Ports- mouth .	Adm. Com.	Hopes they will consider the certificate of Gen. Penn, and the recommendation to Col. Salmon formerly sent, and give him employment as lieutenant or purser in one of the ships for Jamaica, having served the State many years, and sustained great loss in the Laurel.	38
"	Joseph Larke, Comr. for Sick and Wounded.	"	Has mustered 190 prisoners in Chelsea College, 29 whereof are sick, but none have died or been discharged, except Barnavall Deos, by their order. The Irishman, Garrat FitzGarrat, still presses to be entertained in the State's service, pretending he has a friend in Chelsea who will engage in 100 l. for his faithful department therein.	39
"	Comr. Peter Pett, Chatham .	Navy Com ^{rs}	Begs favour for a petition from the workmen for their pay, being well acquainted with their great wants, they having neither money nor credit. The Sapphire has gone for the Downs, but has lost her anchor and cable. There has been much ice of late, and the men were forced on board other ships, to the hazard of their lives, across the ice, to get on shore, or they would have had to fast many days, there being no way to relieve them; but the ships all rode safely.	40
"	Capt. Geo. Pley, Weymouth .	"	Drew a bill on them for 100 l. ; it having been returned, drew another, and hopes it will be met, or it will be impossible to carry on the business of the sailcloth. Reiterates entreaties for payment. Has gone through many businesses, but this of the sailcloth has put him to more trouble and disgrace than anything he ever undertook; it being so difficult to procure money from the State when order is given to pay it, wishes to have a constant payment settled, or be taken off the employment. On the return of the Lark, will dispatch 26 bolts of sailcloth for Portsmouth.	41

1657-8. Feb. 8	Capt. Anth. Rively, Vulture, Rye.	Adm. Com.	Conveyed 4 vessels for Seine Head from the Downs, by order of Sir Rich. Stayner, and on returning, had order to go to Dover for 2 new cables; but a storm coming on, broke his best cable, had to let slip his best bower and sheet anchor, and was forced to go to Rye. Rode there 5 days by a small anchor and part of a rotten cable; by firing guns, a pilot boat came out and carried him in, but in a sad condition, many of his men being nearly frozen to death, and those of the Drake, which has also come in, are in like condition. Has sent to Mr. White of Dover to recover his anchors and cables, and send them to Rye.	Vol. 188. 42
"	Sir Rich. Stayner, the London, Downs.	"	Has ordered the Drake and Vulture cables and anchors from Dover, and also the Cornelian, who is forced in with her head and bowsprit broken away; has appointed Mr. White to refit her. Has sent the Assistance, forced in from Dunkirk by the ice, to Chatham, where Capt. Sparling will wait orders; the Bramble, being in a like condition, has gone to Portsmouth. The Cheriton is frozen in the ice between Gravelines and Calais, and the Dragon and Colchester have arrived from Ostend, where they had such bad weather that they were in great danger of being lost. The Princess Maria has gone for Harwich; it will not be possible to send any ships on the coast of Flanders until there has been a very great thaw.	43
"	"	"	The Princess Maria, in sailing from the Downs for Harwich, has run upon the Brakes; fears she is lost, for all her masts are cut by the board; used all the means he possibly could, by boats from the fleet and shore, with 5 commanders of the fleet, to manage the business for preservation of the ship, or of so much as may be saved. The Cheriton having arrived with only one anchor and cable, has furnished her with what could be got in the Downs; she might be supplied with what she wants out of the Colchester, which will have to go to Portsmouth to clean and revictual. The ice is so thick on the other side that it grounds in 8 fathoms of water, so that it is impossible for any ship to go over as yet. With account of boatswain's stores belonging to the Cheriton lost in Dunkirk Road through extremity of weather.	44, 45
"	Capt. Chas. Thorow- good, Dockyard, Portsmouth.	"	Particulars of ships	46
"	Thos. White, Dover	"	Will supply all the frigates that come in with such stores as they may have lost or require. Having come down without money, the people are much dissatisfied, and not willing to do anything without ready money; as there was not a farthing impressed for the last quarter, and 2,600 l. is unpaid, besides 200 l. he had from the Prize Office to carry on the work, desires they will order payment of 1,318 l. to the Dover Post, and the 200 l. belonging to the Prize Office.	47

1657-8. Feb. 8	Edw. Wood	Adm. Com.	Hopes they will order payment of the 2,500 l. due to him on his bill of imprest, or a good part of it, to supply his present necessities; has paid foreign bills of exchange for hemp bought for the State by their appointment 4 months since, which ought to be repaid, and has besides 3,500 l. due on ready money bills for provisions sold to the State, although not all entered with the treasurer, but has not pressed for money. Is content with his neighbours' fare, but having sold them as good a pennyworth as any man, that others should receive the money on bills for goods sold, and he be made to stay for money laid out of purse, appears a very hard measure.	Vol. 188. 49
"	Adm. Com.	Navy Com ^{rs}	Order to state the accounts of Major Nehemiah Bourne for his disbursements in refitting and setting forth several ships at Harwich, and allow him 1½ per cent. for his pains.	50
"	"	"	Order to make out a bill of imprest to Rich. Creed for 20 l. for the contingencies of the fleet, to be issued as the Generals shall order.	51
"	Capt. Fras. Allen, Advice, Hull.	Adm. Com.	Since arriving in the Humber on the 28th ult., has been so much troubled with the ice that he was forced to haul the frigate into the Haven's mouth for security; has since endeavoured to get to the cleaning place, but was prevented by the force of the ice that came down into the mouth of the harbour, and the river being full from side to side, will have to wait. Were forced to leave 2 anchors and 3 cables in the Road, with slip logs to take hold of them again when he hauls off the ground; meantime will get all ready to proceed.	52
"	Capt. Thos. Bowry, Roe ketch, Lynn Deeps.	"	Sends a complaint against his carpenter of neglect of duty, embezzling stores, and deserting the ship at Yarmouth. Has discharged his gunner, being sick, in exchange for the former gunner of the Nonsuch .	53
"	Capt. Rich. Cowes, Paradox, Milford Haven.	"	Wants his frigate caulked, it not having been done for 2 years, and a supply of stores, as granted to the rest of the squadron, or will not be capable of doing such service as he might. Will ply to and from his station, and call at Milford for orders.	54
"	Capt. Wm. Ledgrant, Eliza, Portland Road.	"	Has been to Jersey and Guernsey with Sir Thos. Peyton, Bart., Sir Thos. Armstrong, Major Norwood, Jno. and Wm. Ashburnham, and Robt. Overton, Esquires, and Mr. Weston, and delivered them into safe custody, as ordered by Sir Rich. Stayner, and will proceed to the Downs.	55
"	Sir Rich. Stayner, the London, Downs.	"	The Princess Maria being old and very weak, she soon bulged and filled, and went down. They have saved what stores they could; has ordered his boatswain and Mr. Culmer to take an account thereof; thinks Mr. White of Dover should agree with the savers for their trouble. Has directed the Judge-Advocate to examine the officers as to the cause of her loss, but believes it will all fall upon the pilot, whom he has in custody. Asks whether the trial shall be held in the Downs, or the examinations be sent up. All her men were saved; has advised the captain to send them up. The Colchester has gone for Portsmouth.	56

1657-8. Feb. 10	Sir Rich. Stayner, the London, Downs.	Adm. Com.	Sends examinations of Capt. Jno. Grymesditch, commander, and other officers of the Princess Maria, before a court of War held on board the London, to inquire as to the cause of her loss, as also of the finding of the court, viz, that the stranding and loss of the ship upon the sand near the Small Downs, called the Brake, was the fault of Wm. Knight, pilot of Deal, who took charge of her in the Downs, to carry her to Harwich; that he does not appear to be guilty of wilfully stranding, but was wanting in his duty in not timely animadverting to the slackening of the wind, and the strength of the tide current, and therefore sooner letting go of an anchor, whereby in all probability the ship might have been preserved. All but what was in the hold and the guns are saved, and it is thought impossible to get anything more, but will go himself and see what means may be used for the preservation of all that he can. The Convert has come in with a small Ostender of 8 guns, which she took cruising for the Downs; encloses her captain's commission, and several letters found. Has sent the prize to Dover, and will send up the prisoners' examinations. Hears all is well at Mardike, but as they desired more ships, will send Capt. Haddock and the Cheriton on that service; Capt. Parker and all his officers are sick on shore, and as they cannot be without more ships on the other side, will hasten the Dragon with all the rest of the squadron thither, to remain there until further orders. Before leaving the Downs, will give Capt. Whitehorn all the advice he can towards the management of affairs there, but much of it is not public. Capt. Bevans brought no news, but only his prize.	Vol. 188 57-59
"	Capt. Lamb, Cornelius, Bramble, Portsmouth.	"	Has come in by order of Sir Rich. Stayner to tallow, refit, and victual, and waits orders -	60
"	Jno. Godolphin, C. G. Coek, Adm. Judges, Doctors' Commons.	Navy Com ^{rs}	Having received a reference from his Highness of the petition of Jno. Mathew, late pursuer of the Drake, relating to a demand of 40 l. 16 s. 9 d. , on an account alleged to have been passed by them, asks what exceptions there are to it, so that they may be better qualified to make a report.	61
"	Ordnance Officers -	"	Send an account of contracts entered into with 6 powder makers named, what has been delivered, and what remains to be brought in, as also an account of serviceable and unserviceable powder in the stores. Many master gunners insist upon their demands for port hooks and port ropes from the Ordnance Office, which formerly used to be supplied by the Navy Office; lest they should be supplied from both, desire that either they or the Navy Office shall alone serve them.	62, 63
"	Capt. Rich. Streate, Rye.	Robt. Blackborne for the Adm. Com.	Is ordered by Sir Rich. Stayner to go to Rye, and carry cables and anchors for the Drake and he to convoy her, which being done, will return to the Downs.	64

"	Major Jo. Wade, Little Dean.	"	Hoped they would send his discharge on his last account, and desires they will cause it to be sent. Was ordered to charge a bill of exchange upon Mr. Shewell for 100 l. , for the use of Mr. Furzer, but as it is not a third part of what he owes, hopes they will settle some course for his continual supply, until the revenue there is clear from other payments, and able to afford him money. Furzer can give a good account of his employment; he has prepared great quantities of timber in readiness to build, and to send about by shipping, and has sent away a loading in the Friendship of London, in which there is also 7 tons 13 cwt. of ironwork, specified in the bill of lading enclosed.	66, 67
"	Capt. Wm. White- horn, Speaker, Downs.	"	Has received their instructions to take care of the Downs squadron after the departure of Sir Rich. Stayner, who has fully informed him how all affairs stand there.	68
"	Capt. Jno. Woolkers, Nonsuch, Way- mouth Road.	"	Has been plying on his station, but was forced by the violence of the wind and weather to spend most of the time at anchor with some hazard. The Lark, Capt. Lardge, was put from his anchors in the Jersey Road, and has not since been heard of. Having been off the ground 15 weeks, and only 22 days' provisions left, desires order to take in another mouth's before cleaning, as some are being provided at Weymouth by Capt. Pley.	69
"	Thos. White, Dover	Adm. Com.	This day 20 sail went out, some from London, one with powder, and 3 hoys with deals, timber, &c., for Mardick Fort, convoyed by Captains Peetuck, Lilburne, and Ridore, as also some ketches. The Cornelian has come in to victual and tallow, and wants men, having put several on shore sick.	70
"	Adm. Com.	Navy Com ^{rs}	Order to make out a bill to Capt. Jno. Jeffery for his wages as Captain of the Nantwich -	71

"	"	"	Order to make out a bill to Vice-Adm. Goodson for his pay and entertainment as vice-admiral of the fleet employed in the expedition to America, from 3 July 1654 to the time of paying off the Mathias at 30 s. a day.	73
"	"	"	Like order for his payment at the same rate as vice-admiral of the Channel fleet, from 1 May 1657 till the Dover was paid off.	74
"	Capt. Rich. Hodges, Basing, Kinsale.	Adm. Com.	After leaving Plymouth, was forced into Kinsale, where he has received an order from the Lord-Deputy of Ireland to go to Waterford, receive such munition as the storekeeper there shall put on board, and carry it to Dublin.	75

1657-8. Feb. 12	Christ. Pett, Wm. Badley, Woodwich.	Navy Comrs	Have been put to much trouble, and the State to great charge in the time of the late frost, in preserving not only the State's frigates, but also the Flemish ships at Woolwich. Advise to sell such of the Flemish ships as are unserviceable, and the Falcon and Marigold flyboats, as they are beyond repair.	Vol. 188. 76
"	Capt. Jno. Taylor, Chatham.	"	Repair of the Lion. Wants to lengthen her 5 or 6 feet, and which will not increase the charge above 2000.	77
"	Capt. Sam. Sharland, the Kinsale, Mil- ford.	Adm. Com.	Came from Dublin to tallow and victual, and having order from the Lord-Deputy to return to Ireland, desires order to Mr. Browne to build him a new boat, as his old one has been much shattered in the storms.	78
"	---	—	List of 7 Ostend and 15 Dunkirk prisoners who are ordered to march from Rye, but 3 are unable to walk.	79
"	Capt. Math. Browne, Cornelian, Dover.	Adm. Com.	Has discharged 20 unserviceable men, but as Sir Rich. Stayner has ordered his frigate to be speedily repaired, and as 40 of his men have recovered from their injuries by the frost, has forborne clearing any of them without further order from the commander-in-chief; the frigate will be ready to sail to the Downs next Monday, and there he will not want men.	80
"	Capt. Jno. Tippetts, Portsmouth.	"	Has treated with Mr. Peirson on behalf of Mrs. Brewer, and seen Brewer's bond for making good the contract, which has been broken on both sides. Brewer had no bond on Peirson, yet the latter has promised that in case Mrs. Brewer would undertake by any man but Miles to carry on the work, she should have the benefit of the contract, if any there be, but he was unwilling to admit Miles, by whose miscarriages he conceives himself damaged. Cannot advise the work being again put in his hands, as he has not done anything that deserves commendation, but would be glad to see it better managed than it has been by him. If Mrs. Brewer is willing to leave the work, Peirson promises to allow what in reason she can demand towards her loss. Little has been done of late on the dock work, but Peirson now promises to hasten it. The Providence and Colchester have arrived, and the Ruby is at Spithead; hears they are to be paid off at Portsmouth; hopes they will also be mindful of the yard, and the condition of the poor workmen, who are 3½ quarters behind of their pay, whereby they suffer much. A supply of tallow and tar will soon be wanted; the tallow can be had at Portsmouth at 42s. per cwt.	81
"	Adm. Judges, Dun- kirk.	Pass	For Edw. Stoultzenburgh, English mariner, prisoner at Dunkirk, to be exchanged for Francois Puppineck, prisoner at Portsmouth.	82
"	Capt. Chas. Thorrow- good, Dockyard, Portsmouth.	Adm. Com.	Arrival, and cleaning, and victualling of ships. Capt. Blake, having found the want of a fore-castle this hard weather, wants one built, as also a recruit of 10 men, as his ship is more capable of 110 than the Wakefield of 100.	83

1657-8. Feb. 13	Thos. White, Dover	Adm. Com.	The men belonging to the Cornelian have all recovered save 3, and there are now 30 able men, besides those the captain thinks of discharging, and Sir Rich. Stayner having sent order to fit her out, will do so with speed. Went to Sir Richard at Deal, who appointed Mr. Culmer to join him in going from house to house in Deal to search for things brought on shore from the Princess Maria; he also allowed a sixth for salvage to the men; after he had taken horse for London, went to Capt. Whitehorn for instructions. Will go again on Monday, as also to Margate, Broadstairs, and Ramsgate, as being near, they had most boats on board, and will be careful in valuing the goods to save charges; as he finds some men will have a crown, and some an angel, will carry ready money to pay every man that is under 20s., and give bills to those who exceed it; if he can save by paying ready money, will disburse 100 l. or 200 l.	Vol. 188. 84

"	Saml. Cooper	Adm. Com.	Has mustered 190 prisoners in Chelsea College, 22 whereof are sick, but none have died, escaped, or been discharged since the last muster. Gerrard FitzGarret, an Irishman, promises a discovery of some who are under the notion of being private seamen, but are not; he also desires to serve in one of the State's ships, and a friend who keeps the Bell in Chelsea will enter into a bond of 100 l. for his faithful dealings. The prisoners complain of the badness and smallness of the bread, which is not without cause, as also of the dearthness of their other provisions, their beef being 6 d. per lb., and other things pro rata, and beseech redress.	87
"	Capt. Jno. Poyntz, Providence, Portsmouth.	"	Understands they have ordered the master attendant to proceed with the speedy refitting of his ship, and Mr. Tippetts, the master builder, is attending to it; himself and company will not be wanting in following their commands.	88

1657-8. Feb. 16	Rich. Ford, Lond.	Adm. Com.	Last Sept. supplied canvas, value 83 l. 6 s. 8 d. , for which he received 2 debentures, and for present payment, sold it 1 ½ d. per ell cheaper than his neighbours would, and has never importuned for the money until now, knowing the State's extraordinary occasions. As his necessities pinch, is forced to beg payment of the 2 bills this week, which will oblige him to a cheerful performance of the like or any other service.	Vol. 188. 94
"	Robt. Grassingham, Harnwich.	"	Will observe their order as to selling the provisions he bought for the soldiers' passage to Mardike; has been to the victuallers' agent at Ipswich, to take the bread and beer off his hands, but he was gone to London; if he will not take them, will be in a strait, as neither the brewers nor baker will do so but at much loss; the cheesemonger will take the butter and cheese with some loss. Will give the Elias quick dispatch.	95
"	Capt. Thos. Lardge, Lark, Plymouth.	"	Went from Weymouth to Jersey with Major Harding, but was much delayed in returning, owing to the wind and snow, and forced to anchor on the banks of Guernsey, whence they were driven out to sea and in great peril of their lives, and were constrained to cut the mainmast by the board, and unable to save any of the sails or rigging belonging to it, in regard of the extraordinary quantity of ice that in the storm froze to the ropes; many of his men were disabled, their fingers and toes being almost mortified by the excessive cold, but hopes their speedy recovery. The wind shifting eastwards, they recovered the greater part of their cables, but was forced to cut away a part of one with the anchor, and with what small sail they could, made for Plymouth, in hopes of being supplied with such necessaries as they stand in need of, and then hasten to his station. Gave an account of the iron guns taken in at Portsmouth to carry to Jersey and exchange for 2 brass ones; but there being none there, supposes there was some mistake in the order; having the iron guns still on board, desires order for their disposal.	96
"	Capt. Wm. Ledgrant, Elias, Downs.	"	His boatswain being dead, desires they will appoint another, and has secured the stores until he comes to take charge of them.	97
"	Capt. Thos. Morris, Plymouth.	"	Came into Plymouth Sound the 15th, by order of Capt. Heaton, expecting directions from them, and is ordered by Capt. Hatsell to Carwater to tallow; but the spring tide being so far past, thought it convenient to keep at sea 4 or 5 days longer, so as to take the next spring tide.	98
"	Jno. Russell - -	"	Petition for the boatswain's place in the new ship building at Deptford, having served the State 12 years, 4 years being boatswain of the Mayflower, which was paid off last October, since which he has been waiting for employment; having a wife and many children, is driven to some straits. With certificates by Capts. Peter Bowen, Jno. Sherwin, and others.	99-101

1657-8. Feb. 17	Thos. White, Dover	Adm. Com.	Sir Rich. Stayner appointed Jno. Culmer, of Deal, to join him in finding goods saved from the Princess Maria, and to agree with the men for salvage; has been round the Isle of Thanet, and found some things of little value, the ship's masts being cut overboard, every man took what he could, so cannot say that they have found one whole piece, as it stood in the ship, one boat having caught hold of one end and another boat the other, and each cut what they could carry. Sends an inventory of what was found at Deal, Ramsgate, &c., which, besides the guns, may be worth 800 l. , of which they have allowed the men 4 th for salvage. Paid off the small sums and promised the rest upon receipt of the goods at Dover, and ordered them to carry the guns on board Capt. Whitehorn, when he will pay 4 th of their value. Has shipped all the materials found at Broadstairs and Court Stairs in a ketch for Dover, they being in the hands of near 100 men, and has hired a boat to bring those at Ramsgate to Dover, for their better security, as they lie in so many houses and men's hands. Blake, his ship being more fit than the Newbury ; also Capt. Hopes they will order 400 l. a week to be paid him until the 1,200 l. on the treasurer's note is paid, as he stands obliged for a considerable sum to carry on the service at Plymouth, since that money was disbursed; only desires money that the service may not suffer.	113

Wants 2 cables; some better course should be taken with the victualler at Hull for providing bread according to the proportion of all other victuals; has but 3 weeks', and wants 10 cwt. of bread to complete the proportion, and none to be got at Hull, so that he cannot perform the duty he desires.	114

Has sent to call in the ships from the North Foreland, as also those in the Narrows and at Dover, but there being no mention of those at Dunkirk in his countermands for sailing towards Ostend, has sent an express for Capt. Haddock to remain there; will prosecute their commands with all readiness. There are 5 ships named in the Downs ready to go out; has seen to the victualling of the London, Speaker, and Newcastle, without staying for victuals from Dover. There were none of the prisoners taken by the Convert ordered to be put on shore, save 6 children and an innocent, who were not within the cognizance of prisoners; even the enemy have not taken notice of boys and children, therefore presumed to send them away, rather than put the State to a needless charge to maintain those who were not worth the meat they eat, for they would not be taken upon exchange for others, neither were they entered on board the man-of-war, but went on board unknown to the commander until he came out to sea, so that he was forced to give them victuals. " "	Capt. Joseph Ames, Wimsey, Spithead.	Adm. Com.	Came from the Downs yesterday for Spithead, and received order from the master of attendance to take in two months' provisions; his men refused to work, having 28½ months' pay due, but by fair means and foul together, they hoisted it in; if all other necessaries are on board to-night, will endeavour to return to the Downs. As there is 17s. a-piece due to his men for short allowance of victuals the last voyage, and as many of them are weak and want clothes, the speedy paying of that amount would give great satisfaction.	123
" "	Capt. Jno. Baskett, the Wakefield, Rolling Ground.	Navy Com ^{rs}	Having changed his purse, sends up the book. Has been detained by foul weather, but will proceed to the Downs with the first wind. The last time he victualled was at Harwich, and to his cost, because of the weather.	124
" "	" "	Adm. Com.	Has been plying between the Roads and Harwich, by an order from Sec. Thurloe, brought by Mr. Butler, one of the messengers, who is still on board. Has been prevented by the weather from observing their directions or getting in his provisions, as no boats could come from Ipswich, and was forced to go and indent himself, and to victual on his own account. Will endeavour to get into the Downs with the next tide.	125

"	Capt. Robt. Wilkin- son, the Weymouth pink , South Frith.	Adm. Com.	Sailed from Leith Roads to the Fishing Grounds, and then into Buffin Deepes, but could not find any of the fishermen. Has had very foul weather, and several of his men have been ill with agues and fevers.	127
"	Capt. Wm. White- horn, Speaker , Downs.	"	The Newcastle and 9 other ships named have arrived in the Downs, also several merchantmen from the Straits, West Indies, and Bermuda, and the Hamibal with a packet from Capt. Stoakes for the Admiralty Commissioners, which has been put on shore at Dover, to be forwarded. The Selby has returned from Dunkirk with a complaint, enclosed, from Capt. Hadcock for want of force, and desiring that 2 5th-rate frigates may be sent to his assistance, that he may be in some probability to resist the forces that are said to be coming thither from Ostend. Being ordered not to send any frigates from the Downs without further directions, suggests the sending of the Sapphire and Selby , as the two most fit for that service; will presume to send over the Swallow to attend the Dunkirk squadron as formerly, being very unwilling that the enemy should gain the least advantage.	128
"	Vice-Adm. Wm. Goodson, Deal.	"	According to his Highness's instructions, left London yesterday, and arrived at Deal at 11 last night. There are 10 ships now there, and it is blowing so hard that the boat which brought the packet from Capt. Whitehorn is not yet able to return. Hearing that the Speaker's anchors are too light, and as she is going upon a coast where she may have more need than ordinary, desires they will move the Navy Commissioners to send her one of 32 and another of 34 cwt. Begs an order to the treasurer for payment of his little arrears.	129
"	"	"	Went on board the Speaker yesterday, and ordered a division of the provisions of the ships in the Downs, so as to make upon each ship a proportion for 6 weeks, but the weather has been so bad there has been no opportunity to transport it from one to the other, nor have the provisions yet arrived from the River, or the pilots from Dover; was forced to send there for them, all the ablest of Deal being employed up the River with merchantmen who passed through the Downs. Has sent to Dover for 14 days' more victuals for the London, and to Mr. White for the cables of the Princess Maria . Will sail with the Speaker and 9 others named; Capt. Whitehorn, of the London, should have his former instructions confirmed for the continuance of his command in the Downs. Has written for dispatch of the Truelove at Dover, and will hasten over the Lily and Rose of the Dunkirk squadron, with the Swallow ketch. Has sent up the River for some seamen, whereof there is a want, for supply of the fleet. The London ketch has carried up the prisoners, and also the canvas brought by the Elizabeth from Weymouth for the stores at Deptford.	130

1657-8. Feb. 22	Vice-Adm. Wm. Goodson, Speaker, Downs.	Lords Montague and Desborow, Admiral and Generals of the fleet.	To similar effect. As the Speaker and other ships want men, has sent a ketch up the River, and if he can get pilots shall sail, whether the men and provisions come or not. Sent to Mr. White of Dover for pilots, and encloses his reply, that he had been to the Trinity House and found there were only Mr. Peacock and Ralph Colore, the former of whom promised to go to the Speaker , but Colore would not appear, alleging they have no satisfaction when they have done their work, so that he is very much straitened for pilots; will use what further means he can for attaining them, as the season not only requires them, but also able ones; most of the frigates being foul, it will make it the more dangerous if they should be forced to beat it off the coast with a storm, and to ride there at this time of the year will not be without much danger. 1667-8. Feb. 25	Capt. Phil. Holland, London. 4 a.m.	Adm. Com. "	Capt. Anth. Rively, Vulture, Yarmouth.	"	Having received order from Major Burton to go to Lynn, and convoy back 2 vessels laden with hemp on the State's account, and having only 8 days' provisions, asks where to revictual. Has sent up 4 sea books.	156

"	Jno. Tippetts, Capt. Chas. Thorowgood, Dockyard, Portsmouth.	Adm. Com.	Have again tried to persuade the sailors to go on board the Ruby, and have prevailed with 30, but the rest are still refractory, and unless some course is taken with the leaders, it will be hard to bring them to order. Are employing the small ordinary men, with the labourers and other workmen out of the yard, to rig the ship, which will be ready to sail next Tuesday, and have given orders for entering such seamen as can be got, in case the others continue obstinate. Sent their letter to the captain of Winsby, but have not heard anything of his short allowance money, and do not think the captain of the Providence will stay for any. Sailing of ships.	158
"	Capt. Wm. Whitehorn, the London, Downs.	Navy Com ^{rs}	Sends a demand for cables, anchors, &c., required for the London. Has received a stream anchor and cable from Mr. White of Dover.	159
"	Capt. Fras. Allen, Hull.	Adm. Com.	Has got his ship off the ground, mounted the guns, is taking in his powder and ballast, and will make all haste to be ready for orders to sail, having lost the last spring tide through the force of the ice that came down the River. Had order to take in 3 months' victuals, and as one month of it is spent, asks whether to take in another, or go to sea with the 2 left.	160
"	Major Wm. Burton, Yarmouth.	"	Received their order for Capt. Nutton, but he had gone to his station: the Vulture is gone for the Hope with 12 sail of Hull men and Scotchmen, the former having hemp for the State. Most of the North Sea fishers are at sea, and the rest are in the Roads, waiting for a wind. The other convoy is much wanted, it being reported that there are 15 or 20 frigates ready to come out of Ostend, and as it is feared they will go northward, they may carry away the whole fleet. The great frost has delayed the fitting out of the Iceland fleet, but some have sailed, and the rest will be ready in a few days; will be forced to send the Fame , with the fishers and coal fleet now in the Roads, as far as Tynemouth Bar, but if he meets the Pearl , will deliver them into Capt. Nixon's charge. Hopes they will order payment of his other 400l.	161

1657-8. Feb. 26	Capt. Hen. Hatsell, Plymouth.	Adm. Com.	Although the weather has been exceeding stormy, the Sorlings and Lark have been refitted and victualled. The Gainsborough and Bryer have been forced in by the weather, the former with her sails split and very leaky. Is daily expecting the Great President and Wolf with the convoy from Bordeaux, which it is supposed have been detained by the ice. As the Gainsborough will require refitting and victualling, it would be best to send her to Portsmouth, as his cordage and canvas is spending apace. Hears a Dutch man-of-war overran a Plymouth vessel near the Start, which with her goods was worth 5,000 l. , and that she, with 12 passengers, all perished, the captain and some of her company being carried to Holland. "	Capt. Chas. Thorowgood, Dockyard, Portsmouth.	Adm. Com.	The Ruby is fitted, and will sail on Monday. He and Mr. Tippetts have had something to do to persuade the men; their landladies have been the greatest instruments to hinder them going on board, but the knot is broken through some apprehension of loss of wages and exemplary punishment. The Maidstone, Colchester, and Providence have sailed for the Downs.	165
"	Capt. Robt. Wilkin-son, the Weymouth pink , among the fishermen east of Aberdeen.	"	Spoke with several fishermen at sea on the 24th inst., and found the fleet was much scattered; is now in sight of 8 together. It is impossible for him to preserve them if an enemy come, as they will not keep together; will do his best, and be continually sailing from one to another in the fishing grounds. Has not heard anything of the enemy. Little fish has been taken as yet.	166
"	Capt. Wm. Whitehorn, the London, Downs.	"	They are aware of the sailing of Admiral Goodson from the Downs on the 26th inst., the number of ships he had with him, and how he intended to place them. Will be careful to follow directions during his absence. The Admiral was much troubled about pilots, and was forced to sail at last with one half of the ships unsupplied. As there are now 4 or 5 Deal pilots in the river, who piloted up the merchantmen, desires they may be sent to the Downs with all speed, and he will send them over. His boatswain and some of his men being on shore, a fight took place between the boatswain and Wm. Smith, who had his upper lip torn or bitten off. When victualled at Milford, Smith got on shore pretending sickness, although the surgeon affirmed to the contrary, and as he refused to return, left him behind, and declined to give him a ticket unless it was branded. 1657-S. Mar. 18	Gilbert Cornelius, late Judge-Advocate to the Fleet under Vice-Adm. Wm. Goodson in America .	The Protector.	Petition for an order to the Admiralty Commissioners to grant him some allowance for his services. Was in the first expedition to America as volunteer, as lieutenant of the Portland, then quarter-master of a regiment at Hispaniola, and then judge-advocate 13 months. 1657-8. Mar. 27	Capt. Joseph Ames, Winsby, Downs.	Robt. Blackborne.	Complains of his purser, Christ. Harker, as a lewd, wicked person, and addicted to drunkenness. He was with him in the Holland war, and having carried himself well, recommended him to Major Barton for the steward's place in the Winsby , which was granted; but was deceived in him, and knows not how he became purser. Is sorry he was an instrument to bring such a wicked person into office, but men grow better or worse, and there is no standing still in this world. Has not seen him since 23 Feb. last, when he left him at Portsmouth. Desires a supply of tickets. With note by Wm. Alison and 4 others verifying the charges against Harker.	Vol. 189. 67

"	"	"	Order to make out a bill to Richard Garrard, Deputy Marshal-General to the army, for 200 l. , to be disbursed by him towards the maintenance of prisoners of war in his custody.	8
"	Comr. Peter Pett	Adm. Com.	Mr. Rabinett, master of attendance, being dead, recommends either Mr. Carslake, formerly master of the Naseby, or Capt. Wm. Brookes, recommended by Lord Montague, to succeed him. Has disposed of the 1,000 l. appointed for wounded seamen to a great many poor perishing creatures, but only paid them off to last Christmas, and there are so many left unpaid that he was forced to get out of town by a private way, for fear they would tear him to pieces. Is going for Chatham, where he will have little peace until more money be appointed, there being very many pensioners living thereabouts. If the remainder of the 2,000 l. were ordered, would distribute it as equally, and satisfy the most necessitous.	9
"	Thos. Dingley, Osend.	His Wife, Salisbury St., Redriff.	Asks her to send him money, being ill with an ague and fever, and having been stripped of all he had. The man-of-war that took him has also been taken, with 12 of his men, so hopes release by exchange.	10

"	Major N. Bourne, Deptford.	Adm. Com.	Order to make out a bill to Capt. John Taylor for ———, on the same account. Damaged. There has been no delay of the storekeeper in dispatching the ship, but she has been detained in the river by contrary winds. Hopes they will consider his letter of last week concerning the Harwich debts.	12 13
"	Capt. Geo. Pley, Weymouth.	Navy Com ^{rs}	Advised them on the 5th both as to what sailcloth was ready to be shipped for Deptford, as also his need of a further supply of money to satisfy disbursements and carry on that affair. Has since given a bill on them for 200 l. , which he hopes will be accepted and paid. Has acquainted the Admiralty Commissioners, that it may be ordered to the treasurer.	14
"	Adm. Com.	"	Order that the place of one of the masters of attendance at Chatham Yard, void by the death of Mr. Rabinett, be abolished, as the business relating to the said office, and formerly transacted by two persons, can be carried on by one.	15

"	Com. Peter Pett, Chatham .	[Adm. Com.]	Has had a survey made of all the masts in the stores at Chatham, and as there are only 69 of various sizes, besides some great New England masts, and there may suddenly be a want of them, it would be convenient to deal with Capt. Taylor for the shipload he has; if they are all of Swedish wood, new and sound, and the same number and size as his great masts, he will deserve more for those from 18 hands and upwards than was formerly given.	18

"	Major Robt. Thomson, Capt. Fras. Willoughby, Portsmouth .	Navy Com ^{rs}	Having received directions for paying the Gainsborough, and for Mr. Child to take up money for it, and thinking they might send down clerks needlessly, desire forbearance, as they are now returning.	22

"	J. Pitt, the Speaker , off Ostend .	Navy Com ^{rs}	Understands that some tickets presented to them up, on the account that he has a salary. Is not so much troubled therewith as at being thought an exacter of more than his due, and rather than have any such thing found in him, would part with all he has. But by the order of the Admiralty Commissioners of Jan. or Mar. 1656, his ship's pay is to be allowed besides his salary; if that is not satisfactory, will procure further orders from them.	25
"	Capt. Geo. Pley, Weymouth .	"	Finds that some of the parcels of salicloth formerly sent have not been found answerable to the pattern in goodness; will look to it for the future. When any difference is found, wants to know which sort it is by the mark on the bale, that he may the better find it out. Wants his bill speedily paid. Noted that payment of the bill has been procured, and that Mr. Davis is to certify when there is any difference, as also the mark upon it.	26

"	John Milner	Adm. Com.	Petition for payment of a ticket assigned to him by Nich. Webber, master's mate of the Paul , in the West Indies, for necessities supplied to him there, which the Navy Commissioners refuse to sign or allow as not being printed, and it not being usual to allow them in the absence of the right party, without the order and approbation of the Admiralty Commissioners. With order to the Navy Commissioners for payment, if believed to be genuine, on security against further claims.	28

"	Lord Geo. Fleetwood, Covent Garden.	Col. Salmon, Major Beake, Adm. Com.	Desires they will consider the petition and certificate of Capt. David Young concerning the discovery of the Spanish fleet to Gen. Blake. As he lost his right hand in the wars with Holland, and cannot obtain employment in the State's service, has given him a letter of recommendation to the King of Sweden, for the command of one of his ships, having heard a very good report of his service done to this State.	30
"	Jacob Bryan, Plymouth.	Navy Com ^{rs}	Sends a muster book of the Constant Warwick . Has received several letters from Anth. Denice, who entered on 5 Jan. 1656-7, and continued until 5 Jan. 1657-8, when, pretending great necessity, the captain ordered a ticket to be made out for his relief; but as soon as he obtained it, he sold it to Mr. Pateson of Plymouth , and remained idling on shore while the money lasted. The frigate being ordered as a convoy to the Downs, Capt. Whitehorn of the Speaker came on board, and told the captain that Denice was his servant by indenture, and had several years to serve, and the captain being then troubled that he had given him a ticket, directed another to be made out for the remainder of his time, and given to Capt. Whitehorn, which was done, so that now he has not a penny due from the State, let his pretence be what it will.	31
"	Comr. Peter Pett, Chatham.	Adm. Com.	The Newbury has arrived from Vice-Adm. Goodson before Ostend to clean and revictual. The Gloucester has victualled and sailed, and the Reserve and Bradford will be suddenly dispatched. The new shallop is ready for launching, and may sail next week if her oars are sent down; when she arrives at the fleet, an able man should be appointed by Vice-Adm. Goodson from one of the ships to look after her; it will be no charge to the State, nor prejudice to any ship's company, to part with one man for the security of the vessel.	32
"	Adm. Com.	Navy Com ^{rs}	Order to make out a bill to Jno. Powell for 102 l. 16 s. for Capt. Hen. Hatsell, being so much disbursed by him for maintenance, &c., of the Spanish prisoners at Plymouth .	33

"	Capt. Robt. Wilkin- son, the Weymouth , Newcastle.	"	Having been unable to get northward on account of the winds, has been plying between Newcastle and Huntly Foot. Heard that 3 Ostenders had taken 3 small coal ships, but they were gone off the coast before he came southward; gave notice, however, to the governor of Tyne-mouth Castle, wherely he might do the same to the fleet and fishermen among the coal ships. The greater part of the fishers have gained their voyage and gone to Yarmouth; does not know whether they will make a second voyage. Has 5 weeks' provisions left, having received a month's in the Firth, by order of Lord Monk; will keep plying in the fishing grounds until it is nearly expended, and then go for Yarmouth Roads. Has been in every storm since 14 Feb., yet his pink holds very tight and strong.	37
"	Capt. Wm. White- horn, the London , Downs.	"	Since the 16th ult. has made out 10 more tickets for relief of the families of 10 men named, whose earnest importunities induced him to do that which he is unwilling; hopes they will excuse the trouble and order payment. Mr. Culmer desires order for the sale by inch of candle of a quantity of old and useless boats. "	Capt. Jno. Taylor,	Navy Com ^{rs}	Has got the new frigate Bradford down to Gillingham, and hopes she and the Advice will be in the Hope to-morrow. The shallop is ready for sending to Marſike. Capt. Whitehorn desires a pinnace to carry water, but the Commissioner being absent, cannot send it without order. It would be good husbandry to appoint a master to the great shallop, as she will cost 200 l. , with her provisions, &c., and he might serve for 20 s. a month more than a midshipman. Recommends Hen. Robarts, son-in-law to Mr. Watts, and an old servant.	48
"	Geo. Kendall, Chatham.	"	The Gloucester had as many sails as their warrant allowed, viz., 2 suits and a spare sail, one suit being new and the other new last summer, but new banded. How they gave way, or where the fault lies, is not known, but the master of attendance says that it is not strange for a new sail to split, and that he has formerly certified that 3 suits are necessary for such a voyage, or 2 with some spare ones. If order is given, the frigate may be supplied with what she requires. Is in a sad condition for want of money to support his family, pay his workmen, and carry on the business, and unless he has a speedy supply, it must fail; the timber will not be got down this summer, as 236 l. is wanted for sawing timber and making trenails in the Forest, and for bringing it down, and the carriers are resolved not to go on unless they are assured of their money. Has been thrice to Bristol about a bill of exchange, but cannot procure anything, unless he can assure them the money is in the bank; Mr. Shewell, who formerly promised to advance some, now declines without special order, and Major [Wade] has none. Has written 3 letters before, but not having received any answer, sends copies of them. "	Dan. Furzer, Lidney	Comr. Fras. Wil- loughby.	Has examined the papers of Gilbert Cornelius, employed as judge-advocate in the West Indies by Vice-Adm. Mr. Bodham had 6 l. 15 s. allowed on his account for the advocate at 5 s. a day, which determined on Gen. Penn's coming home, 19 Sept. 1655. Cornelius entered on that service, 16 July 1655, and continued until 16 July 1656, and if his midshipman's pay of 1 l. 17 s. 6 d. a month be made up to 4 l. 13 s. 4 d. , which is 3 s. 4 d. per diem, it will be a sufficient compensation.	50

Aug. 6.

Petition of Nath. Brad, mariner, to the Protector. As John Southwood, merchant of London, has long troubled me with suits, never brought to trial, I appealed to you, and you referred me to Sir Thos. Pride, Sir Wm. Smith, and Ralph Gardner, to whom Southwood agreed to submit. They awarded him to pay me 336*l.* 19*s.* 4*d.*, which he now refuses to do. I beg that as Southwood stands in contempt of your award, you would order me the money, that I may return to your service at sea. Noted as laid aside. [1 sheet. Vol. CLVI., No. 14a.]

1657?

Nath. Hodges to "your lordship" [Rich. Cromwell as Lord-chancellor of Oxford]. I beg your favour in a business of much concern to me, and no disadvantage to any, and it has a precedent. I have performed many exercises in the University by their command, and I hope with approval, and being now by their appointment to answer the Doctors at the Act, and resolved meantime to undergo all other exercises required for my degree, I beg to be admitted to my degree, as well as to the exercises. I do not want so much time as my juniors have obtained, and hitherto I have not entreated nor received any kindness from the University. [$\frac{2}{3}$ pages. Vol. CLVIII., No. 136.]

CALENDARS OF STATE PAPERS, &c.

As far back as the year 1800, a Committee of the House of Commons recommended that Indexes and Calendars should be made to the Public Records, and thirty-six years afterwards another Committee of the House of Commons reiterated that recommendation in more forcible words; but it was not until the incorporation of the State Paper Office with the Public Record Office that the Master of the Rolls found himself in a position to take the necessary steps for carrying out the wishes of the House of Commons.

On 7 December 1855, he stated to the Lords of the Treasury that although "the Records, State Papers, and Documents in his charge constitute the most complete and perfect series of their kind in the civilized world," and although "they are of the greatest value in a historical and constitutional point of view, yet they are comparatively useless to the public, from the want of proper Calendars and Indexes." Acting upon the recommendations of the Committees of the House of Commons above referred to, he suggested to the Lords of the Treasury that to effect the object he had in view it would be necessary for him to employ a few Persons fully qualified to perform the work which he contemplated.

Their Lordships assented to the necessity of having Calendars prepared and printed, and empowered the Master of the Rolls to take such steps as might be necessary for this purpose.

The following Works have been already published under the direction of the Master of the Rolls:—

Supplement to Vol. I. and Vol. II.

Mr. Bergenroth was engaged in compiling a Calendar of the Papers relating to England preserved in the archives of Simancas in Spain, and the corresponding portion removed from Simancas to Paris. Mr. Bergenroth also visited Madrid, and examined the Papers there, bearing on the reign of Henry VIII. The first volume contains the Spanish Papers of the reign of Henry VII.; the second volume, those of the first portion of the reign of Henry VIII. The Supplement contains new information relating to the private life of Queen Katharine of England; and to the projected marriage of Henry VII. with Queen Juana, widow of King Philip of Castile, and mother of the Emperor Charles V.

THE CHRONICLES AND MEMORIALS OF GREAT BRITAIN AND IRELAND DURING THE MIDDLE AGES.

On 25 July 1822, the House of Commons presented an address to the Crown, stating that the editions of the works of our ancient historians were inconvenient and defective; that many of their writings still remained in manuscript, and, in some cases, in a single copy only. They added, "that an uniform and convenient edition of the whole, published under His Majesty's royal sanction, would be an undertaking honourable to His Majesty's reign, and conducive to the advancement of historical and constitutional knowledge; that the House therefore humbly besought His Majesty, that He would be graciously pleased to give such directions as His Majesty, in His wisdom, might think fit, for the publication of a complete edition of the ancient historians of this realm, and assured His Majesty that whatever expense might be necessary for this purpose would be made good."

The Master of the Rolls, being very desirous that effect should be given to the resolution of the House of Commons, submitted to Her Majesty's Treasury in 1857 a plan for the publication of the ancient chronicles and memorials of the United Kingdom, and it was adopted accordingly. In selecting these works, it was considered right, in the first instance, to give preference to those of which the manuscripts were unique, or the materials of which would help to fill up blanks in English history for which no satisfactory and authentic information hitherto existed in any accessible form. One great object the Master of the Rolls had in view was to form a corpus historicum within reasonable limits, and which should be as complete as possible. In a subject of so vast a range, it was important that the historical student should be able to select such volumes as conformed with his own peculiar tastes and studies, and not be put to the expense of purchasing the whole collection; an inconvenience inseparable from any other plan than that which has been in this instance adopted.

Of the Chronicles and Memorials, the following volumes have been published. They embrace the period from the earliest time of British history down to the end of the reign of Henry VII.

1. THE CHRONICLE OF ENGLAND, by JOHN CAPGRAVE. Edited by the Rev. F. C. HINGESTON, M.A., of Exeter College, Oxford. 1858.

Capgrave was prior of Lynn, in Norfolk, and provincial of the order of the Friars Hermits of England shortly before the year 1464. His Chronicle extends from the creation of the world to the year 1417. As a record of the language spoken in Norfolk (being written in English), it is of considerable value.

2. CHRONICON MONASTERII DE ABINGDON. Vols. I. and II. Edited by the Rev. JOSEPH STEVENSON, M.A., of University College, Durham, and Vicar of Leighton Buzzard. 1858.

This Chronicle traces the history of the great Benedictine monastery of Abingdon in Berkshire, from its foundation by King Ina of Wessex, to the reign of Richard I., shortly after which period the present narrative was drawn up by an inmate of the establishment. The author had access to the title-deeds of the house; and incorporates into his history various charters of the Saxon kings, of great importance as illustrating not only the history of the locality but that of the kingdom. The work is printed for the first time.

3. LIVES OF EDWARD THE CONFESSOR. I.—La Estoire de Seint Aedward le Rei. II.—Vita Beati Edvardi Regis et Confessoris. III.—Vita Æduuardi Regis qui apud Westmonasterium requiescit. Edited by HENRY RICHARDS LUARD, M.A., Fellow and Assistant Tutor of Trinity College, Cambridge. 1858.

The first is a poem in Norman French, containing 4,686 lines, addressed to Alianor, Queen of Henry III., probably written in 1245, on the restoration of the church of Westminster. Nothing is known of the author. The second is an anonymous poem, containing 536 lines, written between 1440 and 1450, by command of Henry VI., to whom it is dedicated. It does not throw any new light on the reign of Edward the Confessor, but is valuable as a specimen of the Latin poetry of the time. The third, also by an anonymous author, was apparently written for Queen Edith, between 1066 and 1074, during the pressure of the suffering brought on the Saxons by the Norman conquest. It notices many facts not found in other writers, and some which differ considerably from the usual accounts.

4. MONUMENTA FRANCISCANA. Vol. I.—Thomas de Eccleston de Adventu Fratrum Minorum in Angliam. Adæ de Marisco Epistolæ. Registrum Fratrum Minorum Londoniæ. Edited by J. S. BREWER, M.A., Professor of English Literature, King's College, London. Vol. II.—De Adventu Minorum; re-edited, with additions. Chronicle of the Grey Friars. The ancient English version of the Rule of St. Francis. Abbreviatio Statutorum, 1451, &c. Edited by RICHARD HOWLETT, Esq., of the Middle Temple, Barrister-at-Law. 1858, 1882.

The first volume contains original materials for the history of the settlement of the order of Saint Francis in England, the letters of Adam de Marisco, and other papers connected with the foundation and diffusion of this great body. It was the aim of the editor to collect whatever historical information could be found in this country, towards illustrating a period of the national history for which only scanty materials exist. None of these have been before printed. The second volume contains materials found, since the first volume was published, among the MSS. of Sir Charles Isham, and in various libraries.

5. FASCICULI ZIZANIORUM MAGISTRI JOHANNIS WYCLIF CUM TRITICO. Ascribed to THOMAS NETTER, of WALDEN, Provincial of the Carmelite Order in England, and Confessor to King Henry the Fifth. Edited by the Rev. W. W. SHIRLEY, M.A., Tutor and late Fellow of Wadham College, Oxford. 1858.

This work derives its principal value from being the only contemporaneous account of the rise of the Lollards. When written, the disputes of the schoolmen had been extended to the field of theology, and they appear both in the writings of Wycliff and in those of his adversaries. Wycliff's little bundles of tares are not less metaphysical than theological, and the conflict between Nominalists and Realists rages side by side with the conflict between the different interpreters of Scripture. The work gives a good idea of the controversies at the end of the 14th and the beginning of the 15th centuries.

6. THE BUIK OF THE CRONICLIS OF SCOTLAND; or, A Metrical Version of the History of Hector Boece; by WILLIAM STEWART. Vols. I., II., and III. Edited by W. B. TURNBULL, Esq., of Lincoln's Inn, Barrister-at-Law, 1858.

This is a metrical translation of a Latin Prose Chronicle, written in the first half of the 16th century. The narrative begins with the earliest legends and ends with the death of James I. of Scotland, and the "evil ending of the traitors that slew him." Strict accuracy of statement is not to be looked for; but the stories of the colonization of Spain, Ireland, and Scotland are interesting if not true; and the chronicle reflects the manners, sentiments, and character of the age in which it was composed. The peculiarities of the Scottish dialect are well illustrated in this version, and the student of language will find ample materials for comparison with the English dialects of the same period, and with modern lowland Scotch.

7. JOHANNIS CAPGRAVE LIBER DE ILLUSTRIBUS HENRICIS. Edited by the Rev. F. C. HINGESTON, M.A., of Exeter College, Oxford. 1858.

This work is dedicated to Henry VI. of England, who appears to have been, in the author's estimation, the greatest of all the Henries. It is divided into three parts, each having a separate dedication. The first part relates only to the history of the Empire, from the election of Henry I., the Fowler, to the end of the reign of the Emperor Henry VI. The second part is devoted to English history, from the accession of Henry I. in 1100, to 1446, which was the twenty-fourth year of the reign of Henry VI. The third part contains the lives of illustrious men who have borne the name of Henry in various parts of the world. Capgrave was born in 1393, in the reign of Richard II., and lived during the Wars of the Roses, for which period his work is of some value.

8. HISTORIA MONASTERII S. AUGUSTINI CANTUARIENSIS, by THOMAS OF ELMHAM, formerly Monk and Treasurer of that Foundation. Edited by CHARLES HARDWICK, M.A., Fellow of St. Catharine's Hall, and Christian Advocate in the University of Cambridge. 1858.

This history extends from the arrival of St. Augustine in Kent until 1191. Prefixed is a chronology as far as 1418, which shows in outline what was to have been the character of the work when completed. The only copy known is in the possession of Trinity Hall, Cambridge. The author was connected with Norfolk, and most probably with Elmham, whence he derived his name.

9. EULOGIUM (HISTORIARUM SIVE TEMPORIS): Chronicon ab Orbe condito usque ad Annum Domini 1366; a Monacho quodam Malmesbiriensi exaratum. Vols. I., II., and III. Edited by F. S. HAYDON, Esq., B.A. 1858-1863.

This is a Latin Chronicle extending from the Creation to the latter part of the reign of Edward III., and written by a monk of the Abbey of Malmesbury, in Wiltshire, about the year 1367. A continuation, carrying the history of England down to the year 1413, was added in the former half of the fifteenth century by an author whose name is not known. The original Chronicle is divided into five books, and contains a history of the world generally, but more especially of England to the year 1366. The continuation extends the history down to the coronation of Henry V. The Eulogium itself is chiefly valuable as containing a history, by a contemporary, of the period between 1356 and 1366. The notices of events appear to have been written very soon after their occurrence. Among other interesting matter, the Chronicle contains a diary of the Poitiers campaign, evidently furnished by some person who accompanied the army of the Black Prince. The continuation of the Chronicle is also the work of a contemporary, and gives a very interesting account of the reigns of Richard II. and Henry IV. It is believed to be the earliest authority for the statement that the latter monarch died in the Jerusalem Chamber at Westminster.

10. MEMORIALS OF HENRY THE SEVENTH: Bernardi Andreæ Tholosatis Vita Regis Henrici Septimi; necnon alia quædam ad eundem Regem spectantia. Edited by JAMES GAIRDNER, Esq. 1858.

The contents of this volume are—(1) a life of Henry VII., by his poet laureate and historiographer, Bernard André, of Toulouse, with some compositions in verse, of which he is supposed to have been the author; (2) the journals of Roger Machado during certain embassies on which he was sent by Henry VII. to Spain and Brittany, the first of which had reference to the marriage of the King's son, Arthur, with Catharine of Arragon; (3) two curious reports by envoys sent to Spain in the year 1505 touching the succession to the Crown of Castile, and a project of marriage between Henry VII. and the Queen of Naples; and (4) an account of Philip of Castile's reception in England in 1506. Other documents of interest in connexion with the period are given in an appendix.

11. MEMORIALS OF HENRY THE FIFTH. I.—Vita Henrici Quinti, Roberto Redmanno auctore. II.—Versus Rhythmici in laudem Regis Henrici Quinti. III.—Elmhami Liber Metricus de Henrico V. Edited by CHARLES A. COLE, Esq. 1858.

This volume contains three treatises which more or less illustrate the history of the reign of Henry V., viz.: A Life by Robert Redman; a Metrical Chronicle by Thomas Elmham, prior of Lenton, a contemporary author; Versus Rhythmici, written apparently by a monk of Westminster Abbey, who was also a contemporary of Henry V. These works are printed for the first time.

12. MUNIMENTA GILDHALLÆ LONDONIENSIS; Liber Albus, Liber Custumarum, et Liber Horn, in archivis Gildhallæ asservati. Vol. I., Liber Albus. Vol. II. (in Two Parts), Liber Custumarum. Vol. III., Translation of the Anglo-Norman Passages in Liber Albus, Glossaries, Appendices, and Index. Edited by HENRY THOMAS RILEY, Esq., M.A., Barrister-at-Law. 1859-1862.

The manuscript of the Liber Albus, compiled by John Carpenter, Common Clerk of the City of London in the year 1419, a large folio volume, is preserved in the Record Room of the City of London. It gives an account of the laws, regulations, and institutions of that City in the 12th, 13th, 14th, and early part of the 15th centuries. The Liber Custumarum was compiled probably by various hands in the early part of the 14th century during the reign of Edward II. The manuscript, a folio volume, is also preserved in the Record Room of the City of London, though some portion in its original state, borrowed from the City in the reign of Queen Elizabeth and never returned, forms part of the Cottonian MS. Claudius D. II. in the British Museum. It also gives an account of the laws, regulations, and institutions of the City of London in the 12th, 13th, and early part of the 14th centuries.

13. CHRONICA JOHANNIS DE OXENEDES. Edited by Sir HENRY ELLIS, K.H. 1859.

Although this Chronicle tells of the arrival of Hengist and Horsa in England in 449, yet it substantially begins with the reign of King Alfred and comes down to 1292, where it ends abruptly. The history is particularly valuable for notices of events in the eastern portions of the kingdom, not to be elsewhere obtained. Some curious facts are mentioned relative to the floods in that part of England, which are confirmed in the Friesland Chronicle of Anthony Heinrich, pastor of the Island of Mohr.

14. A COLLECTION OF POLITICAL POEMS AND SONGS RELATING TO ENGLISH HISTORY, FROM THE ACCESSION OF EDWARD III. TO THE REIGN OF HENRY VIII. Vols. I. and II. Edited by THOMAS WRIGHT, Esq., M.A. 1859-1861.

These Poems are perhaps the most interesting of all the historical writings of the period, though they cannot be relied on for accuracy of statement. They are various in character; some are upon religious subjects, some may be called satires, and some give no more than a court scandal; but as a whole they present a very fair picture of society, and of the relations of the different classes to one another. The period comprised is in itself interesting, and brings us, through the decline of the feudal system, to the beginning of our modern history. The songs in old English are of considerable value to the philologist.

15. The "OPUS TERTIUM," "OPUS MINUS," &c., of ROGER BACON. Edited by J. S. BREWER, M.A., Professor of English Literature, King's College, London. 1859.

This is the celebrated treatise—never before printed—so frequently referred to by the great philosopher in his works. It contains the fullest details we possess of the life and labours of Roger Bacon: also a fragment by the same author, supposed to be unique, the "Compendium Studii Theologiæ."

16. BARTHOLOMÆI DE COTTON, MONACHI NORWICENSIS, HISTORIA ANGLICANA; 449-1298: necnon ejusdem Liber de Archiepiscopis et Episcopis Angliæ. Edited by HENRY RICHARDS LUARD, M.A., Fellow and Assistant Tutor of Trinity College, Cambridge. 1859.

The author, a monk of Norwich, has here given us a Chronicle of England from the arrival of the Saxons in 449 to the year 1298, in or about which year it appears that he died. The latter portion of this history (the whole of the reign of Edward I. more especially) is of great value, as the writer was contemporary with the events which he records. An Appendix contains several illustrative documents connected with the previous narrative.

17. BRUT Y TYWYSGOGION; or, The Chronicle of the Princes of Wales. Edited by the Rev. JOHN WILLIAMS AB ITHEL, M.A. 1860.

This work, also known as "The Chronicle of the Princes of Wales," has been attributed to Caradoc of Llancarvan, who flourished about the middle of the twelfth century. It is written in the ancient Welsh language, begins with the abdication and death of Caedwala at Rome, in the year 681, and continues the history down to the subjugation of Wales by Edward I., about the year 1282.

18. A COLLECTION OF ROYAL AND HISTORICAL LETTERS DURING THE REIGN OF HENRY IV. 1399-1404. Edited by the Rev. F. C. HINGESTON, M.A., of Exeter College, Oxford. 1860.

This volume, like all the others in the series containing a miscellaneous selection of letters, is valuable on account of the light it throws upon biographical history, and the familiar view it presents of characters, manners, and events. The period requires much elucidation; to which it will materially contribute.

19. THE REPRESSOR OF OVER MUCH BLAMING OF THE CLERGY. By REGINALD PECOCK, sometime Bishop of Chichester. Vols. I. and II. Edited by CHURCHILL BABINGTON, B.D., Fellow of St. John's College, Cambridge. 1860.

The "Repressor" may be considered the earliest piece of good theological disquisition of which our English prose literature can boast. The author was born about the end of the fourteenth century, consecrated Bishop of St. Asaph in the year 1444, and translated to the see of Chichester in 1450. While Bishop of St. Asaph, he zealously defended his brother prelates from the attacks of those who censured the bishops for their neglect of duty. He maintained that it was no part of a bishop's functions to appear in the pulpit, and that his time might be more profitably spent, and his dignity better maintained, in the performance of works of a higher character. Among those who thought differently were the Lollards, and against their general doctrines the "Repressor" is directed. Pecock took up a position midway between that of the Roman Church and that of the modern Anglican Church; but his work is interesting chiefly because it gives a full account of the views of the Lollards and of the arguments by which they were supported, and because it assists us to ascertain the state of feeling which ultimately led to the Reformation. Apart from religious matters, the light thrown upon contemporaneous history is very small, but the "Repressor" has great value for the philologist, as it tells us what were the characteristics of the language in use among the cultivated Englishmen of the fifteenth century. Pecock, though an opponent of the Lollards, showed a certain spirit of toleration, for which he received, towards the end of his life, the usual mediæval reward—persecution.

20. ANNALES CAMBRIÆ. Edited by the Rev. JOHN WILLIAMS AB ITHEL, M.A. 1860.

These annals, which are in Latin, commence in 447, and come down to 1288. The earlier portion appears to be taken from an Irish Chronicle, used by Tigernach, and by the compiler of the Annals of Ulster. During its first century it contains scarcely anything relating to Britain, the earliest direct concurrence with English history is relative to the mission of Augustine. Its notices throughout, though brief, are valuable. The annals were probably written at St. Davids, by Blegewryd, Archdeacon of Llandaff, the most learned man in his day in all Cymru.

21. THE WORKS OF GERALDUS CAMBRENSIS. Vols. I., II., III., and IV. Edited by J. S. BREWER, M.A., Professor of English Literature, King's College, London. Vols. V., VI., and VII. Edited by the Rev. JAMES F. DIMOCK, M.A., Rector of Barnburgh, Yorkshire. 1861-1877.

These volumes contain the historical works of Gerald du Barry, who lived in the reigns of Henry II., Richard I., and John, and attempted to re-establish the independence of Wales by restoring the see of St. Davids to its ancient primacy. His works are of a very miscellaneous nature, both in prose and verse, and are remarkable chiefly for the racy and original anecdotes which they contain relating to contemporaries. He is the only Welsh writer of any importance who has contributed so much to the mediæval literature of this country, or assumed, in consequence of his nationality, so free and independent a tone. His frequent travels in Italy, in France, in Ireland, and in Wales, gave him opportunities for observation which did not generally fall to the lot of mediæval writers in the twelfth and thirteenth centuries, and of these observations Giraldus has made due use. Only extracts from these treatises have been printed before, and almost all of them are taken from unique manuscripts.

The Topographia Hibernica (in Vol. V.) is the result of Giraldus' two visits to Ireland. The first in 1183, the second in 1185-6, when he accompanied Prince John into that country. Curious as this treatise is, Mr. Dimock is of opinion that it ought not to be accepted as sober truthful history, for Giraldus himself states that truth was not his main object, and that he compiled the work for the purpose of sounding the praises of Henry the Second. Elsewhere, however, he declares that he had stated nothing in the Topographia of the truth of which he was not well assured, either by his own eyesight or by the testimony, with all diligence elicited, of the most trustworthy and authentic men in the country; that though he did not put just the same full faith in their reports as in what he had himself seen, yet, as they only related what they had themselves seen, he could not but believe such credible witnesses. A very interesting portion of this treatise is devoted to the animals of Ireland. It shows that he was a very accurate and acute observer, and his descriptions are given in a way that a scientific naturalist of the present day could hardly improve upon. The Expugnatio Hibernica was written about 1188 and may be regarded rather as a great epic than a sober relation of acts occurring in his own days. No one can peruse it without coming to the conclusion that it is rather a poetical fiction than a prosaic truthful history. Vol. VI. contains the Itinerarium Cambriæ et Descriptio Cambriæ: and Vol. VII., the lives of S. Remigius and S. Hugh.

22. LETTERS AND PAPERS ILLUSTRATIVE OF THE WARS OF THE ENGLISH IN FRANCE DURING THE REIGN OF HENRY THE SIXTH, KING OF ENGLAND. Vol. I., and Vol. II. (in Two Parts). Edited by the Rev. JOSEPH STEVENSON, M.A., of University College, Durham, and Vicar of Leighton Buzzard. 1861-1864.

These letters and papers are derived chiefly from originals or contemporary copies extant in the Bibliothèque Impériale, and the Dépôt des Archives, in Paris. They illustrate the policy adopted by John Duke of Bedford and his successors during their government of Normandy, and other provinces of France acquired by Henry V. Here may be traced, step by step, the gradual declension of the English power, until we are prepared for its final overthrow.

23. THE ANGLO-SAXON CHRONICLE, ACCORDING TO THE SEVERAL ORIGINAL AUTHORITIES. Vol. I., Original Texts. Vol. II., Translation. Edited and translated by BENJAMIN THORPE, Esq., Member of the Royal Academy of Sciences at Munich, and of the Society of Netherlandish Literature at Leyden. 1861.

This Chronicle, extending from the earliest history of Britain to 1154, is justly the boast of England; no other nation can produce any history, written in its own vernacular, at all approaching it, in antiquity, truthfulness, or extent, the historical books of the Bible alone excepted. There are at present six independent manuscripts of the Saxon Chronicle, ending in different years, and written in different parts of the country. In this edition, the text of each manuscript is printed in columns on the same page, so that the student may see at a glance the various changes which occur in orthography, whether arising from locality or age.

24. LETTERS AND PAPERS ILLUSTRATIVE OF THE REIGNS OF RICHARD III. AND HENRY VII. Vols. I. and II. Edited by JAMES GAIRDNER, Esq. 1861-1863.

The Papers are derived from MSS. in the Public Record Office, the British Museum, and other repositories. The period to which they refer is unusually destitute of chronicles and other sources of historical information, so that the light obtained from them is of special importance. The principal contents of the volumes are some diplomatic Papers of Richard III.; correspondence between Henry VII. and Ferdinand and Isabella of Spain; documents relating to Edmund de la Pole, Earl of Suffolk; and a portion of the correspondence of James IV. of Scotland.

25. LETTERS OF BISHOP GROSSETESTE, illustrative of the Social Condition of his Time. Edited by HENRY RICHARDS LUARD, M.A., Fellow and Assistant Tutor of Trinity College, Cambridge. 1861.

The Letters of Robert Grosseteste (131 in number) are here collected from various sources, and a large portion of them is printed for the first time. They range in date from about 1210 to 1253, and relate to various matters connected not only with the political history of England during the reign of Henry III., but with its ecclesiastical condition. They refer especially to the diocese of Lincoln, of which Grosseteste was bishop.

26. DESCRIPTIVE CATALOGUE OF MANUSCRIPTS RELATING TO THE HISTORY OF GREAT BRITAIN AND IRELAND. Vol. I. (in Two Parts); Anterior to the Norman Invasion. Vol. II.; 1066-1200. Vol. III.; 1200-1327. By Sir THOMAS DUFFUS HARDY, D.C.L., Deputy Keeper of the Public Records. 1862-1871.

The object of this work is to publish notices of all known sources of British history, both printed and unprinted, in one continued sequence. The materials, when historical (as distinguished from biographical), are arranged under the year in which the latest event is recorded in the chronicle or history, and not under the period in which its author, real or supposed, flourished. Biographies are enumerated under the year in which the person commemorated died, and not under the year in which the life was written. This arrangement has two advantages; the materials for any given period may be seen at a glance; and if the reader knows the time when an author wrote, and the number of years that had elapsed between the date of the events and the time the writer flourished, he will generally be enabled to form a fair estimate of the comparative value of the narrative itself. A brief analysis of each work has been added when deserving it, in which original portions are distinguished from mere compilations. If possible, the sources are indicated from which compilations have been derived. A biographical sketch of the author of each piece has been added, and a brief notice of such British authors as have written of historical subjects.

27. ROYAL AND OTHER HISTORICAL LETTERS ILLUSTRATIVE OF THE REIGN OF HENRY III. Vol. I., 1216-1235. Vol. II., 1236-1272. Selected and edited by the Rev. W. W. SHIRLEY, D.D., Regius Professor in Ecclesiastical History, and Canon of Christ Church, Oxford. 1862-1866.

The letters contained in these volumes are derived chiefly from the ancient correspondence formerly in the Tower of London, and now in the Public Record Office. They illustrate the political history of England during the growth of its liberties, and throw considerable light upon the personal history of Simon de Montfort. The affairs of France form the subject of many of them, especially in regard to the province of Gascony. The entire collection consists of nearly 700 documents, the greater portion of which is printed for the first time.

28. CHRONICA MONASTERII S. ALBANI.—1. THOMÆ WALSINGHAM HISTORIA ANGLICANA; Vol. I., 1272-1381: Vol. II., 1381-1422. 2. WILLELMI RISHANGER CHRONICA ET ANNALES, 1259-1307. 3. YPODIGMA NEUSTRIÆ A THOMA WALSINGHAM, QUONDAM MONACHO MONASTERII S. ALBANI, CONSCRIPTUM. Edited by HENRY THOMAS RILEY, Esq., M.A., Cambridge and Oxford; and of the Inner Temple, Barrister-at-Law. 1863-1876.

In the first two volumes is a History of England, from the death of Henry III. to the death of Henry V., by Thomas Walsingham, Precentor of St. Albans, from MS. VII. in the Arundel Collection in the College of Arms, London, a manuscript of the fifteenth century, collated with MS. 13 E. IX. in the King's Library in the British Museum, and MS. VII. in the Parker Collection of Manuscripts at Corpus Christi College, Cambridge.

In the 3rd volume is a Chronicle of English History, attributed to William Rishanger, who lived in the reign of Edward I., from the Cotton. MS. Faustina B. IX. in the British Museum, collated with MS. 14 C. VII. (fols. 219-231) in the King's Library, British Museum, and the Cotton MS. Claudius E. III., fols. 306-331: an account of transactions attending the award of the kingdom of Scotland to John Balliol, 1291-1292, from MS. Cotton. Claudius D. VI., also attributed to William Rishanger, but on no sufficient ground: a short Chronicle of English History, 1292 to 1300, by an unknown hand, from MS. Cotton. Claudius D. VI.: a short Chronicle Willelmi Rishanger Gesta Edwardi Primi, Regis Angliæ, from MS. 14 C. I. in the Royal Library, and MS. Cotton. Claudius D. VI., with Annales Regum Angliæ, probably by the same hand: and fragments of three Chronicles of English History, 1285 to 1307.

In the 4th volume is a Chronicle of English History, 1259 to 1296, from MS. Cotton. Claudius D. VI.: Annals of Edward II., 1307 to 1323, by John de Trokelowe, a monk of St. Albans, and a continuation of Trokelowe's Annals, 1323, 1324, by Henry de Blanford, both from MS. Cotton. Claudius D. VI.: a full Chronicle of English History, 1392 to 1406, from MS. VII. in the Library of Corpus Christi College, Cambridge; and an account of the Benefactors of St. Albans, written in the early part of the 15th century from MS. VI. in the same Library.

The 5th, 6th, and 7th volumes contain a history of the Abbots of St. Albans, 793 to 1411, mainly compiled by Thomas Walsingham, from MS. Cotton. Claudius E. IV., in the British Museum: with a Continuation, from the closing pages of Parker MS. VII. in the Library of Corpus Christi College, Cambridge.

The 8th and 9th volumes, in continuation of the Annals, contain a Chronicle, probably by John Amundesham, a monk of St. Albans.

The 10th and 11th volumes relate especially to the acts and proceedings of Abbots Whethamstede, Albon, and Wallingford, and may be considered as a memorial of the chief historical and domestic events during those periods.

The 12th volume contains a compendious History of England to the reign of Henry V., and of Normandy in early times, also by Thomas Walsingham, and dedicated to Henry V. The compiler has often substituted other authorities in place of those consulted in the preparation of his larger work.

29. CHRONICON ABBATLÆ EVESHAMENSIS, AUCTORIBUS DOMINICO PRIORE EVESHAMLÆ ET THOMA DE MARLEBERGE ABBATE, A FUNDATIONE AD ANNUM 1213, UNA CUM CONTINUATIONE AD ANNUM 1418. Edited by the Rev. W. D. MACRAY, Bodleian Library, Oxford. 1863.

The Chronicle of Evesham illustrates the history of that important monastery from its foundation by Egwin, about 690, to the year 1418. Its chief feature is an autobiography, which makes us acquainted with the inner daily life of a great abbey, such as but rarely has been recorded. Interspersed are many notices of general, personal, and local history which will be read with much interest. This work exists in a single MS., and is for the first time printed.

30. RICARDI DE CIRENCESTRIA SPECULUM HISTORIALE DE GESTIS REGUM ANGLIÆ. Vol. I., 447-871. Vol. II., 872-1066. Edited by JOHN E. B. MAYOR, M.A. Fellow of St. John's College, Cambridge. 1863-1869.

The compiler, Richard of Cirencester, was a monk of Westminster, 1355-1400. In 1391 he obtained a licence to make a pilgrimage to Rome. His history, in four books, extends from 447 to 1066. He announces his intention of continuing it, but there is no evidence that he completed any more. This chronicle gives many charters in favour of Westminster Abbey, and a very full account of the lives and miracles of the saints, especially of Edward the Confessor, whose reign occupies the fourth book. A treatise on the Coronation, by William of Sudbury, a monk of Westminster, fills book iii. c. 3. It was on this author that C. J. Bertram fathered his forgery, De Situ Britannia, in 1747.

31. YEAR BOOKS OF THE REIGN OF EDWARD THE FIRST. Years 20-21, 21-22, 30-31, 32-33, and 33-35. Edited and translated by ALFRED JOHN HORWOOD, Esq., of the Middle Temple, Barrister-at-Law. YEAR BOOKS, 11-12 Edward III. Edited and translated by ALFRED JOHN HORWOOD, Esq., of the Middle Temple, Barrister-at-Law; continued by LUKE OWEN PIKE, Esq., M.A., of Lincoln's Inn, Barrister-at-Law. 1863-1883.

The volumes known as the "Year Books" contain reports in Norman-French of cases argued and decided in the Courts of Common Law. They may be considered to a great extent as the "lex non scripta" of England, and been held in the highest veneration by the ancient sages of the law, and received by them as the repositories of the first recorded judgments and dicta of the great legal luminaries of past ages. They are also worthy of attention on account of the historical information and the notices of public and private persons which they contain, as well as the light which they throw on ancient manners and customs.

32. NARRATIVES OF THE EXPULSION OF THE ENGLISH FROM NORMANDY 1449-1450.—Robertus Blondelli de Reductione Normanniæ: Le Recouvrement de Normandie, par Berry, Hérault du Roy: Conférences between the Ambassadors of France and England. Edited, from MSS. in the Imperial Library at Paris, by the Rev. JOSEPH STEVENSON, M.A., of University College, Durham. 1863.

This volume contains the narrative of an eye-witness who details with considerable power and minuteness the circumstances which attended the final expulsion of the English from Normandy in 1450. Commencing with the infringement of the truce by the capture of Fougères, and ending with the battle of Formigny and the embarkation of the Duke of Somerset. The period embraced is less than two years.

33. HISTORIA ET CARTULARIUM MONASTERII S. PETRI GLOUCESTRÆ. Vols. I., II., and III. Edited by W. H. HART, Esq., F.S.A., Membre correspondant de la Société des Antiquaires de Normandie. 1863-1867.

This work consists of two parts, the History and the Cartulary of the Monastery of St. Peter, Gloucester. The history furnishes an account of the monastery from its foundation, in the year 681, to the early part of the reign of Richard II., together with a calendar of donations and benefactions. It treats principally of the affairs of the monastery, but occasionally matters of general history are introduced. Its authorship has generally been assigned to Walter Froucester, the twentieth abbot, but without any foundation.

34. ALEXANDRI NECKAM DE NATURIS RERUM LIBRI DUO; with NECKAM'S POEM, DE LAUDIBUS DIVINÆ SAPIENTIÆ. Edited by THOMAS WRIGHT, Esq., M.A. 1863.

Neckam was a man who devoted himself to science, such as it was in the twelfth century. In the "De Naturis Rerum" are to be found what may be called the rudiments of many sciences mixed up with much error and ignorance. Neckam was not thought infallible, even by his contemporaries, for Roger Bacon remarks of him, "this Alexander in many things wrote what was true and useful; but he neither can nor ought by just title to be reckoned among authorities." Neckam, however, had sufficient independence of thought to differ from some of the schoolmen who in his time considered themselves the only judges of literature. He had his own views in morals, and in giving us a glimpse of them, as well as of his other opinions, he throws much light upon the manners, customs, and general tone of thought prevalent in the twelfth century. The poem entitled "De Laudibus Divinæ Sapientiæ" appears to be a metrical paraphrase or abridgment of the "De Naturis Rerum." It is written in the elegiac metre, and though there are many lines which violate classical rules, it is, as a whole above the ordinary standard of mediæval Latin.

35. LEECHDOMS, WORTCUNNING, AND STARGRAFT OF EARLY ENGLAND; being a Collection of Documents illustrating the History of Science in this Country before the Norman Conquest. Vols. I., II., and III. Collected and edited by the Rev. T. OSWALD COCKAYNE, M.A., of St. John's College, Cambridge, 1864-1866.

This work illustrates not only the history of science, but the history of superstition. In addition to the information bearing directly upon the medical skill and medical faith of the time, there are many passages which incidentally throw light upon the general mode of life and ordinary diet. The volumes are interesting not only in their scientific, but also in their social aspect. The manuscripts from which they have been printed are valuable to the Anglo-Saxon scholar for the illustrations they afford of Anglo-Saxon orthography.

36. ANNALES MONASTICI. Vol. I.:—Annales de Margan, 1066–1232; Annales de Theokesberia, 1066–1263; Annales de Burton, 1004–1263. Vol. II.:—Annales Monasterii de Wintonia, 519–1277; Annales Monasterii de Waverleia, 1–1291. Vol. III.:—Annales Prioratus de Dunstaplia, 1–1297. Annales Monasterii de Bermundeseia, 1042–1432. Vol. IV.:—Annales Monasterii de Oseneia, 1016–1347; Chronicon vulgo dictum Chronicon Thomæ Wykes, 1066–1289; Annales Prioratus de Wigornia, 1–1377. Vol. V.:—Index and Glossary. Edited by HENRY RICHARDS LUARD, M.A., Fellow and Assistant Tutor of Trinity College, and Registry of the University, Cambridge. 1864–1869.

The present collection of Monastic Annals embraces all the more important chronicles compiled in religious houses in England during the thirteenth century. These distinct works are ten in number. The extreme period which they embrace ranges from the year 1 to 1432, although they refer more especially to the reigns of John, Henry III., and Edward I. Some of these narratives have already appeared in print, but others are printed for the first time.

37. MAGNA VITA S. HUGONIS EPISCOPI LINCOLNIENSIS. From MSS. in the Bodleian Library, Oxford, and the Imperial Library, Paris. Edited by the Rev. JAMES F. DIMOCK, M.A., Rector of Baruburgh, Yorkshire. 1864.

This work contains a number of very curious and interesting incidents, and being the work of a contemporary, is very valuable, not only as a truthful biography of a celebrated ecclesiastic, but as the work of a man, who, from personal knowledge, gives notices of passing events, as well as of individuals who were then taking active part in public affairs. The author, in all probability, was Adam Abbot of Evesham. He was domestic chaplain and private confessor of Bishop Hugh, and in these capacities was admitted to the closest intimacy, Bishop Hugh was Prior of Witham for 11 years before he became Bishop of Lincoln. His consecration took place on the 21st September 1186; he died on the 16th of November 1200; and was canonized in 1220.

38. CHRONICLES AND MEMORIALS OF THE REIGN OF RICHARD THE FIRST. Vol. I.:—ITINERARIUM PEREGRINORUM ET GESTA REGIS RICARDI. Vol. II.:—EPISTOLÆ CANTUARIENSES; the Letters of the Prior and Convent of Christ Church, Canterbury; 1187 to 1199. Edited by WILLIAM STUBBS, M.A., Vicar of Navestock, Essex, and Lambeth Librarian. 1864–1865.

The authorship of the Chronicle in Vol. I., hitherto ascribed to Geoffrey Vinesaut, is now more correctly ascribed to Richard, Canon of the Holy Trinity of London. The narrative extends from 1187 to 1199; but its chief interest consists in the minute and authentic narrative which it furnishes of the exploits of Richard I., from his departure from England in December 1189 to his death in 1199. The author states in his prologue that he was an eye-witness of much that he records; and various incidental circumstances which occur in the course of the narrative confirm this assertion.

The letters in Vol. II., written between 1187 and 1199, are of value as furnishing authentic materials for the history of the ecclesiastical condition of England during the reign of Richard I. They had their origin in a dispute which arose from the attempts of Baldwin and Hubert, archbishops of Canterbury, to found a college of secular canons, a project which gave great umbrage to the monks of Canterbury, who saw in it a design to supplant them in their function of metropolitan chapter. These letters are printed, for the first time, from a MS. belonging to the archiepiscopal library at Lambeth.

39. RECUEIL DES CHRONIQUES ET ANCIENNES HISTOIRES DE LA GRANT BRETAGNE A PRESENT NOMME ENGLETERRE, par JEHAN DE WAURIN. Vol. I. Albina to 688. Vol. II., 1399–1422. Vol. III., 1422–1431. Edited by WILLIAM HARDY, Esq., F.S.A. 1864–1879.
40. A COLLECTION OF THE CHRONICLES AND ANCIENT HISTORIES OF GREAT BRITAIN, NOW CALLED ENGLAND, by JOHN DE WAURIN. Albina to 688. (Translation of the preceding Vol. I.) Edited and translated by WILLIAM HARDY, Esq., F.S.A. 1864.

This curious chronicle extends from the fabulous period of history down to the return of Edward IV. to England in the year 1471 after the second deposition of Henry VI. The manuscript from which the text of the work is taken is preserved in the Imperial Library at Paris, and is believed to be the only complete and nearly contemporary copy in existence. The work, as originally bound, was comprised in six volumes, since rebound in morocco in 12 volumes, folio maximo, vellum, and is illustrated with exquisite miniatures, vignettes, and initial letters. It was written towards the end of the fifteenth century, having been expressly executed for Louis de Bruges, Seigneur de la Gruthuyse and Earl of Winchester, from whose cabinet it passed into the library of Louis XII. at Blois.

41. POLYCHRONICON RANULPHI HIGDEN, with Trevisa's Translation. Vols. I. and II. Edited by CHURCHILL BABINGTON, B.D., Senior Fellow of St. John's College, Cambridge. Vols. III., IV., V., VI., VII., and VIII. Edited by the Rev. JOSEPH RAWSON LUMBY, D.D., Norrisian Professor of Divinity, Vicar of St. Edward's, Fellow of St. Catharine's College, and late Fellow of Magdalene College, Cambridge. 1865-1883.

This is one of the many mediæval chronicles which assume the character of a history of the world. It begins with the creation, and is brought down to the author's own time, the reign of Edward III. Prefixed to the historical portion, is a chapter devoted to geography, in which is given a description of every known land. To say that the Polychronicon was written in the fourteenth century is to say that it is not free from inaccuracies. It has, however, a value apart from its intrinsic merits. It enables us to form a very fair estimate of the knowledge of history and geography which well-informed readers of the fourteenth and fifteenth centuries possessed, for it was then the standard work on general history.

The two English translations, which are printed with the original Latin, afford interesting illustrations of the gradual change of our language, for one was made in the fourteenth century, the other in the fifteenth. The differences between Trevisa's version and that of the unknown writer are often considerable.

42. LE LIVRE DE REIS DE BRITANIE E LE LIVRE DE REIS DE ENGLETERE. Edited by JOHN GLOVER, M.A., Vicar of Brading, Isle of Wight, formerly Librarian of Trinity College, Cambridge. 1865.

These two treatises, though they cannot rank as independent narratives, are nevertheless valuable as careful abstracts of previous historians, especially "Le Livre de Reis de Engleterre." Some various readings are given which are interesting to the philologist as instances of semi-Saxonized French. It is supposed that Peter of Ickham was the supposed author.

43. CHRONICA MONASTERII DE MELSA AB ANNO 1150 USQUE AD ANNUM 1406. Vols. I., II., and III. Edited by EDWARD AUGUSTUS BOND, Esq., Assistant Keeper of Manuscripts, and Egerton Librarian, British Museum. 1866-1868.

The Abbey of Meaux was a Cistercian house, and the work of its abbot is both curious and valuable. It is a faithful and often minute record of the establishment of a religious community, of its progress in forming an ample revenue, of its struggles to maintain its acquisitions, and of its relations to the governing institutions of the country. In addition to the private affairs of the monastery, some light is thrown upon the public events of the time, which are however kept distinct, and appear at the end of the history of each abbot's administration. The text has been printed from what is said to be the autograph of the original compiler, Thomas de Burton, the nineteenth abbot.

44. MATTHEI PARIENSIS HISTORIA ANGLORUM, SIVE, UT VULGO DICITUR, HISTORIA MINOR. Vols. I., II., and III. 1067-1253. Edited by Sir FREDERIC MADDEN, K.H., Keeper of the Manuscript Department of British Museum. 1866-1869.

The exact date at which this work was written is, according to the chronicler, 1250. The history is of considerable value as an illustration of the period during which the author lived, and contains a good summary of the events which followed the Conquest. This minor chronicle is, however, based on another work (also written by Matthew Paris) giving fuller details, which has been called the "Historia Major." The chronicle here published, nevertheless, gives some information not to be found in the greater history.

45. LIBER MONASTERII DE HYDA: A CHRONICLE AND CHARTULARY OF HYDE ABBEY, WINCHESTER, 455-1023. Edited, from a Manuscript in the Library of the Earl of Macclesfield, by EDWARD EDWARDS, Esq. 1866.

The "Book of Hyde" is a compilation from much earlier sources which are usually indicated with considerable care and precision. In many cases, however, the Hyde Chronicler appears to correct, to qualify, or to amplify—either from tradition or from sources of information not now discoverable—the statements, which, in substance, he adopts. He also mentions, and frequently quotes from writers whose works are either entirely lost or at present known only by fragments.

There is to be found, in the "Book of Hyde," much information relating to the reign of King Alfred which is not known to exist elsewhere. The volume contains some curious specimens of Anglo-Saxon and Mediæval English.

46. CHRONICON SCOTORUM: A CHRONICLE OF IRISH AFFAIRS, FROM THE EARLIEST TIMES TO 1135; AND SUPPLEMENT, CONTAINING THE EVENTS FROM 1141 TO 1150. Edited, with Translation, by WILLIAM MAUNSELL HENNESSY, Esq., M.R.I.A. 1866.

There is, in this volume, a legendary account of the peopling of Ireland and of the adventures which befell the various heroes who are said to have been connected with Irish history. The details are, however, very meagre both for this period and for the time when history becomes more authentic. The plan adopted in the chronicle gives the appearance of an accuracy to which the earlier portions of the work cannot have any claim. The succession of events is marked, year by year, from A.M. 1599 to A.D. 1150. The principal events narrated in the later portion of the work are, the invasions of foreigners, and the wars of the Irish among themselves. The text has been printed from a MS. preserved in the library of Trinity College, Dublin, written partly in Latin, partly in Irish.

47. THE CHRONICLE OF PIERRE DE LANGTOFT, IN RENCH VERSE, FROM THE EARLIEST PERIOD TO THE DEATH OF EDWARD I. Vols. I. and II. Edited by THOMAS WRIGHT, Esq., M.A. 1866-1868.

It is probable that Pierre de Langtoft was a canon of Bridlington, in Yorkshire, and lived in the reign of Edward I., and during a portion of the reign of Edward II. This chronicle is divided into three parts; in the first, is an abridgment of Geoffrey of Monmouth's "Historia Britonum," in the second, a history of the Anglo-Saxon and Norman kings, down to the death of Henry III., and in the third, a history of the reign of Edward I. The principal object of the work was apparently to show the justice of Edward's Scottish wars. The language is singularly corrupt, and a curious specimen of the French of Yorkshire.

48. THE WAR OF THE GAEDHIL WITH THE GAILL, OR THE INVASIONS OF IRELAND BY THE DANES AND OTHER NORSEMEN. Edited, with a Translation, by JAMES HENTHORN TODD, D.D., Senior Fellow of Trinity College, and Regius Professor of Hebrew in the University, Dublin. 1867.

The work in its present form, in the editor's opinion, is a comparatively modern version of an undoubtedly ancient original. That it was compiled from contemporary materials has been proved by curious incidental evidence. It is stated in the account given of the battle of Clontarf that the full tide in Dublin Bay on the day of the battle (23 April 1014) coincided with sunrise; and that the returning tide in the evening aided considerably in the defeat of the Danes. The fact has been verified by astronomical calculations, and the inference is that the author of the chronicle, if not an eye-witness, must have derived his information from eye-witnesses. The contents of the work are sufficiently described in its title. The story is told after the manner of the Scandinavian Sagas, with poems and fragments of poems introduced into the prose narrative.

49. GESTA REGIS HENRICI SECUNDI BENEDICTI ABBATIS. THE CHRONICLE OF THE REIGNS OF HENRY II. AND RICHARD I., 1169-1192, KNOWN UNDER THE NAME OF BENEDICT OF PETERBOROUGH. Vols. I. and II. Edited by WILLIAM STUBBS, M.A., Regius Professor of Modern History, Oxford, and Lambeth Librarian. 1837.

This chronicle of the reigns of Henry II. and Richard I., known commonly under the name of Benedict of Peterborough, is one of the best existing specimens of a class of historical compositions of the first importance to the student.

50. MUNIMENTA ACADEMICA, OR, DOCUMENTS ILLUSTRATIVE OF ACADEMICAL LIFE AND STUDIES AT OXFORD (in Two Parts). Edited by the Rev. HENRY ANSLEY, M.A., Vicar of St. Wendron, Cornwall, and lately Vice-Principal of St. Mary Hall, Oxford. 1868.

This work will supply materials for a History of Academical Life and Studies in the University of Oxford during the 13th, 14th, and 15th centuries.

51. CHRONICA MAGISTRI ROGERI DE HOVEDENE. Vols. I., II., III., and IV. Edited by WILLIAM STUBBS, M.A., Regius Professor of Modern History, and Fellow of Oriel College, Oxford. 1868-1871.

This work has long been justly celebrated, but not thoroughly understood until Mr. Stubbs' edition. The earlier portion, extending from 732 to 1148, appears to be a copy of a compilation made in Northumbria about 1161, to which Hoveden added little. From 1148 to 1169—a very valuable portion of this work—the matter is derived from another source, to which Hoveden appears to have supplied little, and not always judiciously. From 1170 to 1192 is the portion which corresponds with the Chronicle known under the name of Benedict of Peterborough (see No. 49); but it is not a copy, being sometimes an abridgment, at others a paraphrase; occasionally the two works entirely agree; showing that both writers had access to the same materials, but dealt with them differently. From 1192 to 1201 may be said to be wholly Hoveden's work: it is extremely valuable, and an authority of the first importance.

52. WILLELMI MALMESBIRIENSIS MONACHI DE GESTIS PONTIFICUM ANGLORUM LIBRI QUINQUE. Edited, from William of Malmesbury's Autograph MS., by N. E. S. A. HAMILTON, Esq., of the Department of Manuscripts, British Museum. 1870.

William of Malmesbury's "Gesta Pontificum" is the principal foundation of English Ecclesiastical Biography, down to the year 1122. The manuscript which has been followed in this Edition is supposed by Mr. Hamilton to be the author's autograph, containing his latest additions and amendments.

53. HISTORIC AND MUNICIPAL DOCUMENTS OF IRELAND, FROM THE ARCHIVES OF THE CITY OF DUBLIN, &c. 1172-1320. Edited by JOHN T. GILBERT, Esq., F.S.A., Secretary of the Public Record Office of Ireland. 1870.

A collection of original documents, elucidating mainly the history and condition of the municipal, middle, and trading classes under or in relation with the rule of England in Ireland,—a subject hitherto in almost total obscurity. Extending over the first hundred and fifty years of the Anglo-Norman settlement, the series includes charters, municipal laws and regulations, rolls of names of citizens and members of merchant-guilds, lists of commodities with their rates, correspondence, illustrations of relations between ecclesiastics and laity; together with many documents exhibiting the state of Ireland during the presence there of the Scots under Robert and Edward Bruce.

54. THE ANNALS OF LOCH CÉ. A CHRONICLE OF IRISH AFFAIRS, FROM 1014 to 1590. Vols. I. and II. Edited, with a Translation, by WILLIAM MAUNSELL HENNESSY, Esq., M.R.I.A. 1871.

The original of this chronicle has passed under various names. The title of "Annals of Loch Cé" was given to it by Professor O'Curry, on the ground that it was transcribed for Brian Mac Dermot, an Irish chieftain, who resided on the island in Loch Cé, in the county of Roscommon. It adds much to the materials for the civil and ecclesiastical history of Ireland; and contains many curious references to English and foreign affairs, not noticed in any other chronicle.

55. MONUMENTA JURIDICA. THE BLACK BOOK OF THE ADMIRALTY, WITH APPENDICES. Vols. I., II., III., and IV. Edited by SIR TRAVERS TWISS, Q.C., D.C.L. 1871-1876.

This book contains the ancient ordinances and laws relating to the navy, and was probably compiled for the use of the Lord High Admiral of England. Selden calls it the "jewel of the Admiralty Records." Prynne ascribes to the Black Book the same authority in the Admiralty as the Black and Red Books have in the Court of Exchequer, and most English writers on maritime law recognize its importance.

56. MEMORIALS OF THE REIGN OF HENRY VI.:—OFFICIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THOMAS BEKYNTON, SECRETARY TO HENRY VI., AND BISHOP OF BATH AND WELLS. Edited, from a MS. in the Archiepiscopal Library at Lambeth, with an Appendix of Illustrative Documents, by the Rev. GEORGE WILLIAMS, B.D., Vicar of Ringwood, late Fellow of King's College, Cambridge. Vols. I. and II. 1872.

These curious volumes are of a miscellaneous character, and were probably compiled under the immediate direction of Bekynton before he had attained to the Episcopate. They contain many of the Bishop's ownletters, and several written by him in the King's name; also letters to himself while Royal Secretary, and others addressed to the King. This work elucidates some points in the history of the nation during the first half of the fifteenth century.

57. MATHÆI PARIENSIS, MONACHI SANCTI ALBANI, CHRONICA MAJORA. Vol. I. The Creation to A.D. 1066. Vol. II. A.D. 1067 to A.D. 1216. Vol. III. A.D. 1216 to A.D. 1239. Vol. IV. A.D. 1240 to A.D. 1247. Vol. V. A.D. 1248 to A.D. 1259. Vol. VI. Additamenta. Vol. VII. Index. Edited by HENRY RICHARDS LUARD, D.D., Fellow of Trinity College, Registry of the University, and Vicar of Great St. Mary's, Cambridge. 1872-1884.

This work contains the "Chronica Majora" of Matthew Paris, one of the most valuable and frequently consulted of the ancient English Chronicles. It is published from its commencement, for the first time. The editions by Archbishop Parker, and William Wats, severally begin at the Norman Conquest.

58. MEMORIALE FRATRIS WALTERI DE COVENTRIA.—THE HISTORICAL COLLECTIONS OF WALTER OF COVENTRY. Vols. I. and II. Edited, from the MS. in the Library of Corpus Christi College, Cambridge, by WILLIAM STUBBS, M.A., Regius Professor of Modern History, and Fellow of Oriel College, Oxford. 1872-1873.

This work, now printed in full for the first time, has long been a desideratum by Historical Scholars. The first portion, however, is not of much importance, being only a compilation from earlier writers. The part relating to the first quarter of the thirteenth century is the most valuable and interesting.

59. THE ANGLO-LATIN SATIRICAL POETS AND EPIGRAMMATISTS OF THE TWELFTH CENTURY. Vols. I. and II. Collected and edited by THOMAS WRIGHT, Esq., M.A., Corresponding Member of the National Institute of France (Académie des Inscriptions et Belles-Lettres). 1872.

The Poems contained in these volumes have long been known and appreciated as the best satires of the age in which their authors flourished, and were deservedly popular during the 13th and 14th centuries.

60. MATERIALS FOR A HISTORY OF THE REIGN OF HENRY VII., FROM ORIGINAL DOCUMENTS PRESERVED IN THE PUBLIC RECORD OFFICE. Vols. I. and II. Edited by the Rev. WILLIAM CAMPBELL, M.A., one of Her Majesty's Inspectors of Schools. 1873-1877.

These volumes are valuable as illustrating the acts and proceedings of Henry VII. on ascending the throne, and shadow out the policy he afterwards adopted.

61. HISTORICAL PAPERS AND LETTERS FROM THE NORTHERN REGISTERS. Edited by JAMES RAINE, M.A., Canon of York, and Secretary of the Surtees Society. 1873.

The documents in this volume illustrate, for the most part, the general history of the north of England, particularly in its relation to Scotland.

62. REGISTRUM PALATINUM DUNELMENSE. THE REGISTER OF RICHARD DE KELLAWE, LORD PALATINE AND BISHOP OF DURHAM; 1311-1316. Vols. I., II., III., and IV. Edited by Sir THOMAS DUFFUS HARDY, D.C.L., Deputy Keeper of the Public Records. 1873-1878.

Bishop Kellawe's Register contains the proceedings of his prelacy, both lay and ecclesiastical, and is the earliest Register of the Palatinate of Durham.

63. MEMORIALS OF SAINT DUNSTAN, ARCHBISHOP OF CANTERBURY. Edited, from various MSS., by WILLIAM STUBBS, M.A., Regius Professor of Modern History, and Fellow of Oriel College, Oxford. 1874.

This volume contains several lives of Archbishop Dunstan, one of the most celebrated Primates of Canterbury. They open various points of Historical and Literary interest, without which our knowledge of the period would be more incomplete than it is at present.

64. CHRONICON ANGLIÆ, AB ANNO DOMINI 1328 USQUE AD ANNUM 1388, AUCTORE MONACHO QUODAM SANCTI ALBANI. Edited by EDWARD MAUNDE THOMPSON, Esq., Barrister-at-Law, and Assistant-Keeper of the Manuscripts in the British Museum. 1874.

This chronicle gives a circumstantial history of the close of the reign of Edward III. which has hitherto been considered lost.

65. THÓMAS SAGA ERKIBYSKUPS. A LIFE OF ARCHBISHOP THOMAS BECKET, IN ICELANDIC. Vols. I. and II. Edited, with English Translation, Notes, and Glossary by M. EIRÍKR MAGNÚSSON, M.A., Sub-Librarian of the University Library, Cambridge. 1875-1884.

This work is derived from the Life of Becket written by Benedict of Peterborough, and apparently supplies the missing portions in Benedict's biography.

66. RADULPHI DE COGGESHALL CHRONICON ANGLICANUM. Edited by the Rev. JOSEPH STEVENSON, M.A. 1875.

This volume contains the "Chronicon Anglicanum," by Ralph of Coggeshall, the "Libellus de Expugnacione Terræ Sanctæ per Saladinum," usually ascribed to the same author, and other pieces of an interesting character.

67. MATERIALS FOR THE HISTORY OF THOMAS BECKET, ARCHBISHOP OF CANTERBURY. Vols. I., II., III., IV., V., and VI. Edited by the Rev. JAMES CRAIGIE ROBERTSON, M.A., Canon of Canterbury. 1875-1883.

This Publication will comprise all contemporary materials for the history of Archbishop Thomas Becket. The first volume contains the life of that celebrated man, and the miracles after his death, by William, a monk of Canterbury. The second, the life by Benedict of Peterborough; John of Salisbury; Alan of Tewkesbury; and Edward Grim. The third, the life by William Fitzstephen; and Herbert of Bosham. The fourth, Anonymous lives, Quadriologus, &c. The fifth and sixth volumes, the Epistles, and known letters.

68. RADULFI DE DICETO DECANI LUNDONIENSIS OPERA HISTORICA. THE HISTORICAL WORKS OF MASTER RALPH DE DICETO, DEAN OF LONDON. Vols. I. and II. Edited, from the Original Manuscripts, by WILLIAM STUBBS, M.A., Regius Professor of Modern History, and Fellow of Oriel College, Oxford. 1876.

The Historical Works of Ralph de Diceto are some of the most valuable materials for British History. The Abbreviationes Chronicorum extend from the Creation to 1147, and the Ymages Historiarum to 1201.

69. ROLL OF THE PROCEEDINGS OF THE KING'S COUNCIL IN IRELAND, FOR A PORTION OF THE 16TH YEAR OF THE REIGN OF RICHARD II. 1392-93. Edited by the Rev. JAMES GRAVES, A.B. 1877.

This Roll throws considerable light on the History of Ireland at a period little known. It seems the only document of the kind extant.

70. HENRICI DE BRACON DE LEGIBUS ET CONSUETUDINIBUS ANGLIÆ LIBRI QUINQUE IN VARIOS TRACTATUS DISTINCTI. AD DIVERSORUM ET VETUSTISSIMORUM CODICUM COLLATIONEM TYPIS VULGATI. Vols. I., II., III., IV., V., and VI. Edited by SIR TRAVERS TWISS, Q.C., D.C.L. 1878-1883.

This is a new edition of Bracon's celebrated work, collated with MSS. in the British Museum; the Libraries of Lincoln's Inn, Middle Temple, and Gray's Inn; Bodleian Library, Oxford; the Bibliothèque Nationale, Paris; &c.

71. THE HISTORIANS OF THE CHURCH OF YORK, AND ITS ARCHBISHOPS. Vol. I. Edited by JAMES RAINE, M.A., Canon of York, and Secretary of the Surtees Society. 1879.

This will form a complete "Corpus Historicum Eboracense," a work very much needed, and of great value to the Historical Inquirer.

72. REGISTRUM MALMESBURIENSE. THE REGISTER OF MALMESBURY ABBEY; PRESERVED IN THE PUBLIC RECORD OFFICE. Vols. I. and II. Edited by J. S. BREWER, M.A., Preacher at the Rolls, and Rector of Toppesfield, and CHARLES TRICE MARTIN, Esq., B.A. 1879, 1880.

This work illustrates many curious points of history, the growth of society, the distribution of land, the relations of landlord and tenant, national history, customs, &c.

73. HISTORICAL WORKS OF GERVASE OF CANTERBURY. Vols. I. and II. THE CHRONICLE OF THE REIGNS OF STEPHEN, HENRY II., and RICHARD I., BY GERVASE, THE MONK OF CANTERBURY. Edited by WILLIAM STUBBS, D.D.; Canon Residentiary of St. Paul's, London; Regius Professor of Modern History and Fellow of Oriel College, Oxford; &c. 1879, 1880.

The Historical Works of Gervase of Canterbury are of great importance as regards the questions of Church and State, during the period in which he wrote. This work was printed by Twysden, in the "Historiæ Anglicanæ Scriptores X.," more than two centuries ago. The present edition has received critical examination and illustration.

74. HENRICI ARCHIDIACONI HUNTINGDONENSIS HISTORIA ANGLORUM. THE HISTORY OF THE ENGLISH, BY HENRY, ARCHDEACON OF HUNTINGDON, from A.D. 55 to A.D. 1154, in Eight Books. Edited by THOMAS ARNOLD, M.A., of University College, Oxford. 1879.

Henry of Huntingdon's work was first printed by Sir Henry Savile, in 1596, in his "Scriptores post Bedam," and reprinted at Frankfort in 1601. Both editions are very rare and inaccurate. The first five books of the History were published in 1848 in the "Monumenta Historica Britannica," which is out of print. The present volume contains the whole of the manuscript of Huntingdon's History in eight books, collated with a manuscript lately discovered at Paris.

75. THE HISTORICAL WORKS OF SYMEON OF DURHAM. Vol. I. Edited by THOMAS ARNOLD, M.A., of University College, Oxford. 1882.

II.—Gesta Edwardi de Carnarvan Auctore Canonico Bridlingtoniensi. III.—Monaehi Cujusdam Malmesberiensis Vita, Edwardi II. IV.—Vita et Mors Edwardi II. Conscripta a Thoma de la Moore.

77. REGISTRUM EPISTOLARUM FRATRIS JOHANNIS PECKHAM, ARCHIEPISCOPI CANTUARIENSIS. Vols. I. and II. Edited by CHARLES TRICE MARTIN, Esq., B.A., F.S.A., 1882-1884.

These Letters are of great value for illustrating English Ecclesiastical History.

78. REGISTER OF S. OSMUND. Edited by the Rev. W. H. RICH JONES, M.A., F.S.A., Canon of Salisbury, Vicar of Bradford-on-Avon. Vols. I. and II. 1883, 1884.

This Register, of which a complete copy is here printed for the first time, is among the most ancient, and certainly the most treasured, of the muniments of the Bishops of Salisbury. It derives its name from containing the statutes, rules, and orders made or compiled by S. Osmund, to be observed in the Cathedral and Diocese of Salisbury. The first 19 folios contain the "Consuetudinary," the exposition, as regards ritual, of the "Use of Sarum."

79. CHARTULARY OF THE ANCIENT BENEDICTINE ABBEY OF RAMSEY, from the MS. in the Public Record Office. Vol. I. 1884. Edited by WILLIAM HENRY HART, Esq., F.S.A., and the Rev. PONSONBY ANNESLEY LYONS.

These Chartularies, published for the first time, are the only documents of that description known to exist of the ancient establishments of the Cistercian Order in Ireland; two being of St. Mary's Abbey, Dublin, and one of the House at Dunbrody, Wexford. One Chartulary is in the Bodleian Library, Oxford, together with that of Dunbrody; the second is in the British Museum.

DOMESDAY BOOK, or the GREAT SURVEY OF ENGLAND OF WILLIAM THE CONQUEROR, 1086; fac-simile of the Part relating to each county, separately (with a few exceptions of double counties). Photozincographed, by Her Majesty's Command, at the Ordnance Survey Office, Southampton, Colonel Sir HENRY JAMES, R.E., F.R.S., &c., DIRECTOR-GENERAL of the ORDNANCE SURVEY, under the Superintendence of W. BASEVI SANDERS, Esq., Assistant Keeper of Her Majesty's Records. 35 Parts, imperial quarto and demy quarto (1861-1863), boards. Price 8s. to 1l. 3s. each Part, according to size; or, bound in 2 Vols., 20l. (The edition in two volumes is out of print.)

This important and unique survey of the greater portion of England* is the oldest and most valuable record in the national archives. It was commenced about the year 1084 and finished in 1086. Its compilation was determined upon at Gloucester by William the Conqueror, in council, in order that he might know what was due to him, in the way of tax, from his subjects, and that each at the same time might know what he had to pay. It was compiled as much for their protection as for the benefit of the sovereign. The nobility and people had been grievously distressed at the time by the king bringing over large numbers of French and Bretons, and quartering them on his subjects, "each according to the measure of his land," for the purpose of resisting the invasion of Cnut, King of Denmark, which was apprehended. The Commissioners appointed to make the survey were to inquire the name of each place; who held it in the time of King Edward the Confessor; the present possessor; how many hides were in the manor; how many ploughs were in the demesne; how many homagers; how many villeins; how many cottars; how many serving men; how many free tenants; how many tenants in soccage; how much wood, meadow, and pasture; the number of mills and fish ponds; what had been added or taken away from the place; what was the gross value in the time of Edward the Confessor; the present value; and how much each free man or soc-man had, and whether any advance could be made in the value. Thus could be ascertained who held the estate in the time of King Edward; who then held it; its value in the time of the late King; and its value as it stood at the formation of the survey. So minute was the survey, that the writer of the contemporary portion of the Saxon Chronicle records, with some asperity—"So very narrowly he caused it to be traced out, that there was not a single hide, nor one virgate of land, nor even, "it is shame to tell, though it seemed to him no shame to do, an ox, nor a cow, nor a swine was left, that was not set down."

Domesday Survey is in two parts or volumes. The first, in folio, contains the counties of Bedford, Berks, Bucks, Cambridge, Chester and Lancaster, Cornwall, Derby, Devon, Dorset, Gloucester, Hants, Hereford, Herts, Huntingdon, Kent, Leicester and Rutland, Lincoln, Middlesex, Northampton, Nottingham, Oxford, Salop, Somerset, Stafford, Surrey, Sussex, Warwick, Wilts, Worcester, and York. The second volume, in quarto, contains the counties of Essex, Norfolk, and Suffolk.

Domesday Book was printed verbatim et literatim during the last century, in consequence of an address of the House of Lords to King George III. in 1767. It was not, however, commenced until 1773, and was completed early in 1783. In 1860, Her Majesty's Government, with the concurrence of the Master of the Rolls, determined to apply the art of photozincography to the production of a fac-simile of Domesday Book, under the superintendence of Colonel Sir Henry James, R.E., Director-General of the Ordnance Survey, Southampton. The fac-simile was completed in 1863.

FAC-SIMILES of NATIONAL MANUSCRIPTS, from WILLIAM THE CONQUEROR to QUEEN ANNE, selected under the direction of the Master of the Rolls, and Photozincographed, by Command of Her Majesty, by Colonel Sir HENRY JAMES, R.E., F.R.S. DIRECTOR-GENERAL of the ORDNANCE SURVEY, and edited by W. BASEVI SANDERS, Assistant Keeper of Her Majesty's Records. Price, each Part, with translations and notes, double foolscap folio, 16s.

- Part I. (William the Conqueror to Henry VII.). 1865. (Out of print.)
 Part II. (Henry VIII. and Edward VI.) 1866.
 Part III. (Mary and Elizabeth). 1867.
 Part IV. (James I. to Anne). 1868.

The first Part extends from William the Conqueror to Henry VII., and contains autographs of the kings of England, as well as of many other illustrious personages famous in history, and some interesting charters, letters patent, and state papers. The second Part, for the reigns of Henry VIII. and Edward VI., consists principally of holograph letters and autographs of kings, princes, statesmen, and other persons of great historical interest, who lived during those reigns. The third Part contains similar documents for the reigns of Mary and Elizabeth, including a signed bill of Lady Jane Grey. The fourth Part concludes the series, and comprises a number of documents taken from the originals belonging to the Constable of the Tower of London; also several records illustrative of the Gunpowder Plot, and a woodcut containing portraits of Mary Queen of Scots and James VI., circulated by their adherents in England, 1580-3.

FAC-SIMILES of ANGLO-SAXON MANUSCRIPTS. Photozincographed, by Command of Her Majesty, upon the recommendation of the Master of the Rolls, by the DIRECTOR-GENERAL of the ORDNANCE SURVEY, Lieut.-General J. CAMERON, R.E., C.B., F.R.S., and edited by W. BASEVI SANDERS, Assistant Keeper of Her Majesty's Records. Part I. Price 2l. 10s.

The Anglo-Saxon MSS. represented in this volume form the earlier portion of the collection of archives belonging to the Dean and Chapter of Canterbury, and consist of a series of 25 charters, deeds, and wills, commencing with a record of proceedings at the first Synodal Council of Clovestho in 742, and terminating with the first part of a tripartite cheirograph, whereby Thurstan conveyed to the Church of Canterbury land at Wimbish in Essex, in 1049, the sixth year of the reign of Edward the Confessor.

Also, separately. Edward the Confessor's Charter. Price 2s.

The originals of the Fac-similes contained in this volume belong to the Deans and Chapters of Westminster, Exeter, Wells, Winchester, and Worcester; the Marquis of Bath, the Earl of Ilchester, Winchester College, Her Majesty's Public Record Office, the Bodleian Library, the Somersetshire Archaeological and National History Society's Museum in Taunton Castle, and the Salt Library at Stafford. They consist of charters and other documents granted by, or during the reigns of Baldred, Æthelred, Offa, and Burgred, Kings of Mercia; Uhtred of the Hwiccas, Ceadwalla and Ini of Wessex; Æthelwulf, Eadward the Elder, Æthelstan, Eadmund the First, Eadred, Eadwig, Eadgar, Eadward the Second, Æthelred the Second, Cnut, Eadward the Confessor, and William the Conqueror, embracing altogether a period of nearly four hundred years. They include the magnificent Charters of Dunstan and Eadward the Confessor to Westminster Abbey, and that of the same King uniting Devon and Cornwall in one see at Exeter. Orc's Guild at Abbotsbury, one of the earliest and most interesting records of these associations known in England, is reproduced in this volume, which finishes—as to date—with a charter of William the Conqueror, in the beginning of his reign, to Exeter, of great beauty and historic interest. The dates of this collection range from A.D. 693 to A.D. 1069.

This work forms a comprehensive Palæographic Series for Ireland. It furnishes characteristic specimens of the documents which have come down from each of the classes which, in past ages, formed principal elements in the population of Ireland, or exercised an influence in her affairs. With these reproductions are combined fac-similes of writings connected with eminent personages or transactions of importance in the annals of the country to the early part of the eighteenth century.

The specimens have been reproduced as nearly as possible in accordance with the originals, in dimensions, colouring, and general appearance. Characteristic examples of styles of writing and caligraphic ornamentation are, so far as practicable, associated with subjects of historic and linguistic interest. Descriptions of the various manuscripts are given by the Editor in the Introduction. The contents of the specimens are fully elucidated and printed in the original languages, opposite to the Fac-similes—line for line—without contractions—thus facilitating reference and aiding effectively those interested in palæographic studies.

In the work are also printed in full, for the first time, many original and important historical documents.

Part II. : From the Twelfth Century to A.D. 1299.

Part III. : From A.D. 1300 to end of reign of Henry VIII.

Part IV. 1. : From reign of Edward VI. to that of James I.

In Part IV. 2.—the work is carried down to the early part of the eighteenth century, with Index to the entire publication.
